MICA MEN HERE TUESDAY

Dave Norris of Mt. Creek and Dr. J. W. Maddox, of Birmingham were in Clanton Tuesday. While here they made a trip to the property of the Alabama Mica Company east of Clanton. They report that interest in the future development of their property is becoming very much agitated among capitalists of the State, and it is possible that something will be done to put their mineral products on the market in the immediate future.

During the past few weeks there have been many visitors from different parts of the State loking over the property of Alabama Mica Company here. Considerable interest has been aroused by the visit of Mr. Haltom of the University Museum, who secured specimens of the kyanite deposits on the property.

How to Raise Poultry

By Dr. L. D. LeGear, V.S., St. Louis, Mo.

WHEN EGG-MAKERS GO ON A STRIKE

Editor's Note—This is another story in a series of 52 stories on poultry raising written by the well known national poultry authority, Dr. L. D. LeGear, V. S., of St. Louis. The entire series will appear in this paper. Our readers are urged to read them carefully and clip them out for future reference.

Broody Hens Represent an Economic Loss When not Needed for Hatching—Harsh and Cruel Measures Not Needed to Overcome Broodiness.

In a recent radio talk, Raymond Hitchcock stated that even though he had called all his hens together and scolded them severely, they still refused to lay any eggs for him. Not many people would employ the famous comedian's method for trying to get eggs but many of the ways used to break hens of broodiness are just as ridiculously ineffective. It is really important that better ways of overcoming broodiness should be known. A broody hen is an unprofitable hen especially where incubators do all the hatching. Consequently the sooner her broodiness can be broken up the sooner she can begin once more to earn her board and lodging.

It is a mistake to frighten a broody hen by tying red ribbons to her tail, plunging her into cold water, or confining her in a closed box without food, water or light. Such methods belong to the dark ages of poultry raising. They do not actually cure broodiness but only put the hen in poor flesh and health. The only way to get a hen out of this condition is to get her mind off the subject, so to speak, so she will once more begin eating and drinking in normal fashion. One good way to accomplish this is to confine one or more hens in a small coop with a vigorous male.

Broodiness can also be easily and humanely overcome through the use of broody coops. The important thing in using such a coop is to get the broody hen into it the very first day she shows any sign of that condition. If this is done she will forget her broodiness in less than half the time that will be needed if she is allowed to stay on the nest, two three or four days. The longer broodiness is allowed to continue the harder it is to overcome and the greater will be the loss of egg production. I shall describe two broody coops that I have found exceptionally effective.

For just one hen, make a coop 2 by 2 by 2 feet. The sides are to be of slats for ventilation, and the top solid for protection. Using a single rope or wire fastened to the center of the top hang this coop from any convenient rafter or branch of a tree. Such a coop will sway with every gust of wind and with every step the hen takes. That will keep her so busy trying to retain her balance that she soon forgets her broodiness.

The second form of broody coop I wish to describe may be used with all decide to go on a strike at about good effect, when a number of hens the same time. This coop should be 3 by 4 or 4 by 5 feet and two feet deep. The sides should be made of slats or poultry netting and the floor either slatted or solid. A good roof should be provided and should extend far enough on ecah side to give good protection from the rain. This coop should be at least 2 or 3 feet off the ground to allow for good circulation of air all around the hens. This is very important, as broody hens should be kept cool. From three to six hens may be placed in this coop and kept in it day and night. It should be put in a cool, shady spot instead of the sun.

Plenty of good feed and cleat water should be kept within easy reach of broody hens the whole time they are confined in a broody coop. This is very important and should not be neglected under any circumstances.

Hens so confined constantly fuss among themselves, which tends to make them forget their broodiness. Seeing other fowls at liberty also helps considerably to speed up the end of broody spells. This method should have the desired effect in from three to five days. It is a particularly good method not only because of its effectiveness but because it is absolutely humane.

Better than any method of curing broodiness is the plan for eliminating it, now being successfully used by many poultry raisers. With careful breeding it is possible to develop a strain of non-sitters or hens that will not go broody. Only hens that do not go broody should be used for breeding and if care is used in selecting just the right hens, broodiness can be practically eliminated in a few generations.

A broody hen, unless needed for hatching eggs, is simply a nuisance and an unnecessary nuisance at that. It is so easy to break up the habit there is no reason why it should be tolerated and a great many reasons that every poultry raiser knows well why it should not be tolerated. But to be successful, one must not make the mistake of using the harsh methods once so much in vogue.

The right way is always the cheapest and best. That is why I recommend sane, humane methods of curing broodiness. They work along scientific lines by not trying to scare the hen out of her broodiness, but by replacing the brooding idea with something else. This method brings 100 per cent success because it leaves the hen in excellent physical condition ready and willing to resume her profitable job of laying eggs. Diplomacy and gentle methods are just as superior to force when dealing with feathered strikers as they usually are with the human variety.

A good business man will not buy a farm or any property without first looking it over to see what it is worth.

However, some will buy or loan money on land without an abstract.

Isn't it equally as foolish to buy a farm without looking it over as to buy it and not know whether the titles are good or not? Without an abstract you do not know where you are getting the land you look at or not.

Before investing in land in any way have an abstract made and be safe.

CHEVROLET IS APPROACHING VOLUME FOR REVISED QUOTA

The manufacturing facilities of Chevrolet Motor Company, numbering 16 great manufacturing plants in this country, are rapidly approaching the volume of output necessary to meet this year's revised annual quota which calls for the manufacture of 1,350,000 passenger car and truck units.

This was signified last week when W. S. Knudsen, president of the company, announced that March production would reach 140,000 units, an amazing output when it is considered that active production on the new six cylinder cars has been underway less than three months. Although no definite figures were issued it can readily be assumed that April's schedule will call for an even larger production, and that mid-summer will witness a quantity output in all of Chevrolet's assembly plants never before equalled by a manufacturer of six cylinder automobiles.

Mr. Knudsen related that February production amounted to 121,249 units. With only 22 working days in the month, daily production for the period averaged better than 5,500 a day.

These figures lend further emphasis to the astounding achievement of the company last fall in changing over from production of fours to sixes with only a six weeks interim to effect necessary alterations.

Upon his return to Detroit a few days ago from a six weeks trip which took him across the northern part of the country and into the far west, R. H. Grant, Chevrolet vice president in charge of sales, spoke with marked optimism of the prevalent demand for the new six cylinder cars. Nearly everywhere, he declared, dealers indicated to him that they had found an increased market for the new product. The cars, he said, are being delivered to owners as fast as they can be distributed.

FOREST FIRE REPORT ISSUED BY COMMISSION

Montgomery, Ala., March 25.—Forest fires burned approximately nine-tenths per cent of the twenty-three million acres of forest land in Alabama during the year 1928, according to the compilations just completed by the State Commission of Forestry.

The total number of fires amounted to 24,464. The total area of forest land burned over was about 1,375,196 acres. Lightning caused 127 fires, railroads 1,040, lumbering 1,430, brush burning 12,176, camp fires 1,555, smokers 3,737, incendiaries 2,452, while 1,947 fires were the result of miscellaneous causes.

Fires burning one-quarter acre or less numbered 340, those more than one-quarter acre and less than 10 acres numbered 12,324, while 11,800 fires were 10 acres or more in extent.

The proportion of forest land burned in the organized districts, comprising the area of greater hazard, was about 5.2 per cent while in the unorganized territory, consisting of the localities of more scattered woodland and lower hazard it amounted to approximately 6.7 per cent.

In terms of one person per fire, it is estimated that 15,358 persons engaged in fighting fires without compensation from the State. Of these 12,048 were farmers and stockmen, 1,298 were railroad employees, 785 were lumbermen's employees, while other volunteers numbered 1,227. Private equipment was used in fire suppression work to a hire value of $513.52. The total money value of volunteer fire fighting efforts on the part of landowners and others is estimated at $15,445.02.

The first three months of the year comprised a continuation of the exceedingly high fire hazard current at the close of 1927, and by far the greater part of the losses were sustained during that period. The latter part of the year, however, witnessed average conditions and the total losses for 1928 were somewhat less than in 1927.

UNIVERSITY NEWS

University, Ala., March 25.—The Alabama Museum of Natural History at the University of Alabama has come into possession of a small snake which has two heads and two tails. Curator William L. Haltom says. The creature was presented to the museum by W. M. Wyatt, publisher of The Union-Banner, Clanton, Ala.

The snake was caught alive and it lived for three days. Haltom said that the heads were normal, but that the tails were paralyzed, and that the snake was unable to crawl.

There are apparently two bony structures, and the organs are separated in a manner similar to those of the famous Siamese twins.

Haltom, an authority in snakes, has not yet determined the species to which his new possession belongs. He states that it will be necessary to work this detail out by means of the snakes' scales, since the stripes are too distorted to be of any aid.

The reptile may be viewed in the Alabama Museum.

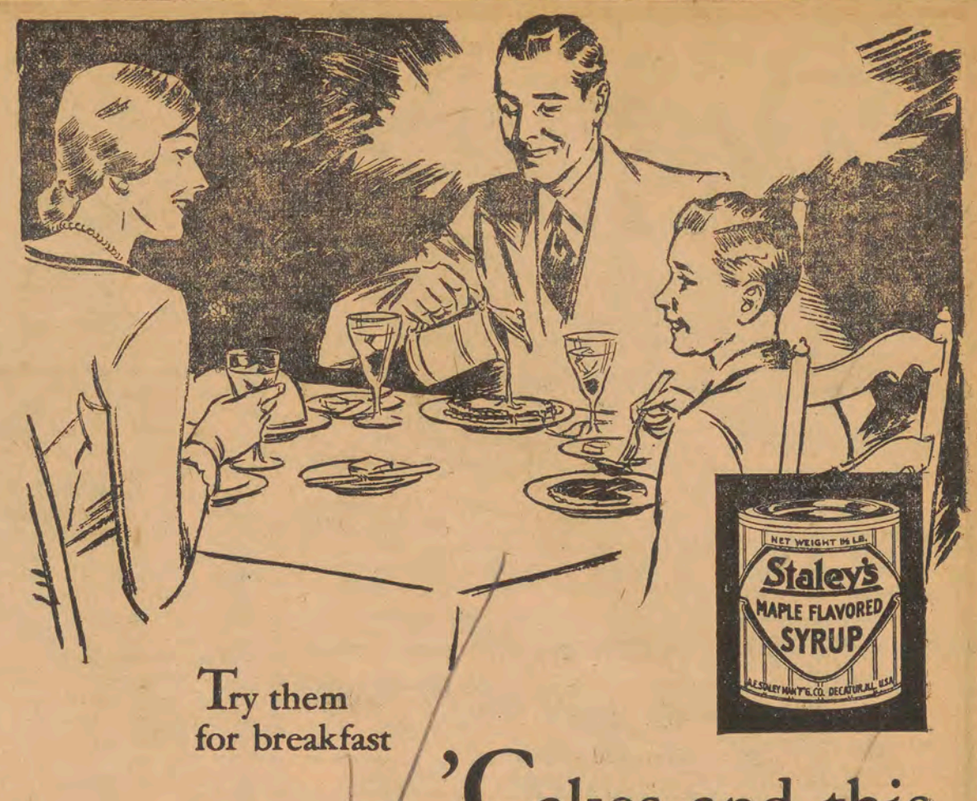
Thorsby has again entertained the Alabama Young People's Christian Life Conference held March 22nd to 24th. In spite of very bad weather conditions which kept away several delegations, representatives from Birmingham, Wadley, Clanton, Verbena, Montevallo, and from Demorest, Georgia, arrived at various times during the conference. The Thorsby graduates now at Piedmont College revealed their enthusiastic spirit by spending a day and a night on the road to get here. Mrs. Loveland, a former teacher, came with them, sharing their spirit. Any group of people who will go through mud, water, storm, and car trouble for twenty-four hours to attend a conference is bound to get a great deal from it and to contribute richly to it. We can say heartily that this was true of the Piedmont College delegation. With such spirit as this and an enrollment of seventy-eight young people and leaders nothing could keep us from enjoying a most helpful and inspiring fellowship.

The first meeting of the conference was held on Friday night and took the form of a Chinese Social, under the direction of Miss Klingelhoefer. Alta ach, Ruth Champion, and Mr. Morgan, as a Chinese family, entertained the guests in true Oriental fashion.

A Sunrise Service under the leadership of Mr. Maddox opened our Saturday program most appropriately. He had prepared an inspiring service in which all could take part, with music, responsive readnigs and prayer. Miss Maybelle McJunkin from Wadley touched a responsive chord in all by her challenging appeal for Life Service.

At nine-thirty Rev. J. E. Each conducted a devotional service before the first business meeting of the Conference. Then followed a series of discussions on topics and questions that had been sent in from various parts of the state. We were very fortunate in having Dr. C. L. Fisk of the Congregational Education Society, and Dr. Neil McQuarrie, assistant district superintendent, with us to lead these discussion and to address our meetings.

The main problems discussed are these:



1. Recreation for young people.
   Proper recreation.
   How we should spend Sunday.
2. Life Work.
   What shall I do with my life?
   How shall I choose a life work?
   How can we get the courage to face life aright at all times?
   Proper Education.
3. Social Problems.
   In what ways does it pay to be modern?
   How can we make the Christ-life more attractive?
   How can we get correct standards to live by and follow them?
   How can I be good without being a "sissy"?
   Correct moral standards.
   The moral obligations of the present generation.
   Choosing a life partner.
4. Religious Problems.
   What does the program of the church have to offer to young people?
   How can a Christian keep a proper relationship between his church and his job?
   How do Religious Standards affect our work?
   What is the relation between the moral and the spiritual life?

At the beginning of the various discussions short addresses were given by several people. Miss Dora Bracken gave a helpful explanation of the Student Volunteer Movement. Mrs. Loveland gave a talk on education, as a representative of Piedmont College. Student Summeer Service was the theme of a dramatization presented by the Piedmont students in a very helpful way.

The Vesper Service held on the grounds of the Boy's Dormintory was a most impressive meeting in a lovely setting. Mr. Dickson had prepared a very worshipful program in which all took part. He was assisted by several special selections by others.

The social side of the conference did not close with the Friday night social. We enjoyed games and stunts in the morning and at the picnic. Of course the banquet was the big social occasion. The food was excellent and the fellowship was most delightful. Everyone joined in cheers, songs, and fun. The toasts were interesting and well given, under the leadership of John VanDerveer, as Toast-master. Miss Boring, Dr. Fisk, Dr. McQuarrie, Miss Gertrude Steiner, Aubrey Taylor, and Charles Long responded most fittingly.

A communion service conducted by Dr. McQuarrie closed our 1929 conference on Sunday afternoon. It was an appropriate end for our two days of fine Christian fellowship.

THE CIRCUS PARADE

(James Whitcomb Riley)

The circus! The circus! the throb of the drums,
And the blare of the horns as the band-wagon comes;
The clash and the clang of the cymbals that beat,
As the glittering pageant winds down the long street!

In the circus parade there is glory clean down
From the first spangled horse to the mule of the clown.
With the gleam and the glint and the glamour and glare
Of the days of enchantment all glimmering there!

And there are banners of silvery fold

That in jungles of India shook from his flanks
The tiger that lept from the Jujubee banks.

Here's the long, ever-changing, mysterious line
Of the cages, with hints of their glories divine
Where the close-hidden animal's noses appear.

Then the far away clash of the cymbals, and then
The swoon of the tune ere it wakens again
With the capering tone of the gallant cornet
That go dancing away in a made minuet.

The circus! The circus! The throb of the drums,
And the blare of the horns as the band-wagon comes;
The clash and the clang of the cymbals that beat,
As the glittering pageant winds down the long street!

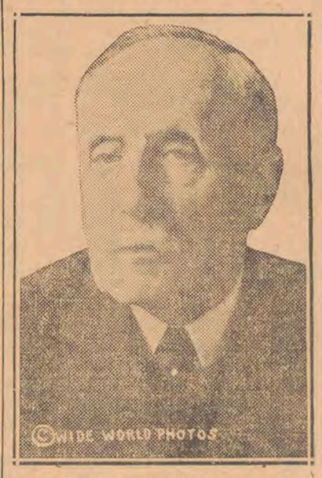
Marshal Foch Is Second Allied War Leader to Die

General Pershing Is Only Survivor of Great Triumvirate—Earl Haig Was First to Go

With the passing of Marshal Foch, death has claimed the second of the great triumvirate of Allied military leaders who brought World War victory to the Allies. Earl Haig, the British Commander-in-Chief, died January 30, 1928. General Pershing, the American war-time head of the American legions, alone remains.

By the irony of fate, Marshal Foch's fatal illness was directly traceable to a gesture of homage he paid to the Allied soldier dead last Armistice Day. In the falling rain he went without his hat through the memorial ceremonies in Paris and contracted a cold which quickly resulted in more serious diseases which his declining vitality was not able to overcome. The Marshal was 77 years old.



Evidence of the affection in which the French generalissimo was held in this country was widely manifest, and received formal acknowledgement from M. Maxime Mongendre, French Consul-General in New York.

"Not only Frenchmen, but people of those allied nations whose soldiers fought side by side under his leadership for the future of humanity, share in this grief, and I am grateful for this opportunity to thank the many Americans who have tendered their condolences to me as the representative of France, and previously expressed their hope for his recovery," Monsieur Mongendre said.

"It is doubly to be regretted that his illness should have had its inception in an act of homage to the gallant war-dead, when he contracted a cold during the ceremonies on Armistice Day."

The sturdy strength of will which carried Foch undaunted through the vicissitudes of war had been equally marked through his entire illness. His great spirit alone carried him past the initial crisis last January, according to his physicians, when the cold, which, soldier-like, he at first endeavored to shake off, settled in the bronchial tubes, causing a hacking cough and finally affecting seriously the action of his heart.

The brain which directed the Allies to victory remained clear to the last. In characteristic military fashion he "obeyed orders" with the same strict promptness which he exacted from his own pollus. Recently, it is reported, he rallied his strength and sought to speak with Madame Foch. This infraction of discipline was quickly checked by the nurse. "You must not talk," she said. And the general was silent.

MARSHAL FERDINAND FOCH

Marshal Foch's fatal illness occurred at a time when several other French statesmen were suffering from dangerous colds, and reports from Paris stated that the epidemic has aroused agitation against the old custom of keeping the head uncovered during military memorial services for the dead. A similar agitation was reported from England, when it was announced that King George's recent illness had had its inception at the Armistice Day celebrations when the King stood for long intervals bareheaded in the rain.

Side Dressing Means More Cotton and More Profit

"If I had only known the value of this wonderful fertilizer thirty years ago when I started farming, I could have been independent. I am making two-thirds more cotton per acre since I started using Chilean Nitrate of Soda. I can't see why all farmers do not use soda."

M. J. DENNIS,

University Ala., March 25.—The University of Alabama campus witnessed an unusual scene this week when a group picture was made of the student body. A tower 25 feet high was erected in the center of the campus, and a photographer with a revolving camera got a photo of practically every student and faculty member at the University.

The group formed a semi-circle around the tower, faculty members in the first row, followed by 600 co-eds, then the men students, and bringing up the rear was the entire R. O. T. C. unit of the University. It was estimated that 3,000 were included in the picture. While waiting for the photographer to arrive, the R. O. T. C. band furnished music, and the various schools making up the University vied with each other in cheering for their unit. The Law School and the School of Medicine were conceded the yelling victory by popular accord.

This was, perhaps, the first group picture made of the entire University personnel in many years.

University, Ala., March 25.—Seniors in the School of Engineering will be divided into groups this week, and will prepare to take their annual inspection tour.

Metallurgical and mining engineers will visit the marble quarries at Tate, Ga., and will inspect mines, mills, and smelting plants in Chattanooga, Gadsden, and Birmingham.

Electrical and mechanical engineers will inspect the Gorgas Dam, and various other plants in the state. The Gulf States Steel plant at Gadsden, as well as the Goodyear Rubber plant will be visited by the University students. Other plants which will be inspected by the group include the Southern Bell Telephone Company, Phoenix Cement Company and the Tennessee Copper plant.

A. R. Pearson of Alexander City made 52 bales of cotton on 65 acres last year. He attributes much of his success to the fact that he mixed his fertilizer as recommeended by Sam Day, county agent. The year before he made only 22 bales on the same farm although the weather that year was more favorable than in 1928.

Farm boys in Chambers County, Aalbama, have organized a 4-H Jersey calf club under the direction of H. C. Heath, county agent, and F. W. Burns, livestock specialist at Auburn. This club has 57 members and 41 of them already have calves. Others will have them by April 1, Mr. Heath said.

On many farms timber pays the taxes besides supplying all the wood and timber needed for the home and farm upkeep.

County Farm Agent's Notes

20 HIGH SCHOOLS IN STATE CONTEST

Auburn, Ala., March 25.—Nineteen Alabama high schools and one in Georgia have enrolled to date in the high school dramatic tournament which will be held here, April 13. Dr. Leo Gosser, of the English department of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, expects a few more entries before the close on April 6.

Those enrolled to date are the State Secondary Agricultural School, Wetumpka; Dixons Mills High school of Dixons Mills; Clift High School, Opelika; Woodlawn High School, Birmingham; Monroe County High School, Monroeville; Bankhead High Schol, Cordova; Lee County High School, Auburn; Lafayette High School, LeFayette; Bessemer High School, Bessemer; Ramer High School, Ramer; Murphy High School, Mobile; Normal, Jacksonville; Tuscaloosa Senior High School, Tuscaloosa; State Secondary Agricultural School, Albertville; White Plains High School, Chocolocco; Tuskegee High School, Tuskegee; Union Springs High School, Union Springs; Alexander City High School, Alexander City; and Ranburne High School, Ranburne, Ga.

Heretofore this tournament has been held in connection with the annual convention of the Alabama Education Association. Last year eight high schools participated.

Dr. Gosser said that every high school in the State is eligible to send one play not to exceed 35 minutes for production. No restrictions are made on the size of the casts.

Each group will be judged on the quality of the acting, the artistic quality of the setting, and the literary merit of the play presented, Dr. Gosser said.

Auburn, Ala., March 25.—In Alabama 12,000 farm boys will be engaged in 4-H club work this year. Already most of them have been enrolled by the county demonstration agents as shown by them in reports to T. A. Sims, state club leader at Auburn.

Each of five counties has enrolled more than 500 boys. They are Covington, Cullman, Dale, DeKalb, and Etowah. In 1928 Dale was the only county in the state having an enrollment exceeding 500.

Cotton will be the leading project. More boys will be engaged in it than in either other. Corn will be next with pig and calf following. A few hundred will engage in other lines of work under the 4-H banner.

Those who engage in cotton club work will try to make at least one bale of cotton per acre, Mr. Sims said. Last year a few made two bales to the acre and a larger number will make this their goal this year.

In eighteen counties calf clubs are being organized. They are Chilton, Cullman, Calhoun, Chambers, Coosa, Tallapoosa, Dallas, Hale, Etowah, Madison, Marion, Lawrence, Limestone, Shelby, Lamar, Montgomery, Pickens and Elmore.

Jersey calves are being used in this work, the objective of which is to introduce dairying on a bigger scale and make it more profitable, Mr. Sims explained.

As boys enroll they are being organized into clubs which will meet regularly for making reports and for instruction.

In 1916 the milk produced by the average cow in the United States was 3,700 pounds; and 10 years later, 1926, this amount was increased to 4,700 pounds, according to the United States Department of Agriculture.

An official record of cotton fertilizer experiments in Alabama is contained in a bulletin published by the Experiment Station at Auburn and entitled "Fertilizer Experiments with Cotton." It was written by John T. Williamson.

The town of Elba, Alabama, will be rebuilt where it was destroyed by the recent floods. Inhabitants of the town are reported to be determined in their efforts. The town suffered terrible losses.

In answer to inquiries from farmers, county agents and specialists of the college of agriculture at Auburn are advising full use of commercial fertilizer for cotton. However, reports indicate that farmers will use much less this year than they did last.

In 1928 Alabama made 1,108,518 bales of cotton, according to the final ginners' report released on March 20 by the United States Department of Agriculture. Alabama was the fifth state in cotton production last year, being exceeded by Texas, Mississippi, Arkansas and Oklahoma in the order named.

NEWS IN BRIEF

In five-acre cotton contests conducted in Alabama in 1928 under the direction of county demonstration agents each dollar invested in commercial fertilizer, home-mixed, returned $6.00 and up, according to an analysis made by F. W. Gist, agricultural statistician at Montgomery.

On February 28 passenger airplanes were operating on schedules covering a distance of 24,111 miles. Airplane miles scheduled for mail operations were 36,045, and for non-mail service 18,300—a total of 53,345—showing the expansion for air transportation of mail and passengers.

Poison bait is effective for the conrol of cutworms in gardens and also in fields. It is made by using Paris green, adding enough water to 50 pounds of bran to one pound of moisten thoroughly the mixture. Scatter around the plants. Lead arsenate and calcium arsenate do not give good results and should not be used.

Thomas D. Campbell, famous wheat grower, Hardin, Montana, discovered on a recent tour of Europe that machines in use in Germany are making twine fiber from flax straw. He thinks that this may be used in this country and that it will add $20,000 to $30,000 to the income of his farm from his 10,000 acres of flax.

F. W. Gist, agricultural statistician, Montgomery, has found that Alabama cotton growers geet more pounds of cotton per ton of fertilizer used than farmers in other states get. He attributes this to the work of the experiment station of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute and also to Alabama laws requiring higher grades of fertilizers to be sold in the state.

Insects destroy annually farm crops, fruits, and vegetables worth a billion dollars, according to W. A. Ruffin, extension entomologist at Auburn.

Green Retherford and W. M. Wyatt went to Atlanta Sunday to carry Billy Retherford back to the hospital for two weeks treatment. The trip was made by automobile through the country.

BASKET BALL TOURNAMENT TO BE HELD NEXT SATURDAY

All the Junior High Schools of the county will hold a basket ball tournament for both boys and girls next Saturday, March 30, at the Chilton County High School court. The eliminations will be held during the day, for which there is no admission charge. At night the final for both boys and girls will be played in an indoor court. It is hoped that this will be the beginning of a strong rivaling spirit among the schools of the County. All schools are urged to send their teams, even though they may feel that they stand no chance to win the championship. The public is cordially invited to attend.

ATTENDING TIRE MEETING IN BIRMINGHAM

Mr. L. E. Diefenderfer, proprietor of Dief's Service Station, local dealers for Goodyear tires, with his assistants, Messrs. Durward and J. L. Teel, went up to Birmingham Tuesday to attend a state meeting of Goodyear Tire dealers, in conference with factory representatives of the Goodyear Company.

In the absence of Dief and his force Tuesday and Tuesday night, the service Station was in charge of Tom Littlejohn, assisted by Hubie.

WORMY PEACHES

If you want peaches free of worms it is very necessary that you begin spraying with a mixture containing Arsenate of lead when about three-fourths of the blooms have shed.

Put on the same spray again about two weeks after the bloom spray and a third spray three weeks after the second spray.

You can control worms and rot by proper spraying.—C. E. Stapp, County Agent.

VOLUME COUNTS IN THE ICE WATER BUSINESS

Dief runs his ice water business at the service station along the same principles used by Uncle Wash, who went into the statute business. If you heard the Trials and Tribulation of Uncle Wash, WSM Nashville, last Saturday night, you will understand about his wonderful venture in the statute business, and how it is that volume is what counts.

Out of his firm conviction that such a plan in the ice water business is the very thing for his place, Dief has installed a water cooling machine that will enable him not only to care for his customers better this summer, but will, he hopes, also furnish enough ice water for him to get a drink for himself occasionally.

GROWING FEED FOR DAIRY CATTLE

Calf Club Lesson for April

It is very essential that the calf club member be taught at the beginning that the function of a cow is to convert large quantities of home grown feed into milk or butterfat, a more salable commodity.

Particular emphasis should be laid on the greater use of legume hay and better pastures in Alabama. It has been demonstrated in numbers of experiments that where cows were fed all the good legume hay they could consume they have produced over 300 pounds of butterfat without additional grain. It is not our purpose to recommend this practice, but simply to impress on the boys that high priced concentrates can be materially reduced where sufficient legume hay of good quality is grown on the farm.

Every dairyman knows that it is in late spring or early summer while on luxuriant pasture that the dairy herd normally reaches the maximum production of the year. This fact teaches us that to secure the largest total yield of milk the dairyman should imitate these summer conditions as closely as possible during the other seasons of the year. The summer conditions which bring about the maximum production of milk and butterfat are:

1. An abundance of feed.
2. A balanced ration.
3. Palatable feed.
4. Comfortable surroundings.
5. Succulent feed.
6. Reasonable exercise.

Upon the ability of the dairyman to maintain these favorable conditions for his herd throughout the year depend in a large measure the profits he will receive.

It will be advisable to use Extension Circular No. 93 and the March issue of the Alabama Dairyman as a guide for your discussion of feeding dairy cattle. You will find this information simple and at the same time you will be following our feeding program as recommended for all Alabama dairymen.

FARM FORESTRY FACTS

There is no conflict in farming and forestry.

Reforestation is a basis for our industrial permanency.

Animals and birds must have a chance to protect themselves from enemies or they will become extinct.

Small or large orchards of fast-growing pines will be good collateral at the bank in a few years.

For clear profit, poplars, and sweet gums offer a challenge to the farmers of the South as a crop on lands not needed for agriculture.

FERTILIZER PAYS BIG UNDER COTTON

Auburn, Ala., March 25.—The use of commercial fertilizer of the right kind is a very profitable practice for Alabama cotton growers. This has been demonstrated many times by experiments and by farmers; but an outstanding demonstration of it was conducted by the five-acre cotton contestants of the State in 1928.

These contestants fertilized as directed by the county agents. They used the "Auburn Maximum" which for most, was 400 pounds of superphosphate, 200 pounds nitrate of soda and 50 pounds muriate of potash per acre.

Reports received were analyzed by F. W. Gist, Federal and State agricultural statistician of the Department of Agriculture, Montgomery. He found that in north Alabama the average cost per 100 pounds of this fertilizer was $1.67; and that each 100 pounds of fertilizer returned $10.49 in the form of increased yield. This is based upon 27 contestants.

In south Alabama the average cost per 100 pounds of fertilizer used was $1.59 and the average returns, $7.16. This slight reduction in returns for fertilizer is attributed to the un favorable season for cotton in that section last year.

Based upon these and other results from the use of commercial fertilizer the Alabama cotton growers get a bigger return from the use of commercial fertilizers than from any other one thing. Failure to use enough of the right kind is worse than false economy. It is equivalent to failure. Any investment that will pay as much as fertilizer under cotton in Alabama is an unusual investment, Auburn specialists declare.

CANE CREEK

Our singing society met here Sunday afternoon with a large crowd present. Directors were Mr. Jasper Robinson, R. E. Jones, E. C. Traywick, Mrs. Sarah Collins and Lillie Mae Weldon. Organists were Mrs. Zula Retherford, Delene Lambert, and Lillie Mae Weldon. The book being new to us we did not have as good singing as we will have later on but we did the best we could and that is all anyone could ask of us. We had several visitors among whom were Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Robinson. We were glad to have them with us and all the others who came. Even if people don't help sing their presence does lots of good for we feel sure they are interested in what we are trying to do. So come next 4th Sunday afternoon and help us try to make a few hours time well spent.

We are to meet next Sunday morning at 10 o'clock to start up our Sunday school again as we haven't had any in the last two quarters. The literature will be here and all we will have to do is to go to work. Visitors are always welcome to our services.

OUR LUNCH PERIOD

The reason I like to have supervised lunch is that we have a nice room to eat in and nice seats to sit on. We do not have to eat out in the cold or rain. It is very comfortable in the house.

Each pupil sits in his own desk. We may talk to each other while we eat. We surely do have a nice time.

Paper does not get on the ground and we do not hurry so much in eating our food. This is better for our health.—Callie Cooper, Fifth Grade, Baker Junior High School.

BRO. BRYAN'S BIBLE STORY

(Written for The Union-Banner by REV. J. A. BRYAN, Pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, Birmingham, Alabama)

FASTING AS TAUGHT IN THE BIBLE

I wish to speak to you on what the Bible teaches on the subject of fasting. Now we remember distinctly when Moses led the Israelites to the foot of Mount Sinai that God called him up on that mountain. God was there. Moses was looking into the face of God by faith. He was there for forty days and no doubt he fasted, yet he feasted upon the word of God.

Moses started down with the two tables of stone bearing God's law written by God himself. All law is based on these ten commandments. Christ did not abolish the law. He said, "I came not to destroy the law but to fulfill it." Now Moses started down that mountain side in faithful obedience, truthfulness, honesty, and loyalty to God. But when he saw the people whom God had just led across the Red Sea in perfect safety away from the yoke of Egyptian bondage now steeped in sin, worshiping idols. Moses at once thought of how God had led them across the great sea without a boat or life preserver and he lost control of his temper and threw the tables containing the law of God down and broke them. Then Moses had to hew the stones for the law himself and God gave him the ten commandments.

You cannot worship God in worldliness. God is a Spirit and must be worshipped as one. I must worship God in spirit and in truth. It is said that Moses fasted for forty days before he received these commandments from God. Would you do it? Would I do it? God did not just recommend this but He commanded it. Moses fasted and prayed forty days because he knew he had sinned by losing his temper and needed to seek God's forgiveness and mercy.

Now in the life of David we read that one of his sons was sick and we read that David fasted and wept. A little later we read that the boy died. The Greek Septuagint would say the boy is asleep. David became reconciled, arose, washed himself and said, "I will fast no more, but I will go to church. My child cannot come back to me but I can go to him." Again we read that in the life of Jehosophat, David's recorder, who sought the Lord with all of his heart and found Him. Suppose that we with all the rulers of the land would just seek the Lord with all of our hearts we would certainly do some fasting with this search.

Remember that Jesus Christ, the son of God said, "Ye shall seek me, and ye shall find me when ye seek me with all your heart." Truly we shall find Him when we search for Him with all our hearts. Jehosophat fasted, that is he sought God with all his heart, denying himself of luxuries and food. Now go back to David in the time of a great pestilence in Jerusalem. He went out to see Aruanah who was threshing wheat on a great rock. David walked up to him and said, Aruanah, the people in Jerusalem are dying by the hundreds for the need of help. I tell you I once thought I would just bring my heifer along and sacrifice it to God. Now the record is that David fasted on this occasion. David bought the threshing floor from Araunah, built an altar thereon unto the Lord and offered burnt offerings and peace offerings, entreating the Lord for the land, and the plague was stayed from Israel. No doubt it was the fasting and offering of intercessory prayer by Abraham for those wicked cities of Sodom and Gomorrah that Lot and the righteous were saved from their awful doom. The lives of those faithful old patriarchs stand out with special prominence as to their personal attitude in prayer to God.

In Isaiah we have a book written from the great sermons which Isaiah preached in Judea. God took the sermons this holy man spoke as he was moved by the Holy Spirit. It is the Gospel of a man who had wielded through sixty critical years of Judah's history a strong influence for the religion of Jehovah. During this time he was dealing with a people who were outwardly prosperous, but inwardly, corrupt practices were sapping the resources of the people and drifting them away from the worship of Jehovah. It seems that to-day that we in our own country are in death's grapple for materialism and supremacy.

To-day the church needs to fast and pray not so much for material prosperity, but for spiritual progress. The church cannot expect to prosper unless dependent upon God for all good gifts. In Jerusalem the Hebrew races were sent into Babylonian captivity yet the constant plea was that they be faithful to Jehovah and expect deliverance from Him. If we wish to be delivered from the present day evils we must also be faithful to God and expect deliverance from Him. We must be ready to fast and pray in order to gain the victory.

The temple of Jerusalem had been made one more of materialism than of worship to God. We read that they were brought forth and admonished by Hezekiah to sanctify themselves and the house of the Lord God and to cleanse it holy unto the Lord. There was a feast, a calling together of the people in re-dedication of the temple with sacrifice. The Day of Atonement was a special fast day for the Hebrews. On this day, the high priest, dressed in white linen entered the Holy of Holies and sprinkled the blood of the sacrifice upon the mercy-seat of the Ark of the Covenant.

In studying the life of John the Baptist the great forerunner of Jesus we learn that he was an essene. That is he belonged to that sect of people who drank neither wine nor strong drink and dressed plainly. They were people who were very temperate in all things. Very few of the Jews were essenes who never made themselves known by fasting. They were bold and faithful in reproving all signs of intemperance and at all times enjoined every duty in a whole-hearted dependence upon God.

Not far from Capernaum one finds Mount Hatten where Jesus retired and spoke what is called the "Sermon on the Mount," or the "Beatitudes" to His apostles. The world did not hear that. Only the disciples of Jesus hear it. Christ also taught His disciples that when fasting to be not as the hypocrites by just making a pretense of it, but to be sincere.

In reading the Acts of the Apostles we learn that the early Christian church was visited by the Holy Spirit. They were all filled with the Holy Spirit. Then another high point in the early church was the fact that Cornelius and other Gentiles were received into the church at Antioch in Syria. It is a startling fact that the early church was a persecuted church yet the disciples of Jesus went through storms to carry this Gospel everywhere.

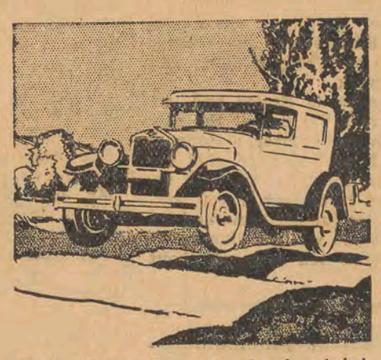
Barnabas went from Jerusalem to Antioch in Syria. There he and Paul preached until called into other fields of service. That church must have fasted. Here is proof that it did fast. Luke writes that it did. The Holy Ghost said, "Separate me, Barnabas and Saul, for the work whereunto I have called them. They were called into other fields where their help was needed. Truly you can not link the Biblical idea of the church to selfishness. I must deny myself, take up the cross and follow Jesus Christ.

The Holy Spirit, the Spirit of God is at work in men's hearts. Now if you grieve that spirit you will be led farther away from God. The Holy Spirit came upon the church at Antioch, calling for Saul and Barnabas. The people laid their hands on them fasting and praying and sent them forth into Seleucia, Cypress, Salamis, Antioch in Pisidia, Iconium, Lystra, Derbe. They preached the Word of God in the Jewish synagogues.

I shall never forget the old Mediterranean cruiser ploughing past the isle of Cypress. There I noticed the people were fighting for world supremacy and materialism just like they do in America. Now we need to get on our knees and recognize more fully our dependence upon God for help. We no doubt need to fast and pray. If I am eating like a hog I certainly cannot use my brain to think clearly and constructively. My brain, body and soul cannot work properly under such a condition. Under such intemperance I cannot become fully instructed in the things of Christ's Kingdom. Therefore I cannot work in His Kingdom as He has planned for me because He says to us, "Be ye temperate in all things." It it takes fasting to bring in His Kingdom I must do it.

Rev. S. J. Ezell went down to Montgomery Monday to attend the meeting of the Baptist State Executive Board.

What has become of the old fashioned mother who used to feed the kids sassafras tea every March to thin the blood?



Mental pictures every car buyer should have

SOME DAY you will consider buying a new car.

Keep in mind these pictures made from photographs of scenes at General Motors' 1268-acre Proving Ground. A car wallowing in a sunken road with water over the hubs . . . a car bucking a long stretch of cruel bumps and potholes . . . a car straining to reach the top of a heart-breaking hill . . . a car doing twists and turns and other acrobatics that few cars are ever called upon to do.

Such are the tests given advance models of a General Motors car at the Proving Ground. The tests involve speed, power, endurance, braking, riding comfort, handling ease; fuel, oil and tire economy, body strength — every phase of car construction and performance. When every test has been met, the factory goes ahead and builds your car like these proved models.

Keep these pictures in your mind. They will come in handy next time you are buying a car.

Rough going on a Proving Ground road, made bad to test various parts of General Motors cars under hardest possible conditions.

A scientific "bath tub"—not to wash cars, but to show the Proving Ground engineers exactly what happens when a car is driven through water.

On this four-mile test track the engineers can run a car night and day, at any speed, to learn just how it stands the pace.

Very seldom are hills as steep as this. The average grade of highway hills is seven per cent. This hill is 25 per cent and a car must be good to make it.

No one can afford pimples

HAPPY is the woman who has a clear, smooth, flawless skin! Both men and women admire such captivating loveliness.

First impressions cannot be good without a clear skin—first impressions are quickly made and are not soon forgotten. Old friends may excuse pimples and secretly sympathize but new acquaintances may not be so charitable. Skin blemishes are not inviting. Neither can they be covered up. They embarrass. Hold people back. Steal away joy and happiness.

A lovely—clear skin—is within the reach of all. To those who have lost it, hope is offered. You, too, may have a beautiful skin, rose-petal in texture, pretty as a picture and without a single pimple.

Strong, healthy blood nourishes the body and fights against infection and disease. Without plenty of rich, red blood, there could be no strong, sturdy, powerful men, or beautiful, healthy women.

Chilton County High School does not owe a Copper cent for Any Athletic Debts Contracted during This or Last year's Session. We are glad to state also, that we have a balance in the treasury of $30.30 left over from the proceeds of the play given last Friday night, "Dot, The Miner's Daughter," which is to be applied on our High School Annual. We want to thank very heartily everyone who attended our games and plays, and contributed their parts in helping us to get back even with the world financially. We regret we didn't have more games scheduled, as our boys played exceptionally well in every engagement. The fifth game was returned to Pike Road, and played on their court.

PAINFUL INDIGESTION

"I SUFFERED a good while before I found something that would help me," writes Mr. E. W. Berry, of Neosho, Mo. "My trouble was indigestion, pains in my chest and a tight, bloated feeling that would make me feel smothered.

"Speaking of this to a friend of mine, he told me that Black-Draught was good for this trouble. I went over bought a package. It certainly did help me, so I continued to use it.

"I am in the transfer business, and sometimes when I would be hungry and ready to eat, I would have a call and would have to eat later. Then I would eat too much or too hurriedly. This would cause indigestion. After I started using Black-Draught, I found it did me a world of good. It is splendid for biliousness and stomach troubles."

Alabama Patronage Committee Named

Hoover Representatives Will Be Composed of Republicans and Democrats

Washington, March 27.—Names of eight of the nine Alabamians proposed to President Hoover for membership on a state patronage committee composed of republicans and independent democrats, were revealed today. They are: O. D. Street, Birmingham; Charles H. Scott, Montgomery; W. P. Lewis, Mobile; P. M. Long, Cordova, and Theodore Swann, Annistons, republicans; and George Malone, Dothan; Fred M. Jackson, Birmingham; and Lawrence H. Lee, Montgomery, democrats. The latter is legal advisor to Governor Graves, and every man on the list is of statewide prominence. All of them voted for Hoover-Curtis electors last November.

Their names were submitted to the president by Col. Horace Mann, generalissimo of the Hoover campaign in the South, following weeks of consultation with Alabamians who served as his lieutenants in the fight last year. The movement to set up the committee was indorsed by President Hoover Tuesday in the same statement in which he outlawed the present republican organizations in Georgia, Mississippi and South Carolina, and announced that buying and selling federal jobs would not be tolerated under his administration.

Notwithstanding the fact that National Committeeman Street is slated for the chairmanship of the Alabama patronage organization, he is in Washington waging a fight against the plan, or rather against some of the men proposed for membership on the committee. Street has been sole arbiter of Alabama patronage for eight years, but under the new plan would have to share authority with eight men, including P. M. Long, leader of the anti-Street wing of the republican party in the state. There are several other names on the list which would not have gone on it if Street had written it.

The Alabama republican committeeman was to see President Hoover some time Wednesday, presumably for the purpose of proposing a substitute plan, or at least of proposing changes in the committee personnel. Whether he will be able to overturn a program that he been "highly approved and welcomed," by the president of the United States remains to be seen.

Whether all of the men whose names appear on the Alabama list are willing to serve could not be learned here today. The presumption is that they were consulted before their names were sent in. This new system of handling Alabama patronage has been under development for several months and, according to information here, an organization reaching into every precinct and including in its county and district councils more than 2,000 persons, has been formed.

Street expects to return home as soon as he finds out where he stands. The issue at stake in his visit to the White House is whether the one man referee system shall be continued, or whether the Mann plan, approved by the president, for building up a real two-party system in Alabama shall go into effect.

ON THE DRAINAGE QUESTION

Editor Union-Banner:

Please give me a little space in your paper to say a few words in regard to what Mr. Avery said in last week's issue concerning this drainage. I feel just like it is just like he said it was and I can't believe our commissioners will put that on us without giving us a chance at the ballot box. Now, I voted for every one of them and I believe they are honorable men and I can't believe they will pull anything like that on us. If they will give us a chance at it I am not a bit uneasy about it. I believe it will be beat three to one. —J. P. Rushing, Verbena, Ala.

W. W. HAND HIT BY CAR SUNDAY NIGHT

Mr. W. W. Hand was slightly injured last Sunday night when he was struck by a car driven by Mr. W. M. Polk. The accident happened on the highway just north of town.

Mr. Hand was walking along the highway going home from church. The car knocked him down, injuring his left arm and bruised his head. Mr. Polk says he did not see Mr. Hand in time to avoid hitting him.

FARM TOUR TO SEE VETCH AND AUSTRIAN PEAS SATURDAY, 6th.

County Agent Stapp will lead a group of farmers and other intrested persons on a tour to see and discuss vetch and Austrian peas, our two principal winter growing soil-building crops.

Mr. Stapp states that there are many farmers in the county who have splendid growths of vetch and peas. He also states that he would like very much to make a long tour coverinng all parts of the county, but on account of every one being so busy now, he has decided that it will be best to have a short tour.

Mr. J. C. Lowery from Auburn, was in the county Wednesday helping Mr. Stapp plan a beneficial program for the tour Saturday.

Mr. Stapp announces that all persons interested, are requested to either be ready to leave his office promptly at 12:30 Saturday, or join the group as early as possible. The party will leave Mr. Stapp's office at 12:30 promptly, and go out the Maplesville road to J. V. Best's store and from there south to J. W. Hamilton's. From Hamilton's, they will come back to Walter Popwell's, Sid Weldon's and LaFayette Popwell's farms which are on the Maplesville road about 1 mile west of Clanton. From LaFayette Popwell's the party will come back through town and go out to J. N. Dennis' place one mile south of Clanton.

Mr. Stapp states that on the tour they can see varying conditions and results that will be worth much to any farmer interested in building his soil.

Town Council Moves To Filter City Water

Possible That Plant Will Be Bought and Installed in A Few Months

We are glad to say this week that if present negotiations go through with satisfaction to all parties, perfectly clear and pure drinking water for Clanton will be an assured fact by July Fourth. The Town Council has tentatively agreed upon the purchase of a filtering plant to be installed in connection with our city water system, whereby the water we drink will be made free from all the minerals and chemcials that have worried everybody so much in the years past.

The Council held a meeting Tuesday night for consideration of this matter when representatives of the Wm. B. Scaiffe & Sons Company, manufacturers of filtering systems, appeared before the body and fully outlined the plan of installing, operating, and maintaining this kind of a filtering system.

The filtering plant which it is proposed to install here has a capacity of 12,000 gallons per hour. It is adapted to filtering the present water supply, and could be used also in filtering water from any other supply source, should a change in this respect be made at any time. The plant can be added to if at any time it should become necessary to secure a larger supply of water.

The approximate cost of the filtering plant will be $8,000 installed. The deal was not finally closed by the Council at the meeting Tuesday night, but it was evident that the matter has the united interest and, we might say, endorsement of the Mayor and members of the Council. If present plans go through, it is practically certain that the filtering system will be in operation within a very few more months.

As a means of financing the job, the Council, we understand has under consideration a slight raise in the water rates so that monthly payments can be thereby provided for application to the payment of the cost of the system, by which plan the Council expects to pay for the system in a little less than four years.

We believe this step on the part of our city officials will meet with the hearty aproval of praetically every user of water in the city. We hope that every citizen will give hearty approval to this effort which our officials are making to remedy a water situation that has been a drawback to our city for years past.

J. MELL MARTIN ON A TRIP THIS WEEK

Mr. J. Mell Martin, undertaker, left Sunday night for Freeport, Ill. from where he will drive a new ambulance to Clanton. He expects to leave Freeport some time Tuesday and arrive home the latter part of this week. The new ambulance will be added to his equipment here.

Who Is Responsible For Present School Condition?

In some recent issues of The Chilton County News there appeared editorially in that paper what seems to be implied criticism or blame upon the Commissioners Court of Chilton County for certain school conditions which do not seem pleasing to The News. Readers of The News perhaps have been caused to wonder how or why the Commissioners Court should be blamed for unsatisfactory school conditions, since that body is not supposed to have any duty, responsibility or jurisdiction in school matters.

Seeking to have the matter made clearer in the minds of the people, the Commissioners Court has addressed the following letter to The Chilton County News:

Clanton, Ala., April 2, 1929.

Editor Chilton County News:

On March 21, 1929 there appeared an editorial in your paper and among other things you stated that the County School Board had spent $25,000 for building school houses, and the commissioners court had spent $2500.00. Also on March 28, there appeared another editorial wherein you referred to a resolution that some of the county teachers were going to teach their schools out, though their pay had been cut off for want of funds, and some reflection seems to have been made upon the commissioners court for their failure to make appropriations for school purposes. As we understand the law, the commissioners court can only disburse funds or make appropriations in the specific instances allowed by law, and that if there is no authority in the law for making appropriations, then the commissioners court can not do so. As we understand the law the commissioners court is only authorized to appropriate money out of the county treasury for the county high school, and to schools of the "Smith-Hughes" type of vocational training. We have two of the Smith-Hughes type schools in the county, one at Jemison, to which we have given $2500.00, anu one at Isabella, to which we have given $2500.00.

If the Editor of the Chilton County News knows of any law that authorizes the commissioners court to pay the salary of the teachers he referred to, the court will appreciate the information that he might give, and if you know of any law that authorizes the commissioners court to appropriate money to build or help build any other school house or make appropriations except in the two instances mentioned above, the court will appreciate the information on this.

The commissioners court wants it distinctly understood that it is anxious to help along educational lines, and that we have assitsed the school board in every way that we possibly could, and that we thought was proper; we have employed Mrs. Stapp as Child Welfare Worker, at a salary of $800.00 per year, which makes it possible for the school board to get $2,000.00 from the State that they would not otherwise have received. But notwithstanding all of this, the commissioners court is attempting to stay within the law on this as well as all other matters, and we are sure that the Editor of the Chilton County News could not expect us to violate the law in a matter of this kind.

The Court hopes to see the people of the county have a better understanding of the school situation, and that the school board, with its new members, will be able to make a better understanding with the people, and that altogether we might work for the better education of the boys and girls.

The Court at all times invites constructive criticism from all persons interested in the welfare of our county.

We hope you will be able to refer us to the law that authorizes the Court to carry out your suggestions. Yours truly.—L. H. Reynolds, Judge of Probate, J. P. Bean, T. A. Maddox, J. L. Burnett, A. P. Vinson, Commissioners.

THANKS TO THOSE WHO HELPED FLOOD SUFFERERS

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space in your paper to thank each and every contributor to the Flood Relief. The Bible tells us that if we give it will be given unto us, so I am sure that Chilton County will receive many blessings in return for what it has done.

Beat One and Box 1 in Beat 4 have already "gone over the top" and the committees from several other Beats have assured me that they will get their quota.

We shall make a shipment Thursday, April 4. May I ask that everybody have their supplies and money in by that date.

Yours very sincerely.—Gertrude P. Calloway, Secretary and treasurer of Flood Relief Committee.

OLD FOLKS MEET ON LAST SUNDAY

Gathering at Friendship Proves To Be of Unusual Interest To a Large Number

Since the announcement was made that a service for old people and ministers would be held at Friendship, a number of people have been inquiring as to what such a meeting would be like. Well, the curiosity of such skeptics has been satisfied if they were present or if they have asked any of those who attended.

To say that the meeting was a success and measured up to the expectations and hopes of those who promoted it is only expressing mildly the result of the meeting. It was just as good as could be hoped for. The people who were present came there to do good and to get good for themselves out of their associations with others, and they did it. There were just enough folks present to have a real good old time religious revival, and ere the meeting was in progress long everyone seemed to feel the very presence of the Holy Ghost and to know as old Bro. Nelson said that without doubt God's presence was with us.

The meeting was called to order at 10 o'clock with a song by W. H. Robinson, who had been appointed to act as song leader for the day's service. The pastor of the church, Rev. A. L. Foshee, appointed a committee to arrange the program consisting of Jean Wyatt, Rev. J. A. Raines and Mr. J. H. Gore. The committee reported that a prayer and experience service would be held until 11 o'clock when there would be a sermon by Judge S. M. Adams. Rev. J. T. Nelson would have been asked to preach since he was the oldest preacher present, but he asked to be excused on account of his ill health.

When the hour came for preaching Bro. Adams took his place in the pulpit and talked very interestingly for about forty minutes. His subject was "The Entrance of the Light," and it was very well discussed by this good old veteran of the Cross. The sermon was followed by a talk of about twenty minutes by Rev. Nelson who gave accounts of some very interesting incidents in his life as a minister, which he took up about 75 years ago. Without the least hesitation Bro. Nelson who is 96 years old said that he became converted at a Methodist church on Monday night after the second Sunday in September, 1853. He said that he was called to preach a year before that. Some interesting history relative to the split in the Baptist church was given by Bro. Nelson as had been told him by his father and mother, whom he said were present at the meeting of the association when the difficulty arose in the year 1837.

The meeting was dismissed for dinner about 12:30 and was to gather back at 1:30. The afternoon service was called to order with a song by W. H. Robinson, and the committee, this time consisting of J. D. Collins, J. H. Gore and Rev. J. A. Raines, reported that the afternoon would be taken up in a prayer service and experience meeting by any and all who wished to exercise. This proved to be the best part of the service and one which everyone enjoyed.

Rev. T. J. Deason acted as leader of the service in the afternoon, and after a talk and prayer by him the following either talked or offered prayer of both: Rev. W. S. Cox, Mr. J. N. Scott, Rev. J. A. Raines, Mr. H. F. McCary, Rev. W. P. Lowery, Rev. A. C. Wells, Rev. M. J. Parrish, Rev. W. W. Robinson. The closing song was sung by Riley Robinson, and the closing prayer was offered by Rev. M. J. Parrish.

It was decided that this old peoples and ministers service be made an annual affair, and that it would be held at Friendship every Easter

Everybody went away feeling good and praying that many other such good old-time experience meetings might be held at Friendship on the Easter Sundays to come.

ELEVEN AT MITCHELL DAM RECEIVE MEDALS FROM CO.

On Tuesday night of this week eleven employees of the Alabama Power Company at Mitchell Dam went down to Montgomery and attended a banquet and divisional meeting of the Alabama Power Company held at the Scottish Rites Temple in that city.

Each of these employees were presented medals which were given in honor of the service which they had rendered the company. Ten of these men received silver medals for service of five years or more, and the other one, Mr. J. U. Benziger, received a gold medal for service from 15 to 20 years. Those receiving five-year medals were, Johnnie Hollis, J. G. Newton, J. F. Porch, J. Sam Sharp, Perry Ellison, J. W. Cagle, O. Milton Ross, D. W. Patterson, W. M. Cox, and A. B. Stanley.

The meeting opened at 8 o'clock and continued for about four hours. The program which consisted of talks and demonstrational pageants of operations of the power company, and the banquet, were put on by the Southern division of the company.

There were about 500 employees of the company present from all divisions, all of whom received medals for service from five to twenty-five years. The speakers spoke into a microphone and loud speakers were placed about over the building so that all were able to get the full benefit of the speaking.

Mr. T. A. Powell, formerly of Billinysley, has moved to a place on Route 3, near Clanton, and is now at work for the Clanton Ice Company.

Dry Weather Good For Alabama Farms

Less Fertilizer Will Be Used This Year Than Ever Before Experts Say

Auburn, Ala., Mar. 31.—A week of dry and warm weather has enabled Alabama farmers to get started in preparation of land and planting for the 1929 crop.

Following heavy rains of flood proportions the week began with the soil very wet and farm work lagging. Having done very little work in the month of March, farmers are behind but a continuation of fair weather will enable them to overcome some of this delay.

Ordinarily farmers in the southern part of the state would have planted most of their cotton and corn by the first of April, but April this year has found only a fraction of the seed in the ground and much land unplowed.

It happened that rains were largest in that part of the state where planting is done earlier, and, because of this, farmers in central and south Alabama will be planting at the same time.

Meantime plows are running in north Alabama and seed will soon be going into the ground. April will be the main planting month in Alabama this year.

Along with farm work, sales of fertilizers have lagged. It is a foregone conclusion that less fertilizer will be used, but estimates vary as to probable reduction.

Reports on "intentions to plant" reveal that farmers of the state do not anticipate big changes from one crop to another. However, the acreage to be planted to corn is not sufficient, according to these intentions to plant.

No direct information was collected as to intentions to plant cotton, because such is prohibited at this season of the year by law. However, some idea of it is obtained by studying intentions of planting the other crops. In some parts of the state reports indicate reductions of cotton, while in others an increase is expected.

Department Report.

Of interest to Alabama farmers is a report of a summary of "intentions to plant" in the United States made by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics of the Department of Agriculture, Washington.

Farmers are cautioned by the Bureau to reconsider intended increased acreages in beans, spring wheat, barley, and flue-cured tobacco, and cabbage in certain areas. Present numbers of livestock, it is pointed out, indicate no material change in prospects for farmers growing hay and feed crops for sale, except in some western and northwestern areas where the severe winter has depleted reserves.

Spring wheat farmers should watch for the April winter wheat report and be guided by it in determining whether to increase the acreage of hard spring wheat. Should the intended increase in acreage of hard red spring wheat of 8.8% be carried out and average yields be obtained, a production of hard red spring wheat only slightly less than in 1928 would result. Such a production with an average winter wheat crop would be large enough to produce an exportable surplus of the lower qualities of spring wheat.

Acreage In Feed Crops.

The combined acreage of the principal feed grains, corn, oats, barley, and grain sorghums, as planned, is unchanged from the acreage harvested last year, and remains 3% above that of 1927. Farmers indicate intentions to increase tame hay acreage approximately 3% above that in 1928. Average yields on this acreage will result in sufficiently increased production to provide a surplus of market grades of hay in the north central states as contrasted with the present shortage.

Potato growers indicate they intend to plant 3,418,000 acres, or 10.6% less than that harvested last year. Allowing 2% for usual drouth, blight, and other causes, this intended acreage would leave about 3,350,000 acres for harvest next fall, compared with 3,825,000 acres harvested in 1928, and 3,476,000 acres in 1927.

With average weather conditions, this acreage would produce somewhere around 390,000,000 bushels, a production which would furnish about the usual supply of potatoes after heavy holdings from the 1928 crop are off the market.

DR. WOOD OUT OF OFFICE

Dr. S. C. Wood wishes to inform his friends of Chilton County that his office will be closed until May 10th. He will join his brother, Dr. N. I. Wood from Walde County, Texas in taking special course in surgery and diseases of eye, ear, nose and throat.

CONSUMER NOT TO LOSE IF FARM PROFITS RISE

That the consumer will not be obliged to pay more for foodstuffs grown on farms, if farm relief brings greater profit to the farmer, is indicated by Tom Delohery, market editor of Farm and Fireside, in a series of studies of the marketing situation which begins this month in Farm and Fireside.

The investigation, carried on in the East, West, Middle West and Pacific Coast countries, disclosed the widest discrepancies between the price received by the grower and the price paid by the consumer.

"I did not find any organized effort to cheat the grower," says Delohery. "Increasing competition, government regulation and an increased form knowledge of markets have just about eliminated the shady practices of the past. Nor did I find any specitl evidence as to miraculous profits. But I did find at a great many points, indications that the distributive system is becoming more and more complex and wasteful, more riddled with duplication and incompetence, more unwieldy, more unaccountable every year."

Among the startling discrepancies in retail and grocers' prices, the investigator found Jersey strawberries for which the gardner received 16 cents a quart, retailing for 60 cents in New York, less than 25 miles away. California table grapes brought the grower $26.10 a ton in New York. Tomatoes sold by truck farmers for five cents a pound just out of Chicago, cost 20 cents at a neighborhood market. The writer cites numerous other cases and goes thoroughly into conditions existing in the present system of marketing.

County Farm Agent's Notes

SPRAY EARLY IS ADVICE GIVEN TO ORCARDISTS

Montgomery, Ala., April 2.—To enable Alabama farmers and orchardists to grow more and better fruits county agents all over the state are advising that a spray must be put on the fruit from the very beginning. They advise that the producers follow the recommendations of the Alabama Experiment Station at Auburn in the method of applying the kind of spray material to use. They say that the experiment station has tested out different kinds of sprays and are recommending that which they have found to give the best results.

Members of the county farm bureaus in Alabama are now having their material mixed according to the experiment station recommendations. Due to the number of requests relative to the ready prepared spray mixtures, the Alabama farm bureau is now handling a ready prepared summer spray mixture for stone fruits. This is at present being distributed direct to the members through the county farm bureaus of the state.

Directions for using the summer spray recommended by the county agents follows:

Use 12 pounds of the material to 50 gallons of water. To this mixture add arsenate of lead at the rate of 1 pound to 50 gallons of the diluted spray.

Place the proper amount of material in a barrel or container which will hold water, add water slowly, stirring the mixture until the grains of sulphur are wet and a thin solution is obtained that will pass readily through a strainer into the spray tank.

Where there is water power or one is using a power sprayer the Dry Mix Sulphur Lime may be washed directly through the strainer into the spray tank with the agitator running. It is very important that this material be thoroughly mixed with the water.

In mixing the arsenate of lead, first, it should be mixed with the diluted mixture which of course might be accomplished with the agitator running.

NEWS IN BRIEF

A recent survey of the Bureau of Railway Economics found that nearly one-half of the apple crop of the world is produced in the United States. Annually the United States exports about 13,000,000 bushels of apples.

The senate committee on agriculture began hearings late in March with a view to preparing a farm relief measure which will be approved by Congress and President Hoover as well as effective in operation. Farm surplus control is one of the difficult problems confronting the committee.

During the month of February Alabama curb markets did a business amounting to $16,565.62, according to Miss Helen Johnston, chairman, of Auburn. Montgomery market topped the list with sales amounting to $4,650.00 Gadsden was second with $3,045.00 and Tuscaloosa was third with $2,090.00.

A firm of investment bankers of Chicago has estimated that approximately 41 per cent of the individual wealth of the United States is controlled by women. It is estimated that women are beneficiaries of 80 per cent of the $95,000,000,000 of life insurance policies now in force in the United States.

Oklahoma farmers are marketing more than 354,000 bales of cotton of the 1928 crop cooperatively thru the Oklahoma Cotton Growers Association. This is more than twice as much as the Aklahoma Association handled of the 1927 crop. Texas is second, Mississippi third, and Arizona fourth among the states in marketing cotton on the cooperative plan.

FARM AND HOME FACTS

"There is no past so long as books shall live."—Bulwer Lytton.

Ignorance is certainly not bliss in modren farming, and it is folly to be unwise as to the better methods.

On February 28th a total of 36,045 miles of airplane mail service were in operation and 18,300 miles of non-mail service, making a total of 53,345.

With warm weather, corn weevils are very active and fumigation is in order to stop the work of this destructive pest. County agents will advise how to fumigate.

COTTON RETURNS IN FAVOR AS STYLE FABRIC

Auburn, Ala., March 30.—After occupying a back seat for several years cotton has returned to its own as a style fabric. That this is true is revealed in dry goods reports. Further evidence of it is the fact that consumption of American cotton during February was unusually high.

For several years after the World War cotton practically vanished from fashion's program and the cotton industry—one of the most important sources of national wealth—experienced a depression which was felt not only in the textile industry but in general economic and business circles. It appeared that other materials had replaced cotton.

But the situation has changed. A recent report says that it is a practical certainty that as a style fabric cotton will occupy a larger part of the spotlight this year.

Being one of the leading states in cotton production, Alabama will be rewarded. The development is in line with a movement started in Alabama several years ago to increase the demands for cotton. The bumper crop of 1923 brought growers and dealers face to face with this serious problem, the solution of which depends upon a bigger outlet for cotton.

COTTON COSTS ARE CUT BY PLANTERS

Auburn, Ala., April 2.—By using planters for checking cotton a big saving in labor can be made by Alabama farmers, in the opinion of Prof. John W. Randolph of the department of agricultural engineering of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn.

Such planters have been on the market some time but the new one now being sold have several improvements over the old models, Prof. Randolph said. By using them cotton is planted so that it may be cultivated across rows; and such cultivation reduces chopping to a minimum he explained.

Since chopping is one of the biggest jobs in making cotton a planter that checks for cross cultivation automatically makes a big reduction in the labor requirements, he added.

"For a farmer to increase his income," said Prof. Randolph, "he must increase the number of acres cultivated. By checking his cotton he can cultivate more acres, thereby increasing his total production and his total income."

Likewise corn may be checked for cultivation across the rows. This simplifies weed control which is the main reason for cultivating corn, cotton, and other crops.

Professor Randolph is recommending that farmers investigate not only improved planters but other kinds of improved machinery for such add to farm returns when properly used.

Early snowball is said to be the best variety of cauliflower for home use in Alabama.

The Alabama hay crop of 1928 was far short for the amount necessary to feed livestock of the state for 1929.

WINTER LEGUMES MAKE BIG CROPS

Auburn, Ala., April 2.—The winter legume crop, which is now being plowed under in Alabama, is the best the State has ever made, according to reports received from demonstration agents.

In the fall of 1928 approximately 2,000,000 pounds of winter legume seed were planted in Alabama, this being the banner planting season for the State. A warm winter followed; and winter legumes have made a splendid showing. In some localities stem diseases damaged them but these diseases were not generally serious, as reported by Dean M. J. Funchess at Auburn.

As in the past hairy vetch was the leading winter legume in Alabama with Austrian peas second. However, Austrian peas continue to gain in favor and may replace hairy vetch as the leading winter legume in Alabama. Peas are earlier, they reproduce seed, and they have a few other advantages.

Where corn and cotton are following a crop of winter legumes no nitrogen fertilizer is recommended by the experiment station of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. This makes a substantial reduction in fertilizer costs, for nitrogen is the most expensive fertilizer element which farmers buy.

Representatives of the college of agriculture at Auburn and county agents will continue their winter legume work, their goal being a winter legume on each acre of farm land in Alabama. If this goal is attained the returns from farming will be doubled as revealed by experiments and also by practical experiences of farming.

During 1928 the trend away from farms of the United States continued at the rate of 1,960,000 persons as compared with 1,362,000 removing from the cities, according to The Bureau of Agriculture and Economics in Washington.

Ten Reasons why

300,000 careful buyers have chosen the New Chevrolet Six

since January 1st

Ever since the date of its introduction, the new Chevrolet Six has swept triumphantly on to greater and greater heights of popularity. Value for value and price for price—buyers have compared it with other cars in the low-price field. And the result has been an overwhelming public preference—over 300,000 buyers since January 1st. And everywhere the enthusiasm is constantly increasing—for the new Chevrolet Six combines, as does no other car in the world, those ten great fundamental factors which careful buyers are now demanding in the cars they buy.

6-Cylinder Smoothness

Due to the finer inherent balance of its six-cylinder valve-in-head motor, the new Chevrolet provides that smooth, quiet, flexible performance which is the distinguishing characteristic of the truly fine automobile. At every speed, the power is delivered easily, freely and without annoying vibration. You can ride and drive for hours without annoying rumble or noise fatigue—every mile a delight for both driver and passengers.

6-Cylinder Getaway

And in sheer brilliance of performance, as well as in smoothness and quietness of operation, the new Chevrolet Six is a revelation. An automatic acceleration pump results in remarkably fast acceleration whenever the accelerator is suddenly depressed. And a new high-compression, non-detonating cylinder head eliminates every trace of "lugging"—even when you have occasion to accelerate swiftly in high gear.

6-Cylinder Speed

Naturally, Chevrolet's powerful six-cylinder valve-in-head motor might be expected to provide speed in abundance. But even more important than the speed of the new Chevrolet Six is the smooth, quiet, restful comfort you experience at every point on the speedometer. You can open the throttle wide with a feeling of complete security—and you come to the end of a full day's drive entirely free from the weariness caused by engine noise and body rumble.

6-Cylinder Power

The great reserve power of the new Chevrolet Six is a constant delight. The steepest hills are taken with ease. Heavy roads are negotiated without the necessity for frequent gear-shifting. And even at the higher speeds, there is always that feeling of confidence which comes from the knowledge that additional power is at hand . . . instantly available for whatever need may arise.

Modern Safety Features

The new Chevrolet Six is equipped with every modern safety and convenience feature—typified by a full ball bearing steering mechanism, non-locking 4-wheel brakes with separate emergency brake, foot controlled adjustable two-beam headlights, automatic fuel pump, theft-proof Electrolock, electric motor temperature indicator, and Fisher VV windshield and adjustable driver's seat in all closed models. As a result, it is one of the easiest and safest cars in the world to handle.

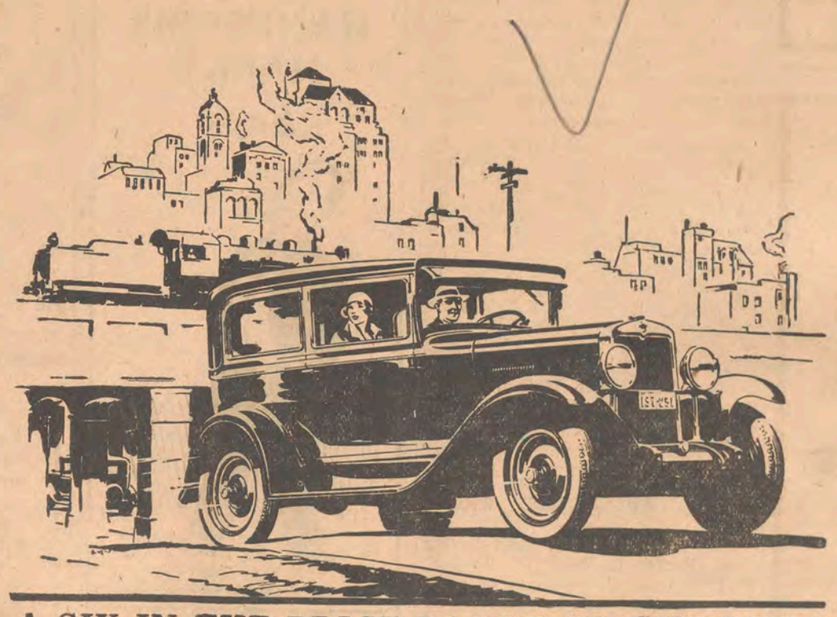
Better Than 20 Miles Per Gallon

The marvelous performance of the Chevrolet Six would be considered exceptional in any automobile. But in the new Chevrolet it is nothing short of sensational—for here it is combined with operating economy of better than 20 miles to the gallon of gasoline. As a result, those who can afford to own any automobile can afford to own and operate a Chevrolet Six!

Exceptional Riding Comfort

Another vital factor that has influenced hundreds of thousands in their selection of the new Chevrolet Six is its exceptional riding comfort. Built on a wheelbase of 107 inches . . . offering the deep-cushioned luxury of bodies by Fisher . . . and with the entire upper structure cradled on four long semi-elliptic shock absorber springs—it travels the roughest highways with amazing comfort. And its balance on turns and curves is equally exceptional—for the rigid frame and the long springs reduce sidesway to the minimum.

Beautiful Fisher Bodies



The marvelous bodies on the Chevrolet Six reveal, as never before, the matchless artistry that has made the Fisher name renowned throughout the world for excellence in coachcraft. Longer, lower and roomier . . . finished in attractive, long-lasting colors . . . and upholstered in rich deep-tufted fabrics that give to the interiors an air of custom elegance—they introduce into the low-price field an entirely new measure of style and distinction.

Proved Dependability

Before the new Chevrolet Six was presented to the public, it had been tested for more than a million miles on the roads of the General Motors Proving Ground. Never did a new motor car go into the hands of its owners more thoroughly proved in every detail. And now, reports of its performance on the highways of the nation pay glowing tribute to its endurance and dependability.

Amazingly Low Prices

Many people do not realize that this marvelous new six-cylinder Chevrolet is actually offered in the price range of the four. Compare total delivered prices as well as factory prices when determining automobile values. BEAUTIFYING VILLAGE OF ALABAMA MILLS COMPANY

Supt. A. R. Meeks of Alabama Mills in Clanton, is leading a movement for beautifying the mill village. Already a considerable start has been made. Many shade trees have been set out and a lot of flowers and shrubbery have been planted about the streets and yards.

"We want to make our village a plare of beauty," said Mr. Meeks, "and we will appreciate the help of the public in this respect. If anybody in Clanton has any flowers or shrubbrey of any kind that they don't need, we will be glad to get it if you will call us and tell us where it is. Just at this time we especially want to secure a lot of canon bulbs."

The plans of Mr. Meeks will ultimately make the village and grounds of Alabama Mills one of the most beautiful places in the city.

TRAFFIC LAW VIOLATORS IN MAYOR'S COURT

About 25 persons appeared before Mayor Eric Hart on Monday morninp to answer the summons of Chief John Boockhodlt on charges of violating the city traffic law. The whole bunch were given a fine of $1.00 each, and the amount thus collected was sent to the flood sufferers of South Alabama.

In discussing this question Monday, Mayor Hart said:

"With the summary disposition of those cases on the docket Monday we want to serve notice to the public that Clanton's traffic ordinance will be enforced in the future, and all violators will be dealt with in full accordance with the provisions concerning this matter."

We commend the action of Mayor Hart. Several of our citizens were "caught napping" last week when they did not really intend to violate the law. It was a nice way for the Mayor to bring the public to a realization that the city's laws should not be disregarded.

Every driver of a motor vehicle on the streets of Clanton should henceforth be on the alert to see that the law is observed because it means the fullest measure of safety to everyone.

THE TEACHER'S CODE

I am Mother of my children and I try to train their minds and morals and to love them as my own.

I am Father of my boys and girls, and I watch, guard, and help them over the hard places.

I am preacher without creed, and I lead my children "beside the still waters."

I am Teacher of youth, that they may feel and know what has been and is to be.

I am Servant of the State, and I shall fulfill my obligation to pupils, parents, an dcommunity without fear or favor, except before God and Country.

I pray for guidance that I may lead; for strength that I may sustain; for wisdom that I may teach.

I give thanks for the opportunity that is mine to serve my children whom the homes of my country entrust to my keeping.

God grant me grace and gratitude,
And give me Faith and attitude
To love and lead, to teach and preach,
To serve in all, while serving each.

IN MEMORY OF OUR LOVING FATHER, ROBERT CULP

The death angel called away our dear loving father last Thursday night at 11:00 o'clock. Robert Culp was 66 years old and had been in bad health for about two years and four weeks before his death. He took his bed and could not be up any more. Oh, how he did suffer so hard, but we all know he has gone to a better land above. Dear Father was prepared to go on and meet his dear Saviour on across the shining river, but oh, how hard to give him up. He leaves in memory to mourn his loss 4 sons, 2 daughters, Grady Culp, Reedie Culp, Jodie Culp, Harmond Culp; Lela Carter, Eva Anderson, and a host of grand-children.

Brother Culp was laid to rest at Pleasant Grove church Friday afternoon at 2:30. Rev. Joe Gipson conducted the funeral.

We sure do thank the kind people and loving people around Pleasant Grove and New Harmony for their help and kindness. We did everything that loving hands could do to save him, but it was the almighty God's will to take him. He saw fit and could use and make him more useful in his work above. Oh, how we do miss him for we can not see his smiling face on earth and his sweet voice can on earth never be heard any more. But we all are going to be prepared to meet him in a better land across the beautiful shining river. There we will reign forever and ever. He was a friend to all who knew him. Oh, how hard it is to never see him any more on earth.

We miss him, oh, we miss him.
His smiling face is cold,
But Jesus Called him home
To a better land we know,
A land that never grows old
Where the streets are paved with gold
Where he can sing with the angels
And never, never grow old.

In my father's house are many mansions, if it were not so I would have told you; I go and prepare a place for you and come again.

We miss him by the fire side, we miss his sweet smiles and charming voice, but our loss is heaven's gain.

Weep not, dear brothers and sister, grandfather is asleep with Jesus to awake across the sea. A faithful father from us is gone, the one we loved so dear, but Jesus whispered, come to me, your dear resting place is heaven above.

Written by one who loves him dearly, a grandchild.—Gracie Culp.

ORR-HARRISON WEDDING SOLEMNIZED SATURDAY

A nuptial event of much interest throughout the State was the wedding of Miss Louise Orr, daughter of Mrs. M. R. Orr of Clanton, and Mr. Robert Benjiman Harrison of Whitwell, Tenn., which was impressively solemnized at 3:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, March 30th, at the home of the bride, in the presence of a large assemblage of relatives and friends. The spaceous apartments were artistically decorated in a variety of Spring flowers and Southern smilax.

Tall standards holding lillies, snapdragons and Columbia roses, interspersed with large cathedral candle sticks and festoned with pink tulle formed the isle through which the bridal party entered.

The improvised altar of palms and ferns was flanked on each side by floor baskets of pink roses and Easter lillies. In the center of the greenery was a basket of snapdragons and lillies showered with rose buds and tied with a fluffy bow of tulle. Tall cathedral cantalabra held burning tapers.

The musical program which preceded the ceremony was a beautiful feature of the occasion. Miss Madelyn Orr, sister of the bride, sang "At Dawning," and Mr. Percy Pitts sang "Because," and "I would Hold you in my Arms." Mrs. Pitts played the weddng march and was also accompanist for the occasion.

Messrs. John C. Page and Glenn Boyd were ushers. The dainty little flower girls Martha Higgins in pink georgette and Bess Hayes in orchid caried baskets of Columbia roses, and scattered rose petals in the path of the bride. Oscar Jones, Jr., carried the ring in an Easter lilly.

The bride was lovely in an afternoon gown of grey chiffon over flesh, with which she wore a picture hat in harmonizing shades. She caried a bridal bouquet of Columbia roses showered with calley lillies.

The impressive ring ceremony was pronounced by Dr. Styvender of Birmingham, cousin of the bride, and Dr. S. J. Ezell of Clanton.

Mrs. M. R. Orr, mother of the bride entertained at an informal reception following the ceremony. Assisting in the amenities of the afternoon were. Mrs. John C. Page, Mrs. Glenn Boyd, Mrs. J. P. McSwain, Mrs. Frank Scott of Huntsville, Mrs. Walter Bentley, Miss Kathleen Mullins, Mrs. Oscar W. Jones, and Mrs. Eric Hart.

Several years ago she held the coveted position of social hostess in several of the finest hotels in California and Washigton, insluding the Green Hotel, Pasasena Lake Arrow, Head Inn at Lakehead and the Hotel Montecello in Longview, Washington.

The bride is the grand daughter of Mr. J. F. Orr, Sr., one of the pioneers of Alabama, who settled the beautiful little town of Orrville over ninety years ago, where among his wide business interests he was manufacturer of the Orr Gin before the Civil War. Her father, the late J. F. Orr, Jr., was a prominent planter in Dallas County.

Mr. Harrison, whose parents were natives of England, before coming to America a number of years ago, has enjoyed the position of civil engineer with the Alabama Poper Company for several years. In his work which has carried him to many Southern States he has made a wide circle of friends.

One Club Boy Produced

1526 Pounds of Seed Cotton Per Acre

Lloyd Cobb, one of Mr. Stapp's club boys, who lives west of Jemison, fertilized his cotton last year according to Auburn recommendations. He used 400 pounds of 16% phosphate, 50 pounds of soda, and 50 pounds of muriate of potash per acre at planting time and side dressed with 150 pounds of soda per acre. He made more than 3,000 pounds, or 2½ bales on his two acres.

Failure to use enough of the right kind of Fertilizer is FALSE economy. It is equivalent to FAILURE

If you are not sure about Auburn's recommendations for fertilizer, see your county agent or vocational teacher. They, too, are anxious to see you use the fertilizer that will produce the best crops at the least cost.
If you did not get one of our letters on fertilizer, prepared by Mr. Stapp, call by the bank and get one.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Nothing will so emphasize the changes in the political map which have been taking place during the past few years as the coming battle in Congress on the modification of our tariff laws. Congress has not had a real tariff in a long time, and it is likely that the day of the acrimonious struggle between the protectionists and free traders as much has departed, for a time at least. The fight will be put on now by those who declare tariff is all right but we must lower ours "to promote international peace and friendship."

Certain it is that sentiment on the tariff has changed rapidly during the past few years, and the change has been all in favor of the protectionists Party lines are no longer strictly drawn on the tariff. Formerly the Republican Party was the protectionist party and the Democrats were regarded as the free trade or low tariff organization. But there is no longer a real free trade party if we are to judge from the tariff platform adopted by the Democrats in Houston last summer.

Several elements have entered into this change of affairs. After the armistice the country was threatened with a flood of cheap goods and of cheap labor from abroad. It became evident even to many of the former free traders that conditions had changed and that we could no longer compete with Europe even in our own market, and at the same time maintain our high standard of living, unless our market was protected for the home producer. As the years have passed this conviction has been strengthened until it has been accepted as an economic fact in America.

But other changes have been going on. The Democrats formerly depended on the South for free trade support, although, going back in history we find that the early southern leaders favored protection. But things are changing rapidly in the South. Fine modren cities are springing up and manufacturing is increasing by leaps and bounds. And in some of these Southern States valuable specialized crops are grown which suffer from competition from Cuba, Mexico and the Islands of the West Indies. Now the manufacturers and the citrus and fancy vegetable growers of the South can not survive without protection. So the world moves on and men's views change.

Manufacturing has spread into the West, too, and the western farmers have crops which suffer also from foreign competition and which can be protected in the home market by higher duties. As a result they are going to ask for more protection in the coming session of Congress and are going to get it, just as are their southern neighbors. Protection, therefore, is no longer a Yankee doctrine. You hear it defended in the South and the West as well as in New England. The high standard of living in America is not confined to any one section, and there is a general realization that it can not be maintained unless the great home market is saved for the American producer.

It will not do to say, of course, that free trade is dead. It survives in the minds of a great many college professors and sincere but impractical theorists, in the pocketbooks of the importers of such goods as come into competition with American products and in the hearts of our internationalists—those who for reasons of divided loyalty or business believe that we ought to build up Europe even at the cost of American prosperity. Each of these groups has its following and they will undoubtedly be heard in the coming sessions of Congress.

But the great bulk of the American people are sold on the doctrine of reasonable protection. This was evidenced in the last campaign when not a voice was raised in behalf of the old theory of tariff for revenue only. And any attack on the tariff under the disguise of "promoting international friendship" will be sufficiently debunked before the battle is over.

MUSCLE SHOALS OBSOLETE

While Congress has been wrangling for years over putting the government in business through the operation of the plant at Muscle Shoals private enterprises have been busy building up a nitrogen industry that will completely supply the needs of the United States. Private industry has far surpassed the objective sought by Congress when the nitrate plants were first begun at Muscle Shoals.

Accomplishments of industrial leaders in this field were explained to members of the Franklin Institute by Charles J. Brand, executive secretary of the National Fertilizer Association. His statement is significant because it means that the United States is no longer dependent upon foreign countries for nitrates. The domestic supply is now sufficient for the manufacturer of munitions for national defense and will almost supply agricultural needs in time of peace.

When the United States entered the World War it was largely dependent upon the importation of nitrate of soda from Chile to carry out its munitions program. The need of a domestic supply was immediately obvious. In 1913 this country estimated that the domestic production for 1929 will total 230,000 tons, or more than five times the quantity hoped for from the Muscle Shoals plant operating at maximum capacity. "By 1931," Mr. Brand said, "the United States will be practically free from the actual necessity of importing Chilean nitrate."

Production of nitrogent is rapidly increasing in other countries also, and the net result should be a reduction of the price to farmers. Development of the industry in this country will have the double benefit of helping agriculture and giving assurance of munitions in case of emergency. The industry has been built up much more effectively than the government could have done it. The desired end has been achieved without further involving the government in business. The result may be considered another triumph of private over public enterprise.—Washington Post.

MODERN BUSINESS

Modren business, according to a trite saying is based on credit. And credit it may be added is little more than another word for confidence. And confidence of course is begotten of general honesty. Undoubtedly the ethics of business are higher today than ever before, and better even than this, business is on the upgrade from an ethical as well as a material standpoint. And nothing has done more to promote business ethics and business confidence than judicious advertising. The most progressive and up-to-date concerns are and always have been the ones that have advertised most, and advertising a certain brand of goods, the firm producing or distributing it has naturally come to take pride in standardizing the product and seeing that it comes up to advance notices. Newspapers and periodicals of late years have entered into the game and as a result dishonest dealers, or dealers who misrepresent their goods either intentionally or unintentionally are having an increasingly more difficult time in placing their advertising. So along with the increase in the quality of products has gone the increase in the quality of advertising. The two are now inseparable.

And just as advertising has become the life of modern trade it can truthfully be said that newspaper advertising is the great cornerstone of the publicity business, for newspaper advertising is more important and more effective than all other forms of advertising put togehter. This is because the newspapers actually cover the reading country and are in touch with the people of the nation every day. As Mr. William A. Thompson, a nationally-known advertising man, recently said:

"The American people spend about a million dollars a day in pennies to buy their newspapers, while advertisers are spending more than two and a quarter million dollars per day for newspaper advertising.

"The money paid out each twenty-four hours in newspaper pennies is a mathematical determination of this universal fixed daily habit of newspaper reading. The enormous sums spent every day for newspaper advertising show how well advertisers understand the unusual opportunity the newspaper reading habit offers to them.

"It is a fact that the automobile business began its growth toward its present-day proportions after it turned to newspaper advertising. Car makers learned that only through the newspapers could every motor car prospect be reached. They recognized their newer and greater opportunity when they realized fully the vast army of new prospects created by the new era of national prosperity."

There can be no question of this. Advertising has helped to build the business of the nation and improve its quality. And newspaper advertising is the great advertising of all. The business man who has not yet learned this is not successful to the highest degree that is in him.

CAPITOL News

Alabama is developing one of the best systems of working convicts of any state, in the opinion of Lieutenant-Governor W. C. Davis, of Jasper. Mr. Davis, who had a leading part in abolishing the old convict lease system, expressed satisfaction on a recent visit to Montgomery over the manner in which the state is solving the problem of convict employment.

The lieutenant-governor pointed out that the neighboring states of Georgia and Mississippi each depend upon a single system of employment for their convict labor, Mississippi working her convicts on farms, while in Georgia they are worked on the public roads. Alabama has a diversity of employment for prisoners, many of them being worked on farms, many others on roads, or in factories. This varied means of employment enables the state to classify convict labor according to the ability of the men, length of sentence, etc., and get better results than would be possible if there was only one kind of work for which they could be used.

There are many convicts for example, who know nothing about farming, but may be good men for road work or factory, while others are farmers without experience in other lines of work. The Alabama system, with its several different kinds of work for convicts, naturally tends to better results than where only one kind of employment is used.

The convict lease system, which was abolished by the legislature of 1927, released a number of convicts from under lease in coal mines and lumber camps for use elsewhere. The lease system was ended after a fight lasting for years and after the state had been subjected to much criticism as result of charges of improper and inhumane treatment of leased convicts. In 1913 W. C. Davis of Jasper, now lieutenant governor, wrote the call which assembled in Birmingham, the first state wide meeting for concerted action in abolshing the lease system. this meeting resulted in the organization of the Alabama prison reform association. Mr. Davis was elected a representative in the 1915 legislature, running as an advocate of lease abolition. He introduced a bill to end the lease, which passed the house, but was beaten in the senate. Although a fight against the lease was waged in every succeeding legislature, it was not ended until the legislature of 1927 put a stop to the practice. Lieutenant Governor Davis had an important part in securing the passage by the last legislature of the anti-leasing laws which he had consistently advocated for so many years.

More than forty arrests were made by state agents in Birmingham and Montgomery, in a drive launched against gasoline retailers charged with giving the trade short measure. The campaign to end this alleged practice is under direction of S. M. Dunwoody, commissioner of agriculture and industries, and H. L. Flurry, chief of the division of weights and measures of the department of agriculture. Cases were made against retailers after actual purchases and checks had revealed that buyers were getting less than they paid for, it was stated. In Montgomery, the average shortage on a five-gallon purchase was said by state authorities to be seven- eights of a gallon.

A number of cases made in Birmingham have already come to trial, with fines of $50 and cost imposed upon the defendants.

Prospects are good for a fine peach crop in Alabam this year, so far as reports received at the state department of agriculture indicate, the crop has received no serions setback so far.

The strawberry crop in South Alabama sustained some damage in the recent flood, but it is estimated that this damage is under ten per cent.

Damage to the state highway system in the recent floods approximated $2,000,000, according to estimates submitted to Judge Woolsey Finnell, state highway director. Federal aid will be sought in the work of restoring the roads, about one half of the damage being to federal aid roads.

The percentage of Alabama teachers enrolled in summer schools for 1928 was 55.16, which is almost twice the national average, according to bulletin recently issued by the National Educational Deuartment of Education.

The bulletin shows the number of persons enrolled in education courses in summer schools through the country during the last three years. For the entire United States, the enrollment was as follows: 218,695 in 1926, 249,268 in 1927, and282, 068 in 1928. The percentage of teachers enrolled in 1928 was 31.32 percent.

For Alabama the enrollment for the same years was as follows: 4,302 in 1926, 8,883 in 1927, 8,881 in 1928. The figures for 1928 shows an enrollment of 55.16 percent for Alabama as compared with a national average of31.32 percent. Only two states Colorado and Oklahoma, had a larger percentage of enrollment of teachers in summer school. The effort which Alabama teachers have made to improve their qualifications has attracted favorable comment throughout the United Shates. This improvement is keeping pace with the improvement that is made in the material equipment of our schools.

DO you not marvel when thinking of the inward physical workings of your child—bone, flesh, muscle and brain growing each day—building onward toward manhood or womanhood?

Of course it is the blood stream which carries the millions of tiny red-cells to all parts of the body. And it is the healthy, rich, red-blood-cells that does this building, warding off disease and making for strong and healthy bodies.

When a child's appetite wanes or he loses weight, the complexion becomes sallow or pimples and boils appear—then you instantly know that the inward mechanism is not working properly—that a good blood tonic is required.

In such cases S.S.S. is the proper tonic. It is made from fresh vegetable drugs—

S.S.S.

S.S.S. builds sturdy health

therefore will not harm the most delicate system. It improves the appetite and restores the red-blood-cells to normal; lost weight is regained; skin eruptions clear up and color returns to the cheeks.

Give your child the right chance to develop. You will not regret it in later years.

For more than 100 years S.S.S. has been helping children and their elders regain strength and vitality.

The seasoning and aging process, used in the manufacture of S.S.S., makes it pleasant to the taste.

All good drug stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

Sunday School Lesson

Lesson for April 7

THE MINISTRY OF ISAIAH

LESSON TEXT—Isaiah 6:1-13; 20:1, 2; 38:1-5.

GOLDEN TEXT—Then said I, here am I, send me.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Being God's Helper.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Being God's Helper.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Obedient to the Heavenly Vision

I. Isaiah's Call (Isa. 6:1-13).

1. Isaiah's vision of the Lord (vv. 1-4).

(1) He saw the Lord on His throne (v. 1). The supreme need of a servant of God is to have a vision of Him.

(2.) He saw the seraphim above (vv. 2, 3). Their position indicated that they were in readiness to do His bidding. The six wings showed their ability to execute the divine will. One pair veiled the head from the divine glory, one veiled the feet which had been soiled in contact with the world, while the third was held in readiness to depart on the divine errand. Their continued cry was, "Holy, holy, holy."

(3) He saw manifestations of majesty (v. 4).

As the seraphim cried, the very door posts moved and the temple was filled with smoke. Smoke symbolizes the divine presence in anger (Exod. 19:8; 29:18). This indicated that the selfishness, idolatry and wickedness of Israel had provoked God's wrath.

2. Isaiah's conviction of sin (v. 6).

When he saw the vision of the Holy God, he was smitten with a sense of sin. The reason men think well of themselves is that they have never seen God. Face to face with the Lord, Isaiah saw himself as wholly vile.

3. Isaiah cleansed from sin (vv. 6, 7).

Having been convicted of sin and made confession, a burning coal sent from the alter purged away his guilt.

4. Isaiah's call (v. 8).

His call from God did not come until after his cleansing. The purged soul is ready for the Lord's service.

5. Isaiah's dedication (v. 8).

As soon as he was cleansed he responded to the call for service. He did not inquire as to the issue, but freely gave himself to that service.

6. Isaiah's commission (vv. 9-13).

Because of the unpromising outlook, Isaiah shrank from his responsibility. The Lord assured him that the people's blindness and sin would not endure forever. They would continue in sin, be taken into captivity, and the land left desolate. Their life, however, would be as the oak which sheds its leaves and is for a time apparently lifeless, but still retains its substance.

II. Isaiah's Prophecy Concerning Assayria and Egypt (Isa. 20:1-6).

The increasing power of Assyria alarmed the Jews who were inclined to turn to Egypt and Ethiopia for help. Isaiah severely rebuked them for turning away from God to Egypt (31:1-6).

1. The prophet's action (vv. 1, 2).

He removed his outer garments and walked about Jerusalem as a beggar in order to make a deep impression upon the people.

2. The significance of the sign (vv. 3-5).

For three years he went about in the dress of a beggar. As he had wandered about naked and barefoot, so would Egypt be led away in shame by the Assyrians.

3. The warning (v. 6).

The people are made to say, "Such is our expectation, whither we flee for help to be delivered from the king of Assyria: how shall we escape?"

III. Isaiah's Message to Hezekiah (Isa. 38:1-8).

1. Hezekiah's sickness (v. 1).

For this disloyalty God sent sickness as a means of chastisement.

2. Isaiah's first message (v. 1).

"Set thine house in order for thou shalt die and not live." This doubtless is to be understood as a prophetic warning rather than a positive prediction.

3. Hezekiah's prayer (vv. 2, 3).

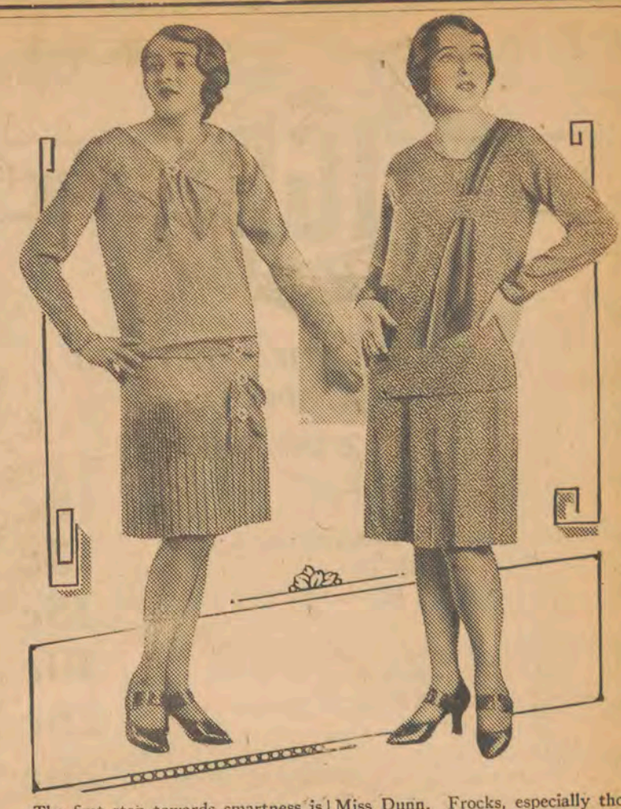
He plead with God for consideration on the basis of his faithfulness.

4. Isaiah's second message (vv. 4-6).

God sent Isaiah to tell Hezekiah that his prayer had been heard, his life would be prolonged by fifteen years, and that Jerusalem would be delivered out of the hand of the king of Assyria.

5. The sign given (vv. 7, 8).

The sign was the going back of the shadow of the sundial ten degrees.



Overcoming Injury

It is more beautiful to overcome injury by kindness than to oppose to it the obstinacy of hatred. — Valerius Maximus.

To Make Us Comforters

God does not comfort us to make us comfortable, but to make us comforters.—J. H. Jowett.

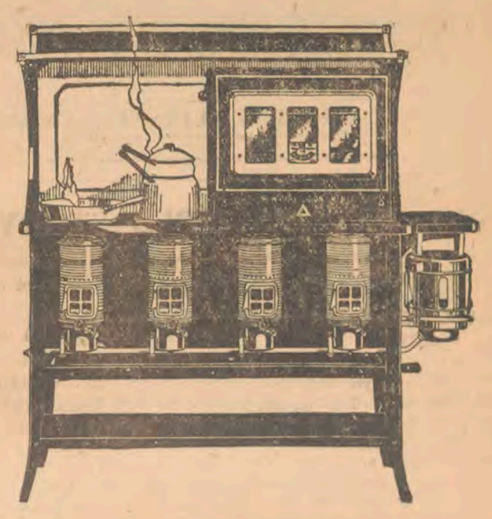
The first step towards smartness is to know yourself. The well dressed woman studies her type and her coloring, just as she studies the gown she wears. She chooses only the hues that are flattering, lines that give grace to her figure, and details that best express her personality.

The days when women were dependent entirely on the saleswoman are gone forever. Thanks to a brilliant stylist of New York City, Miss Marie Dunn of I. Mittleman & Company, a scientific analysis of the feminine figure with special reference to the couturier's needs has been made. If you would like a chart of how to ascertain your correct size, one will be sent to you gratis if you will write Miss Dunn. Frocks, especially those of the inexpensive type, are now standardized in sizing according to her tru-fit system. Regular and intermediate sizes from 14 to 48 are covered by this novel plan.

Certainly this idea will revolutionize the art of dress manufacture. After all, a definite knowledge of one's size is money in one's pocket. Do you know your size? Is yours a standard size or do you belong in the category of in-betweens termed intermediate?

These two smart and inexpensive frocks exemplifying the spirit of the new mode, designed and cut according to tru-fit or regular and intermediate sizes, insure a perfect fit without alterations.

CARD OF THANKS



Please allow me space in your paper to thank all our dear friends and neighbors for their kindness to my dear father Robert Culp, who is dead and gone to rest after suffering so long. So many thanks to the people who live around New Harmony and Pleasant Grove. His baby chidl.—Reedy Culp.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Lowe of Montgomery spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Foshee. They spent the afternoon at the singing at Poplar Springs.

The regular monthly meeting of the Commissioners Court was held Monday. Road business was the principal considerations before the body.

Special Demonstration

BRO. BRYAN'S BIBLE STORY

(Written for The Union-Banner by REV. J. A. BRYAN, Pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, Birmingham, Alabama)

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO LUKE

I wish to study with you the Gospel according to Luke. The Gospel according to Matthew was written concerning the kingship of Jesus Christ. The Gospel according to Mark was written to show that this Messiah, Jesus Christ, was the servant of Jehovah. In Mark we find no genealogy or family tree of the Messiah given as we find in Luke and Matthew. The Gospel of Luke speaks and portrays the earthly life or ministry of the human divine Jesus Christ the Saviour of the world.

The Gospel according to John was written later than the other three. No doubt it was written after the council at Jerusalem A. D. 96 or 97. In it we read about the mind, the divine nature shining through the human form of Jesus. This was written that ye might believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God; and that believing ye might have life through His name.

But I am to study the Gospel according to Luke. When you receive a letter you at first look for the place where it was written, then later on you notice carefully by whom it was written. This is just the way God puts His letters in our hands. The name is at the beginning. Paul always writes his name at the beginning, signing it, "Paul, a servant of the Lord Jesus Christ." In this Gospel according to Luke we are introduced to Luke, a Gentile.

Matthew was a Jew and so also was Mark, but one of the greatest Gentiles in apostolic times was this Luke. I have looked up all references I could find and I am convinced that he was a Gentile. In the first place his very name carries with it the idea that he was a Gentile. Luke means "giver of light." Some students have said that even Luke's writings verify that he was a Greek. Theopilus to whom his letters are dedicated was a Greek. Luke informed this dear friend of things which he had heard and been instructed in concerning the Messiah, verifying their truth.

Many have written to you, O, Theopilus, but I also have a sincere desire to write you. Come, now and let us reason it out together. In the first chapter of the Acts of the Apostles, Luke addresses him thus: "The former treatise have I made, O Theopilus, of all that Jesus began both to do and to teach. until the day He was taken up, after that He through the Holy Ghost, had given commandments unto the apostles whom he had chosen." He was writing of the Christ who cleanses from sin. "Though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow."

In the 16th chapter of the Acts and the 11th verse we read that the inspired author met Paul at Troas. Before that Luke said the Spirit of God suffered them not to go back into Asia. But now he writes "we" wanted to do something and we sought the vision. "We" being sent went into Troas. There is no account that Silas went with Paul into Troas, but Luke went into Troas with Paul. There were two Jews and a Gentile. They went there in their earnest efforts to carry the Gospel to the ends of the earth.

In the 16th chapter of the Acts we are introduced to Timotheus, the son of a certain woman, which was a Jewess, and believed; but his father was a Greek. Their first important city was Philippi. Here Luke apparently leaves the company, perhaps Philippi was his home, or perhaps he remained behind for some special service in the work of the church. If you will read carefully all of this chapter you will notice that "we" and "us" passages disappear. We know that when Luke uses the pronoun "we" and "us" he was actually a member of the party and describes the events as he saw them with his own eyes.

Luke relates these events in a vivid and picturesque language. He writes of a devout Jewish woman. She was a business woman, a saleslady, and has the honor of being the first convert to Christianity on European soil. These missionaries met her in a prayer meeting. Her name was Lydia. She and her household were saved and baptized. They became staunch friends of these missionaries, entertaining them no doubt many times in the home.

Luke writes of Barnabas, a man of means who lived in Cyprus. He was no doubt saved in Jerusalem and gave liberally to the support of the early church. He is said to have founded at Antioch the first Christian community, to have been the first bishop of Milan and to have suffered martyrdom at Cyprus. I can not be sure about those things as no one else can. But I do feel sure that the most awful seeming place I saw on my pilgrimage was this island of Cyprus. The devil is rampant there just as he is in America. He is reaching forth his hands in graft and greed.

Luke was with Paul when he was a prisoner in Rome. No doubt but Luke went with Paul on to Naples. He must have walked four hundred miles with Paul and the Roman centurion. In the last chapter of the Acts Luke states the great fact that every man is equal before God, or in the sight of God. Do you know that the sentence, "God is no respector of persons," is taught all through the Bible. He loves one man just as much as He loves another.

While Paul was in that rented house in Rome he wrote four inspired letters to those churches in Asia Minor which he had helped to establish. In the fourth chapter of Colossians is a most thrilling narrative, giving the names of the co-workers of Paul, his faithful fellow-laborers. He writes, "Luke, the beloved physician, and Demas greet you." He also writes of the mission of Tychicus with Onesimus, beloved servants and faithful ministers and fellow-servants in the Lord. Aristarchus my fellow-prisoner, saluteth you, and Marcus, sister's son to Barnabas, touching whom ye received commandments; If he come unto you, receive him, Jesus, which is called Justus, who are of the circumcism. These my fellow-workers unto the kingdom of God, which have been a comfort unto me. Epaphros, one of you a servant of Christ, saluteth you. New when this epistle is read among you, please read it to the church.

He writes of Luke as "My fellow-laborer who has stood by me in my second and third missionary journeys. He was not afraid to stand by me during my trials before Emporors and Rulers." In 2nd Timothy he writes "Only Luke is with me." It is said that Luke was a great artist because of the beautiful manner in which he paints the missionary tours of Paul and the work of the early apostles.

In second Timothy Paul writes of Luke saying, "Only Luke is with me. Take Mark and bring him with thee; for he is profitable to me for the ministry. I have sent Tychicus to phesus. Above everything else when you come back bring me the records of the church and especially the Parchment, the Bible. Go by Troas and to the house of Carpus and bring me my cloak. It is cold in this prison and I need my coat." Friends, I am sure that Paul was cold and needed his coat. It was one day in August when I visited the Mamertine prison and it was chilly then. It is dirty, filthy, loathsome.

I was carried by the American Express and I turned to the guide and said, "I am tired of just looking at the sea and this great stone, or building. I want you to take me right to the spot where Paul wrote 2nd Timothy and let me read this book while there." This seemed strange to him, however, he could speak English pretty well. It is said that the Mamertine Prison was just a prison where one was taken before his execution.

In all of Luke's writings we have the style of a well-cultured, educated historian. No other evangelist narrates the events in chapters 1 and 2 of the Gospel according to Luke. Luke, who was a close companion of Paul in his missionary travels and also his beloved physician bespeaks a wonderful trust as that which Paul writes, "I know in whom I have believed and am persuaded that He is able to keep that which I have committed unto Him against that day." Paul also wrote, "I have fought a good fight. I have finished my course.

The Gospel of Luke was written of course before the Acts of the Apostles. Probably, Luke who was born in Antioch of Syria, remained with Paul during his imprisonment in Caeserea. It could be possible that he wrote the Gospel of Luke there. In it he gives a clear introduction of the announcement and birth of John the Baptist, and the birth and boyhood of Jesus. Then he writes of the growth of Christ in Nazareth saying, "He increased in wisdom and stature, and in the knowledge of the Lord." He writes a biography of Christ from a human divine standpoint. He presents Christ as the seeking Saviour of all the world lost in sin.

A most striking illustration in the Gospel of Luke is the parable which tells us who is our neighbor. Another striking incident is that of the leper whom Luke records as crying out to Christ, "If thou wilt, thou canst cleanse me." Luke portrays this Jesus who was always seeking to save and help those in need as having compassion on the leper and healing him.

Think of how much like a physician writes of the man who fell among thieves and robbers and was wounded on the wayside near Jericho. Also of the manner in which he writes of the death of Christ on the cross. There he was slain for your sins and for my sins. His heart was broken and crushed for our sins, the sins of the whole world. Luke the great artist writes that they that are whole need not a physician. That Jesus came to call not the righteous, but sinners to repentance.

Panama & Liberty

As Applied to Sailors of The U. S. Navy
(By Walter L. Peterson)

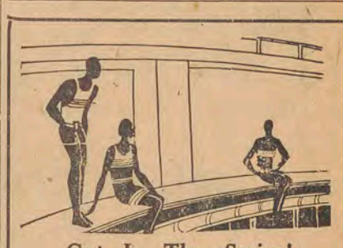
Not a few men join the navy to "go places and see things." Sometimes men in the navy are given unexampled opportunity to go to a great many places on this old globe and to gain a great deal of educational benefit through travel, while others do not see so much. It frequently happens that men obtain liberty in a foreign port or a strange port, go ashore, and return to the ship with having seen but very little. What a man gets out of a liberty depends upon the man himself.

A few men go ashore, get into trouble with the police or patrol, and frequently have more trouble awaiting them when they return to the ship as a consequence. Others go ashore, rest a bit, stretch their legs in walks about, buy a few post cards, a few souvenirs or presents, and come back to the ship when liberty expires. Some others go ashore just "to make a liberty." Yet others go ashore with the definite purpose to "see the sights" and gather whatever possible of historic and general information. They are the fellows who have something more intelligently interesting to talk about upon their return to the ship than "On that last liberty I saw that dame, and she says to me ..... and I pipes back ....," etc., etc. Furthermore, they have something worth while to wirte home about and to talk about when they get back home. You will be able to say: "I've seen an old Sixteenth century city, old Panama, a city which Henry Morgan, buccaneer par excellence, captured and burned," etc., etc. In Panama City near the R. R. station stands the church of Nuestra Senora de la Merced, dating from the end of the 17th century, the second oldest church in Panama. One may visit the sea wall, the best remnant of old Spanish fortification, with a 20-foot rise and fall of tide. From the top of this wall may be seen the ruins of old Panama and the tower ruin of Saint Anastasiaius Church, all that Morgan left standing. The cathedral Plaza was built from the private purse of the Bishop of Panama, whose father, a freed negro, burned charcoal on Ancon Hill and peddled it to the natives. The Episcopal See of Panama is the oldest on the American continent. The cathedral, completed in 1760, is unique in the pearl shells which adorn its two towers. The oldest church in the city is San Felipe Neri, built in 1688, and located near Plaza Bolivar. It is little visible now, a girls school having been built around it.

Pistols, Cutlasses, and Canoes Versus Warships

Approximately where the Saratoga is now anchored there occurred in 1860 one of the queerest naval battles ever fought. Bortholomew Sharp and 350 pirates landed on the isthmus and marched overland, arriving on this side at the mouth of the Chepo river. From there they set out in dugout canoes to attack the Spanish fleet anchored in the lee of Preco. The attack was made in broad daylight and Sharp and his men captured the entire fleet including "La Santissima Trinidad," a 450-ton galleon mounting twenty guns. All of the ships were scuttled except the last named which the pirates converted into a corsair, finally circumnavigating South America with it.

The Altar of Gold



When the pirate, Sir Henry Morgan, raided the city of Panama in January, 1671, the Father of San Jose dismantled their famous altar of gold and escaped to sea. This marvelous treasure made of plates of virgin gold, ornamented and a work of art, besides being of fabulous value for the gold alone, was never seen again, for after the departure of the pirates, the fathers returned and built their present church on San Jose on Avenida A, a very plain little church of white plaster in which they installed a very plain altar of plaster.

As the years passed the Golden Altar of San Jose became a legend and another lost treasure. In 1903, after Panama had gained her independence and the peace of the country was assured by the United States, the priests of San Jose commenced to chip and clean and behold like a butterfly from its cocoon appeared the Golden Altar in all its glory after 230 years of disguise as a very plain plaster altar.

A trip to the church of San Jose on Avenida A will convince you in regards to the altar. Respectfully.—Walter L. Peterson.

QUICKER and CHEAPER CROP CULTIVATION

When your crop needs working, it needs it at once=
The quickest, easiest method is the riding cultivator.

TIME is the most important factor in the cultivation of growing crops. It often happens that it would be worth hundreds of dollars to a farmer to be able to go over his entire crop in a few days—and with the one-plow method he can barely get started over before another rain cuts him off. Let us show you our RIDING PLOWS and tell you about several Chilton County farmers who used them with great profit and satisfaction last year.

By Dr. L. D. LeGear, V.S., St. Louis, Mo.

Dr. LeGear is a graduate of the Ontario Veterinary College, 1892. Thirty-six years of veterinary practice on diseases of live stock and poultry. Eminent authority on poultry and stock raising. Nationally known poultry breeder. Noted author and lecturer.

A SHORT CUT TO LONGER PROFITS

Editor's Note—This is another story in a series of 52 stories on poultry raising written by the well known national poultry authority, Dr. L. D. LeGear, V. S., of St. Louis. The entire series will appear in this paper. Our readers are urged to read them carefully and clip them out for future reference.

You think you have eliminated the heavy eating light-laying drones from your flock but are you sure you have got them all? If you are a good judge of the signs which indicate poor layers, the chances are you have eliminated the worst drones. In all liklihood, however, there are still a number of hens left which are on the border line or just below it; either they consume as much in food as they pay back or just a little bit more. In either case, they are unprofitable to keep, but hard to discover when ordinary methods of culling are employed.

Now these "border line" fowls require just as much care and equipment as their more profitable sisters. Care and equipment represent part of the investment on which a profit must be paid. It becomes self-evident, therefore, that very many such fowls will cause a serious cut in the percentage of profit returned on each dollar of capital invested. But the question is how to convict the offenders of their shortcomings. I know of but one certain way and that is to keep books on the whole lot of them and in a short while you will know beyond peradventure or doubt which are the egg layers and which are destined for a speedy trip to market.

Trap-nesting, in short, is the one sure method of determinig exactly how much each hen is laying and whether or not she is going to be worth keeping on the job. Such knowledge is of especially great importance to the breeder of fine pedigreed fowls, but is sufficiently important to most poultry raisers to be worthy of consideration. Trap-nesting, incidentally, is valuable in tamping young birds which tends to increase productiveness.

Many will object that trap-nesting involves too much labor. It is true there is some additional work involved but it is questionable whether there is much more than would be required for taking care of a large number of fowls from which no profit could possibly be realized. Furthermore, the work can be materially reduced by dividing the flock and trap-nesting one section at a time. As soon as the desired purpose has been definitely achieved, another section can be put through the course and so on until a dependable record has been made for every hen in the flock. This record not only serves to indicate the best layers, but is an invaluable guide for the selection of breeding stock.

A flock should be trapnested for twelve (12) months to tell accurately just what each individual hen is capable of doing in egg production. To trap-nest for three months and multiply by four does not give an accurate yearly record.

And now, just a word about the mechanics of trap-nesting. A trap nest, as everyone knows, is one equipped to hold a hen captive when she enters it to lay. Each hen in the flock has a numbered leg band on one of her legs, and before she is released, if she has layed, her number is put down on a daily record sheet, indicating that she layed that day. After a hen lays in a nest, she has to be released by an attendant and the nest left open ready for another hen. Homemade nests of this kind are easily constructed, although space is lacking in this article for giving definite instructions as to how it is done. There are many ready-made forms of trap nests that give satisfaction and are reasonably priced. Some manufacturers simply furnish a front with the trap mechanism attached. It can easily be fitted to a suitable form of home-made nest. Numbered leg bands for identifying the hens are purchased in series at comparatively trivial cost.

At least one trap nest should be furnished for every four fowls in flocks of fifty or more, and one for every three in smaller flocks. Try to have a sufficient number so that hens do not have to wait too long for their respective turns. For the same reason, pay a bit more attention to the trap nests during the normally busy hours of the day, which are usually from 8 to 11 a. m. They should be visited once every hour, especially during the forenoon.

The use of trap nests enables the poultry raiser to learn some really astonishing facts about what his hens are really doing. He will be surprised to find that some of those in which he had most faith were least deserving of his trust, and vice versa. He will definitely drop guessing from his payroll and substitute scientific certainty. The change may mean more work of one kind, but it also means less work of a less profitable kind, and in the long run trap nesting is bound to pay a sufficient increase in cash dividends to more than justifyq the increased investment in labor and equipment.

FOREST PROTECTION AT LOW COST

Montgomery, Mar. 30.—Alabama's forest land can be protected against fire at a low cost of approximately three cents an acre, says a statement issued by the commission of forestry. This figure is the average, the cost for the long leaf types being higher while for most other parts of the state it will probably be slightly less. For some time the commission has been engaged in cooperation with the Federal Government in preparing an estimate of the necessary cost of preventing fires in the woods.

The figures given are believed to be sufficient to reduce the percentage of area burned to about two and one-half per cent per annum. While this is somewhat short of the ultimate aim, nevertheless it represents a reduction to a point where fires would cease to be a material hindrance to profitable timber growing. This is largely because forest fires in southern types are not nearly so destructive as in the north and west.

The total forest land in Alabama amounts to about 23,000,000 acres. At three cents an acre the cost would amount to about $690,000 per annum. Naturally, most of this should be bourn by the landowners themselves in the form of individual and associated protective work. The balance should be provided by the state and federal governments. The division of cost at present most favored fixes approximately half to be borne by the landowners while the other half should be shared about equally by the state and national government.

Vegetables
An Important Commodity on the L&N

In 1927 the movement of perishables over the L. & N. Railroad, excluding tropical fruits, amounted to over 15,000 cars. Practically all originated in the Road's territory. Of this movement, 9,000 cars were vegetables shipped from great producing districts in Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama, Northwest Florida, Louisiana, and the three coast counties of Mississippi. One-third of these were shipped from localities which, a few years ago, were practically unsettled and whose settlement by people from outside the South has been actively encouraged and assisted by agents of this railroad. For the four years, including 1927, there was an annual average increase of 1,100 cars in the carload movement of vegetables and other perishables from points on the L. & N.'s lines.

This increase has been largely due to three things: An increase of growers due to location of new settlers, diversification of crops, and increased crop yields through the use of better seeds, better cultivation, and more scientific fertilization. L. & N. agents have assisted in promoting all this.

They have helped the new settler find a desirable location in the South, aided him with advice and demonstration in cultivating soil new to him, have seen that he chooses the right variety and quality of seed, instructed him regarding fertilizer, and often helped him solve his harvesting, packing, and marketing problems. Their aim has been to improve the grower's product, yield, and returns.

The early Irish potato is one of the South's principal truck crops. An L. & N. agricultural agent, an expert on potato growing, each fall visits Northern and Western districts from which seed potato shipments are made, and goes into the fields to select those from which shipments are to be made to points in the L. & N. territory.

Vegetable shipments from L. & N. territory are rapidly increasing. From one of the Gulf Coast counties the first movement of green corn was 16 cars in 1923. Last year it was about 350 cars. The cabbage movement last year was 949 cars against 538 in 1924. Strawberries in the same time increased from 1,287 to 2,300 carloads.

Transporting passengers and freight are not the only duties of a great railroad system, and its obligations to the public it serves are fully recognized by the L. & N. Railroad.

"Use Brains, Not Shoeleather," Advice to Young Job Hunters

Approximately 850,000 young men and 400,000 young girls will be seeking their first jobs during the course of the present year, and if they will use brains and not shoeleather they will fare better than the average annual crop, declares The American Magazine in its current issue.

Quoting a famous employment expert, the article declares that the time is rapidly passing when the employment seeker can walk, hat in hand, into the office of an executive and receive a profitable job. A job is a matter to be studied, declares the expert. first, the seeker must know why he wants to join a firm and have reasons for doing so. He must not forget that he is the only foctor in making the connection and and look at the matter from both sides. He must not think that he is being shelved upon being placed on a waiting list. "The best thing is to get on a number of waiting list," says the employer. The importance of stating full personal matters other than qualifications for a job are recommended as important. It is advised that no job be sought in a far away place unless the applicant is able to remove there and break all home ties.

"The shoeleather plan does not get results," says the article. "The jobless person should make a careful analysis of what he can do best and then of the employers who are most likely to need his services. A fair number of those who will seek employment this year have jobs handed to them, but the rest will have to suit their training and abilities to the needs of employers."

POPLAR SPRINGS

The regular annual Easter singing at this place was called to order at 10 o'clock by the chairman, Prof. W. M. Devaughn. A committee consisting of O. L. Devaughn, J. B. Hammond and I. D. Huett was designated to arrange a program for the day.

A large number of directors were present, and a splendid class lent their best efforts to make the service a success. Practically every community in Chilton County was represented, as well as our neighbor counties of Autauga, Elmore, Montgomery, and Jefferson.

We desire to express our appreciation to each and every individual who assisted us in making a success of the song service, and, especially, are we grateful to Mr. Olen Williams and Mr. W. M. Devaughn for the splendid quartets arranged and rendered by them.—J. L. WILSON, Sec'y.

CHILTON COUNTY ABSTRACT CO.
M. D. FOSHEE, Manager

A good business man will not buy a farm or any property without first looking it over to see what it is worth.

However, some will buy or loan money on land without an abstract.

Isn't it equally as foolish to buy a farm without looking it over as to buy it and not know whether the titles are good or not? Without an abstract you do not know where you are getting the land you look at or not.

Before investing in land in any way have an abstract made and be safe.

Revival At Courthouse To Begin Sunday, April 14th.

REVIVAL AWAKENING

Back to Calvary — salvation and peace! Forward to Pentecost—the baptism with the Holy Spirit—power, victory and service! Onward from the upper room with the flaming Gospel message of love and power with tongues of fire to all the world! A trumpet call to the church to awake to her blood-bought privileges in Christ is going forth! It is time to awake from spiritual slumber! The midnight of the age is on us—the morning cometh! The awakening has begun! Arouse from your slumbers! Forsake your present course! Assemble together! Hear the Word, the Gospel of your salvation, and call upon thy God! Revival is God's order. He sends revivals to stir His people to prayer and renewed faith, and cooperation together with Him in the salvation of souls. All can work together for this. It is the greatest work in the world! It lies nearest the heart of God!

Revival for Clanton.

God has a revival for Clanton and surrounding community. That a real soul-saving, heartfelt, God-honoring revival is needed now no one dares to deny. Some are praying for it. All have the privilege to pray and work for it.

We are announcing a revival to begin at Clanton in the courthouse on April 14th, at 2:30 p. m. We have secured the assistance of Evangelist Essie Binkley Locy, now pastor of the San Fernando (Calif.) Foursquare Gospel Lighthouse, a branch of Angelus Temple, of Los Angeles.

Evangelist Locy was formerly program director of Angelus Temple, and Sunshine Hour announcer for three years for radio station KFSG. In addition to being a noted preacher she is also a gifted musician, and is known from coast to coast as the "Girl Trumpeting Evangelist of America." She was engaged for one year in advance to trumpet for the Hollywood Easter service, when 35,000 gathered to celebrate the risen Christ. In addition to preaching the full gospel, she teaches and directs what is considered one of the finest 40-piece bands in California.

With the evangelist is a group of workers who have been carefully selected for their special gifts in evangelistic work and musical talents. All those attending these revival services are assured of a treat.

The first afternoon and night services will begin with special musical programs. The evangelist will be introduced at the first afternoon service by our Hon. Judge L. H. Reynolds of the Probate Court.

Services each night at 7:30.

AUBURN STUDENT TO VISIT HOME FOLKS

The many frineds of Mr. John O. Martin will be pleased to know that he is to be home this week end.

Martin is well known in and around Clanton, especially in his athletic ability. He graduated from Isabella High School last year and went to Auburn where he is studying to be a mechanical engineer.

Martin is very popular among his fellow students. He is especially popular among the Auburn co-ed. He is lieutenant of the Y. M. C. A. Frinedship Council. Signed.—R. N. Deshazo, Auburn, Alabama.

HAVE YOU AN UNMARKED GRAVE?

How unthoughtful is he who permits the remains of a loving Mother, Father, Sister, Brother or a little Child to rest in an unmarked grave with nothing to distinguish that hallowed spot from the commonplace surface of the earth, indifferently trampled by man and beast. Great comfort will be gained by consecrating the spot where sleeps the departed with a beautiful and lasting monument.

Badly Run-Down

"Six years ago, I was very much run-down," says Mrs. Olympia Kight, of Lovett, Ga. "I did not sleep well, and was weak and restless. I dragged around the house with not enough strength to do my daily tasks. I worried a lot, and this disturbed state of mind reacted on my health.

"I had often read of Cardui, so I thought I would try it. I soon began to improve after I had taken Cardui for a while.

"It was astonishing how much I picked up. I slept better; my appetite improved, and that awful dragging-down feeling left me.

"I was so much better that I continued taking Cardui until I felt perfectly well."

EASTER SERVICES HELD AT UNIVERSITY OF ALABAMA

University, Ala., April 1.—One of the most beautiful exercises ever held on the University of Alabama campus was held Easter Sunday at sunrise on the historic "Mound" situated near the center of the university grounds.

The various churches of Tuscaloosa combined with the church groups on the university campus and gathered around the "Mound" for Easter devotional exercises. It was the largest gathering that ever graced the campus at this hour, it was stated.

W. S. Fitzgerald, a member of the University faculty gave an inspirational address on "The Resurrection." The students were led in a song service by the various churches. Miss Margaret Hayslette, organist of the First Baptist Church of Tuscaloosa, rendered a number of appropriate Easter hymns on a piano transported to the "Mound" for the services.

Considerable curiosity has been displayed by travelers passing thru Tuscaloosa during the past week relative to a narrow wooden scaffold which shoots up into the air for about 117 feet. This scaffolding is located in the drive way to the center entrance of the University campus, directly in front of President's mansion.

This is the frame work for the tower which is to house the Denny Chimes. These chimes were donated to the University by students, friends and alumni, and will be a memorial to president Denny. They will be electrically timed, and will be heard throughout the entire Tuscaloosa district. They will be completed and dedicated during the coming commencement exercises.

THIS IS FOR STAPP TO ANSWER

"Tell me how to make bigger ones, and tell the ones that have none how to make them as large."

The above inscription came to The Union-Banner in a box with a nice cabbage head last Saturday. The sender was Mr. J. H. Moore of Verbena, Ala.

Mr. Moore seems to want to know how to grow larger cabbage, but it seems to us that he ought to be very well satisfied with the specimen he sent us. We did not weigh it, but it was a nice hard head all right, and we judge from its appearance that it was raised in Chilton County too.

We think that the latter part of Mr. Moore's note is well enough for us all to consider, that is, tell us all how to make them as large. Probably our county agent can tell us more about it, Mr. Moore.

Thorsby Postoffice Robbed Last Week

About $200 In Cash Taken From Safe. Harper's Store Also Looted

The postoffice at Thorsby was entered by burglars last Friday night. According to a statement credited to postmaster Grover Bice, the thieves took about $200 in cash from the safe.

The store of G. F. Harper, next to the postoffice was also entered by the burglars. From the store a large quantity of clothing and food was taken. The robbers took about $25 in small change from Mr. Harper's safe, but they overlooked a large sum of money hidden in another place in the store.

Officers have been busy on every clue that might lead to a connection between the Thorsby robbery of Friday night and the attempted Verbena robbery Saturday night.

Sheriff Collins stated Monday that Mr. Harper came to the jail Sunday where the three men were confined as the outcome of the Verbena case —and that Mr. Harper stated that some gloves which the men had were exactly like some gloves which were taken from his store by the robbers Friday night.

It is said that the robbers at Thorsby carried away an overcoat belonging to postmaster Bice. Another rumor is out that the bus driver Sunday morning said that one of the three men arrested threw away an overcoat on the way to Clanton. Sheriff Collins states that the bus driver told him and a postoffice inspector that he had made no such statements.

ROBERT BOWLEN PUT IN JAIL LAST SUNDAY NIGHT

Sheriff Collins and his deputies went to the Mooney place on Mulberry Sunday night and arrested Robert Bowlen and brought him to jail. Bowlen is under indictment for stealing Mr. R. J. Williams' automobile some time last year.

The car was found in Mobile, and Bowlen has been dodging the officers for several months.

ARRESTS FOR HOME BREW

Last Saturday county officers arrested J. D. Wesson, Argnes Robinson, and a Wallace boy on a charge of having home brew. They all were released under bond.

MOVED TO MITCHELL DAM

Mr. R. A. Miller, Jr., better known as Tam and sometimes called old One-Spot, has moved with his family to Mitchell Dam. Tam has taken up a regular job of painting for the Alabama Power Company. His work will consist of painting in and around the power house as well as the dwelling houses all over the camp. The Power Company could not have selected a better man for the job than Mr. Miller. While we regret to see Mr. Miller and his family leave Clanton, at the same time we are glad to see him step into a good position with the Alabama Power Company.

FARMERS GO ON VETCH TOUR

About thirty-five or forty farmers went with Mr. Stapp on the vetch tour Saturday p. m. Those who went on this field trip saw the necessity of using phosphate, inoculation and planting early.

Where the vetch and peas had phosphate, plenty of inoculation, plenty of seed, and were planted early it was good; some places the growth being equal to an application of 200 to 400 pounds of nitrate of soda. Where the above conditions were not met, the vetch and peas had made only small growth.

ATTENTION—BOYS

Boys desiring to do 4-H Club work this year are urged to let Mr. Stapp have their names at an early date.

If you want to get in the Calf Club give your name to Mr. Stapp this week.

CHILTON HIGH SWAMPS ISABELLA HIGH, 19 TO 6

Chilton County High School defeated Isabella High on the local field last Friday afternoon 19 to 6. Chilton went into the lead in the first inning 4 to 1, and from then on the final decision was never in doubt, the only question being just how many runs Chilton would pile up. Isabella hit safely 9 times; Chilton 17. Baker, of Chilton led the hitters of both teams with two triples and two singles, while Bill Simpson also connected for four safeties. H. Moore struck out 13 Isabella men and Pennon, of Isabella whiffed 10.

METHODIST YOUNG MEN MEET

Several of the young men of Clanton Methodist church met last Monday night at the church for the purpose of getting into definite form the plans which they have been working on for some time to organize a young men's Sunday school class. These boys were very enthusiastic Monday night, and if they can manage to keep up this same spirit it will not be long before the young mens class of Clanton Methodist Church will be one of the outstanding influences for good in Clanton.

Plans were discussed at this meeting in regard to the complete organization of this class, and next Sunday morning the teacher will be selected and the class officers elected. All the boys who are interested in this class are invited to meet at the Methodist church next Sunday morning at 9:30. The class will meet in the vacant room on the top floor of the church. Be sure to be there and be one of the charter members of this class.

TEMPLE CHURCH

Our Sunday School is doing fine work, and the number of students is increasing almost every Sunday. To any one who wants to belong to one of the fastest growing Sunday schools in the county, come on—we will be glad to have you. Sunday School every Sunday morning at ten o'clock at the church at the east end of Second Avenue, Clanton.

Our pastor, Rev. L. P. Adams, preached one of the best sermons we have ever heard last Sunday, his subjects being salvation, healing, and baptism.

Don't forget—our revival, conducted by Essie Binkley Locy and helpers, begins at the courthouse next Sunday afternoon at 2:30. At his service Hon. L. H. Reynolds will introduce Sister Locy and her troupe. Services will be held every evening at 7:30 at the courthouse, the meeting continuing for two weeks. Come to every service—we will be glad to have you. These revival leaders come to us direct from Angelus Temple, Los Angeles, the institution made famous by its founder and present head, Aimee Semple McPherson.

BAPTIST SUNDAY SCHOOL TEAM LOST TO PLANTERSVILLE

After a few afternoons of practice, the Baptist Sunday School baseball team took on a fast team from Plantersville last Thursday afternoon, but lost the argument, 6 to 4. The locals were hitting the apple like veterans, but a lack of practice was noted in their slow team play. However, judging from their performance Thursday, the boys should hit their stride in the near future, and we are looking forward to some good playing by them in the coming summer months. The fellows made up an aggregation that looked real snappy in the new uniforms furnished them by business houses of the town.

Come out to the games—the boys need your backing, and are willing to do all they can to give as good entertainment as possible. Watch for announcements of future games.

Will Glass Buried Last Sunday P.M.

Prominent Citizen of Oak Grove Community Died Last Saturday Night

Mr. Will A. Glass, prominent citizen of Oak Grove community, north of Jemison, died at the Central Alabama Hospital in Clanton last Saturday night, and was buried at Providence, Beat 13, Sunday afternoon. He had undergone an operation for appendicitis some days prior to his death. His chances for recovery were doubtful from the very beginning of his illness, as it was practically certain that the operation had been delayed too long.

Mr. Glass was 47 years of age. He is survived by the following members of his immediate family: his wife, Mrs. Thula Glass and children, Vollie Glass of Wylam, Mrs. Ollie Dawson, Jemison; Vann Glass, Jemison; Miss Ruth, O'Neill, Willa Mae, Clara, and Irene, all at home; two grandchildren.

He was a son of James and Malissa Glass, who also live near Jemison. Brothers and sisters of the deceased are as follows: J. O., Jap N., Amos, and George Glass of Jemison; Wiley Glass of Clanton; Mrs. Maud Pearman, Acipco; Mrs. Lizzie Retherford, Jemison; Mrs. Leila Beasley, Jemison.

The funeral was conducted by Rev. S. J. Ezell, of Clanton. Burial was in charge of undertaker Mell Martin of Clanton.

Mr. Glass was one of the best citizens of our county, and his death is universally mourned by a great number of admiring friends.

Will Conduct Revival

Above is a picture of Rev. Huey P. Childs, pastor of the Richards Memorial Methodist Church, of Pensacola, Florida, who will conduct the revival meeting at Clanton Methodist Church beginning next Sunday. The visiting minister is a brother of Rev. Ernset A. Childs, pastor of the Clanton Methodist church.

Music for the meeting will be in charge of Rev. R. P. Marshall with the accordion and Mrs. Marshall at the piano.

MRS. SALLIE VINSON BURIED AT BETHSALEM WEDNESDAY

The remains of Mrs. Sallie Vinson, age 69, were buried at Bethsalem Wednesday afternoon, Rev. Joe Moore conducting the services.

Mrs. Vinson, the widow of the late Willie Vinson, died at the home of her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Doshie Vinson, near Bethsalem Tuesday night at about 12:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Vinson was born in this county at Coopers, the duaghter of Uriah Eiland. She is survived by 3 sons and one daughter. They are W. G. Vinson, J. C. Vinson and L. L. Vinson of Montgomery, and Mrs. E. W. Clenner of Clanton.

COURTHOUSE YARD BEING IMPROVED

For a long time we have hoped to see some signs of beautification on the yards of the Chilton. County Courthouse. This week we have observed a considerable bit of activity in that direction. New rich dirt has been hauled in and a profusion of evergreen shrubbery has been set out between the sidewalk and the house, and will soon be growing beautifully.

Judge Reynolds says that they plan to build a fence between the court house and the home of Mrs. Potts and plant running roses on either side of this fence. When these roses get in full bloom they will present an appearance very beautiful, in contrast with the unsightly rubbish that has heretofore been on this spot.

Unfortunately, our courthouse is not blessed with large spacious grounds about the building. But that little space which is there can be made beautiful and attractive by the planting of shrubbery, grass and flowers.

We think the Commissioners Court is to be commended for their action in authorizing this improvement to be made around the seat of our county government.

MRS. HARRIET LITTLE DIED

Mrs. Harriet Little, age 76 years, died at the home of her son, Dallas Little, in Clanton last Saturday afternoon. She was buried at Collins Chapel Sunday, Rev. J. N. Scott of Jemison conducting the funeral. Burial was in charge of Martin.

Mrs. Little was the wife of the late John Little.

SINCLAIR OIL COMPANY BUILDING PLANT AT CLANTON

A wholesale distributing plant of the Sinclair Oil Company is being erected alongside the railroad tracks adjacent to the city waterworks property.

Facilities are being installed for handling the Sinclair products in wholesale quantities at the plant, from which supplies for retailers will be distributed over different parts of Chilton County. It has not yet been announced who will have the distribution contract for Sinclair here.

FINAL REPORT OF FLOOD RELIEF COMMITTEE NEXT WEEK

The final report of the Flood Relief Committee of Chilton County will be completed and published in full in next week's issue of The Union-Banner.

KIWANIS CLUB INTERESTED IN POULTRY DEVELOPMENT

The interest of members of Clanton Kiwanis Club in the extension of the poultry business in Chilton County was given special expression last Thursday when the club luncheon meeting was devoted to a special program dealing with the poultry business.

A number of the leading poultry growers of the county were guests of the Club. An address on the poultry business was made by Mr. George Trollope, poultry specialist, of Auburn.

Mr. Trollope told many interesting facts about the poultry business in Chilton County and Alabama which made some of the club members express surprise to learn that our chicken business is already of such large volume. One thing specially impressive was the statement of the speaker that the poultry business in Alabama is second only to cotton as a money-producing factor to the farmers.

Among the local poultry enthusiasts noted at the meeting were J. B. Downs, G. O. Foshee, Dr. O. C. Mastin, F. E. Mastin, Vick Heard, and Charley Foshee.

THIRD AVENUE IMPROVEMENT LOOKS GOOD NOW

The opening of Third Avenue from the Highway to the railroad is a bit of improvement that is going to add a pleasing appearance to that part of the business section of Clanton. The work is about completed. A large quantity of dirt has been moved to effect the opening of the street. This has worked to another advantage, as the surplus dirt has been used to fill up the low place at the rear of the building of Clanton Motors. This has about eliminated the last of the old frog pond which used to cover the greater part of the old Will Adams block.

GAME AND FISHERIES DEPARTMENT TO PUBLISH MAGAZINE

The State Department of Game and Fisheries will begin the publication of a magazine for the dissemination of information and news of particular interest to the Sportsmen of the State, and is asking the public to suggest a name for the magazine. The name would preferably be descriptive of conservation, and yet be out of the ordinary. The magazine will be issued regularly and will be mailed throughout the United States. A good name will go far toward attracting attention outside of Alabama.

Names already suggested include "The Alabama Conservationist," "Alabama Outdoors," and "Forest Field and Stream in Alabama." While no prizes are being offered for the name selected, it is hoped that the public will respond widely. Suggestion should be mailed to Commissioner I. T. Quinn, Montgomery, Alabama, and should reach the office in Montgomery not later than April 20th.

BAPTIST WILL TRY FOR 500 NEXT SUNDAY

GOOD BUSINESS FOR POULTRY CAR IN COUNTY LAST WEEK

Reports from County Agent C. E. Stapp indicate that the Farm Bureau poultry car through Chilton County last week was a decided success. Poultry growers took advantage of this opportunity to load their surplus stock on the car and get cash money at a higher price per pound than they ordinarily receive on the local market.

The car was at Verbena last Wednesday where 1,619 pounds was loaded. On Thursday at Clanton, the total loaded was 8,025 pounds. Friday 3,896 pounds was loaded at Jemison—making a total for the county, 13,540 pounds for which the buyers paid cash at the car door, $3,280.

Mr. Stapp says the Farm Bureau will probably secure another car over the L. & N. and M. & O. railroads some time next month.

BERRY GROWERS MEETING

All berry growers interested in the new grades and regulations are requested to meet at Clanton on Friday at 2 p. m. and see the grades and pack demonstrated.—Clanton Berry Growers Association by J. N. Dennis, Secretray-Treasurer.

Strawberry Crop Here Looks Good

Carload Shipments Will Begin To Move from County In The Next Week

From reports and comments heard among growers of strawberries in this territory, it seems safe to predict that the crop this year in Chilton County will be good and fairly profitable.

Already quite a few berries have come in on the local market from fields around Clanton. Officials of the Clanton Berry Growers Association are hustling around getting everything ready for shipments which are expected to begin moving in carload lots within the next few days.

Mr. J. M. Smith, manager of the Thorsby Fruit & Truck Growers Association, was in Clanton a few days ago, and stated that prospects for the berry crop at Thorsby are good. There is but one thing which Mr. Smith mentioned to indicate a disadvantage to growers this season, the fact that the weather conditions of this spring would put berries on the market in such a widely scattered area at one time that the price would be somewhat lower than if the usual manner of sectional marketing were prevailing.

A nice rain Tuesday around Clanton was welcomed by the berry farmers. This will stimulate the fruiting plants.

Mr. Dolphus Martin has moved into John Harrison Collin's house and is said to be planning to open a barber shop in Thorsby.

Three Men Jailed In Postal Robbery

Suspects Arrested Here Sunday After Attempt to Break in Verbena Postoffice

Three men were taken off a northbound bus here last Sunday morning and placed in jail, following an attempt to break into the post office at Verbena about two o'clock Sunday morning. The men under arrest gave their names as William Ezell, Sam McMurray, and Cecil Smith, and all said they lived at Siluria.

About two o'clock Sunday morning three men were discovered in the act of breaking in the post office at Verbena. The men were frightened away after they had wrecked the post office door. They left an automobile at the scene. A party of Verbena citizens was formed to take the situation in hand. When the men returned some hours later the citizens on guard gave chase. Several shots were exchanged as the fugitives ran away, but no one was hurt.

Bloodhounds were secured from Spigeners and the county officers from Clanton were summoned. The pursuit was well organized by the officers, and citizens of Verbena rendered such excellent cooperation as to make it impossible for the hunted men to escape.

As the northbound bus came along the highway Sunday morning three men stepped out of a thicket below Verbena, flagged the driver, and got aboard. In a few minutes hounds which were trailing the robbers came up to the exact place where the men had boarded the bus.

The officers followed the bus to Clanton, where Chief Boockholdt was already wise to the plan. The bus was stopped at the intersection of Second Avenue and the highway and the three men taken in charge by the officers and placed in jail.

Later in the day Sunday, Federal officers, accompanied by a U. S. post office inspector, came and carried the men to Montgomery.

It was thought that the men arrested are the ones who have committed many robberies of small post offices in this section of Alabama in recent weeks.

It has been reported that the robbers who entered the Thorsby post office one night last week carried away an overcoat belonging to the postmaster, Grover Bice; and that the driver of the bus which the men were taken off of Sunday morning says the men threw away an overcoat on their way to Clanton Sunday morning.

Sheriff Collins informs us that the bus driver denies making the reported statement about the throwing away of an overcoat.

The robbers also entered the store of Mr. G. F. Harper at Thorsby and carried away some merchandise. It is reported here that Mr. Harper has identified some gloves in possession of the men as being those taken from his store at Thorsby.

UNCLE DOCK WELLS WRITES

Editor Union-Banner:

Please give me a little space in the good old Union-Banner to say a few words regarding our most excellent services at Friendship on Easter Sunday.

I can say that as much as I have been to church during my long life I don't think I ever enjoyed a service any more than I did that. I enjoyed every talk that was made, and especially that of old Brother Nelson. It has been in my mind almost continuously, day and night, ever since I heard it. I feel that we ought to have meetings like that occasionally at all the churches. I am sure it would have a wonderful effect in reviving all of us in the "good old time religion."

I did not relate but a very small part of my own religious experience that day, for fear I would take up too much of that precious time, and, maybe, intrude on the time that might belong to some other good brother who had a story of Divine grace and God's eternal goodness to relate. I can say that I know I was truly converted 65 years ago. Christ gave me peace of mind in my soul after I had prayed for two days and nights, and it has been there ever since. I was off in a grove alone in my trouble and did my best to see the light and get peace, when Lo! the spirit came—the Lord lifted from my soul, and the blessed sunshine of peace with God came into my life.

For fear of tiring my readers I will close, and perhaps I will come again along the same line soon.

God bless the Union-Banner, its editor, and all its readers, and put into all our hearts to have more meetings like the one on Easter.—A. C. Wells.

It is said that a bill will be urged in Congress to restrict the lending of money for the purchase of securities on the New York Stock Exchange. The average American will fail to see where it is any worse to lend money to buy securities of American industrial concerns than to send $2,000,000,000 to Europe each year to lend for the building up of Europe's industries. Certainly the American securities look like a safer bet from here.

LITTLE PEN-O-GRAMS

THE "I'M ALONE"

There has been a great deal of comment in the metropolitan press concerning the sinking of the British ship "I'm Alone" by an American Coast Guard control boat in the Gulf of Mexico. It has been suggested that the sinking of this ship might be regarded as an affront to the British. and Canadian governments, and a great deal has been said about how jealous the British government has always been of insults to its flag. All of which may be well and good, but it will occur to the man in the street that if the British government has been affronted and its flag humiliated, this has not been done so much by the American Coast Guard patrol as by the men who built a ship for the express purpose of illegally smuggling bootleg booze and dope to a friendly nation where the sale of these products is prohibited by law. There are various means of insulting the flag but certainly one of them can be brought about by hoisting that flag to protect an illegal cargo of booze and dope.

It is certain that were an American ship of the stripe of the "I'm Alone" engaged in smuggling into England commodities prohibited by law, the American people would have little sympathy with it and would not be disposed to criticise the British patrol who might take summary action. That at least would be the opinion of the great majority of the people, regardless of diplomatic and political procedure, and it is doubtless just as true that the good people of Canada and England disapprove the contraband business indulged in by ships of the type of "I'm Alone." They have frequently voiced their disapproval in the British press regardless of what the diplomats may have had to say about the rights on the high seas and within the twelve mile limit.

It has been hinted also that Great Britain might in protest abrogate the treaty it has with the United States by which it acknowledges the right of the United States to search British ships within the twelve mile limit. It is to remembered however, that this treaty is not a one-sided arrangement. It provides also that British ships carrying liquor may bring it into American harbors under seal until the ships get out on the high seas. If the treaty were cancelled Great Britain would lose the privilege and no British ship could enter our harbors unless its liquor had first been disposed of. It is hardly likely that such a practice would be regarded as desirable or convenient by British shipping interests. So it is to be presumed that the incident of the "I'm Alone" will be settled without any drastic action.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Written for The Union-Banner by
FRANK P. LITSCHERT

One thing of which the modern American is proud, and for which he is thankful is the complete unity of our nation. There is no longer any north and south, east and west in a purely sectional and political sense. Many things have brought this change about, not the least of which has been the shifting of economic condtions, and the wonderful development of certain sections of the South and West, which have completely changed political ideas everywhere.

Because of this fact of unity accomplished, there is something of more than passing interest in the bill proposed by Congressman Howard of Nebraska, providing for a joint reunion of the surviving veterans of the Civil War, both North and South. Congressman Howard believes that such a reunion would visualize to the world at large and to the American people of this and future generations the complete unity of our nation, and would mark the final obliteration of sectional divisions produced by the Civil War and the incidents leading up to it.

Since the great conflict between the states closed, the United States has been in two great wars and the sons and grandsons of the men who wore the gray have fought side by side with the descendants of the "boys in blue." The military record written by American arms in these two later struggles was a glorious one, in which our sturdy young men from every section of the United States did their bit. There never has been and is not now any question of the bravery and ability of the men North and South who fought in the great sectional struggle and there could be no more inspiring evidence of national unity than the procession down historic Pennsylvania Avenue in Washington, of the remnants of the great hosts which fought nearly seventy years ago and changed not only the history of the nation but the course of human events everywhere.

None of these battle-scarred veterans is now less than eighty years of age and if there is to be a final grand re-union it must be held soon. The Howard bill provdies for the reunion in the present year, and provides further for the creation of a commission to be composed of General John J. Pershing, chairman, of the national commanders of the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the United Spanish War Veterans and such other persons as the President of the United States may appoint.

The issues which were fought out and decided in the great civil struggle have disappeared. The people of America now have new issues and new problems confronting them. Sectional lines are vanishing. The country is united not only by the telegraph and the telephone and by bands of steel, but by the great voice of the wireless, and by white ribboned highways which are rapidly being pushed in every direction connecting the states below the Mason and Dixon line with those to the north.

Our people are using these roads. The man from the north is going south to see the country and the man from the south is going north for the same reason. The eastern tourist is driving west and the man from the west is going east. And best of all each of them is finding that the man who lives in another section has about the same ideals of justice and right living as he maintains for himself. The world moves, conditions change. We do not intend, as a people, nor is it proper, to abandon all of the old for that which is new.

A VISIT TO THE GROWING LITTLE CITY OF CLANTON

Two representatives of The Progress, H. M. and H. S. Doster, accompanied by their wives and Mrs. J. J. Moore, wife of the principal of the Autauga County High School, motored to Clanton last Saturday morning to note the progress of that thriving little city. The real mission of The Progress representatives was to inspect the casting machines of the newspapers there. Clanton is 35 miles from Prattville and it takes only about an hour to motor there over the paved road. Clanton has almost doubled in population within the past ten years and is becoming a little city. The people there confidently expect a city of 6000 within the next four years. Through the courtesy of Mr. Guy Higgins, formerly of Prattville, we obtained much first hand information. The newspaper representatives were also most kind in giving us information. We visited some of the strawberry fields around Clanton and found some very fine fields. Clanton expects to ship 20 cars of berries this month. We also visited the new cotton mill there. It is located about one mile from Clanton and is one of ten mills organized by the Alabama Power Company. That mill has modern machinery and is now making cloth that is used in rain coats. The mill is a great asset to the town and county. We asked how the citizens of Clanton managed to subscribe $150,000 of stock to this new mill. We were told that Clanton has many citizens with a small amount of money and no one had to subscribe a large amount. There were many small subscribers. We left Prattville at 10 minutes to eight o'clock Saturday morning and returned at 11:30. With good roads and automobiles the world is certainly in a sense closer together than ever before. We are proud of our sister town of Clanton. —Prattville Progress.

It is said that in Samoa taxes are paid according to the height of the taxpayer so that a six foot man pays one-sixth more taxes than a five foot man. That's the same system that our income tax law works on. The shorter you are the less you have to pay.

Let us rather keep the best of the old and combine with it the best in that which is new. Here and here only will we find real progress. And as a tribute to the old and a proof of America restored, what could be better than a joint reunion of the remnants of the great armies which, in the deadly crucible of war, made our present progress possible.

We don't want to commit ourself about joining the world court until we find out for sure who the sheriff is going to be.

CAPITOL News

Striking evidence of the increased scale on which the State of Alabama is developing and conserving her human resources in expansion of educational activities, public health work, etc. is shown in figures on expenditures for the first full fiscal year of the Graves administration, ending September 30, 1928, as compared with the last full year of the preceding administration, ending September 30, 1926. Figures are based on data for the annual report of the state auditor, which is now in the hands of the printers.

A healthy growth is shown in the general education fund, disbursements, which increased from the sum of $3,940,429.19 in 1926 to $4,357,816.94 in 1928. This fund is derived from the state three mill school tax, which has been in force many years, and which varies only with the increase in property values, the rate of taxation being unchanged.

The really significant advance in education under the Graves administration has come from entirely new appropriations based on new taxes levied by the 1927 legislature upon railroads, power companies, telephone, telegraph and express companies, severance tax on coal, iron, sand and gravel, and the sales tax on cigars and cigarettes. Funds from these sources go into an educational trust fund, and the new appropriations for education are paid from this fund, suplemented when needed from the general fund. The legislature of 1927 not only continued in effect all existing appropriations for education, but provided the schools with entirely new revenue from sources listed above, which has resulted in tremendous development of the school system from top to bottom. Disbursements for 1928 under the educational trust fund act of the 1927 legislature, which represents money received by the schools over and above what they have hitherto received, amounted to $3,678,356.67. A detailed statement shows that this amount was divided as follows: Public School Equalization Fund, $900,000; public school attendance fund, $849,999.80; normal schools, white, $140,000; teacher training equalization,$ 194,000; agricultural and mechanical institute for negroes, $10,000; rural school house building. $128,500; illiteracy fund,$18,546.37; high schools, $411,000; Alabama school of trades and industries, $20,000; educational department, state board, $29,546.64; Alabama College, (Montevallo) $187,623.77; Alabama Polytechnic Institute (Auburn) $332,605.78; physical restoration, $14,998.04; state normal school for negroes, $20,000; rural school library fund, $7,989.84.

Education is not the only cause which has received far greater assistance under the Graves regime than in previous years. Pension payments have greatly increased, and although the ranks of the Confederate veterans are being rapidly thinned by death, the 1927 legislature increased the per capita amount so greatly that the total amount paid out in pensions in 1928 showed a big increase over 1926. The figures on pension payments are: 1926, $1,399,374; 1928, $2,289,802.50.

Appropriiations for public health and child welfare show a great increase. The work of the state health department along lines of prevention of disease, and stamping out sources from which disease arises, has attracted widespread attention and has given Alabama first place among the states in public health work. Alabama's child welfare department is also conceded to be among the best in the country. As a result of increased financial aid, the departments of public health and child welfare have greatly expanded their activities in the past two years, and to-day county health units and county boards of child welfare have been established in most of the counties of the state. The figures on disbursements to the state health department are: 1926, $225,000; 1928, $430,050. For the child welfare department the figures are: 1926, $50,000; 1928, $99,998.61.

Another State activity given much-needed aid was the State School for the deaf and blind at Talladega. Disbursements to this school jumped from $150,240 in 1926 to $365,200 in 1928. The State Training School for Girls which received $55,650 in 1926 was also generously helped by the legislature of 1927, disbursements to the institution for 1928 being $143,238.99. Disbursements to the Alabama Boys Industrial School increased from $102,720 in 1926 to $119,002.50 in 1928; and to the Alabama Insane Hospital, from $786,044.25 in 1926 to $834,840.04 in 1928.

A report was recently published to the effect that a deficit of over $2,800,000 existed in the State's finances at the end of the last fiscal year. An investigation showed this to be merely a "bookkeeping deficit," due to the fact that the fiscal year came to a close after warrants had been issued for certain highway expenses, but before bonds had been sold to cover the amount. Last summer the State wished to sell more road bonds, but the bond market at the time was unfavorable. Rather than sacrifice the bonds on a low market, arrangement was made with banks to carry warrants issued for pressing highway needs, and the sale of bonds was deferred. Something over $2,200,000 worth of highway warrants were issued in this way. Later the bonds were sold and the warrants paid, but in the meantime the State's fiscal year had come to a close, so that while the item of over two million dollars was listed in disbursements for 1928, the receipts from bond sales to cover this amount did not come in until the new year had started creating a deficit on paper which did not exist in fact.

Figures recently announced by the State auditor show that for the first six months of the present fiscal year beginning October 1, 1928, receipts exceeded disbursements by over $3,700,000. This surplus, it will be noted, is sufficient to offset by more than a million dollars the "deficit" existing at the end of the fiscal year due to circumstances outlined above.

Assurance of federal aid in the program of rehabilitation in the flood stricken area of southeast Alabama has been received as a result of efforts of Governor Bibb Graves, Senators Black and Heflin, and a number of Alabama's representatives in Congress. Governor Graves made a trip to Washington and in company with Alabama's senators and a number of members of the house from this State, called on President Hoover, who gave sympathetic consideration to the request for government assistance.

Long-time loans will be available, under an act already passed by Congress, for purchasing feed, seed and fertilizer by farmers in the devastated zone, it was announced. This federal loan service will relieve the Red Cross of part of its rural reconstruction burden and enable it to render greater aid in the towns. It was also announced that the federal government will participate 50-50 in reconstructing ruined roads, even tho the government did not participate to that extent in building them originally.

Other action for aid in reconstruction work is hoped for at the session of Congress which convenes April 15. Damage from floods in Alabama is estimated to have reached the huge total of around $12,000,000.

You, too, may have a clear skin

Skin troubles—pimples, boils, eczema, and sallow complexion—are usually but symptoms of a deeper, a more dangerous trouble—a lack of the normal count of red-cells in the blood.

THOUSANDS of people have weak, impure blood—to this may be attributed pimples, boils, eczema, "run-down" systems, rheumatism and even more serious ailments.

Without plenty of rich, red blood, there could be no strong, sturdy, powerful men, or beautiful, healthy women.

When you get the number of your red-blood-cells back to normal, that sluggish, let-down feeling, loss of appetite, those pains usually called rheumatism, boils, pimples and skin troubles disappear. You get hungry again and sleep soundly; firm flesh takes the place of that which was once flabby. You feel strong. Your nerves become steady. You are resistant to disease.

Throughout more than a hundred years S.S.S. has been a blessing to millions of people who have taken advantage of its wonderful medicinal properties. It is Nature's own blood tonic for improving the appetite, clearing the body of so-called skin troubles, and building strength and resistance to disease.

S.S.S.

S.S.S. is made from fresh vegetable drugs and has a successful record of over 100 years back of it.

S.S.S. increases the count of red-cells in the blood. Weak, impure blood is injurious to the system, lowering resistance to disease. Rich, red blood builds and sustains the body. S.S.S. helps Nature build rich, red blood. Good blood improves the processes by which the body is nourished, promotes constructive metabolism (healthy body building) and works against infection and disease. Take S.S.S. daily at mealtime. To get full benefit you must take it regularly and over a sufficient period of time. At all Drug Stores. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

THE WHY OF CHEVROLET COLOR BLENDINGS

Watching the new Chevrolet as it nóses gracefully through traffic or presses forward eagerly on some highway, you may have wondered how its various color blendings are conceived, and why they appear in such profusion. You might have guessed that so alert an organization as General Motors does nothing haphazardly, that there must be a special department in charge of color creation. And if such was your guess you were right.

The studio, in charge of Captain H. Ledyard Towle, has a research department without any known duplicate in the world. Chief among its functions is to keep the art staff constantly posted as to fluctuating color preferences in America and abroad, for styles in color, as in other things, are known to move in cycles.

Constant check is being made to ascertain which is the reigning color blend in the exclusive dress making salons, in the kitchen and bathrooms of America, in the art galleries of the world. A complete library of art magazines and automobile trade journals is kept on file. Sales figures from all General Motors units are studied with reference to color.

Although the artists might know with certainty that the color most popular on the Riviera last winter was green, no restraint is placed on theri originalitiy. While Captain Towle's staff attempts to give the public what it wants during a particular season, it is axiomatic that some new hue will be favored next season and General Motors artists in the opinion of Captain Towle might just as well be sponsor to the new vogue as some leading Parisian gown maker.

Original color ideas come from everywhere and everything. The blendings of a new car might derive from a Persian rug, a famous painting, the plumage of a bird, the glint of a precious stone.

When a new car is about to be marketed or a color change desired on an existing model, the artists busy themselves at their palettes, each achieving his idea of the proper color harmony. When a half dozen or more suitable combinations are finished the work is submitted to the manufacturer.

Here are a group of artists so sales minded that they have forgotten the traditional artistic ego. They listen willingly, eargerly to the reactions of the shrewd sales manager and the practical production chief. At these conferences the jury system prevails, and thus from a group of possible combinations, the salesman, the artist and the production expert finally agree upon which shall be used.

Captain Towle credits pyroxylin with the current color invasion of industry. By its use cars which formerly required days to paint can now be completed in a few hours. Now that beauty can be had without costly delay, industry in almost every line is busy coloring its products.

An Oklahoma Mother Says:

"BLACK-DRAUGHT is a fine medicine to give to children. I use it for mine whenever I need to give them a laxative. They don't mind taking it when I make it into a tea, and it quickly relieves constipation and the bad symptoms which come from it. I can recommend it to other mothers, for I have found it useful in my home.

"When I was a child my mother gave it to me whenever I complained of not feeling well. I have always taken it for upset stomach and constipation. It is about the only medicine I have to take. A few doses of Black-Draught, now and then, keep my system in order. My husband takes it, too. I hardly see how I could keep house without Black-Draught. It has become a standby with us, in keeping the children and ourselves well."—Mrs. Luther Brassfield, Claremore, Okla.

People are growing to like colored objects more and more each day, Captain Towle says, and he points to colored clocks, pencils and bathtubs as proof of his assertion. All of these signs indicate, he believes, that America is entering into an artistic renaissance comparable to the famous Italian renaissance with American industrialists acting as patrons as did the nobles of the other period.

Suppose you put an "ad" in the papers something like this:

WANTED: A quick, tireless servant in residence for 24-hour service, day and night, Sundays and holidays. To wash and iron clothes, sweep floors, run sewing machines, wash dishes, stoke the furnace, cool the house, refrigerate the food, furnish light, and run the radio. Will pay a few cents a day.

How many answers do you suppose you'd get?

And yet, there's just such a handy man waiting to serve you. "He" is a silent worker, dependable, quick and accurate, and does the job for a trifling wage.

Did you ever think of the value of good electric service in that light before?

It costs only a few cents a day to really electrify your home, for ELECTRICITY IS CHEAP NOW—under the new electric rate. You can afford to use more of it.

RED CROSS CHAPTERS STRENGTHEN FORCES FOR DISASTER RELIEF

Launch National Campaign to Perfect Preparedness Plans in Every Community.

A nation-wide campaign to strengthen plans for preparedness against disaster and for emergency relief has been launched by the American Red Cross through its Chapters. The program is intended to perfect disaster preparedness committees in the ten thousand communities reached by Red Cross Chapters and their branches.

When carried out, through committees of men and women in the communities, it will insure that should a disaster come, an organization for emergency relief, including every modern method science has perfected—such as the radio, the airplane, the motor car and watercraft—can be mobilized to bring assistance, with the promptitude applied by the Red Cross in recent major disasters, such as the West Indies hurricane and the Mississippi Valley flood.

These enlarged and strengthened plans for disaster relief are set forth in the revised Red Cross manual, "When Disaster Strikes," which has been placed in the hands of every Red Cross chairman throughout the nation. The plan to encourage adoption of these added disaster preparedness methods was begun at this time because Red Cross records—covering 48 years of disaster relief—show that the period of the greatest number of disasters, large and small, ranges from the early Spring through the early Fall.

The Record of 48 Years

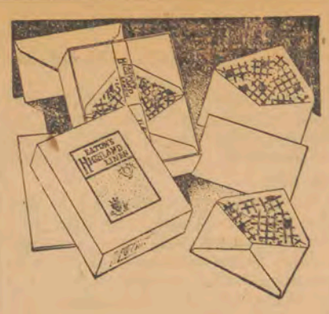
A historical summary of Red Cross disaster relief since 1882, shows that the society was active in giving relief in 938 domestic disasters and its expenditures in those relief operations were $49,594,000. The three groups of calamities appearing most frequently were: cyclones, tornadoes, hurricanes and other storms, 231; fires, 131; floods, 126.

During this period, the Red Cross also has given assistance to distressed peoples of other countries in 153 disasters. Total expenditures for relief at home and throughout the world, in 48 years, amount to $77,354,000.

In the four most recent major disasters, among the greatest which have ever visited the American continent, Red Cross expenditures for relief totalled $29,188,908. Only in the event of large disasters such as the Florida hurricane of 1926, the Mississippi Valley flood of 1927, the New England flood of the same Fall, and the West Indies hurricane of 1928, does the Red Cross seek contributions from the general public for relief work; and frequently these are not ample, as in the four disasters listed, the Red Cross donated $1,338,201 from its own treasury to aid in the work. In the event of smaller disasters, the cost of the relief is met largely from Red Cross resources.

No Community Immune

No community is immune to great disasters of one type or another, the manual shows. One preparedness measure that can be adopted is a survey of the surrounding country, with the assistance of engineers and other experts to determine the type of disaster to which the section is subject. Hazards resulting from the presence of rivers and lakes, subject to overflow, of mines, munition factories, and other industries wherein dangers from explosion and fires may exist, are singled out for consideration.



Extension of existing disaster organizations in communities, and organization of men and women, trained in public health and community service, will result in the saving of lives and the prevention of extensive suffering, through privation, epidemic and other misfortune, should emergency arise through disaster. These organization plans, outlined in the manual, are similar to those now existing in most Red Cross Chapters, only strengthened in some particulars. They contemplate disaster preparedness and relief committees, under which function sub-committees on food, clothing, shelter, medical aid, registration of disaster sufferers and information service, transportation and communication and finance.

Co-ordination of all of the societies, organized groups and institutions in the locality is urged, so that all effort for emergency relief will be directed without conflict. Trained in advance, these committees can swing into action, and provide an orderly and systematic relief organization.

The following are expenditures made by the American National Red Cross for relief in the four most recent major disasters:

Florida hurricane, 1926	$4,477,170.07
Mississippi Valley flood, 1927	17,498,902.16
New England flood, 1927	1,299,773.93
West Indies hurricane, 1928	5,913,062.47
	$29,188,908.63

Are you Fertilizing For High Yields This Year?

Thorough preparation of land, good seed, plenty of the right kind of fertilizer properly used and clean cultivation, usually results in high yields at low cost.

County Farm Agent's Notes

MARION COUNTY FARM BUREAU GREAT AID TO FARMERS

Hamilton, Ala., April 10.—W. R. Turnipseed, County Demonstration Agent for Marion County, in discussing the activities of the Marion County Farm Bureau, a branch of the Alabama Farm Bureau, states that buying and selling cooperatively by the farmers in this County shows a great increase.

During the first three months of 1929 the Marion County Farm Bureau has purchased 1,185 tons Acid Phosphate at a cost of $21,211.50, 850 tons Nitrate of Soda at a cost of $44,750.00, 130 tons Muriate of Potash at a cost of $5,850.00, 85 tons mixed fertilizers at a cost of $2,395.00, 53 tons Basic Slag (obtainable only through the Farm Bureau) at a cost of $530.00, 200 tons Lime at a cost of $800.00, 275 bushels Soy Beans at a cost of $1,650.00, 6,300 pounds poultry and dairy feed at a cost of $165.00, 20,000 Kudzu crowns at a cost of $300.00, 20 tons Cotton Seed for planting purposes at a cost of $2,340.00, 25 bushels of Lespedeza Seed at a cost of $125.00, 2 windmills at a cost of $500.00, and 20 bushels Velvet Beans at a cost of $40.00, making a total of $80,656.00 worth of fertilizers, seeds, etc.

It iis estimated that these purchases represent a saving of approximately $10,000.00 siince all suplies are delivered to the farmers at wholesale prices. This service is furnished free to all farmers in Marion county.

In addition to purchases by the bureau, Mr. Turnipseed also furnished some very interesting information about farm products through the bureau. In 1928 approximately 1,100 bales of cotton were sold through the pool operated by the Alabama Farm Bureau Cotton Association. In addition to this, the Bureau has already this year run five poultry cars through Marion County, these cars buying 44,869 pounds of poultry at the sum of $10,249.68 from local farmers.

J. L. Vandiver, of Hackleburg, received checks for poultry on one day totalling $752.00, this amount being paid him for broilers and culls from his flocks. In addition, and as a result of the introduction of dairying in the County, one car of dairy cows has been shipped from the County this year, the 23 cows bringing approximately $1,725.00.

POULTRYMEN STORING EGGS FOR BETTER PRICES

Montgomery, April 9.—Marion, Fayette, Chilton, and Montgomery Counties this year had the honor of entering the first twelve cases of eggs in the project, "The Cold Storage of Eggs," which is being conducted through the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation, the Alabama Extension Service, and the Birmingham Ice and Cold Storage Company, Birmingham.

Poultrymen who are storing their eggs are being advanced 20c per dozen when the eggs are pooled. Reports coming from all sections of the State indicate that a large number of growers are taking advantage of the project. Inquiries are reaching the County Agents every day and eggs are being pooled the same way.

Advance checks for the eggs will be mailed to the County Farm Bureaus every two weeks by the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation which assumes all responsibility for sale of the eggs.

Last year was the first year of the project. It was in the form of an experiment at that time, but poultrymen found that Alabama eggs will go through cold storage in excellent condition. Fifteen poultryment representing five counties placed 5,100 dozen eggs in storage and realized an average of 6c per dozen or $1.80 per case more than they would have secured had the eggs been sold in the spring at the prevailing market price which ranged from 18c to 20c. The eggs came out of storage at 30c per dozen after deducting cold storage cost.

Farmers are cautioned not to ship eggs until they take it up with their County Agents and receive permit cards. Those interested in the project should avail themselves with full details, which may be obtained from the County Agent.

Edward A. O'Neal, president of the Alabama Farm Bureau, said that the project is to enable poultrymen of the State to store their eggs and protect themselves against the low spring prices of eggs.

NITROGEN BOOSTS YIELDS OF COTTON

Auburn, Apr. 9.—For big yields of cotton in Alabama nitrogen is an essential. This is shown by a study of experiments conducted by the Experiment Station of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, and also by results of farmers throughout the State.

Results of Alabama experiments show also that most of the fertilizers on the market are deficient in nitrogen. The home mixture recommended by the Alabama station analyzes approximately 10-6-4. The figure 6 represents nitrogen, and it is larger than the corresponding figure for most mixed fertilizers.

Farmers who do not home mix their fertilizers as recommended by the county agents are advised by Dean M. J. Funchess, of the college of agriculture, Auburn, to apply a top dressing of nitrate of soda unless the nitrogen in their fertilizer was all that is needed.

Prof. Funchess said also that top dressing of soda should be applied immediately after cotton is chopped. On the home-mixing plan as recommended by the experiment station, one-fourth of the nitrogen is applied at the time of planting and three-fourths immediately after chopping.

Nitrogen is also an important factor in making corn in Alabama. It is the most important corn fertilizer. A top dressing of 100 to 200 pounds per acre applied when the corn is about knee high will pay well, except where corn follows a crop of winter legumes, when no application of nitrogen is recommended for either cotton or corn.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The United States paid to Spain $5,000,000 for Florida; to France $15,000,000 for the Louisiiana purchase; and to Russia $7,200,000 for Alaska.

In 1922, according to the latest census statistics, the per capita wealth of the United States was $2,919. The world Economic Chart, 1927, gives the other countries as follows: Canada, $2,662.40; Australiia, $2,599; New Zealand, $3,371.70; Great Britain, $2,690.10.

Income tax payments in March amounted to $595,000,000 or about $80,000,000 more than in March, 1928. Practically all of this gain was represented by taxes paid on purchase incomes as profits in the unprecedented speculative movement of the stock market last year.

In 1927 the United States imported three and one-third billion pounds of fruit. More than 90 per cent of it was bananas. During the same year we exported only two billion pounds of fruit. The bananas came from Central America; and for each $10 spent with Central America for fruit our export trade amounted to $1.00.

Cutworms which destroy gardens and other plants may be killed by applying poisoned wheat bran at the rate of 15 to 20 pounds per acre. It is made by using 50 pounds of the bran to one pound of Paris Green and adding enough water to thoroughly moisten the mixture. Lead arsenate and calcium arsenate do not give good results and should not be used. The bran and poison are first mixed thoroughly while dry in a tub or other vessel and then gradually moistened with water until all the bran is damp.

The transplanting of lettuce retards the growth. It is not necessary to cause it to head.

Nitrate of soda applied as a top dressing to garden vegetables increases growth.

From 6 to 8 goats can be kept on the amount of feed usually given one dairy cow.

The best way to increase cotton yields in Alabama is to apply about 200 pounds of nitrate of soda as a top dressing immediately after cotton is chopped.

HEZEKIAH LEADS HIS PEOPLE BACK TO GOD

LESSON TEXT—II Chronicles 30:1-27.

GOLDEN TEXT—The Lord your God is gracious and merciful.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Helping Others to Know God.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Helping Others to Know God.

I. Hezekiah Proclaims a Passover (vv. 1-12).

The way for a sinning and divided people to get back to God and be united is around the crucified Lord. The Passover was a memorial of the nation's deliverance through the shedding of the blood of the sacrificial lamb.

1. The invitation was representative of the nation (v. 2). The king took counsel with the princes and the congregation to show that the proclamation was the expression of the nation's desire.

2. The time was unusual (vv. 2-4). There was not sufficient time to sanctify the people, nor to gather them together at the regular time, so they resolved instead of postponing it for a year to hold it on the fourteenth day of the second month. This liberty had been granted before in an exigency (Num. 9:6-13).

3. The scope of the invitation (vv. 5-9).

It included all of both nations who would come to keep the Passover to the Lord God of Israel. "Israel" is now used to include both kingdoms. The effort was intended to win back the nation which had seceded. The messengers were authorized to supplement the proclamation with urgent exhortation to restore a united nation. This urgent invitation was tactfully put as follows:

(1) It touched ancestral memories—"Turn again unto the Lord God of Abraham, Isaac and Israel" (v. 6).

(2) Recalled bitter experience—"Be not like your fathers and brethren, who trespassed against the Lord God, and were given up to desolation, as ye see" (v 7).

(3) Aroused yearning for captive kinsfolk—"Your brethren and children shall find compassion before their captors" (v 9).

(4) Stirred instinct of self-preservation—"So that they shall come again unto this land" (v. 9).

(5) Pledged forgiveness (v. 9).

4. Israel's reception of the invitation (vv. 10-12).

(1) Some mocked. The urgent and sincere invitation only excited opposition and ridicule. (2) Some with humble hearts came to Jerusalem.

In Judah, God gave them one heart to accept the summons to unite in the Lord around the great Passover.

II. The Passover Kept (vv. 13-27).

1. Altars removed (vv. 13, 14).

In the time of Ahaz (28:24) these heathen altars were erected in Jerusalem. Before there could be worship of the true God all traces of idolatry must be removed. This voluntary act of the people showed a right spirit.

2. The Passover killed (v. 15). The zeal of the people was shown in their going forward with the service, though the priests were not ready for their task.

3. The priests and Levites ashamed (vv. 15-20).

The zeal of the people put to shame the priests and Levites, stimulating them to perform their duties according to the law as given by Moses. The Levites then took charge of the killing of the Passover. Though many of the people were ceremonially unprepared to take part in the most sacred service, they were accepted as worshipers through the intercession of Hezekiah. God accepted the purpose of heart rather than the letter of the law.

4. The praise of glad hearts (vv. 21, 22).

They continued seven days with gladness: (1) The Levites and priests sang God's praise daily with loud instruments (v. 21); (2) Hezekiah spoke comforting words to the Levites (v. 22). He commended them and their teaching of the knowledge of God. (3) They made confession of their sins to God (v. 22).

5. The Passover prolonged seven days (vv. 23-27).

The king's object in prolonging the feast was to make as lasting an impression as possible, so as to result in the thorough conversion of their souls to God.

EARLY FURLOUGH FOR FORESTRY AGENTS

Montgomery, Ala., April 8.—Practically all of the local agents of the State Commission of Forestry have been placed on furlough for the summer. On account of the early warm weather and the frequent rains the grass and other green growth are two weeks in advance in most sections of the state, greatly decreasing the fire hazard.

The annual lenght of service of the forestry agents is not fixed, but varies according to local conditiions. In some instances, they may be required to remain in active service later or return to duty earlier than in others. As a rule, however, the local forestry representatives are not kept on duty during the summer months. Their period of active duty is from about September 15 to about the middle of December, and again from about February 1 until most of the rural schools have closed, the season for forest planting has ended, and there is sufficient green growth to prevent the spread of fires.

The latest reports indicate that Alabama farmers will use less fertilizer this year than they used last; and, if they do so, they will reduce the amount of cotton which they make.

For every day you allow a broody hen to sit on the nest, the date of laying her next egg is delayed several days. Confine broody hens when you first find them clucking. It will pay you in increased summer eggs.

J. T. Williamson, of the experiment station, Auburn, is the author of a bulletin entitled "Fertilizer Experiments with Cotton." A copy will be mailed upon request sent to the Experiment Station, Auburn, Ala.

HOW TO MAKE MORE CORN IS EXPLAINED

Auburn, Ala., April 8.—By planting seed of good varieties, by fertilizing properly, and by applying modern cultural methods Alabama farmers can make a substantial increase in their yields of corn. This is the gist of a statement by J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist, Auburn.

The best way to make big yields of corn, Mr. Lowery explained, is to plant winter legumes in the fall and turn them under in the spring at least ten days before corn is planted. Where this was done no fertilizer is recommended, provided the legumes were fertilized with phosphate at the time of planting in the fall.

Where corn does not follow winter legumes and is planted on bottom lands—or other lands not previously well fertilized—the experiment station at Auburn recommends 200 pounds superphosphate at time of planting and 200 pounds of nitrate of soda per acre when the corn is knee high, or when it is 40 days old. Where land was well fertilized recently use only nitrate of soda because the phosphate in the soil should be sufficient.

Land for corn should be plowed and harrowed thoroughly before planting. The first—and perhaps the most important cultivation—is one immediately after corn comes up, using a section harrow and going across or diagonally across the rows. Other cultivations should be very shallow, using weeders, harrows, and sweeps. Cultivate often enough to keep weeds and grass under control.

Different sections of Alabama require different varieties of corn. County agents should be consulted as to which to plant.

TIMELY FARM FACTS

With warm weather chicken insects become very active. They can be killed very easily.

Nitrate of soda applied as a top dressing to cotton immediately after it is chopped is a very profitable way to fertilize, according to numerous experiments conducted over several years by the Alabama Experiment Station at Auburn.

The best medicine in the world is a combination of milk and butter, vegetables and fruits.—C. A. Cobb, editor, Southern Ruralist.

The legislature of Arkansas has repealed an old law prohibiting trading in cotton and other crops for future delivery.

Old Panama

Editor Union-Banner:

From scattered bits of information received here and there in actual contatct with the natives of Panama the following authentic historical news story relative to the ancient city of "Old Panama," its founding in the year 1519, and its total destruction 152 years later, is submitted to you with pleasure.—Walter L. Peterson.

"OLD PANAMA"

(By Walter L. Peterson)

"Very noble and very loyal" was the title given to the city of "Old Panama" by the King of Spain in 1521, and the words of praise still remain true even though nearly four centuries have passed. The years have mellowed the ruins of this ancient town and made them more restful to the eye than modern cities.

In the heyday of Spanish rule on the Isthmus, old Panama contained hundreds of splendid mansions and thousands of other dwellings, and the population is said to have numbered from 30,000 to 50,000. The city was surrounded by thick walls as a protection against buccaneers and hostile natives; the people grew rich on the fruits of barter and plunder, and the rulers of Spain gloried in the extent of their possession and the wealth of their subjects.

Now all that remains of old Panama is the vine-caressed ruins of the cathedral tower, and scattered bits of crumbling walls, and the scarred stone arches of two bridges, and a few odds and ends of masonry.

The story of the capture and looting of old Panama by Morgan and his men reads like a typical tale of the days when pirate ships sailed the Spanish Main, and men were made to walk the plank, while the freebooters drank their lot of rum and cheered the black flag, counted their "pieces of eight," and roared their maudlin songs:

"Sixteen men on a dead man's chest,
Drink and the devil had done for the rest,

The vanguard of Morgan's buccaneers under Capt. Bradley landed near the Chagres River in 1670 and attacked Fort San Lorenzo, an outlying position of defense for old Panama. A garrison of Spanish troops and numbers of heavy cannonades were stationed in a ditch outside the fort, and they repulsed the English for a moment, and many of the attacking force were killed or wounded.

One of the pirates received an arrow thru his body, but instead of giving up the fight he plucked the arrow out, tied some burning cotton around it, placed it in his musket, and fired it into the fort, starting a fire which resulted in the explosion of the powder magazine. The palisades were burned and the slaughter continued until, at the storming of the fort in the morning, only a handful of the gallant Spanish defenders remained alive.

Morgan arrived with his fleet and started up the Chagres River with 1,400 men. Scores died of starvation or were shot by the Indians, but the remainder pluckily struggled on until they reached the "Hill of the Buccaneers" and viewed old Panama in the distance. Meanwhile, the alarm bells had rung in the city, swords were being sharpened, powder gathered and bullets molded, as the inhabitants mobilized to defend themselves against the raiding pirates.

Sunrise on the morning of January 28, 1671, 258 years ago, saw the beginning of the battle between the English and Spanish. The attacking force advanced on the open plain before the city and were charged by the Spanish cavalry, but before the horsemen could reach the buccaneers they were fired upon and fully half of them tumbled from their saddles. The dead and dying were thrown in heaps with the wounded horses whose screams rose even above the din of battle, and whose steel shod hoofs lashed out and exacted their toll of death from the ranks of the men who had ridden them into the fight. The ground was splashed with "red of a deeper hue" than that in the eastern sky where the morning sun was painting the horizon with many shades of color, and the yells of the combatants and the death rattle in throats of the dying made a wierd contrast of sound with the sea breezes that whistled around the ramparts of old Panama.

The desperate Spaniards attempted to drive a herd of 2,000 wild bulls over the buccaneers, who cut some of them down and stampeded the others, and many Spaniards lost their lives under the hoofs of the bellowing long-horned cattle, and others escaped only to fall under hails of leaden bullets from muskets of the buccaneers.

The Spanish horsemen were joined by foot soldiers and they, too, fought until 600 of them were killed and the remainder broke ranks and ran panting into the city, where they spread panic among the defenders.

Don Juan Perez de Guzman, the Spanish governor, after trying vainly to rally his men, blew up the remaining powder magazines and red flames began to lick at the walls and roofs of wooden houses, and—"Old Panama was dying".

Morgan's men soon stormed the batteries standing near the bridges, and entering the city, endeavored to check the flames, but the sea breeze of the morning had continued and was now sweeping the fire through the streets. A few hours later only blackened stones and timber and glowing coals marked the site of old Panama.

All through the night the buccaneers roamed the streets in search of loot, occasionally abandoning the hunt to run down and kill stray natives, who stared at them with frightened eyes from shadowy retreats in buildings or near the shattered walls.

The buccaneers succeeded in their hunt for gold, and being laden with the heavy metal, were unable or unwilling to continue in the pursuit of the few Spanish soldiers who had escaped from the city and were seeking refuge in the jungle.

Morgan remained in the ruins of old Panama for a month, devoting his time and the time of his men to searching for gold which he suspected might have been hidden before the city fell. Although much treasure was produced, the buccaneer admiral was not satisfied with the results of the hunt, and tortured the prisoners in an effort to make them divulge the location of the stores of gold and other treasure.

After the city and vicinity had been stripped of everything of value Morgan marched his men back to Fort San Lorenzo, boarded his ship with all the gold, and sailed away, leaving his men without a leader.

The buccaneer admiral sailed back to the West Indies, where he purchased a pardon from King Charles II, became lieutenant governor of Jamaica, and caught and hanged many of his former comrades.

Today as you take in the interesting sights of old Panama you can readily realize how terrible was the purpose of the pirate hyperkinetic, Henery Morgan, buccaneer par excellence. As stated in a former article, Henery Morgan never found the Golden Altar. This was, perhaps, his motive for lingering in the city for a month after his victory. The altar, it will be remmebered, was carried to sea by the Catholic fathers and was not returned to the city until a later date. In the meantime the altar of gold was given a coat of plaster and returned to the present city of Panama. Not until centurise later, when Panama's protection was assured by the United States, was the plaster removed, and today, in one of Panama's leading churches can be seen the much treasured Altar of Gold. Its measurements are approximately 20 feet high, and 12 feed wide, and very beautifully carved and decorated. It would make anyone fabulously rich by its gold alone.

BRO. BRYAN'S BIBLE STORY

(Written for The Union-Banner by REV. J. A. BRYAN, Pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, Birmingham, Alabama)

THE RESURRECTION AND APPEARANCES OF CHRIST

Many people have looked into that empty tomb known by scholars as the Garden tomb, the property of Joseph of Arimathea. It was carved out of rocks and in it Joseph himself expected to be buried. In the annual surise prayer-meeting which we attended in this church today I could but think of that first Easter morning when Mary crept to the empty tomb wherein the body of God's only Son, the Son of Man had been laid, and today two thousand years later all Christendom is singing again the glad tidings which brought hope and pledged immortality to the world. "He is risen," no other three words could bring greater hope. No other three words could mean to us what they do. They are our hope of immortality, our hope of life beyond the grave.

Think about this resurrection of Christ. tI is the most powerful fact in all history of the world. The reason there is so much unrest and turmoilmoil in Mexico today is because the power of Christ's resurrection and sufferings has not been introduced into that nation. Nations are in death's grapple, yet in it all I see them reaching out their hands to us for an exalted, a risen Saviour of the world.

To me it is a startling fact that He is the only person who made His first appearance to a woman. Mary is at the empty tomb. Hear that pitiful, heart-grieved cry as she kneels at the tomb wherein her Lord and Master had lain. "They have taken away my Lord and I know not where they have laid Him." Mary, as St. John tells us, not yet knowing that He must rise again, stands weeping without the timb. No doubt she stoops and kneels again to gaze into the empty tomb. She turned to walk away from the empty tomb and Jesus was standing near her, yet she did not recognize Him. She at first though He was the gardner. But when Jesus spoke to her calling her name, "Mary," she knew His voice. She immediately turned to Him saying, "Raboni" which is to say, "My Lord and Master."

To me Jesus Christ is my Lord and Master and King. I am sure that Christ appeared to us this morning in our prayer-meeting. I am sure that He often appears to His followers. I want Him to appear to us as He has never appeared before. I feel the need of it. I feel the need of that power Paul wrote about to the Philippian Christians and to us. O, that I might know Him in the power of His resurrection and His sufferings. We need to know Him that we may introduce the Risen Christ to all nations.

As I look at these beautiful flowers, and as I listened to that precious reading this morning and the sweet songs, I could but pray that I might know Him in the power of His resurrection and suffering. The church has a great fight against the world and to gain the victory we must know Him in His power as we have never known Him before. The church must fight against the damnable liquor business, the damnable tide of divorce, prosperity, which should be a blessing, must be fought against because it is proving a curse, because of its damnable influence on the church causing the church to lose its power in the salvation of souls. I am willing to go before the judgment bar of God on that very issue.

Jesus said to the women, "Go quickly and tell my disciples that I go before them into Galilee." The next person He appeared to is so important that it is recorded in Matthew and the 1st letter to the Corinthians. He appeared to Peter who had denied Him. Now if we are here denying Christ which I fear we have many times, I want Christ to appear to us. Peter as He stood before Him whom he had denied, no doubt was penitent and said to Christ, "I have treated you like a dog. I lied on you. I am sorry and because I have done wrong is no reason atall that I cannot and will not treat you right in the future."

If we have let a little prosperity keep us away from God there is no reason that we should go on treating Christ so mean. Peter said, "Lord forgive me." Jesus said, "I will forgive you. Christ appeared to the two on the way to Emmaus, a small village about seven miles from Jerusalem. They did not know His as He expounded the Scriptures unto them. I believe He appears to us many times and we do not know Him.

They said of His walk with them, "Did not our hearts burn within us as He talked with us of the Scriptures." When they came to their home they said to Him, "The day is far spent, abide with us. We would be pleased to have you abide with us." O Jesus abide with us! O, abide with me!

"Abide with me, fast falls the evening tide;
The darkness lingers, Lord, abide with me."

The next appearance is in the Upper Room called by the Greeks the Cornacular. That is a wonderful place. There Christ said to them, "The Spirit hath not flesh and bone as ye see me have." Thomas was there this time and called Christ Lord and Master. During that week He also appeared to James and we do not know what took place during that appearance. Anyhow, when Christ appears to anybody there is something doing. O, that you and I would just pray and work over this thing.

Christ's resurrection is the best witnessed fact in the history of the world. It has been duly admitted that the testimony of these men and women would have been received in any court on the face of the earth. On the evening of the first day of the week some of the disciples were in hte upper room in a prayer meeting, looking and hoping for Christ. Very soon He appeared to them, the same Christ which they had been with. The Christ I am telling you about, the Christ which is the judge of the quick and the dead. He is the Christ of the resurrection which every man has to deal with.

It is a wonderful thing that Christ appeared in those old haunts. That is a wonderful thing to me. We would refer to such a thing as back to the old camping ground. There in the Upper Room Christ had instituted theLord's Supper, speaking the words, "Let not your hearts be troubled, Ye believe in God, believe also in me."

Thomas said upon hearing of the risen Christ, "Unless I put my hands in His hands, and see the spear-pierced side, I cannot believe it." But at the second appearance of Christ in the Upper Room Thomas saw Christ and knew Him. In the 21st chapter of John we read that after some of the disciples had fished all night and caught nothing, Jesus stood on the shore. He asked them if they had any meat, and when they told him they did not, He bade them cast their nets on the right side of the ship. This they did and were not able to draw it for the multitude of fishes. When they came to shore they saw there a fire of coals and fish laid thereon and bread. Jesus had prepared their breakfast and provided bread. O, my friends, did you ever think about what a wonderful blessing bread and water is. We come to church better when we have bread and water.

Again we have record of Christ's appearance. He went out on Mount Tabor, one of the most beautiful mountains of Palestine. There He spoke to over five hundred brethren. He said, "Ge ye therefore into all the world and teach All things whatsoever I have commanded you, and lo, I am with you Always, even unto the end of the ages." Remember this, Jesus does not promise to be with the church that does not preach the Gospel to all nations.

After this Jesus went back to Jerusalem. From here He led His disciples out as far as Bethany. There He lifted up His nail-scarred hands and blessed them. Presently a cloud received Him out of their sight. They watched His as He returned to His heavenly home. Two men came down from heaven and said to them, "Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye here gazing up into heaven? This same Jesus which ye see going into heaven shall so come in like manner as ye have seen Him go." I think He looks at us today and says, "Why stand ye here idle? Go tell people about the risen Jesus." Later on He appeared to Paul in the temple and to John on the isle of Patmos. John writes of it this way, "I was in the spirit on the Lord's day." O, that we may all be in the spirit on the Lord's day and recognize Christ's appearances.

CHESTNUT CREEK SINGING

The singing was attended by a very large crowd last Sunday afternoon. Song service was opened by the chairman, Prof. L. T. Grant, followed by prayer by Bro. W. A. Calloway, after which they society went in to the selection of officers for the next year.

Prof. L. T. Grant was re-elected chairman; I. D. Huett, Secretary, after which the following directors sang two to three songs each: T. L. Robinson, R. T. Grant, W. F. Gilliland, Archie Devaughn, Jesse Jones, and I. D. Huett. Pianists were Miss Birdie Grant, Mrs. Lena May Hancock, and Mr. Lee Grant.

We have changed our singing from the first Sunday afternoon to the third. So let's be sure to remember to come back next third Sunday afternoon, April 21st. CHEVROLET PRODUCED 147,274 UNITS DURING MARCH

Detroit, April 10.—All monthly production records in the history of the Chevrolet Motor Company were broken in March, when the company produced 147,274 cars and trucks. A factory statement explained that this figure was considerably in excess of preliminary production schedules and was made necessary to more fully accomodate an increasing demand for the new car — Chevrolet Six.

This March record compares with 133,657 units for March of last year and with 121,249 for February of this year. It exceeded by nearly 7,000 units the best previous month in the history of the company, which was May, 1928, when output totaled 140,775 units.

The March performance enabled the company to exceed all records for the first quarter of the year, with a total of 354,701 units as compared with 342,184 for the first three months of 1928.

In preparation for what promises to be the biggest spring business on record, the manufacturing diivision is operating on the heaviest schedule ever undertaken by the company. The company's 16 giant factories are speeding toward capacity operation with all the haste consistent with precision manufacturing, it was announced. Officials predict that the record activity planned for April will result in another monthly record and for the second consecutive month establish a new mark.

The 16 plants engaged in this tremendous manufacturing program, which contemplates the production of 1,350,000 cars this year are located in the fallowing cities: Flint, Mich.; Bay City, Mich.; Saginaw, Mich.; Detroit, Mich.; Toledo, Ohio; Bloomfield, N. J.; St. Louis, Mo.; Tarrytown, N. Y.; Buffalo, N. Y.; Cincinnati, O.; Janesville, Wis.; Atlanta, Ga.; Kansas City, Mo.; and Oakland, Calif.

Jean Wyatt and Vernie Teel went to Rockford Monday. The former attended the Coosa County Circuit Court and the latter visited his mother, out a few miles from Rockford.

Who says that the world isn't getting better? We haven't heard of the bobbed hair bandit for several months now.

FRIENDSHIP

The fifth Sunday old folks meeting was the best old time meeting I have been to in many years. I think the people all got a blessing long to be remembered. The old people shed many tears of joy, and the good songs, talks and prayers made our hearts rejoice. The last song was sung by Bro. Riley Robinson, which gave us cheer in our hearts. After Bro. Robinson made a short "be good" talk he sang that good old hymn, "Oh, Where Shall My Rest Be Found?" Rev. Parrish closed with prayer.

We are very sorry to report that Mr. and Mrs. James Gillespie could not attend the meeting on account of a very sick child, which is still very ill, but we are praying for its recovery, and all are doing all they can, with Dr. Gragg as attending physician. May the Lord bless them, and may His name be glorified in Friendship community.—H. F. McCary.

A good business man will not buy a farm or any property without first looking it over to see what it is worth.
However, some will buy or loan money on land without an abstract.
Isn't it equally as foolish to buy a farm without looking it over as to buy it and not know whether the titles are good or not? Without an abstract you do not know where you are getting the land you look at or not.
Before investing in land in any way have an abstract made and be safe.

BURGLARY AT THORSBY

Some time last Friday night the postoffice and the store of G. F. Harper were visited by a band of cracksmen who pursued the same tactics at each place; first the glass in one panel of the front door was smashed in no gentle manner, this permitted turning the night latch and admittance to the building. At the postoffice an inner door was opened in the same manner. Their next object of attention was the safe in each place. Marks on the dial of both the outer and inner doors indicate the use of a sledge hammer to knock them off. A punch was then inserted in the hole until it came in contact with a broken stem of the dial and then driven in until the lock bolts were bent out of the holes they fit into. The same plan opened the inner safe door and the contents of the safes were revealed. At Harper's which was evidently the first job, the safe yielded so little, only 25 or 30 dollars, that other loot was taken. pocket knives, fountain pens, underwear and gloves, which by the way are likely to be used as evidence against them.

At the postoffice Mr. Bice informs us, they took about $200 in government money and $30, a good overcoat and some other personal effects belonging to himself.

We learned later from Sheriff Collins, who visited Thorsby, that probably the same gang were interrupted in an effort to break into the postoffice at Verbena, were chased to Clanton, taken from a north bound bus there, and are now in jail.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Raybon moved last week into the house on Mr. C. A. Peterson's farm, where Mrs. Raybon was born. They spent the week end in Birmingham accompanied by Mrs. C. A. Peterson. Mrs. Raybon will spend a few days among her friends in Birmingham.

Mrs. Carl R. Peterson and daughters and Mr. and Mrs. Southard of Fairfield, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Reagan.

The first carload of strawberries will be shipped from this year's crop at Thorsby this week, probably Wednesday. There is every indication that with sufficient rains, the crop this year will be large and of good quality.

Mr. and Mrs. V. M. Clark visited Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Walker last Sunday.

Rev. J. E. Each expects to leave Thursday morning to attend the state conference of Christian Endeavor Societies from Presbyterian, Christian, Congregational and Methodist Protestant churches of Aalbama. Misses Mary Ella Gerald and Alta Each will go Thursday night as delegates from Thorsby Christian Endeavor Society. The conference is expected to last through Sunday.

Mr. James Bosworth of Mitchell Dam spent Sunday with his family in Thorsby.

Mrs. Eva Brown and her son, Mr. Jamis Brown and his daughter, all of Birmingham were guests of Mrs. M. J. Primm last week. Hugh Primm and wife of Siluria also spent some time with Mr. Primm's parents in Thorsby.

Hollis Pate and wife have gone to live at Wetumpka where he is employed.

Mr. and Mrs. John Harrison Collins, from near Mobile spent the week end in Thorsby.

Mrs. Carrol took her music and art students for a picnic at Steel Bridge Saturday. They were accompanied by Mr. Carrol.

William Each and Clinton Arthur will motor to Dothan to attend the Christian Endeavor Conference.

Mrs. C. M. Williams and daughters Martha and Charlence and a Mrs. Hallman and little daughter, all of Camp Hugh, were in Thorsby Tuesday. The Williams family expect to return to their Thorsby home May 20th.

Miss Dorothy Butler of Alabama College spent a few hours in Thorsby Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Lewis Self of Birmingham who has been spending a week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Petersen, returned to her home in Birmingham Sunday. Mrs. Foss accompanied her home for a few days' visit.

Mrs. A. D. Leckie returned home Sunday from a weeks visit in Montgomery and Greenville.

Mrs. H. M. Gerald and daughter, Mary Ella, spent the week end in Birmingham.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Wright and son and Mrs. Poole of Birmingham, were guests of Mrs. D. L. Ward, a sister of Mr. Wright, for a few days last week. They returned Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Mansey, who is occupying the H. V. Thompson cottage this winter spent several days in Birmingham as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Thompson.

Mr. Alfred Anderson, son of Mrs. A. Danielson, left last Friday to motor to his home in Wisconsin. He has spent several months here with his mother.

Two young Englishmen, Norman Bothwell and George Patterson, stopped off here overnight for a visit with Mr. A. Danielson. These young men are from Australia and are touring the United States and Canada in a Ford car.

The many friends of Mrs. R. W. Scott will be glad to learn that she is able to be out part of the time now, after having been confined inside her home for the past ten months on account of bad health.

Thorsby Institute News

The Queen Esther Sunday School Class gave its annual program last Saturday night. A play "The Visit of Obadiah" was given. John Adams of Jemison loaned his parrot for the play. Addie Surles gave a reading, "The Bath Hour" by Noble May. The proceeds of the entertainment are to go to help support an Armenian orphan who is now in Syria, and to help the Red Cross.

Next Thursday term examinations of Thorsby Institute begin.

Thorsby Institute is hoping to finish the inside of the auditorium before very long. The money has been given to do this. And a new curtain is to be bought for the stage. The Ladies Guild of Thorsby voted $100 towards it, and with what is on hand from gifts of last year there is enough to purchase a nice curtain.

Mrs. Cecil Roberson and little son, Henry Dunn, spent Saturday and Sunday with their aunt, Mrs. Kicker.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Smith of Lakeland, Fla., spent the week end with Mrs. Smith's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Popwell.

City Will Install A Water Filter Plant

Contract Closed Tuesday Night Work Will Begin Right Away

The City Council of Clanton entered into a contract Tuesday night, whereby a filtering plant will be installed in connection with the city water system, at a cost of about $8,000. The outfit selected is manufactured by Wm. B. Scaiffe & Sons Company of Oakmont, Pa., and will be installed and put to work within the next three to five months.

Financing arrangements were made by the city officials with the General Securities Corporation of Birmingham, whereby the loan of money necessary for payment of the cost of the plant will be furnished by the General Securities Corporation, and paid up by the city in monthly installments covering a period of about 32 months.

It is contemplated by the city officials that revenue for repaying the loan will be provided by a slight raise in the city water rates. It is the general opinion that this will be satisfactory with users of the city water in order to make sure that they will be provided with pure, clean, and wholesome water. Since the plans of the council to this effect were made known two weeks ago, there has been no expression in opposition to the plan, so far as we have been able to learn.

The biggest question with our people seems to have been, how long will we have to wait to get better water? We are glad to be able to say to them that it won't be long now. The city council stood unanimous to a man in favor of the action that was taken Tuesday night, and we think this action will win them the commendation of every citizen of Clanton.

Dennis Farm Is An Interesting Place Now

A visit to the large farm of Mr. Jasper Dennis south of Clanton Tuesday morning proved of much interest to the editor of The Union-Banner. Things were happening in a hurry everywhere we looked. There is evidence of systematic business arrangement about every phase of Mr. Dennis's farm operations, which fact accounts for his remarkable success as a farmer.

The object of our visit was to see the process of turning under a heavy growth of Austrian peas on a certain part of the farm. This was being accomplished by first running a disc plow over the ground with a tractor. The disc was being followed by a large two-horse turning plow.

Mr. Dennis has used vetch extensively in past years. This is the first time he has used Austrian peas. He intends to keep a close check on the results of his experiment to determine which of these legumes is better suited to his purposes.

She is survived by her husband, A. J. Powell. There are seven sons—Ollie, Sam, Joe. Cleve, Leiland, Tom and Amherst. There is one daughter living—Mrs. Newt Wyatt. Another daughter, Mrs. Mitchell Bates, died four or five years ago in Clanton.

CLANTON QUARTET WILL SING AT CHESTNUT CREEK SUNDAY

Mr. Tom Rockett requests us to announce that the Clanton Quartet is scheduled to sing at Chestnut Creek Church next Sunday afternoon, and that everybody is extended a most cordial invitation to come and bring your friends and song books. "We are going to have the best singing you have ever attended," said Mr. Rockett, "and lovers of fine music will miss the time of your life if you don't come."

Clanton Quartet Presents Several Special Numbers

The afternoon singing at Liberty Hill last Sunday was the best that has been held in this section this season.

For some reason singing has been a little backward this whole year all over the county, but if the singing at Liberty Hill may be taken as a sort of barometer, it is going to pick up and get back to normal again.

There was a house full of people, and fully a hundred were in the choir and actually singing. Everyone seemed to be fired up with the spirit and zeal to sing and they everlastingly let it roll.

Probably the greatest inspiration toward making the occasion the success that it was, was the splendid numbers so ably put on by the Clanton Quartet. It seems that a good quartette or so spliced in between the directors puts new life into everybody and causes them to use all the energy and talent they possess to make the lyrics ring out. You know, singing just begins to sound good when one can hear the echoes reverberating from up in the attic and can almost hear the shingles rattle on the roof. This makes the spirit find its way clear through the very souls of everybody, and then the singing has reached its climax. Just such as this was the singing at Liberty Hill.

It is to be hoped that every community in the county will wake up with their gospel singing and make it be like it used to be when good old Profs. Showalter, Patton, Mosley, and Eagle were here with us to spur us on to heights sublime in the coveted art of singing praises to our Eternal Father.

MURPHY GONE ON TRIP TO OPELIKA

Mr. J. W. P. Murphy left Tuesday morning on a business trip to Opelika in the interest of the Georgia-Alabama Marble Company. The company is putting on a plant at Opelika, and plans in the near future to do the same thing here. The purpose of Mr. Murphy's trip to Opelika is to take up with Mr. Morris, the president of the company, some details concerning the plant which is planned for Clanton. Before returning home Mr. Murphy may go on to Canton, Ga., the home of his company.

ALL-DAY SINGING AT STANTON

There will be an all day singing at Stanton the 4th Sunday in April. All singers and lovers of music are invited to come and spend the day in singing songs of praise to God. Everybody come, bring your books and well-filled baskets. The new books will be used.—H. A. Harris.

"A Little Clodhopper," given by the Junior III's of Maplesville High School at the high school auditorium Thursday night, April 19th at eight o'clock. Admission will be 20 and 35 cents.

Courthouse Meeting Is Drawing Large Crowd

The Foursquare Gospel revival which has been running at the courthouse since last Sunday has met with ready response, good crowds attending every service. The revival is being conducted by Essie Binkley Locy, who comes to Clanton direct from Angelus Temple, Los Angeles, the religious institution headed by Aimee Semple McPherson.

Mrs. Locy has expressed herself as being "highly pleased with the results so far obtained in the meeting." After a service Sunday afternoon mainly devoted to lining up her forces for the coming religious campaign, the evangelist opened her series of messages Sunday night. Her crowds have been increasing nightly.

The topic for tonight (Thursday) will be "The Covered Wagon." That for Friday night will be "What's In A Name?" Both of these are to be illustrated sermons, and the evangelist is very anxious that as many as possible come to hear and "see" them. On Saturday night the service will be one devoted to divine healing, for which Angelus Temple and its head and devotees have become famous all over the country. Sunday afternoon the "Foursquare Gospel" will be explained. At this service, the program for the coming week will be given.

As stated before, the crowds have been increasing nightly, many attending from surrounding counties. The evangelist hopes to be able to use this visit to the South in connection with other meetings at Memphis and Birmingham. A special invitation is extended to attend the services Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights.

R. M. Hubbard Died From Wreck Injuries

Prominent Jemison Citizen Is Victim of Accident Last Sunday

The many friends of Mr. Monroe Hubbard, of Jemison, were grieved to learn of his untimely death Monday morning at a Birmingham hospital where he was carried Sunday after a serious automobile accident.

At the time of the accident about noon Sunday Mr. Hubbard was on his way to Birmingham in his Ford car. He was going to bring home his son, Clifford Hubbard, who had been in a Birmingham hospital for several days.

The accident happened just beyond the Cahaba River bridge when his car collided with a big Hudson on a curve in the road. Mr. Hubbard was thrown from his machine over the railing beside the road. He was picked up by Mr. E. E. Smith from Clanton, and a party of friends who were passing a few minutes after the accident. In an unconscious condition he was carried by Mr. Smith to a Birmingham hospital from where his family were notified of his unfortunate state.

Examination of the injured man proved that his skull was crushed at the back of his head, and probably serious injuries in the chest and abdomen. Physicians announced upon completing the examination that his injuries would prove fatal. He died about ten o'clock Monday morning.

The body was brought back to Jemison Monday and was buried Tuesday at Macedonia cemetery. The funeral was conducted by Rev. Hendrix, of Birmingham.

The death of Mr. Hubbard removes from Jemison and Chilton County one of our most useful and beloved citizens. He was a prominent business man, and his activities in his community will be missed very sorely.

Surviving Mr. Hubbard are his wife and two sons, Gerald and Clifford Hubbard, and two small daughters, Mary Julia and Virginia.

CONCERN ASKS FOR NATURAL GAS FRANCHISE

Mr. McLeod and Mr. Stewart, of Sylacauga were in Clanton Tuesday night and went before the City Council representing the Municipal Natural Gas Company. These gentlemen were seeking to have the city grant a franchise to their company for operating in the city a distribution and retail natural gas business for domestic and commercial purposes.

We understand that the Municipal Natural Gas Company is a marketing organization for the product of the Southern Natural Gas Company, which latter organization plans to bring natural gas into Alabama from the oil fields of Louisiana.

The City Council Tuesday night passed the matter over until their next meeting on Tuesday, May 7th, in order to give them further time to make investigations of the proposition.

CHILTON BANKS WIN COMMENDATION FROM FARM BUREAU

The current issue of the Farm Bureau News, published at Montgomery, carries an editorial commending the banks of Chilton County for their organized effort to get the farmers of Chilton County to use better fertilizer and fertilizing methods. Following is the words of the Farm Bureau paper:

> Congratulations to the Banks of Chilton County which are cooperating with County Agent Stapp in urging farmers to use better fertilizer. The banks which are cooperating are the Bank of Thorsby, Bank of Maplesville, Bank of Verbena, First National Bank and Peoples Savings Bank. I have before me now a copy of an ad which in part says:
>
> Lloyd Cobb, one of Mr. Stapp's club boys, who lives west of Jemison, fertilized his cotton last year according to Auburn recommendation. He used 400 pounds of 16 per cent phosphate, 50 pounds of soda, and 50 pounds of muriate of potash per acre at planting time and side dressed with 150 pounds of soda per acre. He made more than 3,000 pounds, or 2 1-2 bales on his two acres.
>
> Failure to use enough of the right kind of fertilizer is false economy. It is equivalent to failure.
>
> If you are not sure about Auburn's recommendations for fertilizer, see your county agent or vocational teacher. They, too, are anxious to see you use the fertilizer that will produce the best crops at the least cost."
> It was signed by each of the above named banks. They use similar ads each week.

The Union-Banner expressed the belief in the beginning of this campaign of the bankers that the movement would do more to help the farmers to better agricultural profits than anything ever before undertaken in this county.

STATE HIGHWAY TO ROCKFORD BEING PUSHED RIGHT ALONG

Many Culverts and Bridges Finished; Several Miles Being Used Now

In coming from Rockford to the River at Knight's Ferry one now crosses Swamp Creek over the new bridge and travels the new highway for two or three miles. Within a few days a stretch of several miles of this road will be open to traffic. About all of the culverts and bridges in the Coosa section have been built and great progress has been made on the grading.

A crew of men is now working on the culverts in the Chilton County section. They began at the River several weeks ago and are making their way toward the point between Verbena and Coopers where the new road will empty into the Birmingham-Montgomery highway.

Everybody is asking about the bridge across the Coosa River; but we are unable to give any light on this part of the project. So far as we know, the Alabama Bridge Corporation has made no public announcement about their plans for this bridge. We are anxiously waiting for the advertisement of bids for the construction of this bridge.

WILL SEEK TO HAVE SIXTH STREET OPENED FOR HIGHWAY

We hear from some of the business men of Clanton that they are still wanting Sixth Street opened through Clanton as a part of the Birmingham-Montgomery Highway. The argument is made that the present route of the highway on Seventh Street is too narrow, and that traffic causes too much congestion of traffic.

It is apparent to any observer that this opinion is justified. It is a practical problem that ought to be relieved in some way. And the only feasible plan in sight to bring relief is to make Sixth Street open thru the city as a part of the highway.

The suggestion is made with popular favor that Sixth Street should be paved through the city just as was contemplated when the highway first came here, so that traffic would not be confined to Seventh Street alone. This would perhaps operate to advantage by putting southbound traffic on the Seventh Street route and northbound traffic on the Sixth Street route.

We regard this movement as of great importance to Clanton, and the traveling public on the highway, and hope that something definite may be accomplished in this direction.

WHEELER WILL OPERATE THE NEW CAFE IN CLANTON

Mr. J. H. Wheeler of Cedartown, Georgia, was in Clanton the first of this week. While here he arranged a trade with Green Retherford whereby he will have charge of the business of the New Cafe. He plans to return to Clanton the latter part of this week and begin making preparations to open the place for business in the next few days.

Methodist Revival In Progress This Week

The revival meeting at Clanton Methodist Church is in progress this week. The services are being conducted by Rev. Huey P. Childs, of Pensacola, Florida. The music is being conducted by Rev. and Mrs. Marshall.

It is reported that attendance at the services is good, and the prospects encouraging for a great meeting. The series of meetings will continue through the balance of this week and next Sunday.

One of the most interesting features of the services is the chalk talks by Rev. Marshall. Rev. Marshall may not be a great orator, but he certainly knows how to take a few pieces of crayon and a sheet of paper and impress his audience with his message in a way that all can readily understand and will not soon forget. He gives these chalk talks to the young people (from 8 to 80 years) from 6:30 until time for the preaching services to begin in connection with the work he is doing with the young people. Also he sings at the regular service and usually illustrates one of his songs with an illustration, drawing the picture while he sings.

The pastor and members of the Methodist Church extend a cordial invitation to everybody to come to the meeting and worship with them.

DEDICATION SERVICES TO BE HELD AT VERBENA CHURCH

The dedication services of the New Annex will be held at Verbena Baptist Church on Sunday, April 21.

There will be a number of distinguished visitors present on that day and we especially urge everyone who can to be present at that service.—Bessie Thrailkill.

State Bankers Meet Here Next Thursday

Banks in Twenty-Three Counties of Group Three Will Send Representatives

Bankers from twenty-three counties in southeast Alabama will meet in Clanton next Thursday for the annual meeting of Group three of the Alabama Bankers Association. Mr. H. G. Boyd president of the Peoples Savings Bank of Clanton is chairman of the group organization and is directing the plans for entertaining the visitors to the meeting.

The banks, Kiwanis Club, and other citizens of Clanton desire to make the meeting of Group three interesting and pleasant to all who attend. Every effort will be made to perfect plans of entertainment to accomplish this purpose.

The first session of the meeting will be held at the Wadesonian Theatre at 10 a. m. The interval between the first and second sessions will be made profitable and interesting by carrying the visitors to see the city and points of interest nearby. The afternoon session and luncheon will be held at Mitchell Dam.

Mr. Boyd says there will be about 150 visitors in attendance at the meeting. Citizens of Clanton will be asked to provide automobiles for carrying the visitors from Clanton to Mitchell Dam in the afternoon.

This is the biggest convention that has ever come to Clanton, and it is hoped that our people will realize the significance of the occasion and unite solidly in the efort to show the visiting bankers a good time while here.

There will be in the group a number of visiting bankers from distant cities of New York, Atlanta, and Birmingham.

James Sign Shop Has Moved To New Place

The plant of The James Sign Shop has moved into their new building on the Highway. The new place is a model of perfection and arrangement with a full and modern equipment for the production of signs of every kind and description.

In the front of the building is a nice suite of business offices and display space, with the workshop in the rear cut off by a partition.

The moving of the James plant into the new building indicates a most pleasing growth of this business since its establishment in Clanton a few years ago. It is an institution which means much to Clanton, as well as a great portion of Central Alabama which the James Sign Service covers. Throughout several counties in this section of the state the James signs may be seen advertising the business of every kind of commercial institution.

We congratulate Mr. Frank James, founder and manager of the business, on the splendid record of sound business progress which his house has made. The future looks good for him.

SHIPPING OF STRAWBERRIES IN FULL SWING

The strawberry business around Clanton jumped into high gear last week when the crop began to ripen and get ready for picking. The first car load was finished last Saturday, and there has been two cars loaded every day this week.

Shipments are being consigned to produce dealers in Cincinnati, Cleveland, and other northern cities. Reports so far indicate that the yield here is good and the berries of a fair grade.

Mr. and Mrs. John Newell and family of Birmingham spent the past week end with Judge and Mrs. L. H. Reynolds.

THE CLANTON QUARTET

The Union-Banner is pleased to report that the Clanton Quartet has re-organized again this season and is now ready to do some real singing. They made their first public appearance at Liberty Hill last Sunday afternoon, and were very enthusiastically received. The bunch this year, composed of Jesse Jones, Herbert Lowery, Archie Devaughn, and Renfro Jones with W. G. Culp as pianist and manager, is well qualified and bids fair to do some mighty good singing during the coming summer months. There is nothing that furnishes inspiration and enthusiasm to a class of singers just like a good quartet every once in a while. This bunch of singers will be welcomed into the singings to be held over the county during the coming months.

CAPITOL News

United States senator Hugo Black recently made a personal inspection of the damage wrought by the flood in Southeast Alabama with a view to formulating legislation to remedy the situation. Citizens of the various towns in the flood zone are racing the future courageously, but at the same time are anxious to secure action to prevent future floods, if it be possible to do so. Senator Black visited the stricken towns by auto and conferred with citizens with reference to the situation. The senator assured his constituents in the flooded area that he will do everything in his power to help them.

Due to the fact that he had to hurry back to Washington for the opening of the special session of congress, Senator Black was able to call on only a few of his friends in the area visited. He expressed the hope, however, that if congress adjourns early enough he will be able to pay a return visit to South Alabama and also to visit other parts of the south.

Colonel William P. Screws, who commanded the famous 167th Infantry in the World War, has been assigned as senior regular army instructor for the 31st Division, which comprises National guard troops from the states of Alabama, Florida, Mississippi and Lousiana. An effort is being made to have his headquarters located at Montgomery.

Colonel W. E. Persons, who has been serving as senior regular army instructor for National Guards units in this territory, has been transferred to duty as military commandant in charge of the reserve officers training carps at the University of Alabama. The transfer of Colonel Persons and the assignment of Colonel Screws as his successor will take place in September, it is understood. Both officers are native Alabamaians.

Alabama users of gasoline lost over two and one-half million dollars during the last fiscal year on "Short measure" sales, according to an estimate by H. L. Flurry, chief of the division of weights and measures of the State Department of Agriculture. This estimate was on the assumption that the shortage on sales over the state will average the same as at Montgomery, where actual purchases showed an average shortage of seven and one-half percent. Total gasoline sales in the state for the year were 160,841,956 gallons, and on the above basis it is estimated by Mr. Flurry that there was a shortage of 12,063,119 gallons, which the customer paid for but did not get. At 22 cents a gallon this would amount to $2,653,886.

Fifteen filling station operators in Montgomery have been arrested charged with selling short measure gasoline, 29 cases being made against them, and in Birmingham 47 cases were made against 28 operators. Forty-three convictions have already been secured in Birmingham, with only one acquittal.

Dr. R. E. Tidwell, State Superintendent of Education, has been requested by the University of Cincinnati to award two schollarships for the next summer session, begining June 22, valued at from $75.00 to $100.00. These schollarships are to be available for either graduate or under-graduate study and are to be awarded not later than May 15. Only outstanding teachers or school administrators are eligible. Applicants should communicate with Superintendent Tidwell, submitting statements showing their training and experience.

Alabama has gained materially in white school population since 1920, so the 1928 school census reveals, and has also gained in the literacy of the children. In 1920, Alabama had a white school population (7 to 20 inclusive) of 465,397. The 1928 school census reports a white school population of 517,922, an increase of 52,525. In 1920, the school census listed 54,349 white children between the ages of 7 and 20, inclusive, who could not write their names. In 1928 the number of illiterate white children was only 31,542, or 6.1 percent of the white school population.

WEEKLY RADIO RELEASE

On Thursday afternoon, from 5 to 5:30 Hon. John H. Bankhead broadcast from WAPI an address on the life and influence of Thomas Jefferson, the great statesman's birthday falling in the week. Mr. Bankhead is a member of the board of trustees of the Alabama State Department of Archieves and History, which he represented during the history half hour that department is sponsoring each Thursday.

Mr. Bankhead in his address reviewed the carreer of the great Virginian from his birth 186 years ago, describing his appearance, his graduation with distinction from William and Mary college at a very early age, his mastery of science and languages, his political career and achievements as the great advocate of the welfare of the masses, the friend of universal education, religious liberty and other humanitarian measures.

Mr. Jefferson's happy marriage and domestic life at Monticello, his beautiful mountain home near Charlottsville, Va., his habits as a student were discussed by the speaker along with his public achievements.

His authorship of the Declaration of Independence when he was only thirty-three years of age was especially dealt upon as well as the fact that it was during his term as President that the United States acquired by purchase from Napoleon, the Louisana territory which extended from the Mississippi River to the Rocky Mountains and from Canada to Texas, for the insignifcant sum of 15 million dollars, an area that more than doubled that of the United States at that time. Another achievement attributed by the speaker to Jefferson was his authorship of the monetary unit of the dollar and the present system of coins and decimals.

Mr. Jefferson hated turmoil and took a very small part in debates, the speaker declared, "But he was the superior of any man if his time as a political thinker." He opposed the importation of African slaves, brought the abolition of the rule that the oldest son should inherit all the farther's property, was the founder of the University of Virginia, gave voice to the principles upon which the Democratic Party was founded and was one of the greatest men of all times.

"The fact," said Mr. Bankhead, "That Mr. Jefferson in writing his epitaph failed to include any of his political honors indicated that in his estimation independence, religious freedom, and education were the foundation stones for the happiness and prosperity of the people."

Mr. Bankhead explained in his introductory remarks that the occasion of his address just prior to Mr. Jefferson's birthday was owing to the fact that Alabama was the only state in the Union that commemorated that great event as a legal holiday by enactment of the legislature.

Worried
Night after Night
as health declined

"I SUFFERED frequently from nervous headaches, and I could not sleep well," says Mrs. Cora Dover, R. F. D. 2, Hickory Grove, S. C. "I was thin and pale. I was so weak I could scarcely walk. I tried several remedies which were suggested, but nothing seemed to help me. Night after night I worried because I could see I was going down-hill. I had my children to look after, and I was afraid of what would become of them if anything happened to me.

"I began to take Cardui on the recommendation of a friend. It wasn't long until I was beginning to pick up. My strength gradually began to return. I rested better at night and was less nervous. I took several bottles of Cardui, and when I had finished taking it I was in fine health."

SUMMARY REPORT OF FLOOD RELIEF CAMPAIGN

TOTAL:

85 Pairs Pillow Cases;
77 Sheets and Bed Spreads;
147 Quilts;
2 Table Cloths;
55 Towels;
1 Doily;
3 Hats;
6 Pairs Shoes;
9 Pairs Pillows;
8 Gallons Syrup;
1 Quart of Berries;
1 Mattress;
3 Boxes of Wearing Apparel.

Mr. O. R. Mullins informs me that Beat One sent $169.87 in cash and supplies before this campaign was started. Mr. E. G. Caldwell at Pletcher sent $10, and Mr. Boyd, President of the Peoples Savings Bank, informs me that $482.68 cash was sent to them through his bank before this campaign started in addition to several boxes of supplies sent through the Farm Bureau; and I am also informed that Beats 9 and 5 did a great deal before this campaign, so with this I am sure that we may feel certain that Chilton raised her quota.

I am sorry that we do not have an accurate report, but as so much had been done before Judge Reynolds received his appointment as chairman and before the committee was organized, it is impossible to report everything that was sent from Chilton. Again thanking each and every contributor, and especiall thanking the committee, I am, yours very truly.—Mrs. Gertrude Calloway.

By planting either soybeans or cowpeas after oats two crops can be made on the same land in one year. The farmer who has a tractor can plant either of these summer legumes without interefering with his cotton work.

Poor Soils Mean Low Yields

The average yield of cotton for Chilton County is about 125 pounds of lint cotton per acre. The average yield of corn is about 16 bushels per acre.

Farmers in Chilton County who are building up their soils with legume crops, such as peas and beans as summer crops, and vetch and Austrian peas as winter crops, and are using plenty of the right kind of fertilizer, are making nearly a bale of cotton per acre, and above thirty bushels of corn per acre.

Failure to use enough of the right kind of Fertilizer is FALSE economy. It is equivalent to FAILURE

Your Experiment Station and good farmers all over the State find it profitable to plant peas and beans in every row of corn.

Ask your county agent about the Experiment station recommendations relative to soil building crops and fertilizer.

A. D. HUETT WRITES ABOUT HOWARD COLLEGE

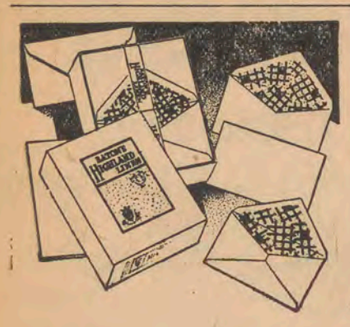
Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space in the columns of your valuable paper to say a few words concerning Howard College. It is a place that we as Baptists of Alabama should be especially proud of. When I am home on a visit I am confronted by frequent inquiry about Howard and what it offers in the way of inducement to people who want to attend college.

Last September when I entered Howard as a Fresman I found myself enveloped with an atmosphere altogether different from what I had previously expected. I had formed the idea that if I went among a large group of pupils, where every one of them were strangers, I would be at a loss of how to make acquaintances with all of them.

But I foud it altogether different. Nothing the first week except freshmen. Most all of them seemed to be away from home, and were as eager to meet a friend as I was. So we had a very happy week together—just we freshmen. And I say with a great deal of pride that we have some of the best people in the state in our freshmen class of 1929.

Just about the time we thought we had everything going our way, at the beginning of the second week, behold the upper classmen came flocking in. We were not certain that we were going to find favor in their eyes. To our glad surprise, we were found to be on good terms with them, and they even made us believe that they were glad to have us. Prospective college freshmen often shudder at the very thought of "hazing." I know they do from my own experience. I might say here that some of my best friends are in the Senior Class and are going to graduate this spring.



Howard is a place where anybody who wants to can go. When I had been there about three days I met a young man who did not have any money at all. He told me that he had come to go to college. So he got a job for his afternoon hours and did stay. The city will do all it can to help a person who is in need.

When our home was darkened with gloom, during the sickness and death of our baby, we did not need for anything. Frequent and sympathetic visits were made by the students and faculty. I have never lived in a community where a more welcome and brotherly spirit was manifested.

Parents, if you have a boy or girl who is about ready to enter college, let me recommend Howard as the school to attend. It is a place where they will certainly be welcomed and befriended if they get in need. The college is equipped with one among the best faculties in the State—Alabama Baptists would be satisfied with nothing short of the best.

Courses are offered in subjects that will fit a pupil for most any walk of life that he or she chooses to follow. I could never be able to estimate what this one year in college has meant to me. I especially want to express my sincere thanks to my friends in old Chilton who have helped me in any way to go to school. I shall endeavor to prove myself worthy of your confidence and assistance.

The general administration of Howard College is under the able supervision of its conscientious and Christian president, Dr. J. C. Dawson. He would be glad to get in touch with any high school senior who is planning to come to college. Ask for a catalog.—A. D. Huett.

SAMARIA

The Good Samaritians are always glad when the time comes to send in their weekly news to the paper.

Our Sunday school is doing fine under the leadership of Mr. G. F. Harris, as our Superintendent. We were very glad to have with us last Sunday at Sunday school Mr. W. H. Williams of Guntersville. After Sunday school he spoke a few words of encouragement to us.

Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Williams of Decatur spent the week end here with relatives and friends.

THORSBY SECTION

S. E. NORTON, Manager

Strawberries have the center of the stage at Thorsby this week. Rain Monday, with a little hail, prevented picking many until the high wind dried off the plants and berries, which must not be picked or put in the basket when wet, as it has a tendency to make them decay in a few hours. Nevertheless upwards of 1,600 crates of 24 quarts each were picked and brought in, inspected and loaded into five cars before work ceased Monday night. It was expected that there would be quite as many more for Tuesday.

Since the best pickers average little if any more than 12 baskets per hour and the average would not be more than eight baskets, 1,600 crates of 24 baskets each makes 38,400 baskets, at eight baskets per hour would require 600 people working eight hours each, and at 2c per basket would amount to $768.00 for picking only.

It must be remembered that there are upwards of 300 members of the Thorsby Fruit and Truck Growers Association, scattered over an area of approximately 150 square miles, so that if the business were evenly divided it would average but little more than 5 crates per member, but the aggregate runs into big figures, especially when it comes to what the grower gets even at low prices, say $2.50 to $3.00 per crate.

It can readily be seen that while it lasts the strawberry harvest takes precedence in the minds of the people over almost any other of their activities.

There will be services in Swedish language Sunday. April 21st, at the Thorsby Lutheran church at the regular hour for morning service.

The Lutheran Ladies Aid social, due this week has been postponed on account of the strawberry harvest.

Misses Katherine Foss and Naemi Turnquist spent the week end with kin folks in Fairfield.

The Ladies Guild social will be held at Thorsby Institute Dormitory Thursday afternoon April 25th.

Mrs. Magne Anderson is in Thorsby for the strawberry season.

The play given by the public school students last Saturday night was well attended and the parts were well taken. It seems a pity that the time necessary to be spent in preparation for such an event could not be applied to a more worthy play. A play in which the chief character represents a tipsy deacon and young girls stage a wine party is not in these times an inspiriing sight. We rememeber that the play given at the close of the school last year was of the same character.

Our schools and churches are supposed to be leaders in all good activities and the time has gone by when most people are to be pleased and entertained by an exhibition so at variance with the prevailing sense of good morals or even good clean fun. It is to be hoped that whoever has the selection of school entertainment in the future in Thorsby will find something that self respecting people will enjoy.

The Commencement exercises of Thorsby public school held last Sunday or that portion of it suitable for Sunday observance attracted a full house at the public school auditorium. Rev. George H. Derlamn pastor, of the Congregational church in Birmingham, was the principal speaker. His address was well delivered and received close attention from the audience. The closing number on the program was a mixed quartette, composed of Misses Kathryn Dick and Lota Mae Hayes and Messrs. Robert Dickson and Conrad Mims. Their selection was "Hark, Hark, My Soul." It was well rendered and greatly enjoyed.

Next Sunday night at the Congregational church after the Christian Endeavor meeting, or at 7:15, there will be a singing and instrumental music service. The program will be in two parts, first, Congregational singing, instrumental music, quartet and solo singing, all by our home folks. Part two will be selection by an invisible choir, made possible by the courtesy and assistance of Mr. R. A. Maddox, which it is hoped will prove an acceptable innovation.

An offering will be taken for the organ fund.

Miss Juanita Connatser left recently for an extended visit with relatives in Atlantic City, N. J. After spending a couple of days with her cousins in Atlanta, Ga., which she enjoyed very much she proceeded on her journey and reached Atlantic City safely and is now enjoying cool ocean breezes. She writes that it has really seemed cold to her up there.

Miss Mary Sue Robinson has returned to her home after spending several days in Birmingham.

Mrs. T. W. Robinson spent Monday in Birmingham.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hill of Birmingham were the guests of Mrs. T. W. Robinson for the week end.

Mrs. Phillip Horn of Birmingham was a visitor in Thorsby Sunday.

Mrs. Chas. Lucas entertained a number of ladies last Saturday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Leckie and Mrs. H. M. Gerald motored to Montevallo last Friday afternoon and brought Miss Iola home with them for the week end.

Mr. Sumner Gerald and sister, Ruth, of Birmingham spent Sunday with their mother Mrs. Hattie M. Gerald.

Money has recently been given Thorsby Institute to finish the inside of the Auditorium. It is hoped to have it ready for Commencement use. Also money has been given by the Ladies Guild of Thorsby and other friends for a new curtain for the stage. It will be of velour or velvet, and one that ought to last a long time.

The operetta to be given by the Community Chorul Club under the direction of Miss Dick, music teacher at Thorsby Institute, will be held a week from Saturday night in the Public School Auditorium. Don't miss seeing and hearing it.

Miss Mary Ella Gerald, a teacher at Thorsby Institute, and Miss Alta Each, a Junior, attended the State Christian Endeavor Convention at Dothan over the week end.

The spring music recital of Thorsby Institute will be given on May 11th. Every one is invited. No admission is charged.

The Christian Endeavor meeting was led Sunday evening by Miss Willie Littlejohn. The topic of the meeting was "Bible Messages Needed Today." The meeting was very good in spite of the fact that the attendance was below the average.

DETAILS OF ATTEMPTED ROBBERY AT VERBENA

So many incorrect accounts of the attempted robbery of the Verbena Post Office and the capture of the would-be-burglars have appeared in the various papers that I feel that the public should know the facts:

Saturday night, April 6th, two cars, one a black Chrysler Roadster (containing three men) and a green car, make unnoticed, headed south, drove up to the Verbena Service Station, and the men in the Chrysler asked for information regarding the road to Wetumpka. After giving the information, the Service Station operator noticed that the cars turned back north. This aroused the curiosity of the Service Station operator, but she soon forgot it. About 2:30 Sunday morning a Chrysler Roadster containing three men drove in to Verbena, and parked their car at the rear of the L. & N. Railroad Station. One man remained in the car while two went to the rear door of the Post Office. Mr. V. B. Champion, Verbena night watchman, saw them when they entered the town and heard them say enough to know that they were burglars, hence, hurriedly called Mr. H. W. Davis. One of the men returned from the Post Office, and then the man in the car went back to the Post Office with him. As soon as they left the car, Mr. Champion let the air out of the tires on one side, so as to hobble the car and make escape hard. Mr. Davis hurriedly notified some other citizens and returned to the station to join Mr. Champion. One of the robbers came around close to them and the watchman shot at him. This frightened them away, and it was found that the lock on the back door was broken and glass broken out of the front door. Soon a great number of our citizens were out and ready to do anything necessary to capture them. The Sheriff was notified and came down, but returned to Clanton in a few minutes, as no trace of the robbers could be found. The citizens then scattered in every direction, notifying people on all roads to watch out for the robbers. About six o'clock, while Mr. Champion, with Postmaster C. D. Hughes and J. H. Gulledge were guarding the car, three men were seen approaching from the south on the railroad. They went out to meet them, but these men turned and were leaving. Our men tried to overtake them, but finding that they were being out-distanced, called them to halt and shot to try to stop them. At this juncture, the robbers opened fire on our men. Several shots were exchanged, but on account of distance no one was hit. The robbers ran into the woods and disappeared. J. H. Gulledge went to Speigner for the dogs, and while he was gone every anenue of escape was closed by our people. The dogs were soon here, and put on the trail, which covered a distance of several miles through woods and fields. The dogs were closely followed by Herman Adams and W. A. Powell. When found that they were being pursued by dogs, the robbers made their way to the paved highway and caught the Birmingham bus. Mr. E. H. Freeman saw them catch the bus, and quickly notified Prof. W. E. G. Sutton, and Mr. Watson Jones, who were guarding a road leading into the highway. While the dogs were trailing the men Sheriff Dudley Collins and his deputy Harvey Foshee, who had been notified, came on the scene, and joined the chase.

Learning that the robbers boarded the bus, Prof. Sutton and Watson Jones followed the bus, stopping at Verbena and instructing someone to phone Clanton to have the officers meet the bus. Cliff Dansby, with Deputy Harvey Foshee also followed, all arriving in Clanton with the bus, and surrounded same to see that none escaped. Mr. Boockholdt, Policeman, entered the bus and called for the men who boarded the bus south of Verbena. They were taken out by the bus operator and put under arrest a pistol was found on one of them. One of the men had discarded his overcoat and pistol which were found by the purser. The third man's pistol has not been found. I presume that the evidence gathered since their arrest, connecting them with the Thorsby robberies has ben accurately given. Sunday night, Monday night, and Tuesday night following the arrest of the robbers a green car answering the Saturday night description of the one stopping at the Verbena Service Station, has visited Verbena, and driven around the business district, and on Thursday night the occupants tried to get Mr. Champion, the watchman to come to the car. This appears to me to indicate that these men belong to an organized band who have been plying their trade over the state.—A Citizen.

THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS OFFERED FOR BEST STALKS OF COTTON

Somewhere in the South this year a single stalk of cotton will be grown that will be worth $1,000. Two others will bring prizes of $500 each, and several thousand dollars will be divided among 57 other stalks, prizes ranging from $300 down to $10, at three sectional fairs—Memphis, Atlanta, and Dallas.

These prizes are being offered by the National One-Stalk Cotton Show, which will be staged again this year by the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation and the Southern Division, Soil Improvement Committee, The National Fertilizer Association. The show will be held in three sections as follows:

Southeastern Fair, Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 5 to 12.

State Fair of Texas, Dallas, Oct. 12 to 27.

Stalks winning first prize at each of the three fairs will be judged at the State Fair of Dallas, and the winner awarded $1,000, which will include the sectional prize.

This show is to be held again this year to stimulate interest in economical production of better cotton from which the farmer gets bigger profits, according to those in charge of arrangements.

Any farmer, whether landlord or tenant, white or colored, or any one member of his family will be allowed to enter a single stalk for competition. Only one stalk may be shown from each farm unit. Premiums for single stalks will be given as shown in the table at the top of the next column.

Stalks must come from a field where at least one acre of cotton was grown in 1929. However, any spacing, fertilization, protection, or cultural practice may be used.

Stalks shown must contain the cotton that grew on the stalk. Picking and refilling will not be permitted.

Entrants living in Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Florida should enroll by sending their names and addresses to The National Cotton Show, Atlanta, Georgia. BALANCED RATION IS NECESSARY FOR GOOD COTTON STALK

To produce a prize winning stalk of cotton for the National Cotton Show, which will be held at the Memphis, Atlanta, and Dallas fairs this fall, good seed should be planted and special care should be taken to see that the plants have everything that they need in the way of good cultivation and plenty of plant food. Good care and plenty of plant food will bring out the good qualities that have been bred into this particular strain of cotton.

Although, as in the production of a beef animal, the cotton stalk should have all of the balanced plant food it can use to make rapid growth and put on fat or fruit, some care must also be exercised not to throw the plant "off feed" by overfeeding or by using an unbalanced ration.

There is little danger of overfeeding a crop of cotton, in fact there is no question but that more profitable crops of cotton would be made if better balanced plant food rations were fed to the crop, and there is danger of overfeeding or producing too much stalk at the expense of the fruit where unbalanced fertilizers are used in forcing a stalk too early for development.

The prize winning stalks of cotton at the National Cotton Show, which is being sponsored by the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation and the Soil Improvement Committee of The National Fertilizer Association, will likely be produced by farmers who have found good cottons that are well adapted to the particular soil conditions where grown and who appreciate the importance of ample amounts of balanced plant food.

ADJUSTING COTTON PRODUCTION TO MEET MILL REQUIREMENTS

Spinners pay for the cotton they use on the basis of its spinning utility. The higher the grade, the longer, stronger and more uniform the staple, and the better the character of the staple, the more they pay for it. Unfortunately, however, the premium paid for the better cotton frequently is not passed on to the farmer, and the producer of the quality cotton is therefore not rewarded as he deserves.

The need for the adjustment of production to meet the mill requirements is brought out by the Division of Cotton Marketing of the United States Department of Agriculture in reports issued this season for the first time, showing the classification by grade and staple length of the cotton crop of the Belt as a whole and for the several states. A recent report indicates that of the cotton ginned up to February 15, 1929, more than 50 per cent was short staple—⅞-inch, 13/16-inch and under in length. Contrast with these figures those of another report which indicates that 84 per cent of the cotton consumed by domestic mills for the year ending August 1, 1928, consisted of about equal parts of staples ⅞, 15/16, and 1 to 1 1/32 inches.

One of the objects of the National Cotton Show to be held this fall is to stimulate interest in production of better quality cotton to meet the requirements of the mills. The show which is being sponsored by the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation and the Soil Improvement Committee, The National Fertilizer Association, will be held in three sections, at the Tri-State Fair, Memphis, Tenn.; the Southeastern Fair, Atlanta, Ga.; and the State Fair of Texas, Dallas.

Station WAPI has an official song and the lovely part of it is that it was composed by two Alabama musicians, Mildred White Wallace who wrote the music and her sister, Clarice White Luck, who penned the lyric, both of Columbiana. Leading music publishers made attractive offers for "Dixie Blue Bird" but the composers wrote it especially for W-API and refused to sell the selection.

This selection was first heard by radio fans on the night of April 15 when a forty-five minute program was devoted to various renditions including orchestra, quartet, accordion, duet, trumpet, and vocal. The program was opened with Mildred White Wallace singing it as only the composer would. The violin obligato was presented by Mrs. W. L. Longshore, a close friend of Mrs. Wallace who formerly lived in Columbiana. In the male quartet were Eheny Camp, bariton, and Sam Benton, tenor, former pupils of Mrs. Wallace.

Messages were received from various parts of the country expressing pleasure of the listeners and congratulating WAPI on its good fortune.

Once you hear the selection "Dixie Blue Bird" you will feel its haunting effect. In it you find the song of the Blue Bird, the crooning of a black mammy, and you can visualize the white fields of cotton and beautiful moonlight scenes. After all the key note of the selection is love for friends and home.

Various types of so called booster programs have been heard from W-API but no town has been presented so favorably to the radio audience as Columbiana and this was through Mildred White Wallace, Clarice White Luck, and their friends who took part in introducing "Dixie Blue Bird."

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Students of political affairs in Washington are beginning to speculate as to whether the country is to be treated to another League of Nations and World Court fight, and just what effects such a contest, if it takes place, will have on pending legislation in the United States Senate. The United States has had two or three spectacular legislative combats of the kind. The first of these, and of course the most spectacular, was when the Senate refused membership in the League of Nations for the United States. This was back in the administration of President Wilson, and it brought out some of the greatest debates which had been heard in the upper legislative body since the days of Webster, Clay and Calhoun.

The most recent of these international political struggles was the one which occurred in the administration of President Coolidge when the Senate, by an overwhelming vote, agreed to place the United States in the World Court, with certain reservations. In the League of Nations fight the Senate in rejecting membership in the league, undoubtedly took the popular side, as was evidenced in the election of 1920 when the league was the prominent issue. The action of the Senate in adhering to the World Court with reservations was not passed on by the voters in the election of 1928 for the reason that, when the European nations refused to agree to some of the Senate reservations, it was generally presumed that the World Court issue was dead so far as the United States was concerned, and international affairs aroused little or no interest in the campaign, the platforms of both the Republican and Democratic parties declared against entangling foreign commitments.

International issues have come to the forefront again, however, due to the trip of Elihu Root, former Secretary of State to Europe i nan effort to bring about an understanding with Europe regarding the entrance of Uncle Sam into the World Court. Just how this understanding will appeal to the United States Senate and the administration at Washington remains to be seen. It is generally claimed by those who oppose going into the court with reservations less drastic than those previously proposed by the Senate, that the Root formula weakens the famous Reservation No. 5 of our World Court resolution. This reservation attempted to prevent the court from giving advisory opinion on any subject in which the United States claimed an interest without the consent of the United States government. Under the Root formula, according to those opposed to this document, "By the terms of that formula the United States as a member of the court would have to accept an advisory opinion or get out of the court, with all the hard feeling which such a withdrawal would entail." The words quoted are from the New York Sun, which does not favor the adherence of the United States to the court under the Root formula.

That there will be a real fight over the question is evidenced by the fact that some of the outstanding senatorial leaders in the anti-league fight are showing evidences of their desire to take a stand against the Root formula. On the other hand those statesmen who formerly favored our joining the League of Nations without reservations, or with mild reservations, are generally lining up for the Root formula. It is not regarded as likely that the question will get before the Senate until the winter session, and by that time both sides will have time to marshall their forces, and it is likely then that other legislation will have to stand aside while the World Court and League of Nations occupy the center of the stage. Those who oppose the Root formula will assert that it weakens the Senate reservation, and that it will put the United States in the league through the back door. We shall doubtless hear a great deal also about Great Britain's six votes in the World Court to our one. Those favoring the Root formula will declare of course that it doesn't entangle us and that at any rate we can withdraw if it doesn't suit us. To this last argument the antis will reply that if we once get in it will be difficult to get out and that any tendency on our part to withdraw will be hailed by Europe and our pro-Europenas as poor sportsmanship and failure to "do our part toward saving the world." Taken all in all it promises to be a pretty busy winter in Washington.

HE SHOWED HER

It must have been a heap of satisfaction to Herbert Hoover to have had his old school teacher on the platform near him when he was inaugurated President of these United States. That was showing her. He probably, if he was a normal boy, remembered that she predicted what would become of him. And it wasn't that he would be inaugurated President.—Houston Post-Dispatch.

The principal reason why a woman can't be President is that few of them nowadays get to the point where they can admit being old enough.

THE WAR IS ON— —WETS AGAINST DRYS

HOW TO DO IT

"An international campaign has been started to protect whales and seals from extinction." That should be easy enough. All that is needful is to advise the seal to quit wearing such stylish and costly furs, and to induce the whale to go in for reduction and eliminate the desirable blubber that tempts the oil men.—New Orleans Times-Picayune.

"FREEDOM OF THE SEAS"

The "Freedom of the Seas" means the abandonment of the right of blockade as exercised by Great Britain against the France of Napoleon and against Imperial Germany. It means a complete change in Great Britain's traditional conception of naval warfare. Nevertheless, in spite of the admirality, the change will have to be accomplished. In the world as it is today the weapon of the blockade can no longer be used effectively by Great Britain unless, as in the Great War, she has most of the world, and especially the United States, on her side. But this same weapon, effective against her enemies only in special conditions never likely to recur, will be swiftly and mortally effective against herself in conditions that are extremely probable between the Great Powers. The "Freedom of Seas" means permanent friendship with the United States and immunity from blockade (and therefore from destruction) for this country. The continued unfreedom of the seas means enmity with the United States and, sooner or later, destruction for ourselves.—Manchester, England, Guardian.

THE FIGHT AGAINST BOOZE

Hoorah for Mr. Hoover and the Prohibition Enforcement Department of our government! You are hearing more about the prohibition law now than ever before; of course all reports are not favorable, but all in all, it goes to prove that something is being done about the prohibtion business.

Mr. Hoover has ordered that all producers of grape juice in the State of California be made to report how much grapes they raise and what goes with all of them. Also merchants who sell sugar will be required to keep records and make reports to the government as to whom and in what quantity sugar is sold. It is said that all sorts of products that might be used to manufacture spirituous liquors will have to be checked against and reported to government authorities.

We are glad to see that these steps are being taken by the government. It has already been a violation of the law for a merchant to sell sugar to a party when he had reason to believe that such sugar would be used for making whiskey, but that, like other parts of the law, has been flagrantly violated. Sugar has been hauled away from Clanton by the wagon and truck loads, and everyone who saw it knew in reason that it was consigned to a whiskey still on Coosa River or in Stumps Hills or somewhere else.

What is needed is real teeth put in the prohibition law. We believe that Mr. Hoover meant it when he said that the prohibition law was going to be looked after. Here's hoping that ere many a day enough prohibition officers will be put on duty in Chilton County to police every branch and hollow in the county and bring every distiller, bootlegger and every patronizer to the bars of justice. The Jones law is none too stringent; what we need is for the State and county laws be made to measure up to the federal law.

DELICATESSEN NO THREAT TO GREAT AMERICAN HOME

The fact that delicatessen stores in the United States have increased four times as rauidly as the population should not give rise to the conclusion that calamity is about to overtake the great American family life, according to the editor of Woman's Home Companion.

"While delicatessens have increased faster than the population, restaurants also have increased four times as fast as the number of families," continues the article. "about one in ten of our citizens go through life without marrying and one out of every five marriages end in the divorce court.

"Combining these and similar statistics W. F. Ogburn has charted before the American Sociological Society the 'decadence of life.' Maybe so. But we find nothing to get excited about. In the human tide there are so many things happenning for apparent good or apparent harm, so much rippling away of old habits and the erection of new incentives, even so much modification of our very natures and nistincts, that no wisdom is great enough to say what is best to be done. Nor is there any power mighty enough to force a deliberate social change.

"We are in the hands of our common destiny and thus far, or so it seems, the present generation has a life richer, more free and happier than any that have gone before.

AMBASSADOR DAWES

Mr. Hoover's designation of Charles G. Dawes as ambassador to Great Britain will be received by the country with cordial approval. The former vice president is genuinely popular, not merely because of his ability, but because he is a salty individual, with a flair of his own, perhaps the only man in current public life with a Rooseveltian appeal.

He goes to a country in which he will be received with good-will approaching rejoicing, because of the part he has already played in international negotiations. His experience abroad and at home heightens his fitness for the place in which some very famous Americans have served. The names of American envoys to England make up a striking roster, although even this list discloses lapses from an otherwise high level.

Mr. Dawes should shine in this new post, by reason of his equipment and gifts, as well as by reason of his racy qualities. He is no Motley, Lowell, Hay, or Page, because these were men who rose through their pens. But by the same token, he is vastly superior to George Harvey, he is not reduced by comparison with Mr. Houghton, now retiring.

In the incalculably important work which lies before him, he should prove an altogether satisfactory representative of the United States. One imagines that Mr. Dawes is conscious of the unique opportunity before him of writing a brilliant and pregnant chapter in Anglo-American relations. Mr. Hoover has made an admirable selection.—Birmingham Age-Herald.

CHILTON COUNTY ABSTRACT CO.
M. D. FOSHEE, Manager

A good business man will not buy a farm or any property without first looking it over to see what it is worth.

However, some will buy or loan money on land without an abstract.

Isn't it equally as foolish to buy a farm without looking it over as to buy it and not know whether the titles are good or not? Without an abstract you do not know where you are getting the land you look at or not.

Before investing in land in any way have an abstract made and be safe.

"I was determined to have a Clear Skin"

A CLEAR, smooth, lovely skin bespeaks rich, red blood. It is Nature's outward reflection of the condition within you.

Men and women, both justly covet admiration. Everyone can expect such satisfaction to its fullest extent if they are the possessors of a clear, unblemished skin.

If you are unfortunate in having skin blemishes, pimples, boils, eczema—you owe it to yourself and friends to remove the cause. Nature will then provide the complexion which is so much desired.

S.S.S. has been a blessing to millions of people who have taken advantage of its wonderful medicinal properties. It gives to Nature what it needs in building you up so that your system throws off the cause.

When your system is filled with rich, red blood, the body's power of resistance to infection and disease is raised. Your appetite improves; firm flesh takes the place of that which was once flabby. You sleep soundly. You feel strong. Your nerves become steady. S.S.S. helps Nature build red-blood-cells.

S.S.S. The Great Blood Tonic

Take S.S.S. daily at mealtime. Seek energy, vitality, and a clear skin, through the great blood tonic which is made from fresh vegetable drugs and has stood the test of over 100 years. All good drug stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

County Farm Agent's Notes

CULTIVATORS WILL BE DEMONSTRATED

Auburn, Ala., April 15.—Starting on April 22, a series of cultivator demonstrations will be conducted by J. B. Wilson, extension agricultural engineer at Auburn, in cooperation with the county agents in the counties of Conecuh, Monroe, Clarke, Choctaw, Perry, Shelby, Tuscaloosa, Chilton, Coosa, Lee, Chambers, Calhoun, DeKalb, Etowah, Cullman, Marshall, Randolph, Franklin. Farm implement dealers and salesmen will cooperate and a week will be spent in each county conducting community demonstrations in order to acquaint farmers with the advantages of improved cultivators.

By using 2-horse cultivators a farmer can do twice as much work as a 1-horse cultivator, Mr. Wilson said. This means that when a single cultivator is replaced by a double cultivator and one mule added the efficiency of the man is doubled; and this is the best way to increase the income of farmers.

Mr. Wilson said that any land that is level enough and in large enough acres for profitable production of row crops can be cultivated successfully with 2-horse cultivators. Where this implement cannot be used the land should be in pasture or in timber, he said.

County agents in these counties are arranging the demonstrations which will be held on farms with practical farmers. Although the use of cultivators will be explained, the main feature will be to demonstrate by cultivating with them.

For several years such demonstrations have been conducted in Alabama and the demonstrations have been very effective, as reveaied by the fact that cultivator sales continue to mount upward as reported by farm implement dealers and county agents.

FARM BUREAU AIDS FARMERS IN GETTING BETTER SEED

Montgomery, Ala. April, 13— In supplying farmers of Alabama with approximately 10,00 bushels of improved cotton seed the Alabama Farm Bureau this year made a start in furthering cotton growers with seed that will grow better staple and return more money to each acre of cotton produced in Alabama, according to Edward A. O'Neal, president of the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation.

President O'Neal said that the cotton seed handled by the farm bureau this year was Cooks 307.6 and Cooks 1627. These varieties were bred at the Alabama experient station at Auburn. After years of experimental work it is the opinion of the experiment station officials that Cooks cotton seed will make more money per acre year in and year out on Alabama soil than any other variety of cotton seed.

The Alabama Farm Bureau recomended Cooks 307.6 for wilt land as this is the wilt resistant type while Cooks 1627 was recommended for lands not infested with wilt. The bulk of the seed sold by the Farm Bureau was grown on one farm and ginned on plantation gin to insure absolute purity. All seed were recleaned.

About 5,000 bushels of the seed were Cooks 307.6 while the others were Cooks 1627. According to experiments carried out by the experiment station of Auburn, Prattville, Andalusia and Benton the Cooks 307.6 last year made an average production per acre on land growing about one bale to the acre of468.1 pounds of lint cotton. The lowest producing variety on test yield from the first there is an increase of 136.3 pounds of lint in favor of the Cooks 307.

Five thousand bushels of seed will plant five thousand acres of land, therefore the possible increase by planting the seed is 5,000 times 136.1 pounds or a total increase of 708,760 pounds of lint cotton. At 18 cents per pound this increase is worth $122,670, Mr. O'Neal said.

Four experiment station test in 1928 at Sylacauga, Cedar Bluff, Belle Mina and Alexandria showed that Cooks 1627 produced 305.9 pounds of lint cotton per acre which was 86 pounds more lint per acre than the lower yielding varieties on the same test. Multiplying 86 by 18 cents per pound amounts to $15.48 per acre. The 5,000 bushels of Cook 1627, which the Farm Bureau handled will plant 5,00 acres, therefore the possible increase is 5,000 times $15.48 or a total of $77,000.

These facts being true the farmers should profit by about $200,000 by planting the seed which the Farm Bureau aided in suplying to the farmer. Business men in several instances have joined in to help out in the movement to bring about better cotton by planting better seed.

County Farm Bureaus which placed the largest orders for cotton seed with the State Farm Bureau include Bibb, Marion, Lamar, Madison, Cullman, Calhoun, Etowah, DeKalb, Greene, Randolph, andCovington. Smaller orders were shipped to other counties in various sections of the state.

THREE FARM ORGANIZATIONS UNITE FOR FARM RELIEF

Montgomery, Ala. April,13—three farm organizations representing about two million organized farmers have united in laying before the House Agriculture Committe four principles they believe should be written in the new agriculture measure. President O'Neal, chairman of the legislation committee of the American Farm Bureau Federation, is very much enthused over this movement and says that it means that American organized agriculture, from the Atlantic to the Pacific and Gulf of Mexico to Canada is pulling together.

Mr. O'Neal said that the proposal made public on April 10 by Chairman Haugen was in the form of a letter signed to C. E. Huff, President of the Farmer's Educational and Cooperative Union; L. J. Taber, master of the National Grange and S. H. Thompson, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

The three declared that any legislation which stopped short of securing an American price for the farmer's products in order to maintain an American standard of living "Will not suffice."

"There are, in our opinion," they added, 'Four requisites which must be met by any legislation to permit it to qualify properly as farm relief."

These requisites were a system to make the tariff effective on all crops so that surplus would not depress the domestic market to world prices, provision for the control and disposition of surpluses, a plan which automatically would check overproduction, and farmer ownership and control of marketing organization with due consideration to cooperatives already established.

In addition, they said, the congress should make tariff adjustments at the special session to keep foreign products from competing in the domestic market.

NEWS IN BRIEF

F. M. Sparks who graduated at Auburn in 1926 has invented a new electric transformer while doing graduate work at the University of Illinois. Sparks is from Cullman, Alabama.

Don May, a senior student in engineering at Auburn, has invented an attachment for a phonograph which will enable it to play in any position. It has been patented and he hopes to place it on the market.

Population of the United States is now increasing at the rate of about 1,400,000 annually, according to the Bureau of Census at Washington. This means one new American every twenty-three senconds and one new Alabamian every ten minutes.

Announcement i smade by the Delco Light Company that the extension of hydro electric lines into rural sections has increased the demand for local domestic light plants. This company estimates that hydro electric power companies will never be able to serve more than half of the farmers of the country.

In 1928 a total of 24,493,124 motor vehicles were registered in the United States. This was a gain of 9.5 per cent over 1927, according to the Bureau of Public Roads of the United States Department of Agriculture. Of this number 269,519 were registered in Alabama, the registration fees of which amounted to $3,474,065.

FARM AND HOME FACTS

If insects are at work in your garden or in your field your county agent or your home agent can tell you how to kill them.

Webb Hurst, master farmer of Shorter, Ala., has a tractor combination with which he cuts oats, plows land, and plants peas at one operation. One man operates the tractor and another the machinery.

Experiments nad practical tests by the tohusands have revealed that in Alabama one of the best ways to increase cotton yields is by top-dressing with nitrate of soda immediately after cotton is chopped. Corn too responds to a top-dressing of nitrate of soda which should be applied when the corn is knee high.

COLOR SCHEME IMPORTANT IN CHILDREN'S BEDROOM

Selection of proper color combinations is the first problem in making "a little heaven of contentment" of a child's bedroom. Warning against too precisely a color, Mrs. Osma Palmer Cough outlines in Farm and Fireside the lessons she learned in preparing a chamber for her little daughter.

"I like a general color scheme," Mrs. Couch says, restful and cheerful to the eyes, but the details should develop with the child. The floors should be darkest, walls next and ceilings lightest. walls may be painted, or a dainty figured wall paper may be used as a start for a color scheme.

"Painted walls are easily washed, and different tints may be applied from year to year. white is too glaring, but soft ream, ivory, pale yellow, green or lavender, gray and rose are good, with lighter tones for the ceiling and a darker tone for the floor. A sunny room should have a cool background—green, blue, gray, lavender or cream. The shady room needs warmer colors like rose, orange, or yellow."

MAPLESVILLE LODGE 706 A. F. & A. M.

Maplesville lodge 706 A. F. & A. They desire a "Record breaking crowd" especially masons and their families. Admission will be 15 and 25 cents. W. E. Nonthrup Secy.

The Land O'Lakes creamery organization in Wisconsin and Minnesota did a business of $48,000,000 last year. The annual meeting of this association was attended by 5000 dairymen.

A tractor has enabled Webb Hurst, a master farmer at Shorter, Ala., to reduce his mules from 28 to 20 and his laborers from 17 to 12. In addition he has added a large dairy herd to a cotton farm, making it much more profitable all the way round.

The average hen in 73 demonstration flocks with an average of 244 birds to the flock in Alabama in 1928 produced 151 eggs which sold for $4.60. The cost of feed was $2.27 which left $2.33 per bird above feed cost, according to G. A. Trollope, extension poultryman at Auburn.

In 1928 IT TOOK THE RECEIPTS of 173 days TO PAY FOR LABOR
18 days for FUEL
57 days for MATERIALS and SUPPLIES
30 days for ALL OTHER EXPENSES
20 days for TAXES
31 days for INTEREST and RENTS
21 days for DIVIDENDS
16 days for IMPROVEMENTS

The figures quoted here are the records of the L. & N. R. R. for the year 1928, and apply generally to every other great trunkline system in the country.

Every dollar of revenue for 173 days out of the 366 was paid out for labor; every dollar of revenue for 18 days was required to supply fuel; the entire revenues of 57 days' operation were necessary for materials and supplies, while all other expenses required the total income of 30 days of railroad operation.

For 20 days during 1928, every dollar received by this railroad was paid out in state, federal, and county taxes. For 31 days, the revenues were expended in interest and in rent, while 21 days' revenues were required to pay dividends to the owners of L. & N. securities, leaving a balance of but 16 days' revenues for improvements and betterments in the service.

Some part of this disbursement indirectly reached the readers of this newspaper and this statement is published simply to emphasize the mutual relation existing between this railroad and the communities it serves.

BRO. BRYAN'S BIBLE STORY

(Written for The Union-Banner by REV. J. A. BRYAN, Pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, Birmingham, Alabama)

CHRIST'S TEACHINGS IN THE SERMON ON THE MOUNT.

The life Christ teaches on the mount is real, is earnest, is serious, is an opportunity, is a responsibility. Life is not a painting, it is not a picture, it is not a magazine article, it is not a sermon, it is not a lecture. The life is more than meat, and the body is more than raiment.

Plants live a life. The cattle on a thousand hills live a life. The young lions live a life, but they have not a soul. God gave man a soul, and redeemed that soul by the blood of his own son. To live a life is a more serious thing than many of us imagine. In life we do not know what a day may bring forth. Therefore we should use the minutes and hours of the day to God's glory. We should redeem the time and work while it is day, for the night cometh when no man can work.

We should bring every thought into captivity to the obedience of Christ's love. We should live, love, toil, and suffer for God's glory, not for ourselves. Our motive for living should be for God's glory. Man's chief end is to glorify God and enjoy him forever. Whether we eat or drink, we should do it why not work while it is day? Why not be diligent in business? Why not be diligent in the Lord's business?

You remember that some of the first recorded public sayings of Christ was when he was twelve years old and was in the temple of Jerusalem. His mother and father on their way back home seemed to have missed him as they traveled slowly along that road which led to Nazareth their home town. They turned and went back to the temple. His mother said to him, "Son, I and your father have sought thee sorrowing." He said," Wist ye not that I must be about my father's business?"

Now, my dear friends would it not be a great thing if each of us would be about our father's business? This business is to try to build up his kingdom. It is to try to advance the work of the church. It is to try to honor him in everything. It is to try to live as Christ would have us live.

There is a great truth and a great fact which I fear we overlook many times and that is the record found in the last chapter of Ecclesiastes. It is in these words: "God shall bring all these things into judgement, every good work, with every secret thing, whether it be good or whether it be evil." Think of the day when we must appear before the judgement seat of Christ. Addison Alexander wrote a stanza on that day. It is in these words:

"O that day, that dreadful day,
When men to judgement wake from clay,
O Christ be thou the trembling sinner's stay."

Jesus said that before him would be gathered all nations and that he would separate the one from the other as a shepherd separates the sheep from the goats. Truly there is a great day coming, a great day coming bye and bye. The saints and the sinners shall be parted right and left. Are you ready for that day to come?

Of course the Christian is not condemned and not judged, but that does not relieve him from appearing before the judgement seat of Christ to receive a reward for the deeds done in the body. There is a book of life in which is recorded the redeemer's name. This book we know is the Bible and the redeemer we know is Jesus Christ. In this book of life Jesus tells the disciples on a return from a missionary journey to rejoice not because the devil was subject unto them, but rather rejoice that their names were written in the lamb's book of life.

In the prophecy of Malachi it is called a book of remembrance. Now what could that mean execpt a book in which our deeds are recorded? It is from this book that we will be rewarded according to the deeds done in the body. If we give a disciple a cup of cold water in his name we will receive a disciple's reward.

Our deeds must be done in the name of Jesus Christ. Peter said that when he healed the lame man at the beautiful gate of the temple, a certain missionary speaking on the judgement day before a group of Africans impressed a heathen chief so much that he said, "Do you mean that we must appear before the judgement seat of Christ when this world is burning?" The missionary said, "Yes you must," the chief said, "O I must go up there after having murdered so many people. After so many people I have burned at the stake and killed with the tomahawk." The missionary answered, "yes." The old chief said, "O what must I do?" The missionary explained to him the plan by which he might receive Jesus Christ into his heart and live and become saved.

This judgement day has been pondered very deeply in my mind since I visited the Holy Land and walked over the hills which Christ walked over, and over the mountain on which he delivered his great sermon called the sermon on the mount, there he said, "Before me shall all nations be gathered." The judgement day is a very serious thing to me. How can I stand? I shall not be able to stand unless my robes have been washed in the blood of Christ.

Did you ever stop to think that we are hastening to this day? Christ is coming to judge the living the dead. Those who remain alive at his coming shall be changed in the twinkling of an eye and rise to meet the lord in the air together with those who are asleep in Christ. We must answer our names and be judged in that day. May be if we thought more about it we would be more faithful and not treat Christ like a dog, but we would rather do the things he would have us do. We would do the things he would do.

So pondering this great day no doubt we would be kind and forgiving, loyal and faithful, more loving and devoted to him. We would give him our best and not withhold anything from him. It is said that Jonathan Edwards agreed to preach at a certain very wicked place if his congregation would pray for him. They did this and he went there one Saturday night and preached a great sermon. It was a very dimly lighted hall in which he preached, but that made no difference. His subject was, "Sinners in the hand of an angry God." Men were convinced of sin and the judgement day was plainly before their eyes. They took hold of the gallery posts and shouted praises to God that they had been convinced so deeply of sin and had found a savior from sin.

It takes the power of God to convince men of sin. It takes the power of God to place men on their knees in penitence. It was the power of God on the day of pentecost that brought the Holy Spirit. We cannot stand the judgement day unless Christ stands by us. If we are in Christ the judgement day will not be dreadful to us. We cannot stand the light of the judgement day unless Christ covers our garments in his blood.

While the judgement day will be terrible for some of us it will be safety for others. While it will be hard for some it will be glorious for others. Then Christ will say, "Come ye blessed of mine and inherit the Kingdom of God which is prepared for you from the foundation of the world." God help us to be justified by faith in his blood, with our robes washed in this blood, that we may gladly listen to the great applause of the blessed of the farther, "Well done thou good and faithful servant enter thou into the joys of thy Lord.

WHY GIRLS LEAVE HOME TOLD BY NEW YORK POLICE OFFICER

Seven thousand girls ran away from home to New York and proportionately the same number to the other large cities of the country last year, according to Captain John Ayres of the New York department of the bureau of missing persons. The number is the largest ever recorded, he added, due to the wider social and economic chasm that has come between young girls and their elders and the increased facilities for reaching the big cities and for obtaining work there.

Captain Ayers declared, however, that ninety-nine out of every one hundred girls who ran away are caught and either returned to their homes or given places in other homes and helpful institutions, whereas runaways formerly fought unsuccessful battles with city life and finally became submerged.

"From what kind of homes do girls run away?" Captain Ayers was asked by an interviewer for the Woman's Home Companion. "And why?"

"From all kinds," he replied, "And for many reasons, principally the lack of understanding of adolescence. Runaway girls of today seldom fall prey to scheming men," added Captain Ayers. "They are a high spirited, hardboiled lot and few men can put anything over on them. But it is becoming harder and harder for the girls to remain runaways for long. They go to the large centers, such as Hollywood, for example, and find that thousands of others of their own kind are there looking for all the opportunities that are offered. Their only resort is to apply to some social service institution and the men and women in charge of them have become expert in detecting runaway girls. They are not returned as bad girls, but under the sympathetic supervision of persons or organizations who are willing to look at the other side of the case."

Why You Get MORE FOR YOUR MONEY
in Goodyear Tires

TIRES represent a considerable item in the cost of driving a car. Many dollars each year are, however, saved by remembering a few facts about tires.

In 1915, Goodyear passed all other companies and became the world's largest producer of tires.

Goodyear has steadily widened this gap in the years following. Now, Goodyear alone uses almost 50% more crude rubber than the next largest company.

"Advertising" is not the reason for this leadership. Advertising may induce you to TRY a product, but only SUPERIOR SERVICE will cause you to BUY IT AGAIN AND AGAIN.

There are few car owners, today, who have not tried various makes of tires. Results, experience—these are now the strongest guiding factors in the purchase of tires.

And more people—yes, MILLIONS more people!—ride on Goodyear Tires than on any other kind.

This significant fact conclusively proves that you get MORE FOR YOUR MONEY in Goodyear Tires.

The motoring public, traveling billions and billions of miles in millions and millions of cars, has discovered the truth of this by experience.

The logic back of it is simple. By reason of producing MILLIONS MORE tires than any other company, costs are lowered. This permits Goodyear to give you MORE FOR YOUR MONEY.

Goodyears cost no more to buy and less to ride on.

CHEVROLET'S FREIGHT BILL TOTALED $46,000,000 IN 1928

Striking evidence of the heavy demands made annually on the railroads by automobile manufacturers came to light yesterday with the announcement of C. R. Scharff, general traffic director of Chevrolet Motor Company, that the company's freight bill for 1928, representing inbound and outbound shipments for 16 domestic plants, totalled more than $46,000,000. This was an increase of more than $11,000,000 over the 1927 bill.

In making the announcement, Mr. Scharff revealed that the 1928 bill covered the movement of 272,368 carloads of freight, totalling 7,968,047,324 pounds. Exclusive of this poundage Mr. Scharff declared there was an additional 221,403,427 pounds of less than carload freight, 4,767,783 pounds shipped by express and 331,040 driveaways.

These figures show the immense increase in the company's business. Last year the company manufactured the unprecedented volume of 1,200,000 automobiles. This year will see an output of 1,350,000. These figures indicate that the automobile manufacturers are among the reailroads' best customers.

Of our total freight shipment for last year 111,087 car loads were inbound and 161,281 outbound. The outbound shipments included finished automobiles and 394,804,171 pounds of export traffic.

Mr. Scharff in conclusion complimented the railroads on their splendid cooperation and constantly increasing efficiency.

Lesson for April 21

COMFORT FOR GOD'S PEOPLE

LESSON TEXT—Isaiah 40:1-11.

GOLDEN TEXT—As one whom his mother comforteth, so will I comfort you.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God's Love for Us.

JUNIOR TOPIC—God's Love for Us

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Source of True Comfort.

I. God's Message of Comfort (vv. 1, 2).

1. It was addressed to Isaiah and his successors in office (v. 1).

He, as God's spokesman, was to make known the very heart of God to the people who were in great need of comfort. They were in a strange land, in captivity because of their sins. In spite of their apostasy from God—the breaking of their covenant with Him—His favor was about to return.

2. The mutual relation of God and His people (v. 1).

This is expressed in the phrases "my people" and "your God." The believer belongs to God, and God belongs to him. How blessed it is to be thus related to Him. Observe, this was said concerning a people who had sinned and backslidden.

3. Pardon received (v. 2).

In spite of their gross iniquity, their pardon was declared. The receiving of double at the Lord's hands does not mean that there had been undue infliction of punishment, but that the divine pardon exceeded the guilt. The period of the captivity was at an end. Their blessing was not through their own merit, but was to be realized through the sin offering of Jehovah.

II. The Preparation Required (vv. 3-5).

In order to secure the salvation which was to be theirs through the vicarious offering of Jehovah, it was necessary that certain preparation should be made. Observe:

1. The voice in the wilderness (v. 3).

This voice was that of John the Baptist, and actually was heard at the time of the coming of Jesus Christ (Matt. 3:1-3).

2. Prepare ye the way of the Lord. (v. 3). It was the custom on state occasions for some one to go in advance of the king or ruler and make preparation for his coming. This preparation consisted of the actual depression of hills, the elevation of valleys and the straightening of crooked places, so that the monarch could move forward with ease and facility. In its moral bearing, the meaning is that preparation for the coming of the Lord into the hearts and lives of the people consists of the subjugation of pride and selfish ambition, and the straightening of the crooked and perverse things of this life.

3. The glory of the Lord revealed (v. 5).

When there is proper preparation of heart, the Lord will enter, and His glory will be revealed in the life. It primarily refers to the manifestation of the divine glory in the person of the Messiah.

III. The Frailty of Man in Contrast With God's Word (vv. 6-8).

"All flesh is grass and all the goodliness thereof is as the flower of the field. The grass withereth, the flower fadeth, because the Spirit of the Lord bloweth upon it. Surely the people is grass. The grass withereth, the flower fadeth, but the word of our God shall stand forever." Just as the blast of the hot wind scorches the grass and destroys the crops, so everything loved and prized by the natural man will wither and die under the blast of God's judgment, but His Word shall stand forever. The Word of God abides from age to age with perennial freshness. God's promise of ultimate triumph should steady us because no matter through what stress and strain we may be called to pass when the Lord comes there will be victory.

IV. The Lord God Coming to Zion (vv. 9-11).

1. Behold Your God. (v. 9).

When He comes to Zion there will be no need of fear. This blessed truth can be proclaimed aloud to the cities of Judah.

2. The Lord God will come with a strong hand. (v. 10).

The hope of the world is in the coming of Jesus Christ in power and great glory to establish His blessed rule over the earth. Righteousness and peace can come only with the Messianic rule.

3. He shall feed His flock like a shepherd (v. 11).

The Good Shepherd will search out and provide for His own.

Always Content

We shall be made truly wise if we be made content; content, too, not only with what we understand, but content with what we do not understand—the habit of mind which theologians call, and rightly, faith in God.—Charles Kingsley.

AMERICA'S FOREIGN MISSIONS NOW ON BIG BUSINESS BASIS

America's foreign missions have been lifted from the haphazard system of sending pennies and misfit clothing to struggling workers in remote parts of the world to the plane of big business. Within the past few years, the combined American missionary fund has been increased from $9,000,000 to $50,000,000 annually and the number of missionaries from less than 6,000 to 16,000, according to The Woman's Home Companion.

"Now a modern warehouse for supplying foreign missions has the appearance of a big exporting firm," says the article. "The Rev. Mr. Smithson in some far away jungle used to live a life of uncertainty. One year he would get eight derby hats, six woolen mufflers and as many boiled shirts as a bride gets saltcellars. Under the new system he asks for what he wants and gets it.

"One thing is certain," continues the writer, "That is that if we are going to have missionaries we should feed and clothe them properly. These Smithsons and Mrs. Smithsons stand not only for the Christian religion but for Christian America in the eyes of hundreds of thousands of people who have no other standards by which to judge us. And, human nature being what it is even in darkest Africa they are all apt to judge God's work and God's own country by the fit of Smithson's hat.

"Under the old happy-go-lucky penny and underwear system we had succeeded in the course of nearly two thousand years, in working up a force of about five thousand underfed, over-dressed and heavily handicapped foreign missionaries. Under the new system, in less than two decades we have tripled their numbers and quintupled their efficiency. Pumps, windmills, books and maps and medical supplies go where cast-off clothing went before and the neatly filled out requisition now tells a clearer story of the need for help abroad than was formerly told by uninformed pulpit orators."

"In 1922 I began to side-dress with about 75 pounds of Chilean Nitrate per acre. My yield immediately increased to one-half bale. Each year since that time I have increased the amount of Chilean Nitrate until last year I used 200 pounds and produced eight bales on four and three-fourths acres. This land has been in continuous cultivation for over 100 years.

SPRING SHOWING OF GENERAL MOTORS CARS

A nation wide exhibition of all general motors passenger cars, to take place during the week begining April 20 and ending April 27, was an invocation announced to-day by Alfred P. Sloan, Jr. President, General Motors. The exhibition is to be known as the general motors spring showing, and from the plans already outlined promises to be the largest and most comprehensive showing in the history of the automotive industry.

Twenty-three thousand general motors dealers are to participate in the event, each acting as an individual exhibitor of the line of cars he merchandises in his particular location. Alloting a minium of five display cars for each dealer, this will mean that during the week more than 125,000 general motors cars will be on view simultaneously. The event will be suitably announced by a nationwide magazine, newspaper and outdoor advertising. The corporation's motor car divisions, Cadillac, Buick, Oldsmobile, Oakland and Chevrolet are co-operating to make this spring showing a memorable event.

For two years past general motors has sponsored special showings at the time of the National Automobile Shows in New York and Chicago in which its entire line of products has been represented. These events have produced a great impression and have attracted an attendance comparable with that of the National Shows themselves. Recognizing the public interest in these undertakings, it is decided that the various communities all over the country would appreciate similar showings in their own locations. Thus the idea of spring showing week was conceived and by means of it general motors will in effect bring a miniature automobile show to every community, thereby emphasizing the fact that within its own organization there is a car for every purpose.

In commenting upon this program, Alfred P. Sloan, Jr. President, General Motors said: "I am sure that general motors has every reason to feel proud of the accomplishment of our organization as evidenced by the products which we are exhibiting in every community of the country as a part of our 'Spring Showing week.' Our organization has worked industriously and conscientiously and with every facility at its command, in the development of the products presented. They have not been the result of a month's or a year's effort. On the contrary they represent accumulated experience of a large staff who have been intensively studying each individual part of the problem for a great many years. It is only through such accumulated experience or actual contact with the problem that the present result is possible. Every time I look at the modern motor car tnd consider the value that the public receives, I am tlways impressed with what this great industry has accomplished during the relatively few years of its existence. Irrespective, however, of how general motors products may be ap praised today, our organization has constantly before it the general motors policy of offering increased value, ehrough evolution, as circumstances make possible. By striving always for something better, something better will surely result. As a matter fo fact, I think this spirit has a great deal to do with the tremendous prosperity that this country is enjoying."

EARLY CULTIVATION OF CORN IMPORTANT

Auburn, Ala., April 15.—Answering questions regarding cultivation of corn, officials of the college of agriculture of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute at Auburn say that the most important cultivation is that immediately after plants emerge from the ground. It kills weeds when little and helps young plants to get started.

For this cultivation a section harrow should be used and it should be run either straight across or diagonally across the rows.

Such cultivation is very effective in weed control. The teeth of the harrow should be set so as to kill as little of the corn as possible. To one not familiar with this method of cultivating corn will appear to be damaged more than it actually is.

In discussing cultivation of this kind, J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist, Auburn, said that it should not be delayed. It should be done immediately after corn comes up in order to kill weeds and grass and give the crop being cultivated a start. This being done the second cultivation will be easy.

Mr. Lowery explained also that the main object of cultivation is to kill weeds and grass and that cultivation throughout the year should be for this purpose. It should be shallow but deep enough and often enough to kill weeds and grass. When there are no weeds and grass to be killed cultivation is not necessary.

TIMELY FARM FACTS

Production of cotton woven goods over 12 inches in width in 1927 amounted to 2,433,709,000 against 2,071,000,000 in 1925.

The farmer who is following one mule and a single plow is wasting half of his time and cannot expect a big income from farming.

The New York farmers who paid $1.00 in taxes during the period from 1910 to 1914 were paying $2.35 in 1927, according to the New York State College of Agriculture.

The Cotton Textile Institute of New York announces steady improvement in the cotton fabric business. Cotton is again in demand in style circles and large quantities will be used by men, women, boys and girls this year.

Cultivating with a section harrow and running across rows immediately after the plants come up is one of the best cultivations of the year for it kills weeds and grass when they are small and cultivates land also.

Thorsby Baptists To Build New Church

Brick Building Will Be Erected On Site Near Thorsby Public School

Rev. J. W. Jones, pastor of Thorsby Baptist Church, has outlined to us plans of his church which contemplate the erection of a new and modern house of worship. The matter has already received the official sanction of the body, and definite plans of procedure are in the hands of a building committee, of which Mr. G. F. Harper is chairman.

The program calls for the erection of the building during the present summer, so that it will be ready for use by next winter. The location of the new building will be on a new lot in the neighborhod of the Thorsby Public School building.

The new church, according to Rev. Jones, will be built of brick, and will contain ample accommodations for the church activities, as well as a complete and fully equipped Sunday School annex to provide for a thoroughly graded Sunday School with all departments.

In connection with the erection of the new building the Thorsby church is offering for sale their old house of worship, together with the building thereon. The old property is offered for $600, and anyone who may be interested in it may see Mr. G. F. Harper, chairman of the building committee. "We feel that the old property should certainly bring $600," said Rev. Jones," and if it will not sell for that amount, we will wreck the old building and use it in erecting the new one."

Rev. Jones also states that he is planning a great revival for the Baptist work at Thorsby this summer. He will have with him the Rev. James Allen Smith, of Decatur. The meetwill begin the second Sunday in August.

ALABAMA EDITORS WILL TAKE TRIP

Dothan, Ala., April 22.—Alabama editors are now turning their attention to New York and to Canada. On May 10 they will assemble at Columbus, Georgia, and start on the annual convention cruise of the Alabama Press Association, according to Horace Hall, of the Dothan Eagle, who is convention secretary of the Association.

The party will go from Columbus to Savannah where on the following afternoon they will sail on "The City of Birmingham" for New York, arriving 2 1-2 days later. After three days in New York they will go to Montreal, Canada, where they will spend three days, and then return to New York for another day en route home. They will return from New York to Savannah on "The City of Birmingham" and there board a train for Columbus, and thence home.

Two years ago the Alabama Press Association convention tour was made on "The City of Birmingham" from Savannah to New York and return. Last year Havana, Cuba, was the destination of the Alabama journalists. The trip this year will be like that of 1927 with the exception that the trip from New York to Montreal, Canada, is added.

The purpose of those in charge is to make it the biggest and best meeting in the history of the Alabama Press Association. In addition to being a delightful outing it will be an annual convention at which business will be transacted. Editors are expected to bring their families with them, Mr. Hall said. He us urging all to make their reservations immediately.

KNIGHT'S FERRY IS IN OPERATION AGAIN

Mr. Charley Wyatt was in Clanton Tuesday and stated that he now has the old Knight's ferry below Mitchell Dam in operation again for the convenience of travelers going to and from Rockford and other points in Coosa County. The ferry is at the same old place it has always been, and is in good shape, according to Mr. Wyatt, who has charge of the operations there.

This is the shortest route from Clanton to Rockford. Part of the distance from the ferry to Rockford can now be made on the new state highway which is under construction from Rockford to intersect the Birmingham-Montgomery Highway between Coopers and Verbena.

ED THORNTON ARRESTED IN BIRMINGHAM TUESDAY

Sheriff Collins went to Birmingham Tuesday and arrested Ed Thornton, who was wanted here to answer charges for complicity in the robbery of a store at Mitchell Dam some time last year.

METHODIST REVIVAL CLOSED SUNDAY NIGHT

The revival which has been in progress at Clanton Methodist church for the past week came to a close last Sunday night with a most interesting service in charge of Rev. Huey P. Childs.

The visiting minister was sick for the most part of his visit in Clanton and was unable to preach as he had intended doing. In all he was able to preach six times during the meeting.

Rev. Marshall, who had charge of the singing, and Mrs. Marshall at the piano, proved to be among the best ever in Clanton. Of particular value we would estimate the work of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall with the children and young people.

Thinking in connection with this subject we are reminded of some who declare that the day of interest for children and young people at church is past. They tell us that the kids are interested only in picture shows and the like. We think the work of Mr. Marshall in Clanton last week proves that our children can yet be attracted to the house of God in a spirit of great interest and reverence if only the proper presentation of the Bible is made by a gifted and trained leader.

We have never seen the children of Clanton more interested in a picture show than they were in the meetings which Mr. Marshall conducted for them each evening.

Usually the fellow who declares that the world is going to the devil is doing nothing to keep it from it.

DAMAGE SUIT AGAINST COLLINS DISMISSED FROM COURT

The case in which Emmett Thomas was suing Sheriff Collins for damages was dismissed from the Montgomery County Circuit Court by Judge Leon McCord last week. The case grew out of certain claims made by Thomas against the Chilton sheriff after a raid by officers on his premises several months ago. It was first begun in the courts of Chilton County and later taken to Montgomery County. Judge McCord ruled we understand, that Thomas could not sue on his cause in Montgomery County.

"The Gypsy Rover" At Thorsby School

Interesting Play To Be Presented By Cast of Thorsby Young People

The Community Choral Club of Thorsby will present a play at the Thorsby Grammar School auditorium Saturday night, April 27. The title of the play is "The Gypsy Rover."

This promises to be one of the most interesting presentations of the season. The cast is composed of a number of talented local young people, and they have put forth much effort to bring their work up to the highest standard.

Following is the list of the players who have parts; Miss Genie Collins, Miss Klingehoefer, Jerome Wilson, Marcelle Wilder, Kermit Lowery, Mary Ella Gerald, Eugene Cleckler, Roscoe Maddox, Gertrude Steiner, Robert Dixon, Marvin Davenport, Herchel Lowery, Cecil Each.

The story of the play is as follows: "The Gypsy Rover" is in three acts and is built around the character of Rob, later known as Sir Gilbert Howe, of English nobility. Rob is stolen when an infant, by his nurse, Meg, who later becomes the wife of Marto, a gypsy. Rob grows to manhood amongst the gypsies believing Meg and Marto to be his parents.

It happens one day, while riding with her fiancee, Lord Craven, Lady Constance Martendale becomes lost in the woods. They wander to the gypsy camp where Constance and Rob meet and fall in love at first sight. Craven objects to Rob's attitude, but in a very funny comedy scene with Marto and Sinfo, he is made to tell Sir. Geo., who later comes in search of Constance, that Rob is a charming fellow. In act two Rob goes to the home of Constance and serenades her. The plan to elope but are overheard by Craven who informs Sir Geo., and plans are made to capture Rob. This is successfully accomplished and Rob is thrown into prison, but later escapes.

Two years elapse and Rob has come into his estates, his identity haven been proven by Meg. He becomes a successful composer, a friend of the Prince, and a social lion. Constance has remained true to her love for Rob and on his return to England, he woos and wins her for his wife. As Rob says, "The good fairies have led me to the beautiful country after all, and our story Constance, can end in the proper way, 'They lived happily ever after.' "

The public is cordially invited to attend.

Shelby Violations Aired In Federal Court Trial

Liquor Conspiracy Involving Sheriff and Many Others Is Charged

Birmingham, Ala., April 24.—Shelby County bootleggers testified in Federal Court Monday that they paid $25 and $37.50 a week for protection to deputy sheriffs and that in return they were warned from one to five days in advance of raids on their stills. The statements were made during the trial of Sheriff Curtis J. Falkner and 15 other Shelby County residents, before Judge W. I. Grubb, on charges of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition law.

Witnesses testified that a majority of the reported transactions took place between Hardy Cunningham, a negro bootlegger, of Straven, and Deputy Sheriff Charles Goodwin and I. P. Godwin, a former Shelby County deputy.

All three were named in the original indictment, but Cunningham entered a plea of guilty at the opening of court Monday and appeared on the stand as a government witness.

Testimony of Lee Jordan, 27, who admitted from the stand that he had seen Gilford Benton, a confessed bootlegger and still operator, pay money to Godwin, and then on cross-examination by Defense Attorney Roderick Beddow testifying that Benton had told him to say it, created a sensation in the court room.

Jordan, identified in court testimony as an employe of Benton's, testified that he had seen Goodwin and Godwin on several occasions. However, he failed to identify the two defendants when asked to do so by Beddow.

Jordan appeared as a government witness.

Following his testimony, court was adjourned until 9 a. m., Tuesday, when the government will continue presentation of its testimony.

Benton, who appeared on the stand before Jordan, testified that he had been in the liquor business in the county for several years and during that time had engaged in liquor deals with Goodwin.

The witness further testified that from 1924 until 1927 he paid L. P. Godwin $25 a week for protection of his operations in the district and that in 1927 the "ante" was raised and the money was paid to Goodwin. United States District Attorney, Charles B. Kennamer, who directed the government's case, asked Benton how much he paid weekly to Goodwin.

$37.50 Paid Weekly

"I paid him $37.50 every week," the witness said.

Benton declared from the stand that the payments were made each Tuesday at Rocky Branch, where he waited from 45 minutes to two hours before the officer would arrive.

In some instances, he testified, he did not have sufficient funds to pay the officer and that payment was made in liquor. On cross-examination by former State Senator L. H. Ellis, Benton said he was arrested in August, 1927, by Jeff Falkner and two other officers from the sheriff's office with 32 gallons of liquor. Claude Lambert and Hal Martin were the others, he testified.

Benton said from the witness stand, that the officers demanded $1.50 a barrel for the liquor, or they would prosecute him. The money was not paid and the case, after first being tried with a conviction, is now in a Court of Appeals, the witness testified.

In further testimony Benton said that he talked with Sheriff Curtis J. Falkner "in front of the jail house" at Columbiana. In that conversation, he testified, he asked the sheriff about the protection he was getting and that the sheriff replied that any arrangement Goodwin made would be all right with him.

D. C. Trexler, special prohibition investigator, was brought into the testimony on cross-examination of Benton when the witness said that when the government's investigation of liquor conditions in the county was under way, he went with Trexler and George Littlefield, a convict, interviewing persons who "knew things."

Group Three Bankers Here To-Day

Visitors Will be Given Outing and Barbecue at Mitchell Dam Today

To-day Clanton is host to about 100 visiting bankers from 23 counties of southeast Alabama, composing Group three of the Alabama Bankers Association.

The visiting bankers will assemble at the Wadesonian Theatre at 10:30 a. m. for a short business session. After registration of those in attendance the program calls for invocation by Rev. S. J. Ezell, pastor of Clanton Baptist Church, followed by the address of welcome by Probate Judge L. H. Reynolds. A banker, member of the "Flying Squadron," will make the response to the address of welcome on behalf of the body of visitors.

The morning session will be featured by addresses from Mr. M. F. Jackson on "Co-operation between the banker and the farmer." Mr. Jackson is agricultural products agent of the Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Company.

Dr. James S. Thomas, of the University of Alabama, will deliver an address on "The Banker's Responsibility to his Community."

Following the session at the theatre, the visitors will be taken in charge by the Kiwanis Club of Clanton at 12:30 and shown through the Clanton unit of Alabama Mills, after which they will be carried to Mitchell Dam for a barbecue and inspection of the power plant.

A short business session at the Club House will conclude the day's program, and the visitors will be brought back to Verbena to catch a train for their departure.

"I TOLD YOU SO"

There always has been, and always will be an "I-told-you-so" gang in every town, no matter how large or how small that town may be. If that town happens to have a local product in the race for a permanent place on the roster of one of the major league baseball teams, the gang has a special chance to function, especially if the athletic candidate is making good. If he doesn't show up so well you possibly won't hear much out of the gang, but if he does you can't hear anything else, as a rule.

True to form, Clanton has a gang and a "favorite son," in the person of Jack Hayes, who, at present seems to have cinched second base with the Washington Club of the American League, known in baseball lingo as the "Washington Senators". And, again true to form, that gang was going great guns Wednesday morning, discussing an article that appeared in the sports columns of the Wednesday dailies, which was headed as follows:

"Hayes' Single In Eleventh Beats Athletics." Jack had come to bat in the eleventh inning of Tuesday's game with the Philadelphia Athletics in Philadelphia and saved the day for Washington with a clean hit that sent two scores across the home plate and beat Philadelphia. That was about all there was said about it, but that was about all the gang saw in the morning papers, and it set 'em afire.

Jack Hayes has been making a great fight during the spring training season to hold down the position of second baseman for the Senators and, since his hitting has improved so wonderfully, he seems to be good enough to "stick" this season. He has always been rated a good man in the infield, and lately his hard work and patience is about to be rewarded. Walter Johnson, the new manager of the Senators, has let it be known that he considers Jack one of the best, if not the best of the younger group of baseball players who have broken into the majors in recent years. As the management of the Washington club is building up a strong team of young players just now, and with the record he has been making of late, Jack's chances of handling the position are exceedingly bright.

We are with him to the limit, always pulling for him when the going is hard, and ready to rejoice and to boost him on when good fortune is his. We, along with the other "I-told-you-soers" and local Jack Hayes supporters, hope for a bright future for him in his chosen profession.

WINS HIGHEST HONOR AT THE CHILTON COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL

A very distinct honor has been placed upon Miss Clara Mae Popwell by the faculty of the Chilton County High School. She has won highest honor in academic work in the school, based on four year's attendance. This is a record of which anyone might be justly proud.

Miss Clara Mae Popwell is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Popwell of Clanton. For the four years she made an average of 86.8, and because of the fact that she led her class by a margin of 3.2, she has been chosen as valedictorian for the class of 1929.

Officers Busy With Violators Sunday

One Negro, When Pursued, Threw His Jug of Liquor Into A Well

Last Sunday's operations of the county, city and state officers here resulted in the arrest of two negroes and one white man; one negro got away from the officers, but a charge was entered against him and the officers are on his trail.

Sunday morning Sheriff Collins and Deputy Murrah went out to the home of Will Bohannon in Frog Level. A search of the home revealed that liquor was there, but as the officers were searching the house Will pitched the liquor, three quarts, out at the window to Jesse Bohannon, and Jesse threw the whiskey in a well. The well was about full of water, so the officers had no trouble in recovering the whiskey. The two negroes were arrested and brought to jail. They were released later in the day on bonds of $300 each.

Deputy Culp and Carl Boockholdt, city policeman, raided the home of John Henderson, another negro in Frog Level, Sunday afternoon, and found 21 small bottles of home brew and one quart bottle. While the officers were searching the house they looked around for John and saw him going through the field toward the woods. Boockholdt tried to catch him but he beat him to the woods. A charge of violating the prohibition law was entered against Henderson, and the officers are on the look out for him.

Chief Walter K. McAdory of the State Law Enforcement Department was on his way from Montgomery to Birmingham last Sunday evening. On the highway between Jemison and Oak Grove church he arrested Marvin Armstrong and placed the charge of driving a car while intoxicated against him. Mr. McAdory carried Armstrong to Calera and put him in the calliboose there and phoned to Sheriff Collins at Clanton. Sheriff Collins went up there and got him and brought him to the home of Will Shaw above Jemison, where Armstrong made bond and was released. His bond was set at $200. Armstrong's home is on the old Montevallo road.

Prof. J. D. Griffin, principal of Isabella Vocational School, was in Clanton Tuesday.

All-Day Singing At High School Sunday

Vaughan Quartet Will Put On Concert Here and at Maplesville

Now, listen, singers and music lovers of Chilton County. Here comes the big sensation of the year. You have been looking and waiting for it; so here it is. Mr. Herbert W. Lowery, president of the Chilton County (Modern) Singing Convention, announces that the 1929 spring session of this convention will meet at the county high school auditorium in Clanton on next Sunday, April 28.

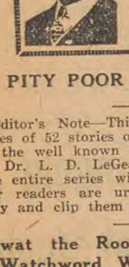
In making this announcement Mr. Lowery says: "Our time for advertising is limited, but we intend for the folks to know about it any way. So I am expecting The Union-Banner and Chilton County News to spread the news and let everybody know about this big event at once. I have closed an engagement with Mr. G. K. Vaughan of Lawrenceburg, Tenn., wherein the Vaughan Quartet has agreed to be with us. This quartet will also put on a concert at the high school auditorium Friday night, April 26th, and one at Maplesville, Saturday night, April 27th. You have already heard the Vaughn Quartet and you know what they can do. This is one of the best buch of singers in the South (apologies to Jesse Baker and Bill Culp), and no one who enjoys real high class singing can afford to miss these concerts and this all day singing.

"Services will begin Sunday at 10 o'clock sharp. Besides the Vaughn Quartet we are expecting many other good singers. Invitations have been extended to the following, and it is certain that some or probably all of them will be present: B. B. Beall, J. R. Baxter, Jr., Ferris Shaw, Jno. M. Dye, Akins Collins, Homer Dye and others. Most all of the local singers of the county, of course will be there and do their part in making this the greatest singing we have ever had.

"Bring your lunch as there will not be a public table spread. Bring your new 1929 song books. Let's make this the biggest and best singing of the season. And do not forget the concerts at the high school and at Maplesville Friday night and Saturday night. The concert at Clanton is sponsored by Circle No. 5 W. M. S., and the one at Maplesville is sponsored by the W. M. U. Admission at each place will be 20c and 35c. Their part of the proceeds from these concerts will be the only means the Vaughn Quartet will have of making their expense for the trip down here, so don't fail them. And when you hear them in the concerts you will certainly want to hear them again Sunday at the county high school building, as well as the other good singers who will be there. Yours sincerely.—Herbert W. Lowery."

BUD JONES HERE

Mr. W. W. (Bud) Jones of Auburn was here the first of this week looking after the gathering of strawberries and other activities on his farms near Clanton. Everybody who spoke to Mr. Jones asked if he had come back to stay, but he always answered "No." Mr. Jones said that he liked Auburn fine and that he was making more there than he could in Clanton, but that somehow there was an attraction around here that caused him to kindly want to come back home where he could see all his old friends once in a while. We want Mr. Jones to stay where he can do best, but at the same time we hate for Clanton to be without the good influence and prestige of a fine citizen like Bud Jones. We hope that he soon decides to come back to Clanton to stay.



OFFICIALS CERTAIN OF HELP FROM U.S. FOR FLOOD VICTIMS

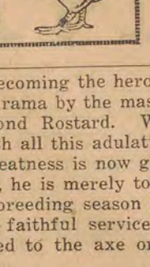
Montgomery, April 23.—Indications are that Congress will provide sufficient financial aid to reconstruct the highways and bridges in Alabama destroyed by the floods, Col. Woolsey Finnell, state highway director, declared on his return from Washington.



Col. Finnell submitted to Alabama congressmen and officials of the United States Bureau of Public Roads estimates of the probable cost of rebuilding the state's highways.

Alabama congressmen are preparing a bill that would provide $750,000 for restoration of federal aid highways and bridges in the state, he said. The government already has indicated that it would bear half of the expense of repairing these road projects.

By Dr. L. D. LeGear, V.S., St. Louis, Mo.

Dr. LeGear is a graduate of the Ontario Veterinary College, 1892. Thirty-six years of veterinary practice on diseases of live stock and poultry. Eminent authority on poultry and stock raising. Nationally known poultry breeder. Noted author and lecturer.

PITY POOR CHANTICLEER

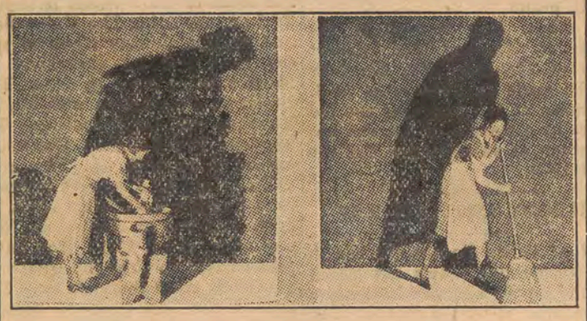
Editor's Note—This is another story in a series of 52 stories on poultry raising written by the well known national poultry authority, Dr. L. D. LeGear, V. S., of St. Louis. The entire series will appear in this paper. Our readers are urged to read them carefully and clip them out for future reference.

"Swat the Rooster" Is Now The Watchword With Poultrymen As The Breeding Season Comes to an End.

The old expression, "Cock-o'-the Walk," doesn't mean as much now as it once did. In former times, Sir Chanticleer strutted about with all the insolence of one whose indispensability could not be questioned. He became the central figure of many a legend, even to becoming the hero of a great fanciful drama by the master playwright, Edmond Rostard. Well he might srut with all this adulation, but his day of greatness is now gone forever. At best, he is merely tolerated during the breeding season and as a reward for faithful service he is then condemned to the axe or to exile.

For this, the one time supreme dictator of barnyard society must lay the blame on fairly recent scientific discovery. Like the musician who sees his livelihood threatened by the Vitaphone and Movietone, the ex-sultan of chickendom now finds himself in a very precarious position. My investigations on my experimental farm prove to me that all roosters should be removed from the flock as soon as the breeding season is over. They should then be comfortably housed or sent to the butcher. I am convinced that fully $50,000,000 is lost every year by poultry raisers who, through carelessness or because they do not know any better, allow roosters to run with the flock out of breeding season.

The rooster's part in poultry raising is merely to fertilize the eggs intended for hatching. Hens will lay just as well with no male birds present, as when they are. Some poultrymen contend they lay even better without male birds. Furthermore, an infertile egg will keep much longer than a fertile one.



The fertilization of eggs causes them to spoil much more quickly than they would if not fertilized, especially in hot weather. Heat causes the germ in the egg to grow and as as soon as such growth starts, the egg is no longer fit for use as food. On the other hand, I have fully demonstrated the keeping qualities of infertile eggs by keeping them in incubators for varying lengths of time. I have tested such eggs after the tenth day of incubation and found them still comparatively fresh. Had they been fertile, they would have been completely spoiled after two or three days in the incubator. In warm weather, fertile eggs will spoil almost as quickly as they will in an incubator or under a setting hen unless they are kept in a cool dry place.

Eggs should be gathered twice a day in hot weather and marketed at least twice a week. Nests should be kept in a clean dry place and the litter in them should be frequently renewed to insure cleanliness and to help keep down vermin. Small, soiled and deformed eggs or those that are off color should be kept for home use. Eggs of good color, uniform size, and above all, those that are not fertile command the best prices.

So many of the stations where eggs are bought now conduct tests for fertility that their sale is the more reason for segregating or butchering the rooster as soon as his period of usefulness is over. As soon as one breeding season is over, therefore, all male birds should be put in comfortable pens to themselves or should be marketed for table use. Any poultryman who is not already practicing this plan of handling the male birds of his flock is losing money through his old-fashioned methods and will be well repaid for adopting more up-to-date practices.

The Labor Costs of Wives

Life, Health, Good Looks

Electric current is in three out of every four American homes.

Why then do women wield brooms and stoke stoves? Why do they work with too little light? Why do they bend over old-fashioned tubs? Why do they run sewing machines by foot power, and swelter for lack of electric fans?

Why is the home backward electrically as compared with the factory?

Because factory costs mean success or failure, while the measure of the labor costs of a wife are only life, health and good looks.

Suppose wives were in direct competition, like manufacturers. Suppose the labor costs of all homes were published. Suppose the woman whose hours, and health, and good looks are being needlessly wasted could see her life charted against the life of the woman who has every electrical help?

Any woman who does any task electricity can do is working for a few cents a day

ELECTRICITY IS CHEAP NOW—

High School News

Everything is down to real earnest work preparatory for commencement season. We have some very interesting plays in the making, and all the characters are working every afternoon nad night in order that they may learn their parts well. Miss Bernice Williams assisted by Miss Sarah Head, is coaching the Senior II play, entitled, "Kicked Out of College" and Miss Robbie Sawyer, assisted by Miss Annie Laurie Clay is coaching the Senior III play, entitled "The Road to the City." These are excellent plays, and we trust will please our visitors. The senior II play will be Friday night, May 10th, and the Senior III play will be Friday night, May 17th. Mrs. Washington's music recital will be Friday night, May 3rd. Mrs. Washington has done some splendid work this year, and we are looking forward to this recital. She has in addition to her regular music department, organized a very enthusiastic volunteer music choral club. We have some very good talent in our school along that line.

A special faculty meeting was held last week. The high school records for the past four years were inspected for the purpose of learning who the senior valedictorian and salutatorian would be. This as you know is based on a four-year attendance in the same school. We found after carefully going over every record that Clara Mae Popwell made the highest average which was 86.8 followed by Vernon Baker with an average of 83.6, followed by Pauline Lawrence with an average of 80.5. Clara Mae is therefore our valedictorian, and Vernon is our salutatorian.

We are fortunate in securing two of the most popular men in the state to take part on our commencement program, Dr. C. C. Anderson, Presbyterian Church, Montogmery will deliver the commencement sermon, Dr. E. M. Wright, State Normal School, Troy, will deliver the graduating address. The public is cordially invited to attend all these exercises.

Monday the 15th, Mr. Childs and Mr. and Mrs. Marshall took charge of the chapel period. Mr. Childs read the scripture and then Mr. and Mrs. Marshall played several piano and accordion solos for us.

Wednesday Mr. and Mrs. Marshall, Mr. Childs and Mr. Frank Childs visited our school again. Mr. and Mrs. Marshall entertained us with piano and accordion solos. Mr. Marshall sang several negro songs and he and his wife played a duet.

The Juniors entertained the Seniors Friday night with a picnic at "Lover's Lane." The chaperones were Mr. and Mrs. O. V. Bruner, Misses Sawyer, Clay, Head, Key, Williams, Wells, and Mr. Knox.

Mrs. Bruner took her Home Economics class on a hike Tuesday morning at the regular Home Economic period.

UNUSED LAND IS GOOD FOR TIMBER

Auburn, Ala., April 23.—Opportunity for increasing the annual income from timber in Alabama is foreseen by Otto Brown, extension forester at Auburn, in a review of the forestry situation.

"Slightly more than two-thirds of the land area in Alabama," said Mr. Brown, "is neither cultivated nor pastured. Farmers own nearly seven million acres of this land, it being almost exactly equal in size to the area they cultivate. Because of economic developments this area is increasing rather than decreasing. Since most of it is not adapted to cultivation it should be utilized for timber."

Mr. Brown explained that one reason for prosperity in America is an abundant supply of raw materials, of which wood is an essential. Agriculturally and industrially it is used more widely than either cotton or iron, he said.

While this is true it is being cut more than four times as fast as it is being grown in Alabama and in the nation, he added.

"Because of our long growing season, high rainfall, comparatively fertile soils, and abundance of valuable timber species," added Mr. Brown, "opportunities for tree growth in Alabama are as good as anywhere in the world. The rapid migration into Alabama at this time of wood-using industries is proof that this is a recognized fact."

Mr. Brown declared that forest fire prevention is essential to maximum returns from timber. In addition it should be cut or harvested judiciously. At first trees should oe thick to encourage height growth and eliminate knots. They should be kept thick at all times but never thick enough to prevent growth. For this reason some should be cut each year. In cutting timber enough trees of the right kinds should be left to produce seed for another crop.

Mr. Arthur Littlejohn is in Clanton on a visit to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Littlejohn. Arthur is living in Dearborn, Michigan, where he is employed by an airplane company, which is a division of the Ford Motor Company.

President Appeals For Obedience of All Laws

Hoover, In Address Before Associated Press, Says Criminal Acts in U. S. Far More In Number Than in Great Britain

New York, April 22.—President Hoover stated Monday that in many large American cities murder can apparently be committed with impunity and he appealed for obedience to laws of all kinds.

Speaking at the annual luncheon of The Associated Press, the president said in his first public address since his inauguration that robbery and burglary is far commoner here than in Great Britain and that even such premeditated crimes as embezzlement and forgery our record stands no comparison with stable nations.

"No part of the country, rural or urban, is immune," he said. "Life and property are relatively more unsafe than in any other civilized country in the world."

He stated that he considered enforcement and obedience to the laws the dominant issue before the American people.

Mr. Hoover made it plain early in his address that his concern was with all laws, with law itself, as law, and not particularly with the eighteenth amendment or any single piece of legislation.

"In order to dispel certain illusions in the public mind on the subject," he said, "let me say at once that while violations of law have been increased by inclusion of crimes under the eighteenth amendment and by the vast sums that are poured into the hands of the criminal classes by the patronage of illicit liquor by otherwise responsible citizens, yet this is but one segment of our problem. I have purposely cited the extent of murder, burglary, robbery, forgery and embezzlement, for but a small percentage of these can be attributed to the eighteenth amendment."

The president suggested as a crime determent that newspaper publishers invest the acts of enforcement officers with some of the glamor of romance and heroism "which our American imaginative minds throw around those who break the law."

Segregate Degenerates

As he did in his inaugural address seven weeks ago, the president placed squarely before the people their responsibility in the matter of law observance and said the real problem was to awaken the consciousness, the moral sense, of the citizen and, if necessary, to segregate where they could do no future harm, "degenerate minds," which have not the intellegence and the moral instinct to obey the law as a matter of conscience.

"If a law is wrong, its rigid enforcement is the surest guaranty of its repeal," he said. "If it is right, its enforcement is the quickest method of compelling respect for it."

Inefficiency Cited

For his own administration, the chief pledged a strengthening of the law enforcement agencies by orderly processes, week by week, month by month, year by year, by steady pressure, steady weeding out of incapable and negligent officials, by promotion and recognition for those who do their duty, and by the most rigid scrutiny of the records and mental attitudes of all persons suggested by appointment to official posts in the law enforcement machinery.

YOUNG MEN AND WOMEN WHO THINK CLEARLY THE GREATEST DEMAND OF AMERICAN BUSINESS

Bankers Association President Gives the Five Essentials of Sound Thinking in Business—Greater Opportunity Than Ever Before for Young People With Educational Training and Power to Analyze Problems.

By CRAIG B. HAZLEWOOD
President American Bankers Association

ONLY half a century ago Michael Pupin, a shepherd boy, guarded his flocks by night among the fields of Serbia. Thieves often lurked in the bordering cornfields awaiting an opportunity to make off with a part of the herd. Serbian boys were taught a method of signalling one another for warning and help. Each carried a knife with a long wooden handle which he would thrust deep into the ground and in case cattle thieves approached he would strike the wooden handle. The sound would be transmitted through the ground to other boys some distance away who could hear and interpret the message.

CRAIG B. HAZLEWOOD

"Why is it," Pupin asked his mother, "that we can signal this way? Why is it the sound can be heard through the ground, but not through the air? Why is it the signals can be heard in the pasture land so much better than in the plowed fields?" The boy's mother could not answer his questions, nor could the village teacher. However, having an eager mind and great determination, the boy decided to go to America, where he might win an education and find out the answers to these and other perplexing questions. Hundreds of other boys under the same circumstances and with the same set of conditions merely accepted these things without once questioning them just because they had always done them that way.

The Land of Education and Success

So a penniless immigrant boy from Serbia at the age of fifteen landed in New York in 1874 and, years later, having worked his way through Columbia University, concentrated the wonder and simplicity of his mind upon the problem of sound, which had puzzled him as a shepherd boy. The results of his thinking—what he has accomplished for the long distance telephone and for radio communication by his inventions—are known the world over. "If during the past twenty-two years this company had been compelled to do without one invention of Michael Pupin," an official of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company once said, "and yet give the same service it is giving today it would have had to spend at least $100,000,000 more than it has expended."

These inventions, in which millions of dollars of capital have been invested, were the result of the thinking of a mere country lad who had the simplicity to wonder, the determination to know and the power to apply what he learned.

Stimulating the imagination and thinking is the greatest purpose of education. What American business needs more than anything else is young men and women to think—individuals who are not mentally anchored to tradition, who do not merely appropriate other people's ideas, but who are hard, purposeful thinkers, independent and unprejudiced, with the ability to concentrate and strike straight for the heart of a problem.

Business Needs Folk Who Think

America has astounded the world by its readiness in casting aside traditional viewpoints, disregarding traditional difficulties and pioneering new shortcut formulas in the realm of business. Business is undergoing epochal changes.

Business problems are crowding in upon us so rapidly that the executive knows not where to look for adequate help or relief. With the enormous increase in size and intricacy of business affairs the problems have become so complicated and the mass of information necessary to their solution so great that the "days are not long enough." The demand for managerial and executive ability is rushing ahead—the opportunity for young men and women who have the professional training and who develop genuine thinking power is greater than ever.

All business feels the same crying need for the men who see clearly and think conclusively. Wherever we look—manufacturing, wholesaling, retailing, banking, financing—new forces are at work. Vast movements are under way and executives are seeking light upon perplexing problems daily.

Let us consider briefly the five essentials of a sound thinker. If I were looking for a young man of exceptional promise I should hope, first, to find in him the simplicity to wonder. Every great advancement in business has been made by men who dared to wonder, who had the courage to inquire into present procedure and who had the audacity to ask whether something that had been done a certain way for a long time might not be wrong. Although the history of America's progress from its very discovery to the present time has shown the value of an inquiring mind, there is still an inevitable tendency in most men to accept in a docile manner the opinions, methods, supposed facts, procedures and processes of the past. With due reverence to the effort, the spirit, the accomplishments of the past, let us make it our rule that everything be looked at with the clear questioning mind of the scientist.

Business Requires an Open Mind

Second, among the essentials for sound thinking I would write down an open mind. We have mentioned freeing our minds from the influence of tradition. Let us think also without prejudice of personal feelings, desires or consequence. Let us seek only the truth. Mere surface reasoning must be discounted. Old "can'ts" and "don'ts" must be thrown into the discard. A man who has an open mind will do a great many things because he doesn't know they can't be done.

The third essential to sound thinking is knowledge—a thorough, comprehensive understanding of all the factors involved in a problem. It has been said that most problems answer themselves when the facts have been gathered. A well known student and teacher of business describes the method of attacking a problem as tearing it down, reassembling the problem and drawing the conclusion. There can be nothing but guess work or intuition unless the unknown quantities are discovered.

As a fourth essential sound thinking requires the capacity to generalize. How often we have seen men sweating and confused before a mass of details which they were utterly unable to classify and crystallize. We have the problem of sorting out the relevant, attaining a perspective and reaching a conclusion that can be defended against any attack. To certain minds this procedure comes naturally; to others training in the solution of complicated problems points the way out.

The Time for Action

Fifth among the essentials of sound thinking is the power to apply. A few individuals have minds that travel at random or in circles. Some have minds that even refuse to budge. But there are still others who naturally or through training have minds that can be directed straight through to the practical application of their thoughts. They refuse to compromise or to be thwarted in purpose before definite application of their ideas has been achieved.

It is possible, I believe, for young people to train themselves to an inquisitive attitude, an open mind and the ability to classify and interpret material step by step from the beginning of a problem to its final solution and application. Here, then, is the thought I would leave—the paramount need of business is sound thinking. Some may think I have overstated the case, have set too high a standard. They may feel that they are merely cogs in a machine. That, too, is a part of the problem. The only way to solve that is to find time and place in the day's work for thinking.

S. J. M. Webb of Mulberry, member of the county board of education, was a visitor to Clanton Tuesday.

SCHOOL SAVINGS BANKING MOVEMENT REACHES IMPRESSIVE PROPORTIONS

Almost 14,000 of America's schools now have school savings banking plans in operation, and about four million pupils are learning systematic savings through this type of thrift, with deposits in excess of $26,000,000, recent reports of the American Bankers Association's Savings Bank Division show. The schools included in the reports are attended by 4,609,825 pupils, of whom 3,980,237 are participants in the school savings banking plans as depositors. During the year these pupils received interest in the amount of $[illegible] 7,610 on their deposits.

The reports gathered by the association also show that there are 38 cities in the United States in which a full 100 per cent of the grammar school enrollment is participating in school savings banking. The figures covering high schools show that in 47 cities 100 per cent of the attendance in this class are school savers.

S. E. NORTON, Manager

The strawberry crop at Thorsby this season is a surprise to everybody connected with it. The plants were never so prolific, nor so many of the berries large. On Monday of this week 4,150 crates of 24 quarts each were gathered, making 13 carloads, the last one rolling out at 3 a. m. Tuesday, making the 45th carload for this season during the first ten days. The weather so far has been ideal, not too hot and sufficient rain to keep the plants in good condition. From present indications it is estimated that upwards of 100 cars will be loaded at Thorsby this season.

Mrs. Mamie Smith of Clanton was the guest of Mrs. Ollie Tagg last Thursday.

Mr. Jim Pate and daughter, Roma Lee, with Juanita and Lucille Each, motored to Wetumpka last Sunday afternoon to see Hollis Pate.

Thorsby Institute has recently completed the installation of a second well with motor driven pump in such close proximity to the one they have had for some time that a single lever will turn the switch to operate either pump; thus insuring a more permanent water supply.

Fletcher Wade, a well known negro of Thorsby, was the victim of some kind of stroke while speaking at a missionary meeting of colored people last Sunday afternoon. With the words "I could say a great deal more if there were time" it was noticed that he was in distress. His son went to him and assisted him to a chair. He was soon taken to a neighboring house and passed away very soon without another word. His funeral was held Tuesday afternoon at Pine Hill church.

Dr. and Mrs. Frank Smith with their grown daughter and a young son of Bessemer were visitors in Thorsby Sunday afternoon at the homes of Mr. and Mrs. Olaf Schive and Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Norton. They will be remembered by many people of Thorsby and vicinity. Dr. Smith was located here in 1913-14, and is now in the employ of the T. C. I. Co., as a physician, located at Bessemer.

Mr. and Mrs. Yancey M. Kelly and daughter, Audrey, of Birmingham, were visitors at Thorsby Institute Dormitory and the Norton home Sunday. They brought with them Misses Ruth Gerald and Esther Johnson.

Miss Lois Hughes, also a student at Thorsby Institute visited Miss Hazel Maddox for the week end.

Mrs. T. W. Robinson is spending a few weeks with her daughter, Mrs. C. E. Bice, at Palatka, Florida.

Mrs. Herbert Peterson of Birmingham is visiting friends in Thorsby a few days this week.

At the recent meeting of Thorsby Institute Board of Trustees, it was unanimously voted to honor the memory of Mrs. J. L. Foss, one of the pioneer settlers of Thorsby, by naming for her a tree on Thorsby Institute Campus which she planted nearly thirty years ago and cared for many years. This Marie Foss Tree is now a large cedar that stands near the corner of Montgomery road and Concordia Avenue, on ground formerly occupied by the Foss home.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Thompson of Birmingham were visitors in Thorsby Sunday.

Miss Margaret Butler who has been in Birmingham for some time is at home for an indefinite stay.

Mr. John Lessley of Birmingham visited with friends in Thorsby Sunday.

Mrs. Wm. Foss who has been visiting the Carl Petersen family for several weeks returned to her home in Chicago last Friday.

Mr. Guy Sharp and the Misses Amy and Ruby Jasperson of Birmingham motored to Thorsby Sunday and spent several hours with friends here.

Mrs. Anna Villadsen and son, Arthur, motored to Birmingham Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Grady, grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. David Paxson, and their great grandchildren, Clenesther and Billy Shimmuel, all of Birmingham, visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paxson Sunday.

Miss Esther Johnson of Birmingham was a visitor at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Johnson.

Mrs. N. C. Petersen and children, Mavis and Norman, are spending several weeks with Mrs. Petersen's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. Shannon, of West Point, Ga.

Mr. David Paxson celebrated his 77th birthday Tuesday.

The Ladies Guild will meet with Misses Jenkins and Leech at the Dormitory this week, Thursday, April 25.

Mrs. B. T. Franklin, who has been ill for several months is slowly improving. She is able to enjoy her friends visiting her now. Her son, Horace G. Franklin, has gone back to Louisville, Ky., to resume his work as medical student in the University of Kentucky, but her daughter, Mrs. Howard S. Higdon, of Lauret Hill, Fla., is still with her.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lenoir of Jemison were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. B. T. Franklin Sunday.

Miss Brown Russel led the Christian Endeavor meeting Sunday evening. The meeting was on "The World's Greatest Wonder—The Wonder of the Bible."

The topic was sub-divided as follows:

"Acknowledgment of the wonder of the Bible."

The origin of the Bible, a wonder."

"Wonder in Application."

"Its Universal Interest."

The meeting was very good. The delegates to the State Convention at Dothan read their reports to the society.

The Senior class of Thorsby Institute enjoyed a ride to Lock 12 last Friday afternoon. They had a picnic supper and enjoyed a fine time. There are fourteen in the Senior Class this year. They have started to practice their Senior play which will be given May 18.

At The Alabama Theatre, Birmingham, next Week

Edna Ferber's famous best seller, "Show Boat," which was dramatized by Flo Ziegfield for the stage and made into a beautiful movietone motion picture by Universal, is announced for the Alabama Theatre, Birmingham, for the week of April 29, the first of a series of tremendously big pictures to be shown at Alabama's most beautiful theatre during the coming weeks.

The engagement of "Show Boat" in Birmingham at popular prices, marks the inauguration of a policy of "The Whole Show on the Screen" at the Alabama. Twenty-five of the leading theatres of the country will adopt the "Sound" program exclusively at the same time. Throughout the nation, the public has turned to the "talkies" for their best entertainment, and the Alabama will henceforth present nothing but the foremost attractions of this modern type.

The book by Miss Ferber has been read by millions, and Flo Ziegfield's stage play has been running on Broadway for more than a year, and the picture made by Universal is said to be one of the most pretentious offerings yet made.

All the beauty of the Ferber story is preserved in it, with a prologue taken from the Ziegfield play, consisting of Aunt Jemima's songs, "Hey Fellows" and "Come on, Folks," Helen Morgan's songs, "Can't Help Lovin' That Man" and "Bill," and Jules Bledsoe's never-to-be-forgotten "Ol' Man River."

In the picture, the principal parts are played by Laura LaPlante as Magnolia, Joseph Schildkraut as Gaylord Ravenel, Otis Harlan as Captain Andy Hawks and Emily Fitzroy as Parthenia Ann Hawks. Directed by Harry A. Pollard, a Kentucky boy, who was raised near the sluggish Mississippi and who has imbibed the romance and beauty of the Father of Waters, the glamour of the old showboat days is said to be perfectly preserved in the picture.

"Showboat" recently had its world premiere in Miami, Fla., (the first time a motion picture has been presented to the world for the first time outside of Hollywood or New York), in the fifteen days it ran there. This, incidentally, is the longest run any picture has ever enjoyed in Miami.

The showing at the Alabama Theatre is the first time the picture has ever been shown in the Southeast. Its New York premiere was recently held on Broadway at $11 a seat, and hundreds were turned away. It is said to be the motion picture sensation of the season.

The engagement at the Alabama is for the week of April 29, and will be exactly as shown in New York.

TEMPERANCE TREES

Evanston, Ill., April 24.—"As these two trees grow and spread their branches, so the cause of temperance shall grow and spread throughout the world."

The late Frances E. Williard, founder of the W. C. T. U., spoke these words 55 years ago as she planted two small horse chestnut trees behind Rest Cottage, her home in this city.

The trees took root and grew rapidly. In time they became known as the Temperance Trees because of the custom of posting bulletins on them announcing the progress of prohibition in various states.

Recently they began to show signs of decay. Because of their connection with Miss Williard and their dedication as symbols of the cause of temperance, officials of the W. C. T. U. were anxious to save them. Davey tree experts found the areas of decay extensive and a major operation necessary. The trees are recovering and should live for several generations.

Foursquare Revival is Drawing Larger Crowds

Hundreds Unable To Get In To Hear Noted Trumpeting Evangelist; Meeting To Run All This Week.

The Foursquare Gospel is being received with joy in Clanton. The people and churches are cooperating in a wonderful manner. Sister Locy is bringing messages and illustrated sermons that are stirring the whole county, and nightly many drive for miles, some making 200-mile drives to hear the Word of God.

The evangelist said last night that she would preach two sermons next Sunday night, that everyone might have a chance to hear and see the illustrated message. The first message Sunday night will be at 7:00 o'clock; the crowd will be dismissed and the overflow crowd let in and the second message preached at 8:15. All make arrangements to come, as this provision has been made to accomodate you. Last Sunday night the courthouse began to fill at 6:00 o'clock, with no standing room left at 7:00.

Nightly the altars are filled with men and women who answer the call to give their hearts to God. Clanton and surrounding country feel that God has sent this messenger to us, and are giving her their hearty support.

Sister Locy has been welcomed to some of the largest cities, where she has preached to thousands, having as high as 18 ministers come in and help her, bringing with them their congregations, choirs and musicians. Some have asked that the evangelist remain for another week, as the interest is growing nightly. Services for the remainder of the week will be as follows:

Thursday night—"Excuse Me," the message that has brought out thousands.

Friday night—"Fighting His Way To Hell"—an illustrated message. Be sure to see and hear this one.

Saturday night—"The Bag With Holes." Sister Locy wants everyone who needs help along financial lines to hear this. If you have a hard time paying your bills, come along, for she will tell you how to make money, keep it, get rich and stay rich.

Sunday afternoon, 2:30 — "The Marriage of the Lamb." This is a wonderful, interesting topic.

Sunday night—"When God Uses An Ax." Be sure to come to this illustrated message, as all will be able to see and hear it.

Make this the biggest week of the campaign. Tell your friends! Fill your cars! And come early!

EX-STATE OFFICERS DEFEND THEMSELVES OF CHARGES

Two say Women's auto was Fired on With Harmless Intent.

Montgomery, April 23—In a joint statement Tuesday, C. C. Sealey and C. G. Cargill, whose commissions as special agents for the attorney general were revoked by Gov. Graves defended their action in firing at the tires of an automobile occupied by two Montgomery school teachers as the women are said to have disregarded their command to halt.

"We believe we will be vindicated, as there was no intent to harm anyone," the statement said. "We shot the tires as a last resort to stop a car which we believed to contain liquor. We did not know the car was occupied by two young women until after they had reached the home of a friend. We shot the tires after running some distance in an effort to overtake the car, which was gaining on us when we pulled our pistols. At no time did we attempt to fire in the car."

THE ELBA CLIPPER COMES BACK AGAIN

We welcome The Elba Clipper back again among our newspaper exchanges. Last week's paper was the first from Elba since the great flood of March 14 and 15.

It is most gratifying to note in The Clipper a fine spirit of optimism among the people of the flooded district to rebuild their town and community upon the ruins left by the flood. "Ready to serve you again" is sounded in advertisements from many business firms of the stricken city. "A Bigger and Better Elba" is the slogan proclaimed as they return to their homes and face the tremendous task of rebuilding and rehabilitation.

In his first editorial since the flood, editor R. C. Bryan gives a wonderful and touching portrayal of the gratitude of his people for the generosity, sympathy and assistance which has been poured out to them from every corner of the State of Alabama.

We read with special interest in this issue of The Clipper the stories of the flood by C. B. McDowell, member of The Clipper staff, and from the pen of Judge James A. Carnley.

FARMER NOT NEGLECTED

Should the Seventy-first Congress accomplish what now happily seems to be the expected and enact a farm relief bill free of the extravagances of such proposals in the past it will cap the climax of a long list of farm relief measures that have been put on the books for the last fifteen years. Indeed, no less than twenty such measures have been passed by congress, while the professional agitators have been clamoring for direct gifts from the treasury; and it is interesting to note that the most important of the net results of these efforts has been to make money available to the farmer at rates cheaper than to any other class of borrowers in the country. The situation is admirably summarized by George E. Anderson in the current issue of The Commonweal, in which the writer does away with the fallacy that the agricultural interests have been neglected by our national legislators, even if they have not been granted all some of their spokesmen have asked.

Financial aid has been extended the agricultural producer through three different agencies; the farm loan banks, capitalized partly by the government, although most of the capital has been repaid; the Joint Stock Land Banks, organized by the government to take care of loans running from six months to three years, as distinguished from those running for thirty years. Many years ago, one of the scandals of eastern finance was the heavy investments in western farm mortgages, on which a rate of interest of twelve per cent was not uncommon; and until a much more recent period the farmer has been compelled to pay, seven, eight and even ten per cent for money, in addition to a large commission for obtaining it for him. Since the banks referred to began doing business, money for agriculture has been avilable at less than six per cent, as the spread between the interest on farm loan bonds and the rate charged the borrower was restricted to one per cent, and the bonds sold readily at from 4 to 4 1-2 per cent. As a consequence, while industry has been compelled to go into the market for money at six per cent and upwards, the farmers of the United States during the past year have been securing long term amorization loans at from 5 to 5 1-4 per cent.

The government, therefore, has been able to accomplish a complete transformation in the conditions under which the business of agriculture was carried on, and this in itself is a reform—the result of nonpartism legislative action—whose importance is too frequently overlooked by the political orators. Along another line, namely, that of cooperative organization, the farmer has been able to help himself, and no less than 12,500 farmer organizations are now actively in opperation, some 150 of them doing an annual business ranging from one million to fifty million dollars a year. Despite his successful objection to certain features of the McNary-Haugen bill, President Coolidge always advocated the most generous assistance to activities of this character, and the bill which is now in progress of drafting in Washington is certain to provide liberally for development of the cooperative system.

As for the treatment of agriculture on general principles, one has only to turn to the appropriations for the Department of Agriculture to learn with what a free hand the government has dispensed to make farming more scientifec and therefore more profitable. Even the tariff on farm products has been reasonably adequate; the farmer's chief trouble has not been foreign competition but inability to dispose of his surplus at living rates. With Mr. Hoover in the White House and a sympathetic Congress back of him, the farm problem would seem to stand in a fair way of satisfactory settlement—at least as far as Confress can continue to that end.—Boston Transcript.

Men wonder why the fool moth insist on flying into the flame and then they go out and try to beat the engine to the crossing.—Boston Herald.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

One of the favorite methods of our European rivals for Latin-American trade and of our own so-called "liberals" who constantly seek to discredit America in every way possible in the eyes of the world, is to declare that Uncle Sam has turned imperialist and that he is seeking to dominate Latin-America in his own selfish interest. In view of this constant drive against our interest it is well to note the statement of Victor M. Cutter, president of the United Fruit Company. Mr. Cutter through his business interest and his contact with Latin-America is in position to know something about conditions there and in a recent address on the Carribean countries at a dinner given by the Bond Club of Boston in his honor Mr. Cutter said:

"Our country has been charged with imperialism. It is quite possible that our European trade and banking competitors behold with complacency even if they do not openly or even secretly encourage this propaganda. No one would venture to state that our government or our people are really imperialistic."

It is quite true that we have participated in maintaining law and order in some of the Latin-American countries, usually at the request of their people. It seems equally true that these participations have been sincerely, even if mistakenly, intended to be helpful to nations hampered by lack of financial resources, railways and communications; by lack of experience in self government, educations and means of enforcing federal control.

We have entered and withdrawn from the Caribbean countries many times. It certainly cannot be denied that we have been physically able to conquer and annex these countries at any time during the past fifty years. That we have not done so, that at least four presidents of both parties, and many more Secretaries of State, speaking officially have declared we have no intention of desire to establish an American empire or forcibly annex territory, should be sufficient to convince the most skeptical of the political altruism of the United States, its government and people.

No United States business man or company, engaged in commerce with, or development work in, the Carribean has ever been encouraged or instructed to work for this government with imperialistic intent. Quite the contrary. They have been told to stay at home or go abroad at their peril. Our ventures in foreign trade have never been inspired by our government. We may safely cease discussing imperialism. If we must find some disparaging term to describe the increasing close commercial relations which are inevitable, the most sinister which can be employed is economic penetration.

Mr. Cutter states the case well from our standpoint. We have never been imperialistic toward Latin-America. Had we been so, we could have had as much territory as we needed almost for the asking. Any of the European nations now crying imperialism against us would have done it long ago had such nation been in Uncle Sam's shoes.

The real crow which Europeans have to pick with us with regard to Latin-America is not imperialism but foreign trade. That is where the shoe pinches. Our trade with Latin-America is growing yearly and will continue to grow. There is a reason. The United States is the biggest market which Latin-America has for it's products. The more they sell us the more they are going to buy from us. As Mr. Cutter points out, our imports from Latin-America already exceed our exports, which indicates that they have found us a ready market. So long as we continue to trade with them, to buy and sell in return, this hypocrital "imperialism" cry of our trade rivals will fall on deaf ears, providing of course we expose this false propaganda on every available occasion.

THE SUFFERING SERVANT OF JEHOVAH

LESSON TEXT—Isa. 52:13-53:12
GOLDEN TEXT—With his stripes we are healed.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus' Love for Us.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus' Love for Us.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Our Salvation Cost.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Suffering Savior.

This prophecy is the grand center of the Old Testament. The bond servant of Jehovah with great wisdom gloriously executes the divine purpose at the cost of great suffering.

I. The Servant's Triumph (52:13-15).

1. His wisdom (v. 13).

"He will deal prudently," for his name is "Counsellor" (9:6). He was filled with the spirit of wisdom and understanding (11:2).

2. He shall be exalted (v. 13).

He was to be extolled and magnified because he was the "Mighty God (9:6), even Immanuel." Because of Christ's devotion to His task of redemption, God has highly exalted Him and given Him a name which is above every name (Phil. 2:9).

3. The appearance of the Servan (v. 14).

Because of His marred "visage," He wholly disappointed the expectation of the carnal minds who looked for outward signs of royalty and worldy greatness. Jesus, as Jehovah's servant, was tortured and beaten by men as He went about doing the business committed to him.

4. The issue of His ministry (v. 15).

"He shall sprinkle many nations." This reveals Him as the great High Priest sprinkling the nations with His blood, cleansing them from their sins. Just as the people were astonished with the silence of Jesus in the midst of His shameful treatment, so shall the kings and great men of the earth be dumb before Him when the suffering Servant shall be exalted.

II. The Servant Despised and Rejected (53:1-3).

1. The unbelief of the Jews (v. 1).

(1) They disbelieved the words of the prophets.

(2) They did not recognize the hand of the Lord in the miracles and wonders which He wrought.

2. The origin of the Servant (v. 2).

He sprang out of the stump of Judaism. The sad condition of the people at that time is expressed by "dry corn."

3. The Man of Sorrows (v. 3).

He was afflicted and rejected.

III. The Vicarious Suffering of the Servant (53:4-6).

1. His griefs and sorrows were ours (v. 4). This awful suffering was looked upon by the world as occasioned by sin—"we did esteem Him stricken, smitten of God, and afflicted."

2. He was beaten for us (v. 5). That which was our due was meted out to Him. Observe the words, "wounded." "bruised," "despised," "stripes"—how awful they picture His treatment, and yet "our" shows that His suffering was vicarious.

3. The reason for (v. 6).

All humanity, Jews and Gentiles, had gone astray. God laid upon Him the iniquity of us all.

IV. The Death of the Servant (53:7-9).

1. The strange silence (v. 7).

He opened not His mouth. He went as a lamb to the slaughter. "He answered them never a word, insomuch that the governor marveled greatly" (Matt. 27:14).

2. Unconcern of multitude (v. 8).

They failed to discern the fact that He suffered in their stead.

3. Buried with the wicked and the rich (v. 9).

The prophecy was fulfilled in His crucifixion between two thieves and burial in Joseph's tomb.

V. The Servant's Ultimate Victory (vv. 10-12).

1. His sufferings expressed the divine will (v. 10).

The Lord Himself laid this burden upon Him, and through His sufferings the law was vindicated and redemption was accomplished.

2. A spiritual progeny resulted from His death. (v. 10).

The fundamental law of the universe, which is life out of death, found supreme expression in His death on the cross (John 12:24).

3. Through death shall come to realization His fondest hope (v. 11)

He shall see the travail of His soul and shall be satisfied.

4. The divine reward (v. 12).

The divine Conqueror shall share the spoils of victory.

He Bares Our Sicknesses

When the even was come, they brought unto Him many that were possessed with devils; and He cast out the spirits with His word, and healed all that were sick; that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by Esaias the prophet, saying, Himself took our infirmities, and bare our sicknesses.—Matthew 8:16, 17.

CHILTON COUNTY ABSTRACT CO.
M. D. FOSHEE, Manager

A good business man will not buy a farm or any property without first looking it over to see what it is worth.

However, some will buy or loan money on land without an abstract.

Isn't it equally as foolish to buy a farm without looking it over as to buy it and not know whether the titles are good or not? Without an abstract you do not know where you are getting the land you look at or not.

Before investing in land in any way have an abstract made and be safe.

Let's Go!

Are you ready to "go" after a day's hard work? If you are tired—lack pep—if your skin is not clear—if your appetite is "gone"—you owe it to yourself and friends to try S.S.S.

REMEMBER, in years gone by, when you couldn't wait for mealtime; always hungry; ready to go somewhere—to dances, the theatre or to spend the evening with friends?

But why the change? Possibly, overwork, worry, lack of exercise, sickness or some other cause has reduced your building and sustaining "workers"—the red-blood-cells.

Every cubic millimeter of the normal, healthy human's blood should contain approximately 5,000,000 red corpuscles—those tiny red particles which flow along the blood stream, giving color to the blood; carrying nourishment to the cells of the body, and working against disease.

Thousands of people have a low blood count—to this may be attributed "run-down" systems, pimples and boils, rheumatism, and even more serious ailments.

When you get your red-blood-cells back up to normal, that sluggish let-down feeling, loss of appetite, boils, pimples, skin troubles, and those pains usually called rheumatism, disappear. You get hungry again and you sleep soundly; firm flesh takes the place of that which was once flabby. You feel strong. Your nerves become steady. You throw off diseases.

S.S.S.

You owe it to yourself and friends to give S.S.S. a trial. It helps Nature build rich, red blood—those vitalizing elements in the blood that build and sustain the body.

In building rich, red-blood-cells, S.S.S. improves the processes by which the body is nourished.

For more than 100 years S.S.S. has been helping people regain and retain their strength and charm. Thousands of users have testified to its benefit in unsolicited letters of gratitude.

Made from fresh vegetable drugs, gathered at the proper season of the year, S.S.S. gives to Nature what it needs in making you feel like yourself again.

All Drug Stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

County Farm Agent's Notes

CO-OPERATIVE MARKETING GROWS IN ALABAMA

Auburn, Ala., April 22.—In marketing their products on the cooperative plan farmers in Alabama made steady progress in 1928, as revealed by the annual report of Prof. L. N. Duncan, director of the extension service of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. His report shows that during the year farmers of this State sold cooperatively products for more than $10,000,000.

At the top of the list is cotton of which the Alabama Farm Bureau Cotton Association made sales which amounted to $7,000,000. Hogs added another million dollars, according to county agents.

Considered as a whole, the curb markets of the State came next. This is a form of cooperative marketing in which buyers and sellers participate and the advantages are mutual. Upwards of 20 of these markets were in operation in Alabama last year. Sales amounted to $379,619.

Chickens, turkeys, and other live poultry accounted for $306,360. Marketing live poultry on the cooperative plan is new in Alabama, but has proven a distinct success. Eggs added $60,000, Baldwin being the leading county in cooperative egg marketing. Wool accounted for $67,013. The Black Belt and also Baldwin, Covington, Washington, and Mobile Counties were wool-selling centers.

Other cooperative sales listed are lambs, $24,187; other livestock, $11,925; hay, $8,640; corn, $10,950; seed, $8,700; potatoes, $6,350; and miscellaneous products, $14,812.

Professor Duncan explained that this method of selling is beneficial to farmers and that it is also beneficial to others because it is both economic and efficient.

CORN GROWING DEMONSTRATION IS PLANNED

"Growing hogs, poultry and milkings cows," stated County Agent C. E. Stapp, Clanton, Alabama, today, "are three ways of marketing corn. Our profits and the further expansion of these side lines to our farms in Chilton County," he said, "are limited by the amount of corn we grow at a reasonable cost. Corn grown at a high cost may not return a profit even when fed to the above animals.

"Hog, poultry and dairy production is essential, however, in a well balanced farm program for Chilton County. I am interested, therefore, in seeing more corn grown. We know that high yields per acre usually mean low cost production. High yields," he said, "can only be secured when the plant is furnished a liberal amount of quickly available nitrogen and large amounts of moisture during the fruiting season.

"A soil filled with humus holds moisture and we may expect our best yields from such a soil where a liberal amount of Nitrate of Soda is applied when the corn is from knee to thigh high. To produce corn at a reasonable cost, a yield of 30 to 40 bushels per acre is necessary.

"We are planning this year to conduct a fertilizer demonstration with five acres of corn. This demonstration wil be located on one of our highways," stated Mr. Stapp, County Agent, "so that those interested may easily reach and observe it.

"Accurate records will be kept of al llabor and materials required to produce the crop. The exact location of this demonstration will be called to your attention at a later date," said Mr. Stapp.

NEWS IN BRIEF

In 1928 American export trade reached its highest mark since 1920, the total for the year being $5,129,000,000 which was 5.4 per cent greater than 1927. The average was $427,000,000 per month.

The seventeenth annual summer session of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, will open on June 3. The first half will continue until July 13. Immediately thereafter the second will open on July 15 and continue until August 17, Dean Zebulon Judd has announced.

In his address to Congress President Hoover said that the most progressive movement in all agriculture has been the upbuilding of the farmers' own marketing organizations which now embrace nearly 2,000,000 farmers in membership, and distribute annually $2,500,000 worth of farm products.

THE COTTON PLANT WILL TELL

"Let the cotton plant answer the questions: What kind and what amount of fertilizer should farmers use and when should it be applied to produce the most profitable crops," says County Agent Stapp, Clanton, Alabama, Chilton County.

"As another means of making county agency work helpful to this county we have outlined a cotton fertilizer demonstration in which we are testing the Auburn Method of fertilization," he said. "The cotton test is being conducted by J. B. Parrish and can be observed on the right side of the old road leading from Clanton to Thorsby about 1 1-2 miles out of Thorsby.

"The boll weevil has forced the successful cotton farmer to become skilled in "feeding" or fertilizing the cotton plant. Not only is it necessary to fertilize to produce a stalk of weed, but it is necessary to fertilize to force the plant to fruit heavily, just as it is necessary for the dairyman to feed his cows heavily to force them to give large quantities of milk.

"Since the growing and fruiting period of the plant is limited to a very short time, the fertilizer must be applied in liberal amounts and in a readily available form. On this five acres of cotton all the nitrogen is from a quickly available source, Nitrate of Soda, with part of it applied at planting time and part as a side-dressing. Check rows will be fertilized with only acid phosphate and potash. It will be interesting to watch the growth and fruiting of the cotton in each of these plots and you are, therefore, urged to visit and observe this work," said County Agent Stapp.

AUBURN SUMMER SCHOOL PLANNED

Auburn, Ala., April 22.—On June 3 the seventeenth annual summer session at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute will begin. The first half will continue six weeks, or until July 13. The second half will begin on July 15 and continue until August 17th.

These dates are announced in the official summer school bulletin published by direction of Dean Zebulon Judd of the school of education of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute and director of the summer school.

The bulletin is ready for distribution. It lists a faculty of 93 members, the majority of whom are members of the regular faculty at Auburn. However, a dozen prominent educators will be brought to Auburn for the summer session.

In addition to the faculty, Dean Judd announced the names of 20 prominent educators and publicists who will deliver one or more lectures to summer school students. The list includes outstanding Alabama educators, among them being presidents of most of the institutions of higher education of the State.

The courses offered are divided into four divisions—college, normal, graduate, and high school. Work in all departments of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute will be offered. Emphasis will be placed upon graduate work in various subjects, Dean Judd announced. There is a growing demand for graduate work and special courses will be offered for superintendents and supervisors of education in both rural and urban schools, he said.

TREES THAWART FLOODS

Montgomery, April, 22— During the recent floods in South Alabama the tremendous holding power of the roots of trees was a severe test, says the Alabama Commission of Forestry. In the vicinity of Brewton and Flomation many large washouts occured, the earth slipping away in chuncks often of an acre or more in area. In practically every case, however, such washing occurred on londs supporting no tree growth, says the commission.

Soil fixing by means of the root systems of trees is a common dependence in various phases of engineering. Hillsides above the roadbeds of railroads are often artificially planted to prevent the earth from washing down upon the tracks. Highway embankments are also frequently planted with trees for the same purpose. In some cases sizable streams have been held to their main channels merely through the changes built up by strips of timber along their margins. Cultivated areas bounded and cross sectioned by rows of trees or strips of timber show much less erosion than those not so protected. This fact was extensively in South Alabama during the flood period.

CAPITOL News

Forest fires caused a loss of $1,231,343 in Alabam during 1928, according to an estimate by Colonel Page S. Bunker, State Forester. The Forestry Department is working to keep down forest fires, through activities of the State Forest rangers, and through a campaign of education.

Senator James B. Ellis, of Dallas county, was elected a member of the State Forestry Commission at a recent meeting of that body, to fill the vacancy created by the death of the late Colonel J. Lee Long of Greenville.

The State Department of Game and Fisheries will very shortly begin the publication of a magazine for the sportsmen and conservationists of the state, according to I. T. Quinn, commissioner. The magazine will appear monthly, the first issue being scheduled for June. No ads will be carried, but a small subscription will be charged to help defray the cost of printing and mailing.

The public is being asked to name the magazine and to submit articles and material suitable for publication. Alabama is one of the few states not already publishing a conservation magazine and the lack of such a publication has handicapped the work of the department. With the cooperation of the sportsmen and conservationists of the state, commissioner Quinn expects to publish a useful and creditable magazine.

That Alabama needs to produce more food and feed crops is a fact which has long been recognized, and which was driven home in figures recently furnished by F. W. Gist, State and Federal Agricultural Statistician. Mr. Gist's figures show that last year Alabama consumed staple food and feed commodities which were produced in other states to the tune of $132,000,000. Grain was the chief item on the list, amounting to $70,000,000, and hay came second, with a value of $24,000,000.There was also a shortage of $17,500,000 in milk and $11,300,000 in meat.

"In order to balance this account Alabama farmers need to do one of two things— either produce the things they are now buying or add 50 percent to the value of their cotton crop" Mr. Gist said. "We leave it to some other agency to say which is easier to do."

Major Walter M. Thompson of Gadsden was recently elected Colonel of the famous 167th Infantry, to fill the vacancy created by the retirement of Colonel George A. Glenn. Colonel Glenn's succesor was elected by vote of the commissioned officers of the regiment, Major Thompson being chosen over Lieutenant-Colonel James A. Webb of Birmingham. The new colonel at the time of his election was in command of the second battalion of the 167th Infantry.

The influenza epidemic of the past winter claimed more than 3,000 victims in Alabama, including those who died from pneumonia, the loss being more than 2,000 in excess of the normal death rate from this cause, according to figures from the State Health Department. During the eight weeks from December 22 to February 8 there were 2,310 deaths from influenza and 850 from pneumonia, a total of 3,164. Based on the experience of past years the normal death rate from pneumonia and flu in the period mentioned would have been 925, making an excess of 2,239 deaths. During the eight weeks a total of 73,395 cases of influenza were reported.

BRO. BRYAN'S BIBLE STORY

(Written for The Union-Banner by REV. J. A. BRYAN, Pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, Birmingham, Alabama)

YE SHALL BE WITNESSES UNTO ME BOTH IN JERUSALEM AND IN ALL JUDEA, AND IN SAMARIA, AND UNTO THE UTTERMOST PARTS OF THE EARTH.

In studying the acts we find that the expression "Acts of the Apostles" does not occur in the Greek Testament. It is called the Acts. In the first chapter and the eighth verse we read these words: "Ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost parts of the earth."

The place where Christ spoke these words was either in the upper room in Jerusalem at the foot of Mount Olive or on the side of Mount Olive which is just a Sabbath day journey or one and a half miles from Jerusalem. There he gave his valedictory. In it he said, "Ye shall be witnesses unto me unto the uttermost parts of the earth. God had said to his prophets over and over again, "Ye are my witnesses." That is, you and I are witnesses of him.

The language in which Christ spoke was Aramaic Greek. The word in the Septuagint, the old testabent is the same used in the New Testament. Ye shall be witnesses unto me. Now the translation of the word witness is, a martyr. That is, Christ taught that we are to be martyrs for him unto the uttermost parts of the earth.

In reading the first six chapters of the Acts you come to a direct conclusion that the church at Jerusalem did not consist in a great big hundred thousand dollar building. It did not consist of a great deal of paraphanalia for prominent members to adorn themselves in. That church was not burdened with organization. First we think of it as an obedient church. Really we know that we cannot think of a church that does not obey the commands of Christ.

He taught them on Mount Olive to go to Jerusalem and tarry there until they should be endued with power from on high after the Holy Spirit had come upon them. Secondly we think of that church as a praying church. We read that all these continued with one accord in prayer. The truth is, the last time Mary the mother of Jesus is mentoned we find her in a prayer-meeting. I mention her not that she is superior to any other woman. I cannot tell about that and it really does not matter. Of course she was a pure, holy, Godly woman, and no better ever lived I suppose. The last time she is pictured to us in the Bible is in a prayer-meeting and not a social function. No church can be a light without a prayer-meeting.

Thirdly this church was a spirit-filled church. How did it get spirit-filled? It became spirit-filled because its members went to prayer-meeting. Take all the things in this great world and we know that each has its place. The church is the place for the prayer-meeting. Nothing else in the church can take its place. They prayed to become spirit-filled and they did. Jesus said, "Therefore, I say unto you: all things whatsoever ye pray or ask for, believe that ye have received them, and ye shall have them."

It was a witness-bearing church. A witness-bearing church is a soul-winning church a real called-out body of Christ for the winning of souls in his kingdom. Right here I wish to say that too many people have their church. They talk about my church. No one has a church except Jesus Christ. In a way Jerusalem is the most sinful city on earth the most lamentable city on earth because so many of her inhabitants have taken the crown off their heads for so many different sects, so many different denominations. It is not right. It is one of the great evils of Palestine and Damascus. It is a great evil of America to-day that everybody has a church.

After taking the vows of the church it means I am going to be a witness-bearer and soul-winner in Christ's kingdom. We read of an extraordinary thing which took place in Jerusalem. On the day of Pentecost in Peter's great Pentecostal Sermon there were added unto the church three thousand souls. Along toward the end of the chapter we read that they continued daily with one accord, that is in prayer, in the temple. And the lord added daily to the church such as should be saved. If we work hard enough there will be added unto the church daily. You get just exactly out of the church what you put into it. If you put forth enough effort you will be awarded accordingly.

The church in America to-night must try to do an extraordinary thing in soul-winning. The church of Jesus Christ must be a soul-winning church. We must be filled with the Holy Spirit and see a soul in our fellow-man which must be saved. We must help him see and know that his soul is worth more than a material universe. It is worth more than hills and valleys, all the gold and silver in the banks of England and the banks of America. Sit down and watch the dying savior, and think what a great price he paid for your soul. As you gaze on the cruel Calvary scene, I feel sure you will say, "My soul cost my Savior such a dear price that I must not bargain it for anything in the material universe.

On Calvary amid rending rocks and darkening skies my Savior died of a broken heart to redeem my soul and your soul from hell. There he gave his life, his heart and everything for us. In witnessing for our Savior of Calvary we must consider that a witness knows what he is testifying about. We must give everything for Jesus. Not a one of these people at Jerusalem was a university graduate. No doubt not a one of them had a bank account. Not a one of them had a home except John. Peter had sold his home in Galilee and no doubt gave the price of it to the church or Christ in Jerusalem.

We remember that Peter was now the lame man at the beautiful gate of the temple, he turned and answered the pleading cry of the afflicted man in these words: "Silver and gold have I none but such as I have I give unto thee. In the name of Jesus of Nazareth arise and walk.

There were two people in the church at Jerusalem who were nominal members. Their names were Annanias and Sapphira. They were the biggest liars in all Palestine. They sold their property and kept back a part of the pessesion. Peter said, "Why have you lied?" Because of their lying they fell dead and the deacons picked them up and carried them out and burried them. It makes your heart bleed sometimes when you see how some people lie to Jesus Christ.

My friends, are you willing to die for Jesus Christ as did Stephen? He said to his enemies, "God sent me to preach to you." He told me to preach to the uttermost parts of the earth, and I am going to do it." He was martyred and went to the new and Holy Jerusalem his home. It is a home, a h-o-m-e. Ye shall be witnesses unto me not only in our homes but unto all men everywhere.

Dr. R. L. Dabney, the chaplain of General Stonewall Jackson, wrote a book entitled "The Life of Stonewall Jackson". Dr. Dabney had an uncle who was a judge, who had heard him preach for months and months. He also supplied his uncle with books to read on the evidences of Christianity. The judge became converted one day and when Dr. Dabney heard of it he went to him and said, "Uncle, what book led you to Jesus Christ?" The judge answered, "Robert, it was none of the books which you furnished me to read; neither was it any of your sermons that led me to Jesus Christ. It was the beautiful Christian life of your little sister, Bettye. For years and years I watched her sweet Christian life, which brought me at last to Jesus Christ."

It is not the sermons we preach, but it is the life we live that leads people to Christ. When we witness-bear for Jesus Christ we lead people to church, Sunday school, Christian Endeavor, Bible classes, and prayer-meeting. I cannot have a prayer-meeting unless I can get somebody to it. We must truly know whom we have believed, or in other words we must be acquainted with Christ before we can introduce him.

A story is told of a missionary who belonged to the American Sunday School Union established a Sunday School in Illinois. In this Sunday School was a little girl named Mary Paxon whose father was as wicked as the devil, the most wicked man ever went from Virginia to Illinois in the early New England settlement days. This missionary Sunday School teacher ask each member to bring someone with them to Sunday School the next Sunday. Mary went home and the next Sunday morning went out on the porch and asked her father to go with her to Sunday School. This he did and was saved through her influence. We find that three boys from that very home were preachers of the cross of Christ due to the influence of that little girl.

Do you feel that you are witnessing for Christ even unto the uttermost parts of the earth? God blesses those who witness for him. I do not believe God blesses selfish people. We must look on the fields white already unto harvest and go forth in the blessed service for others, for "others." I preach twenty-one sermons each week. You can do just as anyone in his service. The church does not require organizations, magnificent buildings, but it does require faithful teaching of the Gospel of Jesus Christ. It is sad, but true that only one fourth of the people in America attend church. Of the high school students of Jefferson county including Jews, Greeks, Gentiles, Syrians and every other nationality only 61 percent attend church. I am not to blame for this. The point is that some of us try too hard to make the church attractive to them. The church is a place to get out of Hell and into Heaven. It is no social organization. These days the rich man goes to one church and the poor man to another. You cannot worship God when you do away with reverence for him and his Sabbath.

SINGING AT LIBERTY CHURCH

Last Sunday afternoon our singing society met, and we had one of the best singings we have had this year. The directors were; Messers. Dennis Culpepper, I. S. Hollon, Elmore Rawlinson, Naud Hand, Riley Culpepper, Albert Culpepper, Prof. I. D. Huet and Mr. Yates.

The organists were Prof. Huett, Dennis Culpepper Wade White.

We are proud of the interest the people of our community have in singing and we are especially proud of the help given us by the visiting singers from other places.

WALNUT CREEK CHURCH

We held our regular services at this place last Sunday. At the preaching hour a very inspiring sermon was preached by the pastor, Rev. P. A. Lynch.

In the afternoon our singing society met at two o'clock. The singing was opened by T. L. Mims, chairman. Although the crowd was small we had a real good singing. The only way we could have a better singing was to have a larger crowd.

The following were the directors, T. L. Mims, Jesse Baker, Vanness Mims, W. M. DeVaughn, A. O. Boswell and Floy DeVaughn.

The pianists for the afternoon were, Mrs. Alice Baker, Miss Edna Wyatt and Mr. A. O. Boswell.

The closing song was led by W. M. DeVaughn and dismissal was by Mr. John Smith.

We have Sunday School every Sunday morning and Christian Endeavor every Sunday evening at 6:30 o'clock. We cordially invite all who will to come and be with us. We are always glad to have visitors and welcome them any time.

We have preaching at this place on the third Sunday of every month.

Dont forget our singing every second Sunday afternoon. Come and bring somebody with you.

Spring Showing of General Motors Cars.

This week, throughout America, the public is viewing the newest models of General Motors products. Check and mail the coupon below. It will bring this Spring Showing into your own home.

CHEVROLET—Last year the public bought more than 1,000,000 Chevrolets. This enabled Chevrolet and General Motors to effect one of the most remarkable feats in industrial history: almost overnight, Chevrolet was changed from a 4-cylinder car to a Six in the price range of the four. The new Chevrolet Six is new in every respect: smoother, more powerful, and luxurious bodies by Fisher.

OAKLAND—General Motors' policy of continuous improvement is nowhere more noticeable than in the new models of the Oakland All-American Six. The distinctive style and advanced engineering principles which Oakland represents have made it a center of unusual public interest at automobile shows. All-American in name, the new Oakland is All-American in its qualities of speed, snap, power and stamina. Fisher makes the bodies.
8 models—$1145 to $1375

BUICK—This famous member of the General Motors family, year after year, has given increasing value. Over 2,000,000 Buicks have been built and sold and of this total 1,500,000 are still serving their owners. The new Silver Anniversary Buick, with masterpiece Bodies by Fisher, comes in three wheelbase lengths. All are powered by the Buick Valve-in-Head engine, which is vibrationless beyond belief.

PONTIAC—Since General Motors introduced the Pontiac Six three years ago, its sales have practically doubled each year. Now General Motors offers, in the new Pontiac, a "Big six," at the same base price. It has big-car power, big-car performance and big-car luxury in the Bodies by Fisher. It is appealing particularly to families which are "stepping up" in car ownership. 7 models—$745 to $895

VIKING—There was demand for an 8-cylinder car of General Motors quality in the medium price field. General Motors chose Oldsmobile to design and build the new car, and three years were spent in its development and test. The result was revealed last month in the Viking, the latest member of the General Motors family. Viking has the world-famous 90-degree V-type engine and Fisher's newest creations in bodies. 3 models—$1595

LASALLE—When General Motors introduced LaSalle, two years ago, it set a style which was widely copied both in America and Europe. The new models are as distinguished as the first. Built by Cadillac, LaSalle enjoys the same mechanical excellence: 90-degree V-type engine of 8 cylinders; transmission that permits gear shifting without noise or clashing at any speed. The bodies, by Fisher and Fleetwood, offer a choice of colors to express individuality.

OLDSMOBILE—General Motors took this long-established car and remade it to provide a fine car at low price. Last year the value of Oldsmobile was so marked that the public bought over 50 per cent more than the year before. The new Oldsmobile models, with Bodies by Fisher, offer still further improvements — and the prices have been reduced! Oldsmobile also has new Special and De Luxe models, with extra features, at slightly higher prices.

CADILLAC—What more can be said of Cadillac? For twenty-five years the world's standard of comparison in the fine car field. The choice of kings, presidents and leaders of business and society in every country. To the unparalleled performance of Cadillac's 90-degree V-type 8-cylinder engine has been added the silent transmission and many new advances in design. Your choice of colors in bodies by Fisher and Fleetwood.
25 models—$3295 to $7000

The Panama Canal

Uncle Sam's Great Egineering Masterpiece

(By Walter L. Peterson)

Passing through the Panama Canal in 1921 was indeed a great educational voyage to say nothing of the great pleasure it afforded. This was due to the fact that it was my first opportunity to see Uncle Sam's great masterpiece in engineering.

Now in 1929, having again this opportunity to visit the canal and Panama in general covering a period of a month and a half, the benefits derived far exceed that of 1921. Panama, with its varied attractions, offers such a wide scope of interest that it is, indeed, difficult to decide just where to begin the explanation of it's wonderful, original beauty.

Generally, when one speaks of Panama, the first thought is of the canal, and to the average person this constitutes his or her principal desire for paying a visit to this well known Central American Republic, and for that reason this article will be confined to a thorough discrip tion of the canal. Likewise,however, and contrary to their beliefs, Panama as a republic, has other attractions which are not equaled in all the other major countries of the earth. Here still remains a touch of the old buccaneer days, which are clearly manifest at the ruins of Old Panama, established as a beautiful city in the year 1519, or before, the arrival of the Pilgrims in North America, and later destroyed by buccaneers, Henry Morgan Jan. 28, 1671, 258 years ago. But to get back to the main topic, the canal, I will start with the location and construction, giving a complete, yet concise as possible, treatise on the project and it's history.

The Panama Canal connects the Atlantic and Pacific oceans through the narrow Isthmus of Panama, where also the long continental divide, extending from Alaska to Magellan, dips to one of it's lowest points. In ancient geologic periods there was a natural channel here, but later the land rose and left the isthmus as a barrier between the oceans. After centuries of erosion, with the formation of valleys on either side of the central ridge, the distance between shores at the place which was selected for the canal was 34 miles. The lowest point on the continental divide was about 276 feet above sea level. The route of the canal, however, passed half a mile to the left of this point, the central line crossing the divide at 312 feet above sea level. The lowest point in the saddle between Gold and Contractors Hills was 305 feet above sea level. The height of Gold Hill is 662 feet, that of Contractors Hill 410 feet.

The line of the canal goes up the valley of the Charges River on the Atlantic slope, passes through the ridge of the Continental Divide in the Gaillard Cut, and descends to the Pacafic down the valley of the Rio Grande.

Following the route the canal is 50.72 statute miles in length, the distance from shore line to shore line being 40.27 miles. The air-line distance from end to end of the canal is 43.05 miles. The Atlantic entrance to the canal is 33.52 statute miles north of and 27.02 miles west of the Pacific entrance. The general plan of the canal may be grouped quickly by reference to any map of the Canal Zone and, if possible, a profile drawing of the canal.

By building Gatem dams across the valley of the Chagres, Gatem Lake was formed. It floods a great part of the valley and backs up against the Continental Divide. Its surface is 85 feet above sea level, at normal elevation, which made it possible to reduce by 85 feet the depth of the cutting necessary to make the channel between Gatem and Pedro Miguel, a distance of 31.75 miles.

The passage between the Atlantic ocean and Gatem Lake is made by the 3 steps at Gatem Locks. On the Pacific side the passage between the summit level (Gatem Lake level) and the Pacafic is made by means of Pedro Miguel Lock, Miraflores Lake, and Miraflores Locks. A set of 3 locks, to make the whole step at one time, would have been built on the Pacific side if it had been practicable to secure a site affording a firm rock foundation large enough to accommodate them.

Gatem Locks, including the approach walls are 1.20 miles long; Pedro Miguel Lock 5-6 of a mile; Miraflores Locks, slightly over a mile. Each of the twin chambers in every flight of locks has a usable length of 1,000 feet, and width of 110 feet and is about 70 feet deep. The Miraflores locks have extra depth on account of tidal vairations in the Pacific. The flights are duplicate or "double barreled" and ships may be passed in opposite directions simultaneously.

The sections between the Atlantic ocean and Gatem Locks are at sea level. The Atlantic sea level section is about 6.67 miles long. The length of the channel within Gatem Lake from Gatem Locks to the north or Atlantic end of Gaillard (Culebra) Cut is 23.75 miles. The cut is 8 miles long, extending from Gamboa to Pedro Miguel. The channel through Miraflores Lake is a mile, and the length of the Pacific sea level section is 8 miles.

FELT BAD AFTER EATING

"FOUR YEARS AGO, I suffered with heartburn and bilious indigestion. Whatever I ate disagreed with me. Gas on my stomach made me very uncomfortable. My tongue was coated and my color was bad. I needed a good laxative, and so my mother-in-law gave me some Black-Draught and told me to take it. I found it helped me very much, so I bought it for myself. Seems it was the very thing I needed. It is a fine family remedy, and I use it when I need something for constipation.

Bankers Had Good Time In Clanton

Visitors Express Delight At Manner in Which They Were Entertained

The visitors who were in Clanton last Thursday attending the meeting of the bankers of Group Three of the Alabama Bankers Association, expressed themselves as having a most delightful time. They spoke in high praise of the manner in which they were entertained.

A number of the bankers from distant cities arrived here in the morning on their private pullman car. Many others from cities and towns in Alabama, came in their own automobiles.

After registration, the meeting was called to order about eleven o'clock at the courthouse by group chairman, H. G. Boyd. More than an hour was consumed by short talks from a number of the visitors, after Probate Judge L. H. Reynolds, had extended them a hearty welcome to Clanton and Chilton County.

The principal speeches to the bankers were made by Mr. M. F. Jackson, of the T. C. I. Company, and Dr. James S. Thomas, of the University of Alabama. Mr. Jackson spoke of the importance of the banker's position in our modern system of agriculture. Dr. Thomas spoke of the responsibility of the banker in the great economic system of our country.

The address of Dr. Thomas was of marvelous interest. Some of the bankers who came many miles to the convention, said that they would feel well paid for their visit if there had been nothing to it besides the address of Dr. Thomas.

About 12:30 o'clock, the visitors were taken in automobiles by the Kiwanis Club of Clanton and carried to Mitchell Dam, where Mr. Benziger and his organization of Alabama Power Company employees had prepared a most excellent barbecue dinner. It is the judgment of one of the spectators upon the day's events that the barbecue was the most interesting feature to the most of the visitors.

Notwithstanding the fact that Dr. Thomas gave them some great food for thought in the forenoon, we believe, that for the time being, at least they most enjoyed Mr. Benziger's provision for their stomachs.

After the barbecue the party was conducted through the Mitchell Dam power plant by employees of the Alabama Power Co. This proved to be a most delightful adventure for all. A great number of the visitors had never before seen the wonders of this marvelous development.

A short business session of the bankers at Mitchell Dam Club House concluded the day's session, after which they were brought back to Verbena where they caught their pullman car and proceeded southward to Foley for another meeting the next day.

The visiting bankers of Group Three have been most royally received and delightfully entertained by the good people of Clanton. We are especially indebted to the local bankers, the Kiwanis Club, the chaming ladies, the city and county officials, the Alabama Power Company, and others who contributed to our pleasure.

Be it therefore, resolved that we express our appreciation for all that has been done for our convenience and pleasure and assure everyone of our great delight in being the guests of this occasion.

Be it further resolved that Group Three of the Alabama Bankers Association, in meeting assembled, express to Judge C. E. Thomas, Superintendent of Banks, our hearty appreciation for his splendid co-operation with the banks of the State, and for his able conduct of the Banking Department.

The following is the list of visitors who registered for the meeting:

Cliff W. Stewart of the National Bank of Opelika; I. J. Dorsey, of the Farmers National Bank of Opelika; C. R. Keener, of the Bank of Tuskegee; H. N. CONFEDERATE MEMORIAL ADDRESS BROADCAST FOR FIRST TIME IN HISTORY, FROM WAPI

On Thursday afternoon at five o'clock the first Confederate Memorial Address to be broadcast thru the air was delivered by Major Luther H. Waller, of Montgomery, Ala., from WAPI, in anticipation of Memorial Day which will be observed throughout the South on Friday, the 26th.

Major Waller, the son of a Confederate veteran and himself a hero of the World War, having been given the Distinguished Service Cross and three citations for valor on the battlefields of France, was selected by the Alabama State Department of Archives and History to deliver this epoch making historical address during the history half hour which the Department is fostering through "the voice of Alabama." Major Waller was eloquent in his tribute to the Confederate soldiers and gave some interesting figures showing how Alabama has honored her defenders with monuments, pensions and a Confederate home.

"It is a beautiful and hallowed custom," said Major Waller, "to assemble together in outward and visible recognition of the debt we owe our ancestors, and inspiring to think that on Memorial Day thousands will meet together throughout our Southland to put roses, lilies and laurel wreaths upon the graves of the Confederate dead, the hallowed gateways into the city of eternal life. We cannot be satisfied with merely honoring our ancestors. We must strive to emulate their brave deeds by courageously doing our part to make this great land of ours better for our having sojourned therein.

EMMETT SIZEMORE HERE WITH BANKERS

Mr. Emmett Sizemore of Auburn was in Clanton last Thursday with the visiting bankers. Besides his connection with the Extension Service as District Demonstration Agent, Mr. Sizemore is a director in The Bank of Auburn.

In the Farm Demonstration work, Mr. Sizemore now has the job that was held for several years by the late E. E. Binford. He is director of the Farm Demonstration work in several counties of the east central part of the State.

Tom Littlejohn Now Mgr. Clanton Motors

Takes Place of Mr. J. C. Bowen Julius C. Burnett Is Now Assistant Manager

A fact of widespread and potential interest in business circles of Clanton and Chilton County is announced to the public today, wherein it is made known that the interest of Mr. J. C. Bowen in Clanton Motors has been taken over by Mr. Tom Littlejohn and Mr. Julius (Rip) Burnett.

Henceforth Mr. Littlejohn will be the general manager of the business, and Mr. Burnett will be assistant manager. The connection of Mr. Bowen with the business has been terminated in the acquisition of his interest by Mr. Littlejohn and Mr. Burnett.

Clanton Motors are authorized Ford dealers for Chilton County, in which this well established and progressive concern has gained a wide prominence during the past few years. The business occupies its own new building at the corner of Seventh Street and Third Avenue, which was completed a year ago. It is the most modern and up-to-date automobile sales and service plant in Central Alabama.

In coming into the management of this business, Tom Littlejohn is making no new or strange venture. He has been connected with Clanton Motors as sales manager ever since he completed his term as Sheriff of Chilton County. He is well fitted for the larger responsibility which he now assumes, having had ample experience in the Ford business to qualify him for his greater duties. Then too, his acquaintance with the people of this section of Alabama makes him able to start off from the jump as manager with that understanding of his clientele which is a great factor in the successful conduct of the business in future years.

Rip Burnett is also what you might call a fixture in the business of Clanton Motors, and by this change in the management he will come into a field of increased responsibility which he well deserves and is fully able to handle. Mr. Burnett has been connected with the business for a long time as bookkeeper. He is well prepared by past experience to assume the broader duties which will fall upon him as assistant manager of the business.

The many friends of Tom Littlejohn, Rip Burnett, and Clanton Motors will read this announcement with much interest. Clanton Motors, as Ford dealers in this territory, bears a direct business relation to perhaps as many people as any business you could mention. All of these people know Mr. Littlejohn and Mr. Burnett, and recognize in them business managers and executives of the highest type.

The Union-Banner joins their many friends in extending best wishes for their continued success and pleasant relations as they step into their new connections with Clanton Motors. We believe the future will attest the wisdom of their management by a great growth in business and prestige for their establishment.

"KICKED OUT OF COLLEGE" AT CHILTON HIGH SCHOOL

"Kicked out of College," the popular college farce in three acts, will be presented by the undergraduates of Chilton County High School on Friday evening, May 3, at 8 o'clock.

Bootles Benbow, the most popular boy in college, as played by Bill Minor, becomes involved in many intricate situations, but Frank McMurray as the ever-ready Sandy McConn, coach of the Dramatic Club, always "fixes" things for him. William Arthur Willis, playing the double role of Tad, Bootles's roommate, and Flora, Bootles's first little wife, will keep the audience in an uproar of laughter. These and many other as interesting scenes all go to make up "Kicked out of College," a howling success.

STRAWBERRY CROP WILL BRING CHILTON CO. $125,000

From estimates obtained from reliable sources this week, we are informed that the strawberry crop of Chilton County will be worth something above $125,000 to our farmers this year. If present weather conditions continue, it is practically certain that Thorsby will ship above 100 car loads, and Clanton will ship more than 25 cars. At prices which have prevailed throughout the season, the growers will net around $1,000 for each car load.

Shelby Sheriff Sent In His Resignation

Gives Up Title of Office After Conviction In United States Court

Montgomery, Ala., April 29.—Sheriff C. J. Falkner, of Shelby County, who was convicted Saturday in Federal Court at Birmingham on charges of conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws, resigned his office Monday afternoon, it was authoritatively learned in Montgomery. The letter or resignation was reported to have been handed to Gov. Graves by Senator L. H. Ellis, of Columbiana, chief of the defense counsel.

Sheriff Falkner's resignation does not become effective until accepted by the governor. When Falkner goes out of office, all deputy sheriffs holding commissions under him automatically go out of office at the same time, it was learned.

A new two-way investigation into liquor conditions in Shelby County that is expected to rival the recent probe, which resulted in the conviction of Sheriff Curtis J. Falkner and eight other persons on charges of conspiracy to violate the prohibition law, Monday by reliable sources as was reported about ready to start.

The new investigation, The Age-Herald was told, is to be directed by federal and state operatives working as separate units.

Among other things believed to be under the inquisitorial spotlight is an effort to establish a reason why 15 government witnesses in the recent trial in Federal Court could not be reached by summonses after they had voluntarily appeared before the Federal Grand Jury late in February. At least three of the missing witnesses are women, The Age-Herald has learned.

It was also learned that at least part of the federal portion of the new operations in the county will cover operations brought out in the trial of the sheriff and the others in the county.

Voluminous Notes

During the trial an attache of the attorney general's office was in constant attendance making voluminous notes of the proceedings.

No End To Activities

Government prohibition officers, including W. J. Foster, deputy prohibition administrator, and D. C. Trexler, special investigator of the Bureau of Prohibition, Washington, have frequently admitted that there will be no end to the activities in the Alabama county until the last still fire is put out.

According to The Age-Herald's informants, the first chapter of the Shelby County "book" was written with the indictment of Sheriff Falkner and 19 other persons on liquor conspiracy charges. The second chapter was pictured as including the arrest of 37 men and women on similar charges.—Age-Herald.

VISITED MOBILE LAST WEEK

Dr. T. J. Marcus, Grady Harris, and John Armstrong, went to Mobile last week to represent the Clanton Commandery at the meeting of the Grand Commandery of Alabama.

The trip was made by automobile. They went on Tuesday, spent Wednesday and Thursday in Mobile and visiting points of interest near the city, returning home Friday night.

NEW SALEM

Next Sunday, May 5, 1929, Memorial services will be held at New Salem Church. The program begins at 10 o'clock; preaching services at eleven. Bring your lunch and enjoy the day with us. All the singers are especially invited to come and help sing. We hope to have the singing society and all the good singers of the county. Let's make this the best Memorial Day that we've had.

FRANCIS G. CAFFEY APPOINTED NEW YORK JUDGE

A news item of interest to the people of Chilton County appeared in the daily papers last week telling of the appointment by President Hoover of Francis G. Caffey as a federal judge in the State of New York.

Mr. Caffey, a prominent New York lawyer, is a native of Chilton County. He was reared at Verbena, a son of the late Dr. H. W. Caffey. He is a brother of Guy H. Caffey, mail carrier on Route No. 2 from Verbena, and a half brother of Mrs. J. S. Catts of Verbena.

From a political angle, the appointment of Mr. Caffey, a Democrat, by President Hoover, a Republican, has been the subject of some comment. But it is pointed out that this action on the part of Mr. Hoover was brought about by his finding in Mr. Caffey certain recognized qualities of fitness and ability for the particular place of importance to be filled.

Friends of the Caffey family in Chilton County are proud of the success that has come to Mr. Caffey, and are particularly joyful over his appointment by President Hoover.

Dr. Caffey, father of Francis, was one of the most prominent Baptists in this section of Alabama in his day. This fact possibly accounts for the further fact that Francis G. Caffey began his higher education at Howard College. From Howard he went to Harvard Law School, where he was a classmate of Mr. Houston, who was Secretary of Agriculture in the Wilson cabinet.

Secretary Houston made Mr. Caffey legal counsel for the Department of Agriculture, in which position he gained his first wide recognition as an outstanding lawyer. During Wilson's second term he was United States Solicitor for the northern district of New York.

Before leaving Alabama Mr. Caffey was a member of the law firm of Tompkins, Troy and Caffey, of Montgomery.

DON CARLOS ANIMAL SHOW HERE MAY 11TH

The Don Carlos Animal Show is scheduled to be in Clanton Saturday, May 11th. This is a high class animal show carrying many educated dogs, ponies, monkeys and the only herd of educated goats in existence.

Mr. Carlos has been in Clanton this week making preliminary arrangements for the coming of his show. His plan is to make a co-operative arrangement with the merchants of the town whereby the stores will give away tickets to the show absolutely free.

In this way everybody from the poorest to the richest will have an opportunity to see the animals with no cost whatever.

Mr. Carlos has presented his show in Montgomery and Prattville recently, and we judge from what the business men in those cities say of his show, it is a worthwhile attraction.

Next week the papers will contain more detailed announcement concerning this event.

CLANTON SHOWED THE BANKERS A GOOD TIME

The Union-Banner is proud of the manner in which Clanton went about the pleasant privilege of entertaining the visiting bankers who were in our city last Thursday.

Our county and city officials, the ladies of the town, the Kiwanis Club, and the citizenship in general, all united in a happy spirit that took right hold of the visitors and made them feel the true cordiality that was extended to them.

We were sorry that Mayor Hart could not be with the party, but he was previously engaged at the Methodist Conference meeting in Montgomery. In his absence the city was ably represented by Councilmen Shaw, Taylor and Franklin.

But for a very few members who were kept away by unavoidable circumstances, the Kiwanis Club would have had one hundred per cent attendance.

Indeed is it well for our city to show an interest in such occasions. We can not spend a day more profitable than to devote ourselves to showing friendliness to visitors from other parts of our state.

The Alabama Power Company organization at Mitchell Dam again demonstrated their exceptional ability to make their visitors have a good time. They fed the crowd of more than one hundred at a barbecue that was prepared to a queen's taste, and served delightfully. After the barbecue the crowd was divided into small parties in charge of various employees and all were given a complete trip through the big power plant.

It was a good day for our visitors and a good day for Clanton and Chilton County. All who helped to take care of our visitors are deserving of the thanks of the community.

Singing Convention Here Last Sunday

About 600 People Enjoyed The Day; Vaughan Quartet Special Attraction

According to the announcement made last week, the Chilton County (Modern) Singing Convention met in its regular Spring session at the county high school building last Sunday. It rained nearly all day, but the house was nearly filled in the morning and was more than filled when the house was called to order after dinner.

The chairman, Mr. Herbert W. Lowery, called the house to order about 10:30 o'clock by singing, which was followed with prayer by Mr. J. R. Robinson of Verbena. In the forenoon the directors were: J. W. Cagle of Mitchell Dam, F. I. Popwell of Shiloh, W. M. Devaughn of Clanton, A. O. Boswell of Coopers, G. K. Vaughan of Lawrenceburg, Tenn., O. L. Devaughn of Clanton, T. E. Wyatt of Clanton, and Mr. F. P. Heatwole of Lawrenceburg, Tenn. Three quartets were sung in the morning by the Vaughan Quartet of Lawrenceburg, Tenn. It consisted of Messrs. Sharpe, Vaughan, Seale and Heatwole, with another Mr. Heatwole at the piano. A solo was sung by Mr. Walter B. Seale.

The first thing after noon was a quartet, and those directing the class were: Jasper Robinson of Verbena, C. O. Sharpe of Lawrenceburg, Tenn., Akins Collins of Chunchula, Ala., J. W. Lowery of Liberty Hill, D. M. Slaughter of Montgomery, State Fire Marshal, Jesse Jones of Clanton, G. K. Vaughan, H. G. Carter of Prattville, W. B. Seale, D. M. Slaughter, Kermit Lowery of Liberty Hill, G. C. Powell, of Clanton. Six quartets were sung during the afternoon, a piano solo was rendered by Mr. Heatwole, one solo was sung by Mr. Seale, and a bass solo was sung by Mr. F. P. Heatwole. At 3:30 the closing song was sung by the president and the benediction was invoked by Rev. A. L. Foshee.

A vote of thanks and welcome was voted the Vaughan Quartet, in which about everyone in the house took part. Practically all of the singers present expressed themselves as being well pleased with the result of the convention, saying that it was one of the best they had ever attended. Had the weather been agreeable, it is certain that the crowd would have been much larger, but there were just enough present to do good singing and enjoy it.

The president announced that the fall session of the convention would be held, very likely, about the first of September. The place has not been definitely decided upon as yet, but it will in all probability be at Maplesville. The officers of the convention will go to work right away on making arrangements for the fall session and they will try and secure some singers of state-wide prominence to be there. The Vaughan Quartet has been invited to be present at that session, but they could not say for sure whether they could be expected. The singers of the county will begin now to look forward to the fall session, and will await the announcement of the exact place and date.—Herbert W. Lowery, president; T. E. Wyatt, secretary.

TIP POPWELL ACQUITTED IN MAYOR'S COURT

A case against Tip Popwell was called in Mayor's Court Monday morning, charging him with interefering with an officer in the arrest of Robert Tippett Sunday night.

After hearing the testimony in the case Popwell was released by Mayor Hart. Robert Tippett was arrested by the city officers on Sunday night, charged with public drunkenness, and placed in jail. He was released on bond Tuesday morning.

A number of cases of delinquent street tax were heard in the court Monday morning. All the defendants settled their cases by paying off the street tax assessment and an additional amount for costs of the court.

SURPLUS AND DEBT

President Hoover's judgment with regard to the disposition of the 1929 Treasury surplus is in accordance with the policy of Mr. Coolidge. The one hundred extra millions of revenue will be held for the reduction of the war debt, and not applied to an immediate reduction of taxation. The income tax might no doubt be rendered more equitable by a certain amount of readjustment, particularly in the matter of earned incomes, but it is by no means an excessive levy, when considered in connection with the general system of national taxation; and the steady reduction of the war debt, during a period of national prosperity, points the way to a future easing up which may coincide with future needs and exigencies. Unless the Seventy-first Congress exhibits a less marked disposition to increase expenditures than the Senventieth Congress evinced, the $100,000,000 margin, as Senator Smoot points out, will be a handy thing to have around the house.

It is a thing unexampled in the history of nations that the United States should have been able, in a period of less than ten years, to reduce its war debt from $25,478,592,113 in August, 1919, to $16,808,711,272 on March 31, 1929. The reduction of more than eight and a half billion dollars has already enormously reduced the amount of money that has to be raised for interest by taxation. Another ten years of this policy will leave the people with less burden of debt, relatively to the resources of the country, than they had even when the debt of the nation was around $2,000,000,000.—Boston Transcript.

There is some dispute between Uncle Sam and John Bull as to who owns the Antarctic regions. Playing a little game of freeze out to settle it would be appropriate.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

FRANK P. LITSCHERT

In a recent statement on the League Court Senator Johnson of California was quoted as saying that "the United States would be before a foreign court with fourteen judges all of them doubtless opposing what we have made a national policy."

In reply to the Senator's statement a staunch defender of the League Court declares that the court will be no more foreign after Uncle Sam is in it than it is foreign to England, Italy, Brazil, France or any other nation; that we have a judge on the bench of the court now, Mr. Charles Evans Hughes, and that one judge is all that is possessed by Italy, France, Germany, and so on.

It would seem however that this reply to Senator Johnson has missed the point. It is true that the United States has one judge and that France, for example, has but one judge. But it is to be remembered that in all questions of national policy there will not be as many opinions as there are judges. There is one American policy as regards prohibition, the protective tariff, the Monroe Doctrine, and immigration, and there is just one policy opposed to this, and that is the European policy. Now all of the European nations, granting that an advisory opinion on American prohibition, tariff, immigration or the Monroe doctrine is asked for, will have an interest that is diametrically opposed, politically and economically to the policy of the United States.

We think that the protective tariff and immigration restriction are good things for America, and we believe the Monroe doctrine is the proper policy to pursue. But the nations of Europe do not agree with us on our tariff policy, on our immigration policy, on our prohibition policy or our Monroe doctrine.

The judges may be, and doubtless are all men of high character, but it would be expecting something more than human of them to believe that they would render a decision on these questions which would be against the policy of the country they represent, and they are practically a unit against us on these questions.

It would seem therefore, aside from any general argument for or against the World Court, that Senator Johnson's point that we would be in a foreign court with most of the judges against us, is well taken. That is the reason the United States Senate when it adopted the World Court resolution in the Coolidge administration adopted at the same time the reservation that the United States would not agree to the handing down of advisory opinionh by the World Court on any question in which the United States had or claimed an interest without the consent of the United States.

The United States desires to keep its tariff making, its immigration laws, its working out of prohibition, and its regulation of affairs in the Western Hemisphere in its own hands. The Senate very shrewdly realized that the handing down of advisory opinions by the World Court on subjects which the United States reserves for its own regulation, might make it very embarrassing for Uncle Sam on certain occasions. The cry would immediately go up, in such a case, that we were "morally bound" by the advisory opinion whether or not we agreed to it, had asked for it or wanted it. There would be plenty of internationalists in the United States to insist on that. That was the reason for Reservation Number Five, and it is a good guess that the Senate will go over the entire situation very carefully before there are any modifications in this reservation. This is not captiousness but good, sound American horse sense. We are isolationists but we want to know where we are going before we start.

CAPITOL News

Units of the Alabama National Guard will hold their 1929 field training encampments at Camp McClellan, Alabama, Camp Beauregard, La., and Fort Oglethorpe, Georgia, time and place of the encampments having been recently announced from the military departments at the capitol. Infantry, air service, and a number of special units will go to Camp McClellan, artillery to Camp Beauregard and cavalry and engineers to Oglethorpe.

Alabama will have a complete regiment of infantry and also a complete regiment of field artillery, the 167th infantry and the 117th field artillery, at the encampments. The 117th field artillery was recently enlarged into a complete regiment through conversion, by order of the War Department, of the old 55th, machine-gun squadron into artillery. The machine-gun squadron units, at Andulusia, Evergreen and Greenville, became the first battalion of the 117th field artillery as result of this change.

Time and place of the encampments, and the personnel to attend, was announced as follows:

At Camp McClellan, near Anniston, Alabama, August 4th to 18th, state staff corps, headquarters and headquarters detachment, 331st infantry division, headquarters and headquarters detachments. special troops, 331st infantry division, 331st signal company, 31st tank company, 106th motorcycle company, 106th ordnance maintenance company, headquarters and headquarters company 62nd infantry brigade, 11th motor repair section, 121st motor transport company, 106th observation squadron, 106th photo section, 167th infantry regiment—139 officers, 1 warrant officer, 1,428 enlisted men.

Alabama's state banks showed a sound and healthy condition according to a statement recently made public by Judge C. E. Thomas, State Superintendent of banks, showing condition of state banks as of March 27th. An increase in capital of approximately half a million dollars since the last previous statement of condition, on November 1, 1928, was noted. A feature of recent banking history was the opening on April 15, of the American Trust Company of Mobile, the biggest state bank to be established since the creation of the banking department in 1911, with a capital of $500,000 and paid in surplus of $250,000.

More than 85,000 tons of fertilizer were purchased cooperatively this year by farmers of Alabama through the Alabama Farm Bureau Mutual Supply Association. Fertilizer purchases through the Farm Bureau this spring have been the heaviest on record, except for last year, when the Farm Bureau handled 101,000 tons.

Selection of Dr. Douglas L. Cannon as State Health Officer to succeed the late Dr. S. W. Welch has been received with general expressions of satisfaction over the State. Dr. Cannon was nominated for the post by the State Health Board, and its action ratified by the State Medical Association at its recent session at Mobile.

Dr. Cannon is an experienced public health worker and thoroughly familiar with his new duties, having served as assistant state health officer since 1922, and having acted as health officer since the death of Dr. Welch. As assistant state health officer, he had had an important part in building up Alabama's public health service to its present position at the top of the list of all the states. Before coming to the State Health Department, Dr. Cannon was for nearly two years county health officer of Pike County, and prior to that had served as a member of the faculty of Alabama College, Montevallo. He is the fourth State Health Officer in the history of Alabama, his predecessors having been: Dr. Jerome Cochrane, 1879-1897; Dr. William H. Sanders, 1897-1916; and Dr. S. W. Welch, 1917-1928.

Formation of the Alabama Rifle Association, which was recently effected, will be of interest to target shooters over the State. The new association will be affiliated with the National Rifle Association.

Officers of the association as elected at the recent organization meeting, are as follows: E. E. Sellers, Adamsville, President; Dr. S. A. Merriam, Springville, Vice President; John B. Mayson, Montgomery, Secretary; E. A. Rogers, Gadsden, Treasurer; Captain Walter J. Hanna, Birmingham, range officer; Major E. E. Burrows, Montgomery, publicity officer and William F. Crenshaw, Jr., Greenville, Auditor.

In an effort to keep the Mediterranean fruit fly out of Alabama, the State Department of Agriculture on April 24th decreed a quarantine against importation of fruit and vegetables from Florida, where the fly has been recently found. This new pest is said to be highly destructive. The order of the Alabama authorities prohibits importation from Florida of a wide variety of fruit and vegetables, unless accompanied by certificate from the State of Florida or federal government showing the shipment to be healthy and from an uninfested area. State Law Enforcement officers are cooperating with the department of agriculture in enforcing the regulation.

CHILTON COUNTY ABSTRACT CO.
M. D. FOSHEE, Manager

A good business man will not buy a farm or any property without first looking it over to see what it is worth.

However, some will buy or loan money on land without an abstract.

Isn't it equally as foolish to buy a farm without looking it over as to buy it and not know whether the titles are good or not? Without an abstract you do not know where you are getting the land you look at or not.

Before investing in land in any way have an abstract made and be safe.

"My! you look lovely to-night"

SHE knew the compliment to be true—for the last pimple had vanished.

If you are one of the embarrassed—and men are not exceptions—with skin blemishes that linger, and sometimes leave scars, you must realize that the logical cause may come from the blood.

A clear, smooth, velvety skin bespeaks loveliness. Men admire it. Women praise and secretly envy. Hope, joy, happiness, and even love, may depend on the possession of a clear, unblemished skin.

On the other hand—skin eruptions are outward evidences of the condition within. Authorities state it is an indication that the body's power of resistance to disease and infection is low. Meaning, that there is a deficiency of red-blood-cells.

Without plenty of rich, red blood, there could be no strong, sturdy, powerful men, or beautiful, healthy women.

When you get your red-blood-cells back to normal, that sluggish let-down feeling, loss of appetite, boils, pimples, and skin troubles disappear. You get hungry again and you sleep soundly; firm flesh takes the place of that which was once flabby. You feel strong. Your nerves become steady. You are resistant to diseases.

S.S.S. is Nature's own tonic for improving the appetite, building strength, and clearing the body of so-called skin troubles, by increasing the red-cells of the blood.

S.S.S. is made from fresh vegetable drugs and has stood the test of over 100 years.

All Drug Stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

How to Raise Poultry

By Dr. L. D. LeGear, V.S., St. Louis, Mo.

Dr. LeGear is a graduate of the Ontario Veterinary College, 1892. Thirty-six years of veterinary practice on diseases of live stock and poultry. Eminent authority on poultry and stock raising. Nationally known poultry breeder. Noted author and lecturer.

"EGGS IS EGGS"—BUT NOT FOR HATCHING

Editor's Note—This is another story in a series of 52 stories on poultry raising written by the well known national poultry authority, Dr. L. D. LeGear, V. S., of St. Louis. The entire series will appear in this paper. Our readers are urged to read them carefully and clip them out for future reference.

Too Great Care Cannot Be Observed in the Selection of Eggs for Hatching—In Choosing the Right Eggs for the Purpose Lies Much of the Secret of Successful Incubation.

"Pigs is pigs" according to the famous story by Ellis Parker Butler, and to a great many people eggs is eggs, regardless of the way in which they are to be used. When it concerns eggs for any purpose but hatching, that view may be as good as any other, but eggs for hatching should certainly be selected with extreme care if best results are to be obtained. There is no great mystery about the process of making proper selection. On the contrary, it is a very simple matter. I have seen so much of random selection, however, that I am sure a few pointers on the subject will not be amiss.

First of all, let me say what kind of eggs not to use. Discard all eggs that are small, abnormally large, very dirty, irregularly formed and those with cracked, rough, thin or irregular shells. I would especially warn everyone against accepting the common belief that large eggs are best for hatching. Years of careful experimentation and close observation of the work of others has convinced me that the average size egg of regular form and color is the best for hatching. The exact size will vary, of course, with the different breeds. The same is true of color. Any chicken raiser can easily judge the size of eggs to use according to this advice and detailed instructions are not necessary.

The hatching egg should be sound of shell. It should be smooth, free from rough or uneven spots; should not be mottled or uneven of color; should not be thinner in one part than in another; should not have ridges, bumps, humps or bulges, but should be as near to the true egg shape as possible. A slight unevenness or variation from the ideal shape does not necessarily mean poor hatches, but if the unevenness of whatever kind you may use is very noticeable, better put such eggs aside for market or table use.

Eggs with unusually thin or porous shells are undesirable for hatching. The thin shelled egg is easily broken in turning.

To many people it will come as a surprise when they learn that dirty eggs should not be used. I speak from experience, however, when I say that such is the case. Slightly soiled eggs may be used if they are first carefully cleaned by rubbing lightly with a damp cloth or sponge. If that will not clean them, they should be put aside for other uses. Under no circumstances should eggs be washed thoroughly. The thorough wetting and hard rubbing will destroy nature's protective surface film, thus hastening evaporation of the contents and allowing harmful odors to penetrate the porous shell.

All eggs in any one hatch should be as nearly uniform as possible in size, weight and thickness of shell. They should also be of approximately the same age from the same variety of fowl. Thin shelled eggs hatch more easily, as a rule, than thick shelled ones. White eggs usually hatch more quickly than darker ones. Leghorn eggs will probably hatch 24 hours sooner than those from Plymouth Rocks. It will, therefore, be easy to see why uniformity in all the ways just mentioned is desirable whenever practicable. If this rule is followed, practically all eggs will hatch at or very near the same time, thus far greater chance for complete success than would be possible where eggs of widely varying characteristics are mixed together.

I do not recommend the use of pullet eggs for hatching. All breeding hens should be of good size for the breed and from 1 to 2 years of age. If pullets are used at all for breeders, they should be well matured, lay good size eggs and be mated to old roosters.

Another important factor that greatly influences the chances for successful incubation is the relative freshness of eggs. Those from 1 to 4 or 6 days old show little difference as to hatching quality, but after that they deteoriate rapidly. This is easily explained. A fresh egg contains just enough water to develop the embryo while it is gradually developing into a chick. As an egg shell is porous, the water will evaporate more or less rapidly, the exact degree depending on the temperature and relative humidity of the place in which the eggs are kept. After that natural internal moisture has passed out of the shell, there is no way on earth of restoring it in such a way that it can contribute to the building up of bone, muscle or nerve tissues in the baby chick. Exactly how long eggs may be safely held before their hatching qualities are seriously affected cannot be arbitrarily stated. It is worthy of note, however, than many commercial hatcheries invariably show a very high percentage of eggs successfully hatched in each setting, and they are often set when from 10 to 12 days old.

HAVE YOU AN UNMARKED GRAVE?

How unthoughtful is he who permits the remains of a loving Mother, Father, Sister, Brother or a little Child to rest in an unmarked grave with nothing to distinguish that hallowed spot from the commonplace surface of the earth, indifferently trampled by man and beast. Great comfort will be gained by consecrating the spot where sleeps the departed with a beautiful and lasting monument.

FROM REV. TH. M. BAKKE

To Readers of The Union-Banner:

It may interest you that on who has seen some of the South for a few years and is now circuit riding in a wild district in Saskatchewan thinks of the faces he looked into in Chilton County. It is the same scramble here as with you for the almighty dollar, and it is tragedy and comedy, interlacing of lucky and unlucky starred lives—whereever a poor child of earth hangs his weather-beaten hat. I have picked up odds and ends of stuff enough to patch up a considerable calendar of a western pioneer neighborhood. But you may have enough with your own struggles on the lowlands or uplands of the Coosa.

This is a very rolling foot hill country, up from the Manitoba wheat lands as level as a floor, up towards the treeless Montang mountain country. A new extension of the Soo line to be further extended this summer, goes out here to relieve the wheat raisers. As you depend on cotton, so they depend on wheat. And to secure an even market the farmers have in great proportion joined to pool their wheat. The Pool has great number of elevators all over these prairie provinces, and great terminal elevators at the east and west.

Wheat planting is just going on high, beautiful Marquis wheat, treated to formaldehyde, against smut. A farmer here is not satisfied with less than a half section of land, and glad if he has that and more for wheat, and then that much more for cattle. And that is just the risk for a poor man. He may get land poor. And poor is the word for the big lot of people who either come married and with a bumptious lot of kids or hoping to have. Over 5,000 homestead filings took place last year (1928) at the two agencies up at Peace River. Over 1,000 newcomers lately filed through the depots at Winnipeg—and 500 were Norwegians. I may be excused for noting such an item as I just missed being a Swede. I have a little Swedish blood in me from two generations back, but the Norwegian is altogether too evident as it is. But whoever is so composed can go to Saskatchewan and west and find solace. Lots of room—come all of you. At least the deep black soil stays on the ground here. We have none to give to the Gulf. There must be real satisfaction to the farmer as he seats himself on the tractor to plow, or harrow, or disc, or reap, or thresh—in knowing that the face of the earth will not materially change in his lifetime or in that of his very much alive descendants. I have not heard them tell in newspapers or legend of a flood in these parts, or of Indians building mounds for refuge as in the lower Mississippi Valley.

Well, may you all so live that when you at last shall wrap your cloak about you for the last dread journey you may lay down to sweet and pleasant dreams. Your fellow traveler in a weary land.—Th. M. Bakke.

SASKATCHEWAN

Mine eyes have seen thine everlasting plains.
Saskatchewan!— Saskatchewan!—
Have seen the winding trails of trains on trains
Of the Red Man, and of the Pale-faced Man.

Red Man, long was thine undisputed lease
Of rising foot hills and of rolling meadows,
Of shining sunset lakes lying at ease
In the mischievous lure of the lengthening evening shadows.

And there ashore the Indian tepee stood,
Where blew the steady gale with shifts and changes,
Where fishes fed or birds of passage would,
Settling en route upon the lakes and ranges.

And there the Indian lovers were plighted true
Among the young of tribal friends or rivals,
While often flew the feathered arrow thru
The hearts of dastards or of fit survivals.

Thy storied tepees fled the invading times.
From cabined reservations with the newer manners
Assinniboine and Blackfoot in these climes
Shall march below the King's, the Christian's banners.

And with the sturdy "Prairie Schooner" wheels,
In undulating tide, to ebb, no never,
They came from Liverpool, Stavangers, Kiels—
What reck they when Old Country ties must sever?

The dig their deep foundations on the plains
In dugout, sodhouse, cabin, homestead mansion.
They build their gain of grain in thrift and what remains
Builds up a kingdom yet for world expansion.

'Tis yet the stage when Norsemen, strong and broad,
Can add to sections sections all unnumbered.
I know them lords of charming virgin sod,
Grown rich and lavish while their brothers slumbered.

John Olson owned a lordly section land,
And saw his chance when young John Bolt was leary.
John Bolt had been to war, had seen command,
And now would reap reward on wheat fields weary.

She had a child, and now she was a widow.
John Bolt went home to get his old time gal,
And wed her in the shade of old Mt. Skiddow.

They came adventurous to this "last best West"—
Saskatchewan!— Saskatchewan!—
John Bolt was happy and it should seem blest
Upon the roaring hills his farm was on.

He built a flimsy shack of ill-matched boards
For he should plow, and disc, and sow and harrow.
But he forgot the wind can measure swords—
Ah, of his shack he might not fill a barrow.

For on the plain she could no longer linger.
John, unblest with such unhappy things,
Must now go back and hold his wife or bring her.

Broad-shouldered, square-jawed, happy as a lark—
The scene was set. We wish you could have seen them.

"You sell your land?" enquired Olson sly.
"No good for man to be alone, I know it.
If you will sell, then Olson here will buy.

"I've got to sell," Bolt said, "my wife is gone.
What shall I do? I married Jane, the widow.
I can no longer to my farm hang on,
Or it may, too, blow over to Mt. Skiddow."

And I will get my papers so in order
That you can save the farm and have a nice
Trip yet with Jane back to this western border."

"Take it." The sale was done. The leary John Went home to England. John, who stayed departed
To build still broader what a State rests on—
Broad-shouldered, big-visioned and big-hearted.

So it shall be in old Saskatchewan,
When brother workers meet as friendly rivals.
So shall we see the fair and promised dawn
Of peace and plenty, free and fit survivals.

DEALER EMPHASIZED IN DELCO-LIGHT COMPANY ADVERTISING

Newspaper advertising as a means of developing dealers and salesmen to be important factors in their communities is stressed in an interview by C. C. Whistler, advertising manager of the Delco-Light Company, in a recent issue of Editor and Publisher.

The interview quotes Mr. Whistler as follows:

"In all our thirteen years of pioneering the farm electric field, we have always emphasized the dealer or salesman in newspaper advertising.

"Our 1929 newspaper advertising plan might be considered as one means of building the dealer into a more productive citizen of his community. We strive to impress on our selling men the importance of taking a place in community life. This advertising plan should further stimulate this work. Our men are being told that if they attain definite quotas of sales in their territories, if they keep their Delco-Light selling equipment in proper condition, and if they comply with requirements in keeping their own business on a desirable basis, they are going to be supported by factory-paid advertising which will do its share in getting them business and strengthening their positions in their communities.

"We feel there is a benefit to the Delco-Light selling man if he can profit by the experience and advice of the country weekly and small city newspaper publisher who probably knows his rural territory better than anyone else."

The Delco-Light Company, a General Motors subsidiary, is the world's largest manufacturer of individual farm electric plants with more than 325,000 in use on American farms. It also manufactures D-L electric residence water systems, widely used in rural and subburban homes.

Mr. D. M. Slaughter, State Fire Marshal of Montgomery, was in Clanton Sunday. He attended the Chilton County Singing Convention.

WHAT HILKIAH FOUND IN THE TEMPLE

LESSON TEXT—II Chron. 34:14-33.
GOLDEN TEXT—Thy word is a lamp unto my feet and a light unto my path
PRIMARY TOPIC—Finding a Lost Book.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Finding a Lost Book.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Discovering a Guidebook.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Bible in National Life.

I. The Book of the Law Found (vv. 14-17).

1. The occasion (v. 14).

It was while restoring the temple during Josiah's reformation that the Book of the Law was discovered. No doubt, in clearing out the dark corners to make repairs and to find a place to store the subscriptions made by the people, many things which had been lost were found, among which was the law. This was "the law of the Lord given by Moses."

2. The book delivered to the king (vv. 15-17).

In a report of the work, the king was informed of the finding of the Book of the Law by Hilkiah, and the book was delivered to him.

II. The Effect of the Reading of the Law (vv. 18-28).

Shaphan, the scribe, read the law before the king.

1. The king rent his clothes (v. 19).

As the law was read before him, the king was led to realize the awful extent of the nation's departure from God. He knew that sin merited punishment. The function of the law is to reveal sin. The rending of the royal robes indicated that the king was penitent and sorrowful.

2. The king sent a deputation to make inquiry of the Lord (vv. 20, 21).

The king included himself in guilt before God. "Go inquire for me and for them that are left—for great is the wrath of the Lord that is poured out upon us." His sense of sin was so keen that he sent to inquire of the Lord as to whether there was any means of diverting the divine judgments. Instinctively, the human heart turns from God's threatening judgments to a means of escape. The soul that sorrows for sin inquires for a way of escape. The law prepared for the gospel. The law is our schoolmaster to bring us to Christ (Gal. 3:24).

3. The message of Huldah, the prophetess (vv. 22-28).

(1) Confirmation of what the law said (vv. 22-25).

She said that all the curses written in the law must fall, for the sins had been so flagrant that God's wrath could not be restrained. Destruction was hanging over Jerusalem and it was too late to avert it. It was not too late, however, to repent and to obtain mercy from God, but the outward consequences of sin must be realized. Fulfillment of this is found on every hand today. The murderer must hang.

(2) Acceptance of Josiah's repentance (vv. 26-28).

Because of his tenderness of heart and deep penitence, the Lord said he should be gathered to his grave in peace and should not see all the evil to be brought on Jerusalem and its people. What Huldah said was true, even though Josiah died in battle (35:23-25). When God accepts a man and forgives him, his death is a peaceful one, even though it may be on the battlefield. God's presence is with him, therefore he will go straight from the battlefield to the heavenly home.

III. The Law Obeyed (vv. 29-33).

1. The king read the law (vv. 29, 30).

He gathered together the inhabitants of Jerusalem, including the priests, Levites and elders, and read unto them the law.

2. The king made a covenant before the Lord to keep His commandments and testimonies (vv. 31, 32). In this covenant he pledged himself to do three things:

(1) To walk before the Lord (v. 31). This meant that he would get personally right with God.

(2) To keep God's commandments, testimonies and statutes with all his heart and soul (v. 31). To read the law is not enough. Its holy requirements must be obeyed.

(3) To perform the words of the covenant, which were written in the book (v. 31). This was done sincerely and he caused all that were present "to stand to it."

3. The king took away the abominations out of all the countries which pertained to Israel (v. 33). All the days of the king they departed not from following after the Lord, the God of their fathers.

The Camel and the Rich Man

And Jesus looked round about, and said unto his disciples, How hardly shall they that have riches enter into the kingdom of God! It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God.—Mark 10: 23-25.

Corn Craves Available Nitrogen

The desire little Willie has for his grandma's gingerbread is no comparison to the way the corn plant craves nitrogen. If all farmers could only understand corn language as well as grandmas understand the pleadings of their grandsons, the yields of corn in the South would increase. These mothers know just how much of their tempting cakes little Willie should have and how often, for if left alone he would eat too much for his own good.

So it is with feeding the corn plant. There is a best time and kind of fertilizer to feed corn to make the most for each pound of plant food used. Commercial nitrogen for feeding plants comes in two forms: slow-acting, such as cottonseed meal; and quick-acting, such as nitrate of soda. The nitrogen in cottonseed meal at the time applied is not available. It must be changed or made available before the plant can eat it. This change takes place through what is generally known as "rotting." The rotting process requires time and, at best, only a little of it is made available at a time.

Experiments and results of successful farmers agree that best yields are secured when the corn plant is given a large amount of quickly-available nitrogen from 35 to 40 days after the corn is planted, or when knee to waist high. More than fifty years ago farmers used and found the quick response corn made to applications of Chilean Nitrate of Soda as compared with other forms of nitrogen. Since that time, hundreds and thousands of farmers have profited from the use of side-dressing cotton and corn, and millions of tons of this material have been furnished them from the inexhaustible beds in the little country of Chile, on the west coast of South America.

FARM OF D. E. WILLIS, BROOKLAND, TEXAS.
Corn at left received no fertilizer. That at right received acid phosphate and muriate of Potash at planting and Chilean nitrate of soda as side dressing when corn was knee high. Fertilized plot produced 43 bushels, an increase of 22 bushels over the unfertilized plot.

Many claim their corn yields have been doubled and trebled through the use of 100 to 200 pounds of "soda" per acre. W H. Camp of Villa Rica, Georgia, who was declared by the Georgia State College cotton champion in 1928, says: "I have found that 100 to 200 pounds of Chilean nitrate of soda, applied to corn when it is about waist high, will double the yield. I rotate my crops, and Chilean Nitrate is the only kind of fertilizer I use on corn." Blaney Sumrell, North Carolina Master Farmer, of Ayden, said: "I use Chilean nitrate of soda as a side or top dressing on my corn, cotton, and small grain. I use 100 pounds per acre. My yields are doubled on corn and oats and increased a third on cotton. I cannot recommend too highly the use of side or top-dressings, as they have proven so very satisfactory to me."

SOUSA TO BE ON THE AIR MAY 6

John Phillip Sousa and his world famous band will be heard over the radio for the first time on Monday evening, May 6th, in an hour broadcast, sponsored by Chevrolet Motor Company to signalize the achievement of placing on the road over a half million new six cylinder cars in four months time.

The radio debut of the famous "March King" will come through the National Broadcasting Company coast to coast chain during the regular General Motors "Family Hour," starting at 8:30 p. m.

According to W. M. Polk, local Chevrolet dealer, Chevrolet was particularly fortunate in seeking an attraction to emphasize its latest record to secure the first radio performance of this famous director-composer who has been an American institution for the past two decades.

"Naturally, we Chevrolet dealers are proud that our company has been instrumental in introducing Sousa and his band to the microphone," Mr. Polk said. "We are equally proud, however, of the occasion marked by Sousa's first broadcast. By putting on the road over 500,000 new Chevrolet sixes since January 1, we have established a record never before duplicated by any dealer organization distributing six cylinder automobiles. In fact, no other dealer organization in the history of six cylinder manufacture has ever equalled this record in the course of a full year.

CARD OF THANKS

Mrs. R. M. Hubbard and family take this means of expresssing their thanks for the kindness and sympathy of friends and neighbors during their bereavement in the death of Mr. Hubbard.

CURIOUS MONEY

Mr. Jesse Baker, of Clanton, showed us several pieces of old and odd money last Saturday. The collection has been made by Mr. Baker over a period of several years, and consists of a silver dollar, two 5-cent pieces, a half dime, and a 2-cent piece.

At the top of the front side of the dollar the word "Liberty" appears. On each side of this word there are stars, seven on one side and six on the other, making thirteen in all, in commemoration of the thirteen original states. In the center the liberty "head" appears, with the date, 1799, underneath. On the other side, the words, "United States of America" extend all the way around, just inside the rim. At the top, and just inside this inscription, appear several curiously shaped characters, with thirteen stars underneath them. Under the stars is the American eagle, bearing in its beak a streamer on which appears "E. Pluribus Unum". On the eagle's breast is the shield, and in one talon several arrows are clasped, while the other holds the olive branch. Around the edge appears the words "One Dollar or Unit," and "Hundred Cents," the words being interspersed with pairs of stars, and some kind of curiously shaped characters.

On the two 5-cent pieces, at the top of the front side the words "In God we Trust" appear. In order underneath appear a Maltese cross and the shield, around which there is a flowered effect. These pieces are alike on the front except that one bears the date 1867, while the other bears date of 1868. There are no stars on this side. On the reverse side the words "United States of America" extend almost all the way around, only leaving room for the word "Cents." Inside the ring formed by this inscription is a ring of thirteen stars. Inside this ring of stars the figure "5" appears. These two pieces are alike, except that on one the ring of stars is interspersed with vertical markings, while on the other these do not appear.

On the front of the half dime, thirteen stars appear around the edge, inside the ring of which is the "throned Liberty" statue. The date, 1851, is directly underneath and in line with the circle formed with the stars. On the other side, around the edge there appears "United States of America," with a wreath inside this inscription. The words "Half Dime" appear in the center, under which is the mint letter "O".

The 2-cent piece is of copper. On the front side a floral edged shield almost covers the entire coin, leaving room for the date, 1865. On the other side, "United States of America" form an outside ring. Directly inside this ring is a wreath which surrounds the inscription "2 Cents".

On all the pieces, the stars are 6 pointed ones.

The collection is an interesting one, especially the dollar, which is slightly larger than those commonly seen now. The 2-cent piece, too, is very odd as to size, being almost as large as our present 25-cent piece.

THORSBY SECTION

Sunshine and rain, cool nights and beautiful days have prevailed during the past week and the strawberry harvest has gone along at a splendid rate. Monday ten cars were loaded, making eighty-four so far this season, and still they come. Saturday a supplementary car load of empty crates, about four thousand, came in and were quickly distributed among the growers. Monday another car load was brought in by express, and it is quite probable that still more will be needed. Monday picking was somewhat handicapped by afternoon showers and several fields were not wholly gone over until Tuesday. Prices ruled considerably higher all last week and the farmers and their wives are all smiling when not too tired. Inquiry reveals the fact that many of the fields still have quite a showing of green berries indicating a continuance of the season all this week at least.

We have been asked to state that "The Congregational Service Car" will call for people in or near Thorsby, who may desire to attend church services at the Congregational church Sunday mornings, and on account of physical infirmities are not able to walk or have no means of conveyance. Just send a postal card, or otherwise notify Mrs. J. E. Each before Saturday night.

Next Sunday night, May 5th, after Christian Endeavor meeting, Rev. J. E. Each will give a Stereopticon illustrated lecture, entitled "'The Children of Other Lands," showing missionary work and its results among children in foreign lands. An offering will be taken, and whatever is received above expenses for transportation of the pictures will be used for mission work of the denomination.

The Congregational Ladies Aid Society will hold their monthly social on Thursday afternoon of this week at Thorsby Institute Dormitory. A general invitation is extended to ladies of Thorsby and vicinity and their friends to attend this gathering.

Mr. and Mrs. Rush Smith of Davidson, Michigan were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Lucas from Wednesday of last week till Monday.

"The Gypsy Rover," an operetta, or musical comedy, as presented last Saturday night at the public school auditorium by Thorsby Community Choral Society under direction of Miss Kathryn Dick, head of Thorsby Institute Music Department, was in every detail a performance of unusual merit.

When one considers that probably not more than one or two of the characters in the cast had ever appeared in public in anything so ambitious, or of anything of its kind, great credit must be given to Miss Dick for her skill and patience as a musical director, and to each and every one who had a part on the program for the care and attention each had given their part to make the whole such a pleasing, dignified and delightful performance. It seems incredible that so much of latent talent should be developed and put into such splendid action even after six weekly rehearsals. It is hoped that such success may stimulate a desire on the part of many more of our young, and some older people, to contribute to the enlargement of the society next season, as we feel confident that it is really a worth while enterprise.

Hollis Pate and wife and Lester Pate were Sunday visitors from Wetumpka at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Pate in Thorsby.

Dr. and Mrs. N. I. Wood, of Uvala, Texas are spending a few days with Dr. and Mrs. S. C. Wood at their home in Thorsby. They expect to return to their Texas home soon.

The whole community will be glad to know that Dr. Wood is at home again after an absence of several weeks in which he has been taking special courses at New Orleans.

Mrs. A. K. Horn of Montgomery is visiting old friends and neighbors in Thorsby. At present she is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Goddard.

Mrs. Fike is enjoying a visit from her mother, Mrs. Grant and her brother's wife, Mrs. George Grant, with her baby, all of Marbury.

Mrs. Anna Parnell of Birmingham who has been spending several weeks with her daughter, Mrs. S. C. Wood, has returned to her home.

Miss Mary Sue Robinson was taken to St. Vincents hospital in Birmingham Tuesday morning to undergo an operation for Goitre.

Mrs. Frank McCain died last Sunday morning at the home of her mother, Mrs. Oliver Butler, near Wetumpka. Mrs. McCain had been ill for several months. She left a husband and two children.

Mr. John A. Carlson and daughter, Pearl, with his brother, Claus Carlson, left by auto Wednesday morning to spend several months among relatives and friends in northern Illinois.

Miss Murrell of Hope Hull, Ala., W. B. Scott of Montgomery and Tom Lesslie were guests at the home of R. W. Scott Sunday.

Mrs. Ollie Tagg was the guest of Mrs. Mamie Smith in Clanton Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Black of Pratt City were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Gore last week.

There will be English Service in Thorsby Lutheran church at the usual hour next Sunday morning, John 15:18-27. Subject: "In the World, but not of the World." K. J. Keel will conduct the service.

Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Laurell had a number of guests last week. Mrs. Laurell's sister, Mrs. Fred Chamberlain, and her son, Harry, from Chattanooga, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Carlton. Mr. Carlton is pastor of the 76th Street Presbyterian church of Birmingham. Dr. Chew of Birmingham stopped for lunch with them one day. Mr. C. E. Fitch of Birmingham was also a guest during the week and Mr. Harry Graves spent Saturday night with them.

Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Laurell were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Townsend Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Laurell spent last Friday in Birmingham.

Miss Iola Gerald and two college friends, Misses Esther Kendricks and Mildred Rozelle spent the week end with Iola's family in Thorsby.

Mr. I. S. Gerald and sister, Ruth, of Birmingham spent Sunday at home in Thorsby.

"Missionary Work and Needs of the Phillipines" was the subject of the Christian Endeavor meeting Sunday evening. The meeting was led by the Missionary Committee.

In the afternoon the Mission Study Class held its last meeting. This class, sponsored by the Christian Endeavor Society and under the leadership of Miss Klingelhoefer, had been studying "Youth and the New America."

B. F. VINES

On April the 17th, the death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Will Vines and claimed for its victim B. F. Vines, our dear father. Death came as a sudden shock to his many friends and loved ones. He was sick only a short time. He suffered so much, but God does all things well. He took him home where suffering will be no more. We grieve not as those who have no hope. Oh, how sad it makes us feel to think we will never see him while on this earth but if we live for Jesus we will meet him some glad day where sorrow is all passed away. Funeral services were conducted by Brother Metcalf. He was laid to rest in the Mullins cemetery.—One Who Cared For Him, Mrs. Mat Vines.

INSECT THREATENS ALABAMA FARMERS

Alabama farmers who produce fruit and all citizens and marketing agencies, are today confronted with the most serious menace to the fruit and vegetable industry, which has ever threatened Alabama, according to information compiled at the State department of Agriculture, by J. M. Moore, in charge of markets, who in a warning broadcast to citizens if Alabama spoke as follows:

"The Mediterrean fruit fly is more dangerous than many other insect pests combined as can be seen by comparison. The boll weevil attacks but one host plant cotton, while the fruit fly lives on 72 out of the 80 kinds of fruit and vegetables found in Florida."

"This pest, heretofore kept to foreign shores, has been found in three counties in Florida. The seriousness of the menace can be imagined when it is known that Florida has appropriated more than one hundred thousand dollars to fight the pest to a finish. The U. S. Government will doubtless appropriate millions within a few days, Georgia is patrolling its roads with armed guards to prevent entrance of "bootleg fruit" and Alabama and other southern states are hoping for safety behind strong quarantines."

Fortunately this department has found no larvae nor flies in Alabama fruit, nor in fruit imported from Florida. We are watching for it and at the same time hoping that none will enter our state. To prevent this catastrophe, this department has issued a rigid quarantine. No fruit or vegetables of any kind can enter Alabama from the infested area around Orlando, Florida. No bulk grape or bulk oranges can enter Alabama, under any conditions. No fruit nor vegetables can enter Alabama from Florida unless it has been examined and found free from this pest and has been produced and stored outside of the danger zone of infection."

As marketing official of the state, Mr. Moore said that the first great regulatory and control feature, lay in safeguarding the markets. We want Florida citrus fruits and vegetables, if we can sell them with safety to ourselves. If we see danger to our state, there is no effort too great for us to make in looking out for our own interests. We must within Alabama control the marketing of Florida fruits and vegetables, regardless of market prices in Alabama. Until the pest is found in Alabama, it is entirely a quarantine and a marketing control matter. In the presence of the dread fruit fly, it then becomes a matter for entomologists and control officials.

This Week's 12 Best Jokes

Tobacco is a dirty weed.

It satisfies no normal need.
I like it.

During the World War, one of the great steamships that was used as a transport for soldiers was on her way across when a torpedo boat was sighted. In anticipation of the danger they were in, all on board were lined up on deck.

There was a deadly hush for an instant, when suddenly from down the line a negro's voice rang out: "Is dar ennybody heah dat wants to buy a gold watch and chain?"

"I've been watching that mechanic for the last fifteen minutes. There's a man who knows his business. He didn't spill a drop of oil on the ground. He put down the hood gently, fastened it securely and left no fingerprints on it. He wiped his hands on clean waste before opening the door, spread a clean cloth over the upholstery, meshed the gears noiselessly and then drove slowly and with caution into the street."

"Yeah. That's his own car."

A teacher was telling her class little stories in natural history, and she asked if anyone could tell her what a groundhog was. Up went a little hand waving frantically.

"Well, Tommy, you may tell us what a groundhog is."

"Please ma'am, it's a sausage."

"You'll have to take less strenuous exercises and get more sleep," said the doctor to the dejected man before him.

"That's my idea, exactly," said the other. "Would you mind coming up to the house and telling that to the baby?"

Might Advertise—Ned: "Well, how is your companionate marriage working out?"

Jed: "Terrible—I've lost my wife's address."—Judge.

A negro parson making an appeal for money one Sunday morning said: "In conclusion, brethren, dis money sho' gotta be raised, and I mus' say dat if day ain't no five dollar bills in dat collection box dis morning, a certain gemman's wife will know what lady he was seed wif a few nights ago!"

There were 14 five dollar bills in the collection plate.

Do You Know Why Your Cotton Sheds?

Why does cotton shed? The best authorities now agree that shedding is mainly due to plant starvation, and to its hunger for nitrogen in particular. When hot, dry weather comes in July or August, millions of acres of cotton turn yellow and sickly in color, and countless little bolls are thrown off, until the disheartened grower wonders if any will be left. Chilean nitrate of soda, furnishing as it does immediately available nitrogen, supplies the hunger of the starving plants, keeps them green and vigorous, and holds a large part of the fruit, and often doubles the yield. More and more, successful cotton farmers are learning that Chilean nitrate of soda is the most successful of all preventives of cotton shedding.

BAD WEATHER IN CLANTON TUESDAY NIGHT

Clanton and surrounding country experienced a severe storm early Tuesday night. Wind, rain, thunder and lightning played many interest- and exciting pranks during the program which lasted for about an hour.

Many large trees in different parts of the city were blown down. Electric and telephone service were badly crippled. In some parts of the city it required a large part of the day Wednesday for workmen to restore service to normal.

Roofs were blown off of several small buildings in the city. The downpour of rain was enormous.

The home of Walter Tippett north of the cotton mill village was blown away. The household goods were scattered over a wide area. The family was not at home.

We are told that the barn on the farm of Dewey Powell east of Clanton was wrecked. Mr. Powell lives at the old T. G. Taylor place.

Terry Marcus, who lives on the Mitchell Powell place east of Clanton, reports much damage. His shop building and some other out houses were blown down. His car, which was standing in the front yard, was blown some distance down in his field.

Sweeping constantly ahead to greater and greater heights of popularity... making and breaking new records of success with impressive regularity ... the new Chevrolet Six has established one of the most remarkable records in automotive history—more than 500,000 on the road since January 1st!

Not only does this brilliant accomplishment surpass the greatest record that Chevrolet has ever achieved in the past—but it brings to Chevrolet the significant honor of having built in only four months a greater number of six-cylinder cars than any other manufacturer has ever produced in an entire year!

Even with such a record to focus attention upon the outstanding value of the Chevrolet Six—many people still do not appreciate what "a Six in the price range of the four" actually means!

To such persons, consideration of the features responsible for this tremendous popularity will prove a revelation. So read the adjoining column carefully—and then come in and ask for a ride in this sensational six-cylinder car.

Outstanding Features of the New Chevrolet Six that have created this Tremendous Popularity—

6-Cylinder Smoothness

Due to the finer inherent balance of its six-cylinder motor—the new Chevrolet Six provides that smooth, quiet, flexible performance which is characteristic of the truly fine automobile. At every speed, the power is delivered easily, freely and without annoying vibration.

6-Cylinder Getaway

In sheer brilliance of performance, as well as in smoothness and quietness of operation, the new Chevrolet Six is a revelation. Acceleration is remarkably fast. And a new non-detonating cylinder head eliminates every trace of "lugging."

6-Cylinder Speed

The new Chevrolet Six has speed in abundance—but even more important than its speed is the smooth, quiet, restful comfort you experience at every point on the speedometer. You can open the throttle wide with a feeling of complete security.

Better Than 20 Miles Per Gallon

The marvelous performance of the Chevrolet Six would be exceptional in any car. But in the new Chevrolet Six it is actually sensational—for here it is combined with an economy of better than 20 miles to the gallon of gasoline!

Exceptional Riding Comfort

Another vital factor that has influenced over a half-million people in their selection of the new Chevrolet Six is its marvelous riding comfort. It travels smoothly over rough roads—and its balance on turns and corners is exceptional.

Beautiful Fisher Bodies

Longer, lower and roomier—finished in attractive, long-lasting colors—and upholstered in rich, deep-tufted fabrics—the new Fisher bodies on the Chevrolet Six introduce into the low-price field an entirely new measure of style and distinction.

Proved Dependability

Tested for more than a million miles on the roads of the General Motors Proving Ground—the new Chevrolet Six went into the hands of its owners thoroughly proved in every detail. And now reports of its performance on the highways of the nation pay glowing tribute to its endurance and dependability.

Amazing Low Prices

An achievement that surpasses even the brilliant performance qualities of this sensational six-cylinder car are the prices at which it is offered. Study these prices, and compare them with any other car and you will recognize the remarkable value represented in this Six in the price range of the four!

BRO. BRYAN'S BIBLE STORY

(Written for The Union-Banner by REV. J. A. BRYAN, Pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, Birmingham, Alabama)

DAMASCUS IN SYRIA

Damascus was the most ancient and by far the most important city of Syria. It is in a fertile plain surrounded by the desert. Damascus is situated east of the Anti-Lebanus range with an elevation of 2300 feet above sea level and is 133 miles nourth of the Holy city and 50 miles east of the Mediterranean Sea which is also called the great sea.

On account of its beauty of location the Arabs write and speak of it as the eye of the desert. Sometimes they write of it as the pearl of the east. This city is the oldest city in the world. It was built doubtless by the great grand son of Shem whose name was Ham. Certainly the city is beautiful for situation. Approaching the city along the road from Balbec to the right the guide points out the Abana River. You think of Naaman's opinion of it and also our opinion of it to-day, "Clean, clear, sparkling, crystal-like water." It is the water supply for the city of Damascus to-day.

Damascus was famed in those days for its copper and Damascan blades. There are copper foundries and factories there to-day. In the 27th chapter of Ezekiel we read of the merchandise of Damascus in these words: "Damascus was a merchant in the multitude of the wares of her making, and in the wine of Helbon and white wool." Thus we see that Damascus was a center of trade with other countries.

It is first mentoned in the Bible in connection with Abraham whose steward, Eliezer was a native of Damascus. You will find this in the 15th chapter of the book of Genesis. David subjugated Damascus just about 1040 B. C. David, the man after God's own heart in storming and capturing that city would become subject to him only with the sword of the spirit, his only weapon of warfare. He fought in the name of the God of Isreal.

No doubt David felt the need of a great army to fight against such a great host as was befronting him. But he rode forward as a warrior saying, "Some trust in chariots and some trust in horses, but we will remember the name of the Lord our God. Great generals like David always trusted in the Lord in battles and spent much time in prayer to God. In the battles of our life, do we spend much time in prayer to God and in perfect trust in him?

In the year of our Lord 740 Tigleth-Pileser King of Assyria captured Damascus, slew Rezen its King, nearly destroyed the city and carried its inhabitants to Assyria. Now, Damascus was the capital, the head of Syria, and Razen was the head of Damascus, so we read in the Biblle. Damascus is also spoken of as a rich city. Its plains are very fertile.

So is Damascus as you look upon it to-day. The vegetables of the country are carried on donkey's backs which are led along by women. So the women become the vegetable wagon in Damascus. Remember this is the condition of women in unchristianized countries. Damascus in Syria was a province of Greece at one time and before Christ 333. Pompey led an army against and captured and occupied Syria, and beseiged Jeruslem. Damascus was then under Roman rule. It was again captlred in 634 A. D.

But I want to write to you especially about Christ's visit to Damascus. He does not seem to have visited Damascus until he had been in heaven for some time that is, after his ascension to the right hand of God. He does not seem to have entered the gate of the walls of the city until after he met Saul of Tarsus, the Hebrew of Hebrews, a man of great learning and culture.

This Saul of Tarsus was then living in Jerusalem and was a great persecuter of Christ and the christians and the church there. He had heard about the christians being in Damascus. He at once went to the counsel of Jerusalem and got warrants for the arrest of the christians in Damascus and bring back to Jerusalem for imprisonment. I can see him now going out of the gate of the city of Jerusalem. They traveled out of the Holy City in caravans in those days, some of them riding donkeys and some camels. I see them traveling along that road which leads up to Damascus 133 miles from Jerusalem.

Saul of Tarsus was about the age of Christ. He no doubt lived in Jerusalem the three years of Christ's public ministry. He may have known all about the illegal trial of Christ. He certainly knew his teachings and his miracles which he worked. He had his eye open and his brain was capable of taking in the things he saw. When the Jews were stoning Stephen, Saul consented to his death and held the cloaks of the men who stoned him. This occured just outside the gate called St. Stephen's Gate on the east side of the Holy City on the way to Mount Olive. There as St. Stephen's face shone like an angel, Saul must have been impressed to a certain degree.

Now comes one of the most striking scenes in the New Testament and apostolic hitory. Just as Saul was journeying along, nearing Damascus, suddenly there shined round him a light from heaven. This was a great light before him and he fell to the ground, and heard a voice saying unto him, "Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me? It is hard for thee to kick against the pricks." Saul heard the voice, but the people around him did not. He said tremblingly, "Lord, who art thou and what wilt thou have me to do?"

Jesus said, "I am Jesus whom thou persecutest." I visited what I believe to be the location of this scene as recorded in the 9th chapter of the Acts of the Apostles. This great miracle which took place there changed Saul from an enemy of Christ to a follower, a friend of Christ. In studying this incident you can but stop and think how do I persecute him by not standing up for him at all times and under all circumstances. I may persecute him by not giving the best I have to him, by with-holding some thinge from him.

Saul heard his voice and was convinced of the awful crime of persecuting him and his followers. He said, "Lord what wilt thou have me to do?" Jesus said, "Arise, and go into the city into a street called Straight, and it shall be told thee what to do."

On my visit there I walked on the street called Straight. It runs straight through the city of Damascus, but it is not very wide. You think of Saul being led along that street to the house of Judas where it was revealed to him what he must do for the Lord.

You have strange feelings. You feel your unworthiness very deeply. You think of how little you do for Christ and the number of times you have persecuted him. In passing I just say that the street is still called Straight and runs from east to west through the entire city of Damascus. A great deal of business is transacted in its beautiful bazaars. But my friends, the biggest business associated with this city was Christ's visit to Saul as he came near this city. The wonderful change in the life of Saul of Tarsus changing him from a persecufer to a believer and follower of Christ took place on the road near Damascus and in the house of Judas in Damascus on the street called Straight.

Saul was received into the church by a missionary called Annanias. Saul was persecuted many times The Jews threatened to kill him, and his friends let him down in a basket from a house on this street called Straight. He spent three years in Damascus where the beginning of his humble service to Christ was. He became a heralder, and ambassador of Jesus Christ whom he had so boldpersecuted.

Naaman the Syrian general lived in Damascus. He was all right, but he was a leper. His leprosy was cleansed through the love of a little servant maid of his own household who directed him to Elisha the man of God. Elisha visited Damascus once and predicted the death of Benha-dad, and anointed Ahaz who copied an altar in the temple in Jerusalem. This altar was from Damascus. Let us exalt Christ in our lives just as did Paul. Let us go boldly forward, even tho we may have fallen short of many duties and persecuted Christ many times, let us proclaim Christ the Son of God as did Paul who began his ministry in Damascus and ended it in Rome.

The Panama Canal

Gatem Dam

Gatem dam is a long, low, broad ridge built across the valley of the Chagres where it passes through a gap, about 7 miles above the mouth of the river. It was built in two wings, extending from either side to an intermediate hill which rose near the center of the swampy stretch across the valley. The hill, being rock, was taken as a foundation for the concrete spillway. In building each wing, parallel ridges or "toes" of rock were dumped about half a mile apart, and the space between the ridges was filled with an impervious mixture of clay and sand, as the height increased the dumping of rock was carried inward, bringing the toes closer together, and gradually an artificial ridge was formed. The total amount of fill space was approximately 23,000,000 cubic yards.

As completed, the two wings of Gatem dam and the spillway have an aggregate length of 8,400 feet, Gatem Dam is nearly half a mile wide at the base sloping gently to a width of 100 feet at the top. The top of the dam is 105 feet above sea level of 20 feet above the normal surface of the lake. The surface of the dam has been planted with grass and shrubbery and the two wings are the site of an 18 hole golf course.

To control the rise of the lake, Gatem Dam is provided with a spillway, through excess water in the lake is wasted, flowing into the Atlantic through the old channal of the Charges. The spillway dam, a structure of concrete, on which the 14 regulating gates are mounted, was built in the form of an arc of a circle and is 808 feet in length. The spillway discharge channel is 285 feet wide.

A hydroelectric station of 13,140 kilowatt capacity, has been erected at Gatem on the east bank of the spillway discharge channel and uses water from Gatem Lake for the generation of electricty. A high voltage transmission line parrallels the Panama Railroad across the isthmus and distributes electric power to the various towns and locations for operations of locks, shops, water pumping stations, coaling stations, refrigerating plants and for many other industrial and general uses on the Canal Zone. A Diesel electric generating station, located at Miraflores, is held in reserve.

Gatem Lake

Gatem Lake has an area of 163.38 square miles with shore line of 1,100 miles, when its surface is at its normal elevation of 85 feet above sea level. It is the largest artificially formed lake in the world with the exception of perhaps, the Cherokee Bluffs Lake of the Alabama Power The area of the water-shed tributary to the lake is 1,320 square miles. The quantity of water in the lake at normal level is 183,136 million cubic feet, or 4,204,000 acre-feet.

Miraflores Lake

Miraflores Lake extends between Pedro Miguel Lock and Miraflores Lock, which are about a mile apart. Pedro Miguel Lock is at the Pacific end of the cut (which is an artificial arm of Gatum Lake) and Miraflores Lock are at the inner end of the Pacific sea-level section. The normal surface elevation of Miraflores Lake is 54feet above sea level, or 31 feet below the level of Gatum Lake and the cut; its area is 160 square miles, its watershed 38.5 square miles, its capacity 878.5 million cubic feet. Gatum Lake has 100 times the area of Miraflores Lake and contains 208 times as much water. Miraflores Lake has a spillway with 8 gates, similar to the 14 gates on the spillway of Gatum Lake.

Width and Depth of Channel

The width of the Canal channel is 500 feet in the sea level section, from 500 to 1,000 feet in Gatum Lake, and not less than 300 feet in the cut. It is 42 feet deep in the Atlantic sea level section, from 85, to 45 feet deep in the lake section, including the Cut, and 45 feet deep at mean tide in the Pacific sea level section.

Tidal Variations

The normal variations between low tide on the Atlantic side is about 1 foot. On the Pacific side it is about 12.5 feet, with occasional ranges of 21 feet. The mean level of the Pacific at the Isthmus has been found to be about 8 inches higher than the mean level of the Atlantic. In the month of February the mean levels are the same; but throughout the rest of the year, on account of current, tidal, and wind influences, the mean level of the Pacific ranges above that of the Atlantic. It is as much as 1 foot higher in October.

Direction of Canal

Where the Canal is, the axis of the Isthmus runs from southwest to northeast. The canal was built from northwest to southeat, almost at right angles to the strip of land, and the Pacific end of it is 27 miles east of the Atlantic end. This is the place where the sun rises in the Pacific and sets in the Atlantic. A very rare sight indeed.

Capacity and Aids to Navigation

Both entrances to the canal are protected by break waters. A thorough system of lights and bouys makes possible the use of the canal at night as well as by day.

The canal is capable of handling the largest ships in existence. The U. S. S. ship Saratoga and the U. S. S. Lexington, both aircraft carriers, and the largest ships in the American Navy, have 2-foot clearance on either side of the locks. The capacity of the present canal the year around is estimated at approximately 48 ships of usual size per day or about 17,000 in a year.—Walter L. Peterson.

IN MEMORY

The death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Will Vines and took their beloved father. He was 81 years old, and had been sick only a short time. He leaves to mourn his loss 1 brother, 1 sister, 5 sons, 2 daughters, 40 grand-children, 38 great-grand-children. God bless us all that we may live to meet him in heaven where parting is no more; where we can live together, and where sorrow and pain are no more.

He was laid to rest at the Mullins cemetery with his beloved wife. Bro. Metcalf conducted the funeral services.—One Who Loved Him, Mrs. Will Vines.

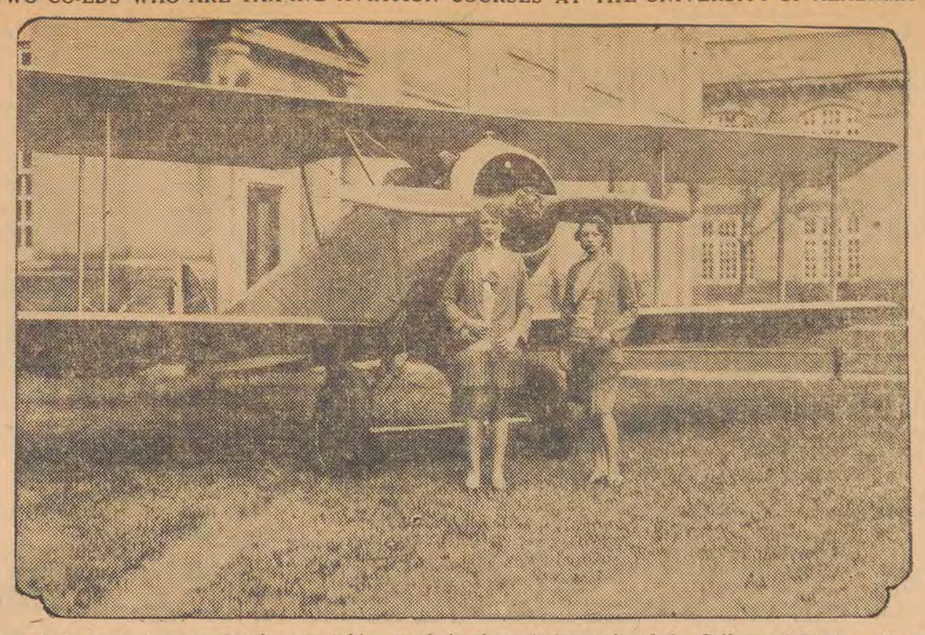
UNIVERSITY NEWS



University, Ala., May 1.—If the next Lindbergh is not an alumnus of the University of Alabama, it will not be the fault of that institution, it has been revealed here. The College of Engineering of the University has announced continued expansion of the work in aviation. University officials declared that they were governed in this decision by the fact that aviation as a vital factor in commerce has been assured.

Instruction in the aviation department is planned, as heretofore, to give the student a fundamental knowledge of aeronautics from a technical and earodynamical standpoint, it was stated. In regard to actual flight training, it is pointed out that Tuscaloosa's municipal airport, Maynor Field, located three miles from the campus, was developed through the cooperation of the engineering school and the city, and that all students registered in the aviation unit can make arrangements with skilled and licensed pilots at the field whereby they may obtain actual flying experience. This field is used daily, both by the visiting birdmen and by a transport company located in the Druid city. Several students in the engineering school already operate planes, and one of them is a licensed pilot, it was stated.

G. J. Davis, dean of the engineering school, stated that airplane parts, two planes, a wind tunnel, and other appliances are already available for instructional purposes. He also stated that the faculty instruction for the department includes a skilled aviator with experience in teaching aeronautics.

Airplane rigging and designing, weather forecasting, flight by dead reckoning, instrument flying, propellor designing, avigation, and many other subjects are listed for future Alabama birdmen taking this work.

County Farm Agent's Notes

ALABAMA FARMERS WILL HAVE FINE OBJECT LESSON

Alabama farmers will have a fine object lesson in the new convict farm near Atmore in Escambia County, according to statements by S. M. Dunwoody, commissioner of agriculture, who in company with others made a recent tour of inspection of the farm and gave the project thorough examination. The following statement was authorized by the commissioner, who said:

"The farm of 3,600 acres has a flat surface which will not wash and terraces are not needed. The subsoil is heavy and will hold moisture and fertilizer very well. This soil can be built up to the very highest condition of fertility, because it has the basis on which to build. The State could not have found a better tract of land for this purpose—all things considered."

"This farm has already yielded enough timber to construct the necessary buildings and more timber can still be cut. I saw 25 acres of volunteer winter oaks that looked fine. There were onions, squash, Irish and sweet potatoes, and other garden vegetables; in addition to 250 acres of strawberries just beginning to ripen, a big canning plant was going up to care for the canning products.

"It is the project of the Board of Administration to can enough food to supply the large convict population through the year. This will save a large amount of money now spent for canned goods grown in other states.

"'This farm with its fine typical, productive soils has already attracted favorable attention from local farmers who are interested in the project. This far mis well adapted to demonstration and experimental work and it should serve as a fine example to local farmers and to all who visit it."

The farm has only been owned by the State for 9 months, during this time it has been changed from a forest to a field. The State Board of Administration, headed by Charles A. Moffett, purchased the farm. Hamp Draper, in charge of the Convict Department, has been very active in upbuilding the farm and planning to make it a model of its kind. In due time, it will be one of the show spots of Alabama.

NATIONAL EGG WEEK WILL BE OBSERVED

Auburn, Ala., May 1.—In line with an annual custom the first week in May will be "National Egg Week" throughout the United States; and Prof. John E. Ivey and G. A. Trollope, of the poultry department, say that the week will be observed in Alabama.

The purpose of it is to popularize eggs and cause their food value to be more fully appreciated. The idea is sponsored by the National Poultry Council and Prof. Ivey is chairman for Alabama.

During the week housewives will serve eggs prepared by different methods. In hotels, cafes, and dining cars they will be featured in different menus. It is expected that grocery stores will have special window displays of eggs.

Eggs can be prepared in numerous ways and the food value is exceptionally high, Prof. Ivey said. Therefore, since Alabama is developing a large poultry industry it is important for egg week to be observed in the State in order to develop marketing consumption at home.

Eggs are high in food value and they may be prepared for either of the three meals. Hundreds of recipes in which eggs are used have been prepared. Home demonstration extension workers are giving instructions on the advantages of eggs and how to use them.

FARM RELIEF IN TIMBER

Montgomery, Ala., May 1.—That farm relief has often been achieved through wise use of the landowner's timber patch instead of through legislation is the opinion of the Alabama Commission of Forestry. This does not mean that there are not many earned benefits due the farmer that can best be obtained by suitable laws, but it does signify that thru a well balanced development of the farm unit the timbered arear frequently pulls the farmer out of the hole, so to speak.

The average farm in Alabama is much less than one hundred acres, and in nearly every instance a considerable part supports wood growth. By keeping fire out of the woods and letting the latter grow as nature intended and now and then redering a helping hand, the farmer when hard pressed for funds very often finds that he can realize a good price on the matured timber.

In commuinty after community throughout the south, farmers have come through hard times in reasonably good financial condition through marketing ties, sa wlogs, poles, piling and other material from their woodlands. Since, under ordinary circumstances, the particular acres covered by the woods will always remain rough land, the area is in a position to grow repeated yields of timber which can be realized upon in future emergencies.

During the months of January, February, and March sales on 17 curb markets in Alabama amounted to $55,401.63, according to reports made by the home demonstration agents to Miss Helen Johnston at Auburn.

There are now in operation in the United States 4,000 merchandising chains with 100,000 stores or units which are conducting a combined business of six million dollars per year. This is 16 per cent of the total retail business of the country. There are 800 grocery chains with 60,000 stores doing a business of three billion dollars.

HOW TO STORE EGGS IS TOLD BY EXPERTS

Auburn, Ala., May 1.—For preserving eggs for home use the old water glass method is recommended by Prof. John E. Ivey and G. A. Trollope, of the poultry department of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. This method is inexpensive and by it eggs may be stored successfully for one year and be as good for cooking purposes as when fresh. They are stored in spring for use in fall and winter.

Water glass in a commercial solution can be obtained from drug stores. A stone jar is the most suitable vessel in which to preserve eggs in water glass. Two 6-gallon or three 4-gallon jars are enough for 30 dozen eggs put up in a solution of one and one-half quarts of water glass to 15 quarts of boiled water. Thoroughly clean the jars, place the eggs in them and pour in the water glass solution. The eggs at the top should be covered by at least two inches of the liquid. Cover the jars in order to prevent evaporation and put in a cool place where they will be undisturbed during the year. If the solution evaporates or becomes thick and jelly-like, add water. Eggs in water glass keep better if they are stored where the temperature is near the freezing point.

Only absolutely fresh eggs should be prepared; stale eggs will not keep in any preservative. The preservative should be ready for the eggs as they are received. If there is any doubt as to the freshness of the eggs candle them or test them in a dish of salt water. Put one-third cupful of salt into one quart of water and if the egg sinks it is fresh. Candling consists of looking through the eggs at a bright light.

Spring eggs keep better than summer or fall eggs. Infertile eggs are better for preserving than fertile. Eggs in good condition when removed from the water glass solution will usually remain so for at least two weeks.

To boil eggs that have been preserved in water glass prick a small hole through the large end of the shell before they are placed in the water. The pores of the shell are sealed by the water glass solution, and the pinhole may prevent the shell from bursting.

RUNNING WATER ON THE FARM

Summing up the service of running water under pressure in the rural home, "Electricity on the Farm" says:

"No other appliance on the modern, electrified farm gives such continuous and appreciated service as the water system; and few power operated appliances save as much labor and inconvenience. Water is needed both for the household and the livestock, winter and summer. Though a blizzard is raging, water is needed; and even in rainy seasons a dependable supply of pure, palatable water is indispensable, just as it is in fair weather.

"It's an irksome task to pump water for stock after a hard day's work in the field; it's equally irksome for the farm housewife to continually run to the old hand pump for water—and there's a lot of it used about the average farm household, to say nothing of the special demand on Monday for laundry work alone.

"The greatest single advance in living conditions on the farm came with the power operated water system which 'lets the water do the running'.

One such water system, which "lets the water do the running," is made by a General Motors subsidiary and sells in a price range as low as $75—evidence that the modern convenience of running water under pressure is readily available to any farm family.

The Alabama Experiment Station at Auburn has established experimental fields at Alexandria, Hackleburg, Prattville, Aliceville, and Cahaba as part of the agricultural research system of the State. Five other experimental fields are to be established this year.

Haven't you often wished that you could be with friends who have moved to other cities? They may be far away, yet you can easily keep in touch with them; talk over old times, and make plans for the future. When they're ill or when anniversaries and birthdays come around you can join them with your voice.

Recent service improvements have made distant telephone conversations a pleasure. Generally, connections are made almost as quickly as with local calls. In most cases you can hear just as clearly as if you were talking to a friend around the corner.

You'll be surprised, too, to learn how inexpensive these voice visits now are. At seven o'clock in the evening, and again at eight-thirty, reductions are made in the station-to-station rates. And long distance calls return so much in the way of friendship and satisfaction. Keep friendships alive—by telephone.

TEN FARMERS WILL GET MASTER AWARDS

Auburn, Ala., May 1.—Ten Alabama farmers are to be named as "master farmers" this year. It will be done by The Progressive Farmer of Birmingham in cooperation with the Extension Service of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

As a first step in locating, determining, and conferring this distinguished honor on ten of Alabama's most successful farmers, each county has been requested to name its best farmer. This is being done by the farmers themselves with the help of their county agents.

The next step after deciding upon the best farmer in each county it to make a detailed report of his work as a farmer; and this report serves as a basis for further investigation.

Before the final decision as to the ten winners a representative of The Progressive Farmer and one of the Extension Service will visit each of those having a chance to win and collect additional information. W. C. Lasseter, editor of The Progressive Farmer, and one of the district demonstration agents will conduct these personal investigations. The district agents are J. T. High, R. G. Arnold, and Emmett Sizemore.

After the ten winners are decided they will be called to Auburn in July or August as guests of The Progressive Farmer. While here a banquet will be given in their honor; and at this banquet medals and certificates will be awarded. As president of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute Dr. Bradford Knapp will confer the master farmer awards. A gold medal will be presented to each of the ten by The Progressive Farmer.

This will be the second group of ten Alabama farmers to receive this award. The first received it in 1927, the ten being John R. Witt, Belle Mina; Emil Graf, Mobile; B. H. Lightfoot, Troy; L. C. Young, Montgomery; J. W. Hathorn, Dothan; J. B. H. Lumpkin, Albertville; Henry King, Selma; J. J. Boyd, Hackleburg; Webb Hurst, Shorter; and R. E. Lambert, Darlington. In addition, Edward A. O'Neal, president of the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation, was given a medal for "distinguished service in farm leadership."

Auburn, Ala., May 1.—From January 17 to April 25 of this year farmers in 41 counties marketed cooperatively 75 carloads of poultry for which they received $250,000 at the car door. An average of 400 farmers participated in the sale of each car, or a total of 30,000 farmers. The cars were shipped direct to the big markets, most of them going to New York.

Report of these sales have been made by J. B. Sylvest and J. D. Moore, extension service of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. The county demonstration agents, the home demonstration agents, the county farm bureau, and the State farm bureau at Montgomery cooperated in making them a success. The clerical work was done at the State farm bureau office in Montgomery, this being a part of the system of miscellaneous marketing done by this organization.

In reporting these sales Mr. Sylvest and Mr. Moore named several advantages in selling this way. The surplus poultry in communities reached by these cars was removed without oppressing local prices. Farmers were paid cash; and their money went immediately into local channels of trade. The business was handled at a minimum of cost, which made it possible to return to the producers maximum prices for their poultry.

This method of selling poultry in Alabama was started two years ago. It spread to a few other counties that year; and in 1928 this growth was extensive. In 1929 additional growth was made, as revealed by the fact that the service was extended to 41 of the 67 counties of the state.

Official reports estimate that the California peach crop in 1929 will be approximately 48 per cent of that of 1928 and that the production of all other tree fruits in that State has been reduced by freezes.

The American Automobile Association is asking Congress to increase federal aid for roads from $75,000,000 to a maximum of $125,000,000 by 1933.

S. S. S. FIRM RUSHES SEASON'S OUTPUT, WELL KNOWN TONIC

The S. S. S. company, manufacturers of the nationally-known medicinal compound, announced Saturday that they are now finishing the present season's manufacture of S. S. S. According to Walter D. Lamar, president of the firm, the demand is so great that the company has been compelled to operate day and night.

"The S. S. S. company employs a force of more than 400 men, who gather the roots and herbs for this compound. These roots and herbs may be gathered only in the winter, and under supervision of trained company officials," Mr. Lamar says. "These roots are rushed to the Atlanta factory in motor trucks, so that the medicinal juices may be extracted while still fresh and green."

Visitors to the S. S. S. plant in Atlanta are always welcome. The remedy has been manufactured since 1826. The large demand for the present season's supply has necessitated the operation of both the manufacturing and the bottling plant with double shifts, announcements show.

PROVIDENCE—BEAT 13

Just a short space in your good paper if you please. Everything is going pretty nicely around this place at present. Quit a number of our young people went to Clanton Sunday and as usual reported a good time.

Of course Sunday school and B. Y. P. U. are still improving, and we still hope to have more of the older folks out next Sunday. Now folks, remember we are going to have our annual Memorial Day at this place the third Sunday in May, and we invite all the singers to be with us, as we are expecting to have some good singing, and probably some good quartets. You will see a program in print later.—A Reader.

Editor Union-Banner:

Will you allow me a few words in your paper to say that Mr. Akins Collins and his wife and baby, and also Mr. William Wright left Turnerville last Friday morning to spend a few days with their friends in Thorsby? We also hope Mr. William Wright had a nice time at home with his father and mother. We are hoping for them to return this week, and hope they had a good time at the singing at the high school. —A Reader at Chunchula, Ala.

Unknown Farmer Deserves Recognition

Distinguished recognition is due the unknown Southern farmer who, probably fifty or more years ago, used for the first time Chilean nitrate of soda as a side-dressing on cotton and corn. He is so obscure that no state can justly claim him. The effectiveness of this method is evidenced by the fact that hundreds of thousands of farmers are today his followers.

Unguided in his efforts, this obscure farmer sought through side-dressing to find a better way and time to fertilize these two crops. Encouraged by the results of the earlier use of nitrate of soda as a side-dressing, research workers have found that there is a critical time in the life of these two plants when a quickly available nitrogen applied to them will increase production more than if applied at any other time. This time has been found to be for cotton just before the first cultivation after chopping, and for corn thirty-five to forty days after planting or when the corn is from knee to waist high. These workers have also found, in the case of cotton, that best yields are secured when one-quarter of the nitrogen is applied just before planting and three-quarters as side-dressing.

Recent experiments at the Alabama Station showed that best results were obtained when 500 pounds per acre of a mixture composed of 50 pounds of nitrate of soda, 400 pounds superphosphate, and 50 pounds muriate of potash was applied under the crop and side-dressed with 150 pounds nitrate of soda after the cotton was chopped.

It is interesting to recall that it was a missionary working among the Indians of South America who first discovered the wonderful value of this material as a plant food or fertilizer. Through some mysterious process of nature it was formed and deposited in the desert country along the western shore of Chile.

This material has been found to possess many superior qualities and has been recognized for more than fifty years as the standard nitrogen fertilizer. In the earlier days it was known as Chile saltpeter; in the South it is known as "soda," but from its origin and chemical analysis it is called Chilean nitrate of soda.

IN MEMORY OF OUR LOVING FATHER, CALVIN JONES

On the morning of April 24th, the death angel bore away the spirit of Calvin Jones to his heavenly home. His death was a shock to the whole community. Wednesday morning about 7 o'clock he started on his way to work when he got as far as his son's, Moody Jones, he sat down on the doorsteps to rest a while and while he was resting he fell over dead.

He had been in ill health for about two years. It looked like his children could never bear to see their dear father go. But dear ones, God just needed him more than we did, so He called him to be one of His shining angels, for He knew that he was too good for this world. When he had a brighter crown to fill in Heaven he has laid down the cross and took the crown. We know he will be ready to meet us as we pass into eternity.

He leaves eight children, Laura, Pink, Boda, Sam, Lee, Dolphus, Dora and Moody; and seven brothers and one sister and a host of friends to mourn his loss. He has a dear wife and a daughter at rest whom he has gone on to meet. He also leaves eighteen grandchildren.

His three girls were so faithful and good to their father and have lived with him until his death.

Weep not, dear relatives and friends, for he is now sweetly sleeping in the arms of Jesus, only taking the journey ahead of us. It won't be long until we, too, must go.

He was more than loved by everyone who knew him. There was a large crowd present to pay the last respects. But the beautiful flowers that covered his grave could not prove the love that God had for him. He has passed from earth to glory, and if we will live the life he lived we will follow the road he traveled. He was laid away to rest at Liberty Hill Thursday with Rev. A. L. Foshee conducting the funeral.

Sweetest thing on earth is to let God be jealous of you and want you for His own.

Mr. Martin had charge of the burial.

We miss him, oh, we miss him,
For our Saviour called him away,
But we are praying to meet him
In that Better land some day.
We know that he is waiting
With our Saviour on high.
He is there ready to greet us
Where there'll be no more good-bye.
No more on earth we will see his face.
His voice we'll hear no more,
But let us live to meet him
On that bright and happy shore.
We loved you, dear father,
No human tongue could tell.
We said good-bye for a little while,
But did not say farewell.

—Written by his loving granddaughter, Pauline Williams.

Middle Life Troubles

"About twenty years ago, my health was very bad," says Mrs. Mat Howard, of Terrell, Texas. "I was passing through a critical time in my life, and I suffered a great deal. I was not at all strong, and my nerves got all upset. I had hot flashes, and sometimes would get suddenly so faint I could not stand up. My head would whirl, and I could not see a thing. I would have to lie down for hours at a time.

"I improved so much after I had taken Cardui for a while. I continued the medicine for some months, until I had passed the critical period. Since then, I have given Cardui to my five daughters. All of them have continued the use of Cardui in their homes. We have all been better for having taken it."

VOLUME XVII.—FOURTEEN PAGES CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY, MAY 9, 1929 NUMBER 1

Farm Bureau Will Seek More Members

Campaign for Enlistment Will Be Conducted in The County During the Week Beginning May 20th.

During the week of May 20th, the Chilton County Farm Bureau in co-operation with the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation, will conduct a membership drive in Chilton County, according to C. E. Stapp, County Agent, O. C. Paulk, field man, and W. L. Popwell, President of the county farm bureau. Some three hundred farmers of the county are already members, but it is the desire of the officials to have each progressive farmer of the county become a member.

Throughout the week membership solicitors will be in the county calling upon the farmers and explaining to them the working of the farm bureau and how it will help the farmers to cooperate. They realize that the farm problem is a big problem and that something must be done for them before farming is as profitable as it should be. Realizing this they will make an attempt to see each farmer and ask him to join other farmers of the county in throwing their forces together in a cooperative ogranization.

At the end of the past year when C. E. Stapp, county agent, made his annual report he had the following to say about the work of the farm bureau:

"This year the farm bureau has aided materially in carrying forward the extension program of cooperative buying and selling of raw materials for the farmers in the county. The farm bureau did not handle extra large tonnages of fertilizers, seeds, etc., but very largely set the price of same in the county. They did handle practically all of the Austrian peas sold in the county, a total of 9,000 pounds. The farm bureau distributed all of the Basic Slag, $810.00 of Austrian peas, 694,800 pounds of Acid Phosphate at $5,820.80, 547,200 pounds of Soda at $14,500.80, 106,000 pounds of Potash at $2,332.00, 416,600 pounds of factory mixed fertilizer at $6,549.00, 110 bushels of rye at $262, 20 bushels of wheat at $48, and miscellaneous items at $250, or a total of $34,406.95, worth of business through the purchasing department this year. Through the sales department, the farm bureau handled cooperatively $2,970.74 worth of chickens, 1,000 bales of cotton at $90,000 or a total of $92,970.74 through the sales department.

The above business was handled at a direct saving of approximately $3,600.00 for those farmers served directly, also a saving of thousands of dollars to farmers who were not directly served, but who were able to purchase raw material on the market very largely established by the Farm Bureau.

A report of the activities of the farm bureau since January 1 shows that a business of $31,185.33 has been transacted since that time. This includes fertilizers, feeds, seeds, fruit trees, explosives, spray materials, windmills, spray pumps and shrubbery.

The present officers of the county farm bureau are: W. L. Popwell, President, Clanton, Ala.; T. F. Patterson, Vice President, Verbena, Ala; J. S. Weldon, 2nd Vice President, Clanton, Ala.; W. L. Parrish, Secretary-Treasurer, Clanton, Ala. Directors; J. N. Dennis, Clanton, Ala.; W. L. Popwell, Clanton, Ala.; T. F. Patterson, Verbena, Ala.; J. S. Weldon, Clanton, Ala.; H. G. Boyd, Clanton, Ala.; H. R. Oden, Maplesville, Ala.; L. G. Posey, Jemison, Ala.; Ellis Mims, Clanton, Ala.; I. M. Deason, Clanton, Ala.; E. R. Piper, Thorsby, Ala.; Judson Strock, Verbena, Ala.; J. L. FEDERAL COURT IN SESSION THIS WEEK

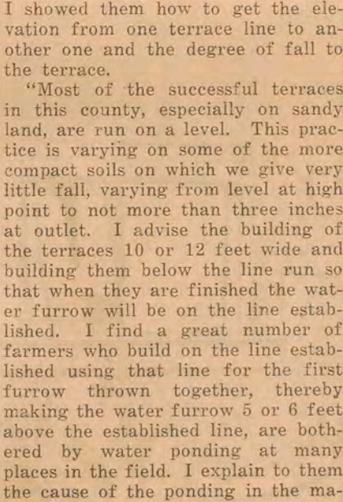
The United States District Court is in session at Montgomery this week. District Attorney Grady Reynolds, and assistant District Attorney, J. Osmond Middleton, will handle the prosecution of criminal cases in the court.

The United States Grand Jury was empanelled by Judge Clayton Tuesday morning. Among the cases to be investigated by the grand jury it is reported are those of the three men who were arrested in Clanton some weeks ago as suspects in the robbery of the postoffice and the attempted robbery of the postoffice at eVrbena.

Terraces Important



Since becoming county agent of Chilton County C. E. Stapp has held some 35 terracing demonstrations in the county. He and O. C. Paulk, farm bureau field man, have aided in terracing fields in all sections of the county.

"I believe that Chilton County, due to the efforts of Mr. Conway, first county agent of the county, is one of the very best terraced counties in the state of Alabama. I know that the farmers here have a better conception of terracing land and generally speaking have the best terraces in any section that it has been my privilege to travel over," said Mr. Stapp.

"In the first place the soil here is of such nature that if not terraced, it soon washes away; and if it is terraced it is easy to build, with a turning plow only, terraces that will withstand heavy rains.

"My work has been very largely of a nature of teaching farmers how to operate a Bostrum-Brady Level and to look for good outlets. My policy has been wherever a demonstration was held to try to get all of the farmers of the particular community present and select one or more to run the instrument. Others carry the flaw and others do the marking. Then I spend my time checking up on the operator of the instrument and on the flagman. I caution the operator and those attending, about the importance of keeping the instrument level at all times and caution the flagman to set his flagpole on uniform ground. I showed them how to get the elevation from one terrace line to another one and the degree of fall to the terrace.

"Most of the successful terraces in this county, especially on sandy land, are run on a level. This practice is varying on some of the more compact soils on which we give very little fall, varying from level at high point to not more than three inches at outlet. I advise the building of the terraces 10 or 12 feet wide and building them below the line run so that when they are finished the water furrow will be on the line established. I find a great number of farmers who build on the line established using that line for the first furrow thrown together, thereby making the water furrow 5 or 6 feet above the established line, are bothered by water ponding at many places in the field. I explain to them the cause of the ponding in the majority of cases, is due to the fact that the water furrow is lower on the nearly level land than on land of a steeper grade, thereby causing the water to flow from the knolls and points of the steep grade back to points where the slope of the hill is not so steep. Wherever farmers follow this practice of building a terrace so that the water furrow is where the line was run I have never yet found anything but the most satisfactory results."

President County Farm Bureau

Mr. Popwell has been for many years recognized as one of the foremost farmers of Chilton County, and has always been active in sponsoring progressive methods of farming.

In County Agent's Office

C. E. STAPP,
County Agent, Chilton County

MISS ZORA GUY
Secretary to County Agent

Mr. Stapp has been County Demonstration Agent in Chilton County for more than a year now. We do not hesitate to say that his work has proven to be of inestimable value in getting our farmers started off in the use of better business methods and better farm practices. Miss Zora Guy, the sweet and lovely young lady who keeps the County Agent's office while he is busy with his many outside duties, is the hardest working stenographer in Alabama.

This Is The Farmers' Banner

Our readers will notice in this issue of The Union-Banner a great deal is said concerning the farming activities of Chilton County. This material has been gathered and prepared under direction of Mr. Louis Bracken, editor of Farm Bureau News, of Montgomery, County Agent C. E. Stapp, Earle Thomas and J. P. Montgomery, Vocational Teachers. Many of the leaders of progressive agriculture in the county have co-operated most heartily to make possible the good things you will find in this issue of the paper about Chilton County farming.

The publishers of The Union-Banner desire to say that, while it has taken a lot of extra work on our part to get this paper out to you on regular schedule time, yet it has been to us a labor of love. We have always sought to make our paper truly representative of the best things possible for our farmers. Nothing can bring us greater pleasure than to see the farmers of Chilton County coming into a day of better things, which we believe they are doing very rapidly.

We are joyful at the great awakening which has come to our farmers in recent years. We are glad to see them making permanent progress in every line of farm activity. Farming in Chilton County is a business, indeed a very big business. It is the greatest industry we have, and will ever be our largest commercial enterprise.

We wish that every person in the county might read the many good stories about our farms and farmers and farmers' organizations in this issue of the paper. It will give you a better conception of the wonderful manner in which our rural people are improving their opportunities, systematizing their business, and thereby bringing to themselves a greater portion of profit for their labor, and more pleasant surroundings in every way.

Values of Farm Bureau

In the Chilton County Farm Bureau, farmers of the county have in their midst a cooperative organization which renders them an annual service in economic production of farm products and in disposing of these products cooperatively at prices in line with leading markets of the country, according to W. L. Popwell, president of the county organization. Mr. Popwell has recently become president of the farm bureau. He succeeded J. N. Dennis, who served as president for more than a year.

Briefly a few of the services the county farm bureau offers it members during the year are outlined as follows:

1. Marketing Poultry: Farmers are given the opportunity of selling their poultry cooperatively. They have this season loaded two and one-half cars which weighed approximately 38,500 pounds. For these birds the growers were paid about $8,000. The cars were scheduled to come through the county by marketing specialists of the extension service of Auburn and were loaded by county agent Stapp, and O. C. Paulk, county farm bureau field man. Cash was paid for the birds at the car doors and in each case farmers were paid good prices. Mr. Stapp states that those who brought chickens to the cars seemed to be well pleased with this service which the bureau is giving them.

2. Fertilizers: By supplying growers with separate ingredients for home-mixing the county farm bureau has aided in making it possible for them to increase their production and income per acre. These ingredients are being mixed according to recommendations of the Experiment station of Auburn. The banks of the county have joined in the movement in advising farmers of the county to follow the "Auburn Plan" in fertilizing their crops.

3. Distributing Feeds: Cooperating with the state farm bureau the county organization has made arrangement for supplying dairymen and poultrymen with feeds manufactured on open formulas recommended by the Experiment Station of Auburn. Eight feeds are now being distributed to bureau members. Five of these are poultry feeds and three are dairy feeds. Farmers in all parts of the county have been feeding these feeds and report good results, bureau officials said.

4. Seeds: Cotton seed, seed corn, millet, peas, soybeans, velvet beans, and in general all kinds of farm seed are distributed by the county organization. These seed are of the best varieties. The bureau has not only aided in getting better seed, but it has aided the growers in disposing of seeds. Surplus cowpeas were disposed of through the organization this year.

5. Windmills: Nearly a dozen windmills have been placed by the farm bureau. Officials are anxious to see Chilton County take a lead in placing windmills in the county for supplying running water in the home and for the livestock. It is reported that very few counties of the state are leading Chilton at the present time.

6. Fruit Trees and Ornamentals: Several farmers of the county have manifested their interest in growing their own fruits and in beautifying their homes and home grounds. The county farm bureau has aided in getting fruit trees and shrubbery.

7. Loans: Through the Alabama Farm Bureau Credit Corporation the county farm bureau is able to offer loans to farmers of the county. N. Eric Bell, manager of the corporation makes the sales.

8. Cotton: Farm bureau members are given the opportunity of selling their cotton through the Alabama Farm Bureau Cotton Association. This cotton is handled through either a special pool—the member selling it when he sees fit—or through the annual pool—the management selling the cotton at the time it thinks best. About 1,000 bales of the county were handled through the cotton association the past season.

9. Spray Materials: To aid farmers in fighting insects which destroy their crops and fruits, the county farm bureau has made it possible for the growers to obtain the spray material recommended by the Experiment Station of Auburn.

These are a few of the services which the farm bureau offers farmers of Chilton County. In all of its activities the county organization is guided by the recommendations of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn. The bureau aids in carrying out the extension program of work in the county.

Miss Kate McNeill, age 29, died Monday morning at South Highlands Infirmary in Birmingham. The body was brought here by Martin and prepared. Interment was made in Pine Hill cemetery Tuesday afternoon. The funeral was conducted by Rev. Broady of Birmingham.

Miss McNeill's home was at Jemison, she being the daughter of the late M. F. McNeill who died in 1927. Miss McNeill had been teaching school at the Thorsby Public School for the past three or four years.

Fruit Fly Menace

Developments in the Mediterranean fruit fly situation in Florida appear fraught with greater danger, than has previously appeared to be the case. With the appropriation of four and a quarter million dollars by Congress to aid in the fight; with large sums being spent by Florida and with 49 national guardsmen employed by this Department to patrol the border regions and enforce the rigid Alabama quarantine, the Alabama Department of Agriculture is doing everything possible to prevent the spread of the fruit fly into Alabama.

The return of S. M. Dunwoody, commissioner, and B. P. Livingston, chief of the division of plant industry of this Department, from a tour of investigation in the infested regions of Florida, shows that Alabama and the South are up against the greatest insect fight in history, if the fly is to be exterminated in Florida and kept out of Alabama.

From the Baldwin County line comes news that about 50 per cent of cars passing from Florida have been intercepted with contraband fruit. These cars have carried mostly tourists bringing from a few to a considerable supply of oranges—all of which were confiscated. Few oranges have been brought to the line since the quarantine has been in effect, but there is also great danger from tomatoes.

Chief Livingston says that one great danger is from careless interstate tourists who carry a few citrus fruits for luncheon purposes. These may unintentionally spread the fly through discarded rotten fruit, or fruit which is infested. All rotten oranges and rotten fruit, and especially tomatoes from Florida should be burned, or buried three feet deep in the ground.

The regulations call for covering with oil, or burial and covering with 3 feet of soil. The quarantine calls for the confiscation and destruction of all contraband fruit from the infested regions of Florida by burning or by being placed in an excavation in the ground, covered with oil and then covered with at least 3 feet of soil. The main roads leading from Florida into Alabama are under military guard constantly night and day. The 49 guardsmen on duty are under direct command of Lieut. C. J. Hilliard and under general command of General F. E. Butler with headquarters at Montgomery.

Everything is being done that can be done to safeguard Alabama from the introduction of this pest. The forces of Florida and the U. S. are likewise making every effort to destroy the pest in their state.

JOHN L. GORE PRODUCES FINEST BERRIES

Ex-Sheriff John L. Gore has brought to Clanton the finest strawberries we have seen this year. They were uncommonly large. Judging by appearance, they would be fine eating.

O. C. PAULK

County Farm Bureau Fieldman

For the past year Mr. Paulk has been engaged in Farm Bureau field work. Prior to his connection with the Farm Bureau he was a teacher in Isabella High School.

Chilton Berry Crop Valuable Farm Item

Shipments This Season Will Bring More than $125,000 Cash to Farmers Around Clanton and Thorsby.

Chilton County has two active strawberry growers associations. The older of the two and the one which ships the more berries is the Thorsby Association, with a membership of about 325 growers. The other is the Clanton Association, with a membership of about 125 farmers.

Officers of the Thorsby Association are: President, Carl C. Peterson; Vice President, M. J. Soberg; Secretary, D. L. Benson; Manager and Treasurer, J. M. Smith; members of the Board of Directors, Carl C. Peterson, Chairman; Charles A. Peterson, G. S. Burnett, T. J. Martin, and W. A. Hayes.

Officers of the Clanton Association are: President, W. T. Bean; Vice President, E. H. Headley; Secretary and Treasurer, J. N. Dennis. Sales Manager, L. E. Diefenderfer. Directors: E. H. Headley, W. T. Bean, John R. Popwell, J. N. Dennis, Walter H. Popwell.

The Thorsby Association shipped 57 cars of berries and the Clanton Association 14 cars last year. It is believed that before the season is over this year that both associations will ship 133 cars. The Thorsby Association has already shipped 105 cars which brought the growers about $105,000.00. The Clanton Association has shipped 25 cars which brought the growers about $25,000.

Agricultural workers of the county have been working with both of the association. They are advising as to the best methods of fertilization, cultivation, grading, and packing of strawberries. From all reports, Chilton County berries are in strong demand in all the markets.

County agent Stapp had a telephone call from Mr. Gordon of Cleveland, Ohio, Saturday morning at which time Mr. Gordon stated that Chilton County berries are fine this year, and that the buyers are calling on the brokers there for Chilton County berries. If they are calling for Chilton County berries this year, they will call for them next year. Chilton County farmers should be encouraged to supply this demand.

Mr. Diefenderfer says that "several hundred more farmers should prepare to set small patches this fall." He suggested that County Agent Stapp use every method possible to encourage all growers to work their berries as soon as they get through picking, and keep them worked and fertilized so as to get a good crop next year.

This year's results have thoroughly demonstrated the value of proper cultivation and application of fertilizer in the fall. The following reports come from growers who kept their berries worked and fertilized: C. B. Lenoir, three-fourths acre, 117 crates last year; 130 crates this year; R. F. Littleton, less than half an acre, 109 crates this year; Allen Gore, 1 acre, 191 A-crates this year; Steve Baker, 1 acre, 172 A-crates, 2 B-crates this year; Bud Hamilton, 1 acre, 273 crates this year; Mrs. W. G. J. Dorminey, 1 acre, 250 crates this year.

D. C. Littlefield had about one-half acre that he did not work or fertilize. He says he burned the weeds and grass off in March and got only 8 crates of berries. He says he is going to work and fertilize this year.

J. L. Smith had about three-fourths acre and did not work or fertilize, and did not get enough berries to ship. He made only 8 or 10 crates. Mr. Smith says he is going to work his out this year and fertilize them this fall.

How to Raise Poultry

By Dr. L. D. LeGear, V.S., St. Louis, Mo.

Dr. LeGear is a graduate of the Ontario Veterinary College, 1892. Thirty-six years of veterinary practice on diseases of live stock and poultry. Eminent authority on poultry and stock raising. Nationally known poultry breeder. Noted author and lecturer.

"EGGS IS EGGS"—BUT NOT FOR HATCHING

Editor's Note—This is another story in a series of 52 stories on poultry raising written by the well known national poultry authority, Dr. L. D. LeGear, V. S., of St. Louis. The entire series will appear in this paper. Our readers are urged to read them carefully and clip them out for future reference.

IS EUGENICS NEEDED IN THE POULTRY YARD

Somewhere in the course of my general reading, I once ran across the statement of a well known wit that the best thing he had ever done was to choose the proper parents. A very witty remark, indeed, but in the light of its real meaning, a very wise one. Naturally, the thought so strikingly set forth instantly associated itself in my mind with my own pet hobby, the raising of high grade thoroughbred chickens. I could not help thinking how much better it would be in a great many cases if fowls could have the privilege of regulating their own parentage instead of having to depend on those who do it for them. It has always amazed me that so many people should fail to realize the importance of properly selecting breeding stock as a factor in successful poultry raising.

First of all, there is the general law of heredity that "like begets like." In other words, if you select a certain breed of fowls in which certain characteristics are very strongly marked and mate only such birds as exhibit those characteristics to a decided extent, the offspring should have the same characteristics to approximately the same degree as their ancestors.

Because it is so decidedly true that like begets like, it is of paramount importance to select breeders known definitely to possess certain desired characteristics. That immediately rules out the mongrel and establishes the necessity of working only with standard breed fowls, The mongrel has no definitely known characteristics. It is a mixture of anything and everything. Consequently its progency may be anything or nothing. Most likely, they will be nothing or, at least, nothing useful.

On the other hand, suppose our aim is high egg production. We can choose among a number of varieties known to be excellent layers, then if we are careful in culling out undersized and inferior or deformed specimens of both sexes and if we cull out all poor layers among the females, we are pretty sure to develop a flock that will give us eggs in abundance.

Another law of breeding to be reckoned with is that only healthy and vigorous parents can be expected to have healthy and vigorous offspring. As applied to poultry raising, this calls for ruthless culling out of all inferior fowls as soon as they are old enough to show with certainty whether or not they measure up to required standards. Hens that are not good layers should be discarded for two reasons; first, because they do not pay for the trouble and expense of keeping them and, secondly, because their descendants will also be poor layers. The various methods of culling as well known and easily learned by those who want good productive flocks. Certainly these methods should be known and practiced by every owner of chickens and only the very cream of any flock should be used for breeding.

What is true of the female is true to a like degree of the male. That is a point often overlooked by poultry raisers. It must not be forgotten that the male supplies the germ of fertility which converts an egg from an inert mass into something capable of producing life. The stronger and more virile the male bird is, therefore, the greater wil be his ability to transmit that vital quality without which eggs cannot become chicks. Only lively, alert, strong, vigorous, fighting males should be selected f obreeding. The lusty, loud crowing, bright eyed, chesty Sir Chanticle should be chosen every time in preference to the droopy, dispirited, too quiet or inassertive male.

The question of heredity should also influence selection of male birds for breeding. Characteristics of descendants are derived from both male and female. It is, therefore, of the utmost importance that male birds should possess, in so far as that fact can be determined, the characteristics which are wanted in the next generation. If a pure strain is wanted, it certainly can not be expected unless the male is in every way a perfect specimen embodying the best qualities in that strain.

MY PROJECT AND MY PLANS TO WORK IT

By EZELL CALFEE

I turned and cut my vetch on April 10. I intend to use 400 pounds of acid phosphate and 50 pounds of muriate of potash. I intend to plant as soon as possible. I intend to work it about every ten days and poison it if needed.

EVENING SCHOOL WORK PROFITABLE TO FARMERS

By WILL R. CLEMENTS

Mr. Will Clements of Jemison, says that the evening schools conducted in his community by J. P. Montgomery, have proved to be the best thing that has hit that community in many days. He said that the concentrated work that had been accomplished there had produced what he believes some improved permanent farm practices. The people of Pleasant Grove are now fertilizing corn and cotton the right way. Eighty per cent of the farmers were not using nitrate of soda around cotton three years ago. Today you could hardly find a man in that community who does not use the Auburn method of fertilizing cotton or its equivalent.

Mr. Clements states that the shipping of sour cream from Pleasant Grove had trebled in the last eighteen months, due mostly to the evening school work on dairying. He says people have cleared pastures and grown hay crops who have never before thought seriously about getting a profit out of cows. The cow business in Chilton County will be just a small sideline, but a very profitable one if properly managed.

Mr. Clements further states that the shipping of poultry by Mr. Stapp and the Farm Bureau was very encouraging to the farmer. It gives him a better market for his cull hens and fryers, and encourages him to take more interest in his poultry. He says that he is just now realizing the value of the farm bureau and expects to do all of the business he can do through the farm bureau.

EVENING SCHOOL WORTH $1,000.00 TO L. G. POSEY

Mr. L. G. Posey of Jemison states that the first evening school held by Mr. Montgomery of Jemison High School, was worth $1,000.00 in cash to him. That was two years ago. Up until that time he had been fertilizing cotton with about 150 pounds of mixed goods per acre making about one bale of cotton on five acres. After attending the night school meetings, he called his tenants together and suggested that they try the Auburn minimum method of fertilizing cotton. They tried it and as a result, the fall of 1927 he harvested 28 bales of cotton on 40 acres. This was the best cotton crop he had made since the boll weevil hit the country. The next year he insisted on an evening school in his own community, and he used 650 pounds of fertilizer per acre. He also poisoned 5 acres and made 4 bales. His entire cotton land produced 30 bales on 36 acres.

Mr. Posey says he used to use mixed goods on his corn, but now he only uses nitrate of soda.

Mr. Posey believes in Chilton County, its people and its present and future possibilities. He is very enthusiastic over the vocational type of education.

HUNTER RASCO LIKES THE SOW, HEN, COW PROGRAM

By J. P. MONTGOMERY

Hunter Rasco of Jemison, says that he likes the sow, hen and cow program—that it is the thing for him. He keeps rather close books on his farming, and while he did not have any figures with him at this particular time, he remembered that he had sold $140.00 worth of sour cream from three cows since October 1st. Mr. Rasco states that his hogs, poultry and cows pay his living expenses, including his automobile expenses and part of his fertilizer bill. That leaves him his cotton money in the fall without debts to pay.

Mr. Rasco gives his hogs, poultry and cows better attention than most farmers. He has good permanent pastures for his cows and hogs and raises his feeds, using basic slag and acid phosphate under all legumes.

Among the people around Jemison interested in poultry Mr. Montgomery says Miss Bertha Johnson is easily the most experienced and the best informed on poultry. Next to her he thinks is Dr. Johnson. They have always succeeded with poultry although handicapped by lack of space and land that is a little too low.

When Jemison farmers began to wish they wished they had had more poultry to sell when the Farm Bureau paid 25 cents per pound for hens this spring.

Many wished they had set out more strawberry plants when one day last week the price advanced to $3.85.

The wished they had sown Austrian peas and fertilized them with basic slag when they saw E. L. Lenoir turn his enormous growth this spring.

They wished they had cleared more lowlands for pastures and planted velvet beans in corn when they see their neighbors getting 45 cents for butterfat here in May.

DAIRYING ACTIVITIES IN CHILTON COUNTY

To stimulate interest to more and better dairying in the county, county agent Stapp last year aided in placing 5 purbred bulls in the county. He is this year cooperating with the livestock specialists of Auburn in getting 10 boys of the county to purchase 10 purbred calves. The Kiwanis Club and banks are backing this movement.

County agent Stapp advises that every farmer who has sufficient land for pasture and feed crops should have from 5 to 7 grade cows. He should feed and care for them properly and breed them to good purebred bulls. He says that if the cows production is doubled the profit increases about three times and that if the production is trebled the profit increases about six times.

Mr. Stapp has recently said: "I have tried to show our fellows that if old Red were being kept just because she was gentle and did not kick, but failed to produce profitable yields, that she should be culled from the herd. I have related the story of one of my dairymen friends, a business man, but no dairyman to begin with, who opened up a dairy farm with 60 cows. He kept a record on the herd as a whole, but not on any individual cow. At the end of the first year, his record showed that he barely broke even. He called in a dairy specialist from the Agricultural College to analyze his business and locate his trouble. The specialist showed him how to keep individual records. The records at the end of the first month revealed that 15 cows were making a good profit; that 30 cows were barely breaking even, and that 15 were merely boarders and being carried at a loss. He sold all except the 15 that were making a good profit and immediately began to clear a good dividend on his project.

"I aided one of the vocational teachers in putting on a night school in dairying this year. We now have about 150 farmers shipping cream. Interest is increasing. In one survey made by 10 good, two-horse farmers, five of whom depended on cotton alone as their money crop and five of whom were selling cream from 5 to 7 good grade cows and products from an average of 150 hens each in addition to their cotton crop. I found the income from those who depended on cotton alone to average about $900 while the income from those five who had cows and hens in addition to their cotton crop amounted to a little more than $1,500.

Horace L. Retherford of Tarpon Springs, Fla., was in Clanton during the past week visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ab Retherford at Mineral Springs.

REPORT OF COUNTY AGENT SINCE AUG., 1927

Since coming to Clanton in August, 1927, County Agent Stapp has spent 194 days in the office and 283 days in the field. He has made 1,050 visits and has talked with more than 4,800 farmers at his office. He has answered more than 900 telephone calls, written more than 1,800 individual letters and 47 circular letters. Of the circular letters written he has mailed out more than 42,400 copies of same. He has prepared 118 news articles for the papers, and has given out more than 7,500 bulletins on different subjects about which farmers were calling for information.

He has held more than 900 method demonstrations at which he has given the latest information relative to doing the things for which the demonstrations were held. More than 12,000 farmers have attended the above mentioned meetings. He has held more than 90 miscellaneous meetings with more than 7,000 in attendance.

County Agent Stapp has taken hold of and tried to aid in every progressive movement in the county where his aid was requested.

EARLE THOMAS OFFERS BOYS PUREBRED PIGS

Maplesville, Ala., May 7.—Vocational students of Isabella community are offered an oportunity by Earl Thomas, vocational teacher, to grow some purebred pigs all their own. Recently Mr. Thomas purchased two purebred Duroc Jersey sows and let the vocational boys take them to grow pigs on halves. Marvin Durbin and Ralph Mims were the first boys to grow litters from the sows. Marvin still has one of the sows from which he intends to grow another litter. The other sow is now in the hands of Sidney Griffin.

In an interview today Mr. Thomas said that he is doing this in order to bring better hogs into the community. He supervises the feeding and care given the pigs in order that the boys may learn as much as possible about how to take care of hogs. He says that he hopes each of the boys who grow pigs will make a profit from them as well as learn how to care for same.

OATS SIX FEET HIGH

Johnnie Sorrell, of Cooper, Ala., was the first farmer of the county to bring a bunch of oats to the county agent's office this year. The oats measured 6 feet tall. He cut three and one-half acres of oats like the bunch he brought to Clanton for hay. The oats were produced on low black land and were top-dressed with 75 pounds of nitrate of soda per acre. They were drilled into the ground last fall. Mr. Sorrell brought the six-feet tall oats to the county agent's office on April 27th. These oats will make fine hay.

Alabama Foremost Among States In Agricultural Leadership Now

In leadership of agriculture Alabama now occupies the foremost place among the states of the union. If a survey of leadership should be taken, it would reveal that Alabama is especially fortunate in the opinion of those who have studied the situation in this state.

And the effectiveness of this leadership is reflected in the onward march of the constructive agricultural program of the work under way throughout the state. In research in extension, in organization and in relations to other groups, the work in Alabama is outstanding.

A unique feature of the Alabama work is the relationship of the organized farmers—the Farm Bureau—to their college of agriculture at Auburn. Through this organization results of research and the recommendations of both research and extension workers are being carried direct to farmers and into farm homes where they are being applied in practice.

As Agricultural Leader

Dr. Bradford Knapp, president of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute is known not only in Alabama, but throughout the nation as an agricultural leader. As president of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute he is a leader, not only of agriculture, but also in industry, in education and all other lines of work pertaining to the college which he represents.

Dr. Knapp realizes the important relation of agriculture to industry and vice versa. He insists that both should prosper and that both should develop hand in hand.

For many years Dr. Knapp occupied an important position with the United States Department of Agriculture at Washington. He succeeded his father, the lamented Dr. Seaman A. Knapp, who was the father of extension work in agriculture and home economics. His genius and his vision have become national assets and Dr. Bradford Knapp is making a great contribution to the continuation of his work as well as other lines.

As the director of the extension service of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Prof. L. N. Duncan is known among the agricultural leaders and farmers of the nation as a constructive and foremost agricultural leader. He, too, places emphasis upon industry and other things pertaining to the advancement of agriculture. Prof. Duncan was born and reared on an Alabama farm in Franklin County, graduated in agriculture at Auburn, later received a post-graduate degree, did special work at the University of Tennessee and the University of Illinois, and has spent a quarter of a century in agricultural work in his native state.

Director of Extension

As director of extension he has made a name for himself, especially for the co-operative work now in progress among the farmers of the state. It is through this organization that the Alabama Polytechnic Institute is extending out to the farmers and serving them more efficiently through organization.

Prof. M. J. Funchess, dean of the college of agriculture and director of the experiment station, is known as a research worker, and the work of the Alabama experiment station has been of inestimable value to the farmers of the state. In fertilizers for cotton and other crops, in variety tests, in farm machinery, in feeding livestock and in numerous other things the Alabama station has made major contributions of untold value.

Prof. Funchess came from a South Carolina farm. He attended the Clemson College in that state and then the University of Wisconsin before coming to Auburn as an instructor, from which position he has been promoted to that which he now holds.

Farm Bureau

Working in conjunction with the college and experiment station and extending them to the farmers of the state is the Farm Bureau organization, of which Alabama occupies a leading place. Edward A. O'Neal, president of the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation, is also vice president of the American Farm Bureau Federation. In Washington, in Chicago or elsewhere he immediately assumes leadership at a gathering of agricultural leaders.

Mr. O'Neal is a farmer by choice. Although many of his ancestors were lawyers, he preferred the farm. After finishing college he returned to the farm at Florence, where his work as a farmer is well and favorably known.

Allen Northington

Working with Mr. O'Neal is Allen Northington who is general manager of the Alabama Farm Bureau Cotton Association. Mr. Northington came up through banking circles, having been a banker in Prattville. He is the only manager this association has ever had and his work has established him as a leader and also a man of splendid business judgment.

S. M. Dunwody, who occupies the position of commissioner of agriculture, is a farm product, having come from his farm to fill the office. Mr. Dunwoody claims no honors except those of having been a farmer and sticking to his farm through lean as well as fat years.

Another agricultural force in the state is that of the teachers of vocational agriculture headed by Dr. J. B. Hobdy of the State Department of Education. Dr. Hobdy is director of vocational work in Alabama. He was reared on a farm in Bullock County. He attended college at Auburn, where he received both a B. S. and M. S. degree. Later an honorary degree of doctor of law was conferred on him by the University of Alabama.

He began his educational career as a teacher in secondary agricultural schools of the state. In the early days of 4-H corn club work he came to Auburn, where, with Mr. Duncan, he made a reputation for himself. He later advanced to the position which he now holds.

WHAT THE EVENING SCHOOL MEANT TO ME

By Mrs. C. C. WILLIAMS

As a result of the evening school at Isabella, those who attended now see their homes through a new light. We know how to prepare and cook food better and to serve it more attractively. Valuable instruction was given in home improvement, such as beautifying it and making it more sanitary.

The school included twelve different lessons. These were discussions, demonstrations, and actual preparation of breads, pastry, salads, pies, meats, eggs, and vegetables. Many hints on table decoration will make the food we serve now very much more appetizing.

We thank Miss Ruth Dobyne, home demonstration agent of Autauga County, for her splendid demonstration lesson on meats and vegetables, and we thank Miss Maddox, our instructor, for making the school so interesting, enjoyable, and profitable for us.

RENOLDS WILL SPEAK AT SMITH'S SCHOOLHOUSE

Editor Union-Banner:

I will speak at Smith's Schoolhouse next Sunday evening at three o'clock p. m. on "Prohibition." I spoke at New Salem last Sunday and I gave some figures on what whiskey, tobacco, cigarrettes, cigars and playing cards cost the people of the United States last year. I have been requested to speak on the same subject at Smith's Schoolhouse next Sunday evening.

I hope the people will turn out in that community to hear me, whether they agree with me or not.

Whiskey and tobacco cost the people of the United States over four billion dollars last year. To say nothing of the time lost or of the distress and misery it cost our people.

Seventy-four per cent of the men in the penitentiary are there on account of whiskey. When we stop to think for a moment that we have in the Alabama penitentiary over three thousand persons there on account of whiskey, is this not enough to cause mothers and fathers to stop and consider where we are drifting? Yours truly.—L. H. Reynolds.

MAPLESVILLE SCHOOL WINS LOVING CUP

The Peoples Savings Bank of Clanton has donated a beautiful loving cup to the schools of Chilton County to be awarded for the highest record of attendance among the larger schools of the county. The trophy goes to Maplesville school this year for having the best average attendance.

The cup, if won by the same school three years in succession, will be kept as the permanent property of that school.

The above information was given out by Mrs. C. E. Stapp, school attendance officer of Chilton County this week. Mrs. Stapp has not only been the means of keeping many children in school with consistent regularity, but she has also made it possible for many children to attend school, who would not have been able to do so but for her efforts and accomplishments with the organized school attendance work.

BRO. BRYAN'S BIBLE STORY

(Written for The Union-Banner by REV. J. A. BRYAN, Pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, Birmingham, Alabama)

EVENTS ON THE SEA OF GALILEE

I wish to speak to you this morning on the historic events which are confirmed by a study of the sea of Galilee. Galilee of course is in the north-east corner of the province of Palestine. The sea is six miles broad and about thirteen miles long and is six hundred eighty-one feet below the level of the sea. Truthfully it is the most beautiful sheet of water on the face of the earth to me.

In the old testament it is mentioned only incidentally; Hebrew life was inland in its interest. Now in the Gospels we find that its shores are the scene of more incidents and teachings of Jesus than any other section of the Holy Land. It is associated with the public ministry of Christ. He spent two years of his ministry, walking on its shores teaching the people, calming storms on its water, working miracles preaching in the synagogue, working miracles in its fields, praying on its mountain sides.

You come down to the sea of Galilee through a country from Lake Merom which flows into the Jordan and then the Jordan into the sea of Galilee. It was just about sunset. The sun is no more beautiful to me from the shores of that lake than it is from the steps of this little church or from Elmwood Cemetery. But I am on the shores of the sea of Galilee. I am in a room in a building in a city called Tiberias.

The sea of Galilee is called by different names. It is called Lake Chinnereth, Lake of Galilee, sea of Tiberias, Lake of Gennesecet, Sea of Capernaum. This lake is surrounded by the ruins of ten cities, either on the lake shores or at a little distance from the shores. Tiberias is the only city mentioned among these that has not been destroyed by an earthquake or by some other great calamity.

The Lake of Galilee that used to be dotted with little sailing vessels and also fishing boats in the time of our Lord is only dotted to-day with a very few small vessels, we call them battoes. The water is so clear they do not fish there in the day time, but fish at night. They fish with seins. In my little room in the hotel of Tiberias I looked out towards the hills, no doubt these are the mountains of which we read that Christ went to the mountain side and prayed all night. Do you long to go to the mountain side and pray?

The hills down to the left may be the very hills where he arose a great while before day when he lived in Capernaum and went there and prayed. I think I will tell you about a night ride on this lake. Two Arab oarsmen pulled the little boat on which fifteen of us were sailing. Truthfully there is no moon like unto that moon which shone over us on that beautiful water. The stars played hide and seek as the oarsmen pulled off the shore.

The oarsmen could speak a little English and directly one of them began singing, "'O Galilee, sweet Galilee, 'twas there my Savior loved to be." of course we joined in the sacred anthem. Truly it was sacred memories to me because of the association of Jesus with it. When the crowds were so congested on the shore, Christ would pull out in a little fishing boat on the clear rippling water near the shore, and talked to his audience on the land.

The lake is surrounded by mountains with deep gorges and that is the reason the storms sweep down upon it so suddenly. The boat moved quitely down the lake as we sang that song softly: "O Galilee, sweet Galilee." It was made so holy by the presence of Jesus Christ two thousand years ago. O for the presence of Jesus Christ our Lord and our King. I pray that we may live in his holy presence every day and every hour.

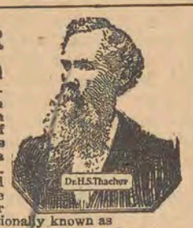
There is no Bible record that Christ ever visited Tiberius. I cannot believe Christ lived in Capernaum,now a destroyed city, on the other side of the lake without visiting Tiberius. Tiberius is a dirty, filthy, buggy, loathsome city, and is one of the centers of Hebrewism in Palestine.

Let us travel around this lake. Riding along on the shores of this lake no doubt you pass Dalmanutha, mentioned only once and that in the Gospel according to Mark. A little farther on the right are the ruins of a neighborhood called Magdala. It was the home of a woman named Mary and called Mary of Magdala. Christ cast seven devils out of this Mary. She loved and trusted Christ and Christ trusted her. She expressed her love for Christ by her loyalty and faithfulness to him. She was last at the cross and first at the sepulcher. At Magdala to-day one sees a few little mounds and one or two little Arab tents with a few starving children and women almost nude.

Out to the left of this neighborhood are the plains of Genneseret. Here Christ had preached all day and the multitudes were hungry as evening approached. Christ used five small loaves and two small fishes to feed five thousand people. The lesson I get out of that miracle of Christ is anything multiplied is blessed by Christ. Another thing Christ did not want us to suffer. He gives bread to the hungry. He also teaches the lesson of economy. He taught them to gather up the fragments.

Right east of Madgala is Bethsaida. The word "Bethsaida" means a house of fish. In this village was the home of Andrew, Peter, James, John, Philip and Zebedee the father of James and John. Right up from this town in a field is the location of a town called Chorazin. You remember Jesus pronounced woes upon this wicked town. He said, "Woe unto thee Chorazin and Bethsada." Both must have been very sinful cities.

We keep moving on around to the eastern shore of the lake. Very soon we come to Capernaum. In the new testament it is called Christ's "Own city." It was the home of Jesus and his family for at least some time during the early days of his ministry, and is linked with his teachings more closely than any other town. Here is where Christ did his mightiest works. This was the scene of Christ's missionary activity in Galilee. It was in this Galilean Synagogue, I will speak to you again on the synagogue, where Christ preached the sermon on the "Bread of Life," and cast the devil out of a boy in the aisle of the synagogue.



It was in Capernaum Christ raised the little daughter of Jarius from the dead and turned her over to her mother to be fed. It was in the home of a friend there that four men brought their paralyzed friend and placed him at the feet of Jesus to be healed. Jesus because of their wonderful faith said to the afflicted man, "Son, thy sins are forgiven thee, Arise, take up thy bed and walk."

It was on the shore of this lake, I am sure I walked on the location, that Christ passed Matthew sitting at the receipt gate of custom and said, "Matthew, follow me." He arose and followed Jesus. It was in Capernaum that Christ cleansed a leper. It was in Capernaum Christ worked so many miracles. At sunset the people brought their sick loved ones wrapped in quilts and on mattresses and laid them at the feet of Jesus to be healed.

It was in Capernaum Peter himself had a home. It had more advantages than any town I visited. Christ loved Capernaum, but Capernaum like Jerusalem did not love Him. I fear that many of our modern cities do not love Him as they ought to. It was in Capernaum where Christ was invited and accepted the invitation to dine at the house of Simon the Pharisee. In this house a poor woman with a stained life came to Christ. She was so humble that she fell at the feet of Christ, bathing His feet with her repentant tears and wiping them with the hair of her head. Jesus said, "Go in peace. Step out of thy sin into salvation. Step out of the world and upon the road to heaven."

HOME IMPROVEMENT PROJECT AT ISABELLA

Miss Cora Belle Maddox, home economics teacher and Earl Thomas, vocational teacher, are working in cooperation to bring about improved home conditions in Isabella community. They are doing this work thru a project known as the "Home Improvement Project." They are working to get farmers to paint their homes, improve their flower gardens, driveways, lawns, and other factors which contribute to the beautification of the homes.

The teachers have already done work in homes of the following students: Some of these are day students while others are students of the night schools. Myrtle Durbin, Glynden Oden, Bazalean Williams, Mrs. Spurgeon Williams, Mrs. A. T. Lecroy, Mrs. J. D. Griffin, and Jewel Foshee.

GIRLS DOING HEALTH WORK AT ISABELLA

Maplesville, Ala., May 7.—Girls of Isabella High School are doing some efficient work in sanitation, improvement of health conditions, improvement of personal conditions, and in solving nutrition problems. Miss Cora Belle Maddox of Union Springs is home economics teacher in charge of this work.

Miss Maddox told how Jewel Foshee has taken her brother and planned a proper menu for him. Since she has been doing this work her brother has gained several pounds in weight. Another good example of what is being done to improve the health of the community is found in the work which Myrtle Durbin is doing. She has been planning the menu for her brother who is in school. She prepares the proper lunch for him to carry to school. He has gained several pounds since this work was started.

During the year the girls of the health class have tested the water of the well on the school ground and found it contaminated. The water is not being used until this condition can be corrected. A sample of the water was prepared by the girls and sent to the Department of Agriculture which tested the water.

The Health girls of the high school are: Bernice Jones, Myrtle Durbin, Jewel Foshee, Dorothy Manning, Etta Mullins, Ethel Mullins, Mary Clay Turner, Elsie Conaway and Esther Ray.

Two other classes which Miss Maddox supervises include home economics and applied arts. Girls in these classes are: Home Economics: Glynder Durbin, Bazolean Williams, Geraldine Radcliffe, Willie Mae Lenoir and Mildred Durbin. Applied Arts: Imogen Griffin, Esther Ray, Jewel Foshee, Avoleen Webb, and Jewel Morgan.

The high school is fairly well equipped for instructing these girls. Other equipment is being added at present. The vocational boys are aiding in equipping the department.

H. R. ODEN'S SECRETS OF SUCCESSFUL FARMING

By following the practices advocated by the Experiment station of Auburn, H. R. Oden, of Isabella community, has within the last five years trebled the production of crops on his 90 acre farm. Mr. Oden is said to be one of the best farmers of Chilton County. He is not in any way the largest producer, but he is an outstanding farmer when it comes to producing a large crop on a few acres.

Mr. Oden has recently been called "a master farmer of Chilton County" by agricultural workers of the county. He told a representative of the state farm bureau the "Secrets"—simple truths, he called them—that have enabled him to never feel a pinching need of "Farm Relief."

1. Plenty of plant food in the soil.
2. Plenty of food and feeds.
3. Plenty of livestock to consume waste products on the farm.
4. The growing of a good cotton crop as a cash crop.
5. Cooperation with farm organizations and neighbors.
6. Thorough cultivation.

Sticking to this agricultural creed, Mr. Oden has been producing some 9 or 10 bales of cotton per year on 10 or 12 acres of land. He used the "Auburn Maximum" in fertilizing his cotton and cultivates it thoroughly. He adds nitrogen to his soil by growing winter legumes. In the past he has been planting 10 acres to this crop, but intends to increase the acreage to twenty. He has about 14 acres of lespedeza on his farm that also adds nitrogen to the soil.

Last year Mr. Oden planted corn on four acres of land following vetch from which he harvested about 65 bushels per acre. He said that this four acres produced enough corn to feed his mules, hogs, and other livestock and that he still had some to sell. One look at his mules, cows and poultry will be sufficient to convince anyone that they receive plenty of feed. He knows how they should be fed too.

Mr. Oden has three milk cows and a flock of white leghorn hens which supplies his family with milk and eggs. He is now carrying a pasture project under the supervision of Earl Thomas, vocational teacher. He was a regular student of the night school conducted by Mr. Thomas the past winter.

Realizing that to improve his land as it should be improved each acre of land must be properly terraced, every acre of land in his farm is terraced and he is not troubled with his lands washing away every time it comes a rain.

Mr. Oden has been closely connected with the farm all his life, however, he has not actually farmed all this time. For seven years he taught school and then carried mail for a number of years. For the last several years he has been spending his entire time working on the farm. A few years ago he happened to the misfortune of his house burning. This did not discourage him as he went to work and rebuilt it within a short time. He now has one of the best homes in his section of the county.

In every sense of the word, Mr. Oden is a cooperator. He not only cooperates with the farm organizations of the state and county, but he cooperates with his neighbors in bringing about better agricultural conditions.

POULTRY SALES BRING $8,000 HERE THIS YEAR

Chilton County has done its part in the cooperative poultry sales of the state. It is not the leading county but it is above the average for all of the counties of the state. Approximately 38,500 pounds which brought the growers some $8,000 have ben sold cooperatively this year which is the second year of cooperative sales in the county.

Cooperative sales in Alabama is four years old. Farmers of the entire state this year loaded 85 solid cars of poultry and received over $260,000 for it. This is a splendid record, however, if each county of the state had loaded as many birds as has Chilton almost 150 cars would have already been loaded. Over 100 cars will be loaded in the state before the season ends in June. One more car will be run through Chilton County.

J. B. Sylvest, and J. D. Moore, marketing specialists of the Extension Service of Auburn, have cooperated with C. E. Stapp, county agent, and O. C. Paulk, county Farm Bureau field man, in conducting the sales in this county. Railroad cars were scheduled to come through the county on certain dates. A guaranteed price was announced and the stopping places in the county as well as the date of the sales were advertised. Poultrymen were paid cash at the car door for their products. It is reported from all over Chilton County as well as all over the state that this is the most satisfactory way of selling poultry cooperatively.

Last year was the first year of cooperative sales in the county. At that time three cars came through the county and $2,332.00 worth of poultry was sold. These sales have not only removed the surplus birds from the local market but they have aided in encouraging farmers to grow better poultry. Poultry is better in the county this year than it was last year.

Mobile Alabama's Only Seaport

has a very enviable record of achievement. Since 1921 the total commerce of the port has increased over 180 per cent! During the past five years, modern and efficient ocean terminals, which cost $10,000,000, have been completed; a bridge stretching ten miles across the headwaters of Mobile Bay has been constructed. A Kraft paper plant costing $5,000,000 and a copper wire mill of one of the largest wire manufacturers in the U. S. have located here. A new high school costing $1,000,000 has been built; a new public library, an airport, white way lights, extensive street paving, garbage incinerators, a public golf course, new apartment buildings, a new country club, and several new industrial plants have been completed as if by magic. There are under construction now a power and steam plant costing $1,300,000, railroad yards costing $1,200,000, a six story and an eighteen story office building, and a new bank. In addition, the city is spending $1,800,000 on further paving, and the State and County are spending $6,500,000 on Mobile County Highways.

These improvements testify that Mobile is capitalizing her natural advantages. Strategically located in a section richly endowed with natural resources, with an abundance of cheap hydro-electric power, a favorable climate, a healthful location, and an unlimited supply of pure, soft water, Mobile is taking its place as an industrial city and as one of the outstanding seaports on the Gulf.

Behind all of these achievements there was a vision and a faith in Mobile's future.

What the "Old Reliable" Means to Mobile

An average of 1145 employees of this Railroad make their homes and headquarters in Mobile. The average yearly payroll of this Company in the city of Mobile is approximately $2,000,000.

Seven passenger trains arrive and depart over the Mobile and Montgomery Division, and 7 arrive and depart over the New Orleans and Mobile Division; 6 to 10 freight trains leave Mobile for New Orleans, and 8 to 15 east, affording shipping and traveling patrons prompt, reliable, and efficient freight and passenger service daily for local and distant points.

The L. & N. spends hundreds of thousands of dollars yearly in and around Mobile in the upkeep of its properties. It has recently reconstructed several large bridges in the vicinity; increased its facilities for handling marine coal; completed a modern outbound freight station; and is now engaged in the construction of entirely new facilities known as the "Sibert yard," costing over $1,000,000, adjoining the yards of the Alabama State Docks, recently completed at a cost of $10,000,000.

The "Old Reliable" feels that it is a distinct factor in the growth and development of Mobile.

Your MODEL T FORD is still a good car

THE Model T Ford led the motor industry for twenty years because of its sturdy worth, reliability and economy. Those same reasons continue to make it a good car.

As a matter of fact, nearly one-fourth of all the automobiles in use today are Model T Fords. Millions of them can be driven two, three and even five more years with reasonable care and proper replacements. Figures show that the average life is seven years.

Don't sacrifice your Model T, therefore, but take it to the Ford dealer and have him estimate on the cost of putting it in A1 shape. A very small expenditure may be the means of giving you thousands of miles of additional service.

For a labor charge of $20 to $25 you can have your motor and transmission completely overhauled. This price includes new bearings, reboring cylinders and any other work necessary. Parts are extra.

Valves can be ground and carbon removed for $3 to $4. The cost of tightening all main bearings is only $6. The labor charge for overhauling the front axle is $4.50 to $5—rear axle assembly, $5.75 to $7.

New universal joint will be installed for a labor charge of $3. Brake shoes relined for $1.50. Rear spring and perches rebushed for $1.75. The cost of overhauling the starting motor is $3. A labor charge of approximately $2.50 covers the overhauling of the generator.

It will pay you, therefore, to see your Ford dealer and have him put your Model T in good running order. By doing so you will protect and maintain the investment you have in your car and get months and years of reliable transportation at a very low cost per mile.

Is Vocational Agriculture Worthwhile?

By OLIVER MANNING
(Isabella High School Student)

Many have asked "Is agriculture a study that is worth the time that is put on it?" Some of the old time farmers have said, "Waal, I never studied sich, and I can grow as good a crop of corn as this fellow who has gone to college and wasted a lot of money while he could have been working at fifty dollars per month and have a bank account instead of owing the bank a large sum."

Probably this farmer did have a better looking crop of corn than his young neighbor, but he used several hundred pounds of acid phosphate under his corn when he planted it. He never weighs the actual amount of corn. I'll bet if he did he would not have as many bushels as his neighbor.

Well, we'll let him think that he has a better crop than the other people. Let's look at how he has worked it. Early every morning we see his whole family out in the field hoeing and thinning the corn. He has put a lot of unnecessary time on it that he could have wisely used elsewhere.

This same farmer does not want to own his land. He thinks the taxes will clean him up. He never realizes the rent that could be using for his own good. He never thinks that he would be more interested and would grow more per acre if he owned his own land.

"Oh, I'll move next year. What's the use of putting so much fertilizer for the next fellow to use?" says he. "There isn't any use of setting out fruit trees, because I won't get the benefit of them." Such goes on, Mr. Farmer, each year; never building up anything for himself, and he hardly has enough for him to live on. His children go in rags. They are robbed of the education they deserve. He is no good to himself, and is something that helps prevent the growth of the community that he lives in. He knocks everything that is for the good of the moral human race.

Probably the above farmer did not have a chance to study agriculture, but the boys of today do have a chance. Do they want to be like this farmer? Probably a boy lives in a community where there is a vocational agricultural school, but he does not intend to be a farmer of any kind. What if he doesn't? He is bound to have friends who live on the farm. They need advice many times when they can't get it. The study of vocational agriculture teaches quite a bit about domestic animals and their care. Your friend may have a sick cow or horse that you could be of much importance in its care.

A farmer may make good crops one year, but he does not know that he will have good crops the next year. He has to know how to save for a bad year and some people can not save at all. Here we see where his study of agriculture comes to his aid again.

If a boy studies agriculture during school he gets the latest news from the Experiment Station. He creates an interest for this news and later when he is running a farm, he answers his questions from experiments run at the local experiment station. It is run by the government and only publishes the facts that are for the best.

Some of the information received from the experiment station is that pertaining to the use of fertilizer for different crops. Many farmers use a large amount of acid phosphate under the corn, and sometimes a mixture. Auburn, our local experiment station, recommends as a minimum 100 pounds Nitrate of Soda, and as a payable amount 200 to 250 pounds per acre. I have tried both and find that the 200-pound per acre for corn pays more than the extra cost and handling price of it at only 75 cents per bushel for the amount that it increases. Corn always sells for more than this.

For cotton I have used both the minimum, 200 pounds acid, 100 of Soda and 25 pounds of Potash; and the maximum, 400 pounds acid, 200 of Soda and 50 pounds of Potash; and find that the maximum is the paying proposition of the two for this community.

Agriculture has also taught the use of legumes for the putting of nitrogen into the soil. Both summer and winter legumes are used, but during the summer the land is used for food crops or cotton. Therefore, winter legumes are used most of the time. These are clovers and vetches or the Austrian winter pea. Hairy vetch is one of the most commonly used through this community. It has proven to be a paying investment. If it is planted right and fertilized right, it grows a crop of vetch that if cotton is planted on this land grows well without the aid of nitrate of soda. Better cotton is made on land where vetch has grown with the aid of about 400 pounds of acid and 50 pounds of potash than is made on ground without vetch and has had the maximum amount of fertilizer, that is, if both conditions were the same.

Vocational agriculture not only teaches what to do, but the word "vocational" means to go and do, or try for yourself. These things are things of most importance to the farmer; he learns in the class room and before he forgets it, he has to do it in practice. He would be very absent-minded if he forgot a thing that he has tried and got the conclusion about it. But this is not common, therefore, if he is interested, he goes through many things that he would not understand otherwise.

Many farmers put much fertilizer in their land and to grow a crop the next year they have to put the same large amount. This is because winter with its rains carry away all fertilizer and plant food from the soil. Agriculture teaches a way to prevent this. This is to build terraces. This also means to know what kind of terraces. They should be broad instead of the wagon twister kind that a mole can soon ruin by simply crawling through the small ridge of dirt. A terrace should be from eight to eighteen feet broad at the base. Many two to six feet terraces often cause more damage than good. This is by carrying the water to a low place and dumping the whole amount and causing in a few years (if not rendered better) large gullies in a good field.

The second help for holding the fertilizer is growing cover crops as peas, vetches, clovers, rye and several others. These, when turned under, act as a sponge to hold the water. This is important also because it holds the moisture until it is needed in a dry time. These two factors are each important alone, but when put together in a proper way, it is found out that scarcely any of the fertilizer is lost by winter rains.

I hope these few points will help anyone who may take agriculture, but the question remains—"Have I convinced the reader that the comparatively short time put on the study of vocational agriculture is profitable to anyone taking it?"

Mr. Stapp says that Oliver Manning wrote a very creditable essay last year on "Cooperative Marketing as It Effects the Cotton Farmer." He sells his cotton through the Farm Bureau Cotton Association.

FARM WORK AMONG THE COLORED PEOPLE

BY LAWRENCE C. JOHNSON
(Colored)
Teacher Vocation Agriculture, Negro Training School

I have been working in Chilton County for three years as teacher of vocational agriculture. When I came here three years ago, the farmers were unorganized, the boys knew nothing about farming and a very little about home beautification. I have organized the farmers, and they have started orchards, with more than two thousand trees already set, are growing vetch on a large scale, putting in pure breeds of chickens and hogs, and a better type of dairy cows.

I have organized the boys into clubs and they are carrying projects under my supervision, growing cotton, corn, peanuts and potatoes, using the Auburn method of fertilizing. We have on for next year a program of home beautification, and with the adult farmer, a campaign for growing winter legumes and rotating their crops. With the help of our county agent, C. E. Stapp, the merchants and bankers of our county, we are going to better the farm and home life of our people.

I have in my class this year: William Ware, Clanton, Rt. 3; Lonzie Ware, Clanton; Woodrow Gordon, Clanton; John B. Morgan, Clanton; J. D. Williams, Clanton; Sam Barber, Clanton; Joe Barber, Clanton; Frank Dickerson, Clanton; Linzie Draper, Clanton; Delaware Spence, Clanton; Charlie Williams, Lomax; Charlie Jackson, Clanton; Ben Love, Clanton; Isaac Craig, Clanton, Rt. 3; Arthur Dupree, Lomax; Earnest Bracy, Lomax; Wardell Bullyss, Clanton; Nathaniel Campbell, Clanton; Willie Looney, Clanton, Rt. 7; Robert Thompson, Clanton, Rt. 3; Maceo Undewood, Clanton; Wilbert Shephard, Maplesville; Sanford Nicks Clanton, Rt. 3.

I have taught three successful evening schools with an attendance of 65 farmers, averaging 21 for each evening school taught.

FEWER INCENDIARIES IN THE WOODS

Montgomery, May 6.—Forest incendiaries are becoming less numerous in Alabama, according to the records of the State Commission of Frestry. During the past five years the percentage of forest firse originating from this source has decreased from approximately thirty-one per cent to about ten per cent.

The proportion of the total area burned caused by incendiary fires, however, is 24 per cent. This is due to the fact that the willful law breaker usually picks out times and conditions when his acts will be the most certain of success. Most incendiary fires, therefore, are set during extremely dangerous periods when dryness and wind will contribute to their rapid and extensive spread.

The reduction in the total number of incendiaries is undoubtedly due to the changes in public sentiment that have transpired during the past several years. As citizens become more keenly conscious harm done to the state and the local communities by willful woods burning the number of people who resort to this practice is constantly becoming less.

WINTER LEGUMES FOR SOIL BUILDING

Farmers of Chilton County have just completed turning under the best crop of winter legumes ever produced in the county, according to C. E. Stapp, county agent. Last fall they planted 36,000 pounds of vetch and 5,000 pounds of Austrian peas with the results that wonderful growth was made during the winter and early spring.

Some 300 farmers planted the vetch and peas. They fertilized them with 400 pounds of Basic Slag phosphate per acre. The county farm bureau purchased the seed and basic slag for all who wanted it.

Approximately 1,600 acres of the county were covered with the winter legumes. It has been found that a good crop of vetch or peas will add as much as $25 worth of nitrogen per acre. This being the case the winter legumes added about $44,000 worth of nitrogen to the soils of the county.

"Five acres to every plow" is the vetch and Austrian pea slogan of the county. Several farmers planted five acres to the plow last fall and many others are expected to do so this coming fall. It is the desire of the county agent to bring the soils of Chilton County up to a high standard of production. Winter legumes will aid in doing this work.

In 1927 two rolling coulters for turning under vetch were offered as prizes for the heaviest tonnage of vetch reported on April 10. The highest tonnage was reported by J. W. Hamilton of Clanton and the next highest by H. R. Oden of Maplesville. The interest manifested in this project along with the increase in production of corn following the vetch caused a material increase in the amount of winter legumes planted this past fall.

Club boys have been active in planting winter legumes. Results which they have met is causing many farmers of the county to use more vetch and peas. Mr. Stapp says that he hopes every farmer in the county will eventually plant legumes.

CORRECT SPACING OF COTTON IMPORTANT

Correct spacing of cotton is an important factor with farmers of Chilton County. County agent Stapp recommends that the farmers who preferred one stalk to the hill thin his cotton to leave the stalks six to seven inches apart. If they prefer two stalks to the hill the hills should be about twelve to fourteen inches apart. If three stalks are desired to the hill the hills should be about 18 inches apart, and under most conditions the rows should be three to three and one-half feet apart.

ANNUAL LOSS FROM FERTILE EGGS RUNS INTO MILLIONS SWAT THE ROOSTER NOW

After careful investigation by a number of eminent poultry authorities, it has been estimated that the loss to the poultry industry from improper care of eggs amounts to more than $45,000,000.00 annually. Approximately one half of this is due to the presence of males in the laying flock, particularly during the summer months. This being the case roosters of Chilton County should be removed from the laying flock this summer.

Seventy per cent of this loss, it is estimated, has occurred before the eggs arrive in the primary markets, but regardless of where the loss occurs it must ultimately be absorbed by the producers.

The production of fertile eggs is entirely too prevalent and the fact that the hot season is actually here with us demands prompt action if this situation is to be remedied for this season. Failure to remove the males promptly from the breeding flock, carelessness in permitting the mingling of the sexes in the laying flock, or lack of knowledge of the great losses definitely due to the fertilization of eggs, is responsible for this condtion of affairs.

It has been demonstrated by conclusive experiments that the presence of males in the flock is absolutely unnecessary from the egg laying standpoint. In fact, results point to an increase in the rate of lay when the males are removed. This is due, in all probability, to the fact that the male is a disturbing element in the peacefulness of the flock. The hens in flocks without males are much more quiet and gentle than those in which males are allowed to run.

Except where hatching is actually being done, it is certainly an economic necessity that males be removed from the laying flock, particularly during the hot months. The presence of even one male in a large flock of hens may cost many times his value in egg spoilage and deterioration in quality.

As pointed out in the first paragraph the aggregate losses from fertile eggs run into the millions of dollars. This should indicate to every poultry raiser the seriousness of the matter, and that steps should be taken immediately to segregate all roosters or to market them. Unless males are of unusual breeding value it is a safe bet that a distinct money loss will result from carrying them over to the next season.

SOME FACTS ABOUT THE JEMISON HIGH SCHOOL

By J. P. MONTGOMERY

The enrollment for 1928 was as follows:

All day boys, 20; Junior project boys, 9; Evening school farmers, Pleasant Grove, 17; Evening School, Freeman's School, 24.

Every student carried one or more projects. The Pleasant Grove farmers carried two projects, one on cotton and one on dairying. The two outstanding types of work featured were dairying and cotton production.

Eighty-five per cent of the students enrolled as boys or farmers, used the Auburn method of fertilizing cotton as recommended by the county agent. Some used the minimum and some the maximum. Some of the cotton results are listed below:

Evening School Farmers Win Radio

Thirty-two evening school farmers followed certain practices that qualified the evening schools to enter a state-wide contest between evening schools on the production of cotton. The radio was offered by the Chilean Nitrate of Soda Company. A number of evening schools entered the contest. The first prize, or radio, was given to the Jemison and Freeman schools jointly. Their production was between one-half and two-thirds of a bale per acre. The cost per pound to produce the cotton was also considered.

Dairy Evening School at Pleasant Grove a Success

The average number of cows per farm was 3.48. The net profit plus paid self for labor, but giving no value to the manure returned, was $45.70 per cow per year. All feed, pasture, use of buildings and interest on money was charged at market price. There were 81 meetings held at this dairy school, and great stress was placed on good pastures and growing feed crops. Dairying as a side line is progressing nicely in this community.

Farm Shop Work

The students in vocational agriculture do farm repair work in the shop. They also build some furniture, but are not encouraged to do the finest cabinet work, as the course is primarily to fit a boy to do farm repair work.

The most outstanding work done by the boys in the shop this season is the building of the equipment in the vocational building. The tables were said by supervisors to be the best in the state. The boys also built eight tables for the home economics department, also one long one for the auditorium and did repair jobs of all kinds.

There is now in progress at Jemison one evening school at Oak Grove with an enrollment of 30. There are 21 all day boys and 12 junior project boys. The students are enrolled in horticultural and cotton projects.

The School Grounds

The vocational teacher is held responsible for the condition of the school grounds. The State Department holds him responsible to some extent.

The P. T. A. at Jemison has been very instrumental in the work of the school. That association contributed the money to buy the shrubbery for the main building, also to place the driveway and for the concrete walk. This year shrubbery has been placed around the vocational building and plans to finish the walk are being worked out.

The vocatonal teacher aids with many farm problems, such as terracing, buying seeds, fertilizers and other raw material that go into production, the sale of products from the farm, pruning and spraying of orchards, controlling insects and diseases, wounds, etc., planning farmsteads and cropping systems, and any movement in the community that means for the progress and development of the community.

CALCIUM ARSENATE TO FIGHT BOLL WEEVIL

Boll weevils are again certain to appear in Chilton County and if let alone are likely to do a great damage. In order to be of assistance to farmers in fighting the weevils County Agent Stapp recommends that Calcium Arsenate be used in poisoning the weevils.

Last year J. B. Hicks of Maplesville reported that one of his tenants that had nine acres in cotton and poisoned five times made seven good bales of cotton. Another tenant in the same field with 15 acres fertilized just like the adjoining nine acres, but refused to poison and made only four bales. Mr. Hicks says that after this he is not going to have a tenant on his place who will not fertilize and poison according to directions of the Experiment Station of Auburn.

GET RID OF RATS

A campaign to rid every farm in Chilton County of rats has been in progress for several months. County Agent Stapp has been encouraging that all farmers kill the rats on their farms by the use of Cyanogas.

To aid in the fight the Chilton County Farm Bureau has been handling the gas for those who want to use it. The gas is inexpensive. By means of a small dust gun the gas is forced into the runways made by the rats under barns and other outbuildings and is sure and instant death to every rat that gets a good breath of it.

15 FARMERS ENROLLED IN FAIRVIEW NIGHT SCHOOL

Fairview, Ala., May 8.—Fifteen farmers of this community this year enrolled in the night school conducted here by Earl Thomas, vocational teacher of Isabella community. Sixteen lessons were given them on fertilization, cultivation, and poisoning of boll weevils in the production of cotton.

Each of these fiften farmers are at present carrying a project on cotton. They are working under the supervision of Mr. Thomas to whom they will report at the end of the season. Four seasonal meetings will be held before the cotton is harvested.

All the projects were fertilized according to Auburn recommendations. Most of the farmers used the "Auburn Maximum" which is 400 pounds of super-phosphate, 200 pounds of nitrate of soda, and 50 pounds of potash. Three-fourths of the nitrate should be applied just after the cotton is chopped the first time. Mr. Thomas is stressing the fact that the side-dressing should not be overlooked.

The vocational teacher said today that he hopes all farmers carrying projects will not fail to prepare to fight the boll weevil. He said that boll weevils can be controlled profitably with calcium arsenate if the poison is applied with a dust gun.

Cotton should be examined weekly from the time of first squares for signs of the boll weevils. As soon as ten squares out of each hundred are punctured poisoning should begin. Dust three times four days apart. If within ten days or two weeks after these dustings, bad signs of weevils are again noticed make three more dustings four days apart. In normal years this will be sufficient to control weevils. It will require five to seven pounds of calcium arsenate per acre for each dusting depending upon the size of the cotton.

Chilton County Farm Bureau

Membership Drive

During week of May 20th many Farmers of Chilton County will be given an opportunity to join Farm Bureau

History of the Farm Bureau:

The name "Farm Bureau" was first used to designate groups of farmers in certain counties who acted in an advisory capacity to the County Agent. As County Agent work grew and passed from the stage of work with the individual farmer to work with groups of farmers, as well as with individuals some sane organization for helping the hundreds of Agricultural workers now employed render their best services to the farmers of America, and to bring into action the strongest farmers of the country, became a necessity.

In 1917, the Chief of the Office of Cooperative Extension work of the U. S. Department of Agriculture urged the organization of active Farm Bureaus in every county. As county organizations were set up they federated into state organizations and the states in turn joined into a national federation.

By 1921, when Alabama became federated with the American Farm Bureau, the national federation secretary reported 43 states, and fourteen hundred and eighty-six County Farm Buraus organized with a total membership of 967,279 members. At present there are 43 state Farm Bureaus and 1,800 County Farm Bureaus with a total membership of more than a million. There are 62 County Farm Bureaus in Alabama with a total membership of more than 10,000. Last year the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation did more than $12,000,000.00 worth of business and through the cooperation of our Agricultural College at Auburn, the officials of the Experiment Station, the director of Extension Service, the various specialists, County Agents and Home Agents, rendered valuable and noticeable service in the promotion and development of agriculture in Alabama.

When one thinks of the cooperative poultry sales, the cooperative lamb sales, the cooperative cotton sales, the cooperative handling of seed, fertilizer, spray materials, fruit trees, feed and other materials, one does not hesitate to say that Farm Bureau members should be and are proud of their cooperative organization. Thinking of the organization from a business standpoint, a farmer should be proud of his organization. The Farm Bureau is a business organization and it is said to be one of the outstanding ones of the state.

Writing to Mr. O'Neal, President of the Alabama Farm Bureau, Mr. Willard Wilson, Vice President and general manager of Sales of the Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Company, said: "Your methods of doing business are superior to the majority of business organizations and if the farmers of Alabama have any appreciation in their system they certainly will appreciate the wonderful work that the Alabama Farm Bureau is doing."

This statement coming as it does from a business man with a business organization should make every Farm Bureau member of Chilton County feel proud that he is a member. We feel that the good farmers of Chilton County who are not already members of the Farm Bureau should join hearts, heads and hands with us and help carry on here for the progress and development of better agriculture in Chilton County. We solicit the cooperation of farmers, bankers, merchants, professional men, and in fact all forces interested in the progress and development of Chilton County, in our membership campaign during the week of May 20th.

Mr. H. G. Boyd, President of the Peoples Savings Bank, recently said, "We should have fifteen hundred good farmers of Chilton County as active members of the Chilton County Farm Bureau."

The Farm Bureau is a non-secret, non sectarian, but business and educational organization of farmers. You can join the Farm Bureau with the privilege of selling or not selling your cotton through the organization. If you want to sell your cotton through the organization you may sign the Cotton Association Contract with the privilege of canceling same prior to March 1st of any year you find that you do not care to sell cotton cooperatively. If you have no cotton to sell or do not care to market your cotton cooperatively, then we ask that you consider the straight Farm Bureau Contract. The dues in either case will be $5.00 payable annually, $3.00 of which remains in the County Farm Bureau treasury and is used for defraying County Farm Bureau expenses, such as office rent, supplies, stenographic help for the County Agent, local field man, travel expenses of the officers and directors to the monthly meetings and so forth, and $2.00 of which goes to the State Farm Bureau, 50 cents in payment for the Farm Bureau News, and 50 cents for the National Farm Bureau.

We solicit your co-operation in building a larger and more active membership in the Farm Bureau

Yours for a more progressive and prosperous Chilton County

HALF MILLION CHEVROLETS DELIVERED SINCE JAN. 1ST

Detroit, May 5—Evidence of the wide-spread popularity of the new 6 cylinder Chevrolet was revealed here today in an announcement by R. H. Grant, vice president of the Chevrolet Motor Company in charge of the sales that more than a half million of the new cars have been placed on the road since the first of the year. A significant feature of this achievement, it was noted, is the fact that Chevrolet in four months time built a greater number of six cylinder cars than any other automobile manufacturer has ever produced in an entire year.

This figure would have been even greater, Mr. Grant pointed out, if Chevrolet had been able to take immediate care of the tremendous volume of orders with which the factory has been flooded since the introduction of the new car.

"Nearly every month this year has been a new monthly production record. In order to satisfy the demand for cars pouring in from nearly every section of the country, output has been steadily increased as fast as consistent with the precision manufacturing methods which Chevrolet employs, said Mr. Grant.

To signalize the achievement of placing on the road more than 500,000 cars in less than four months time, Chevrolet secured John Philip Sousa and his world famous band for an hour's broadcast over a nation wide hook up last Monday night.

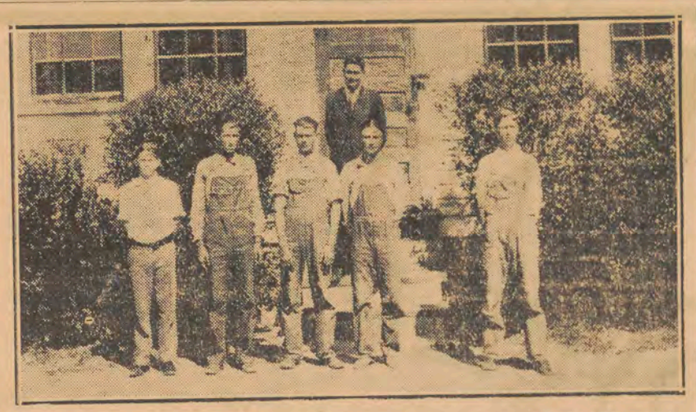
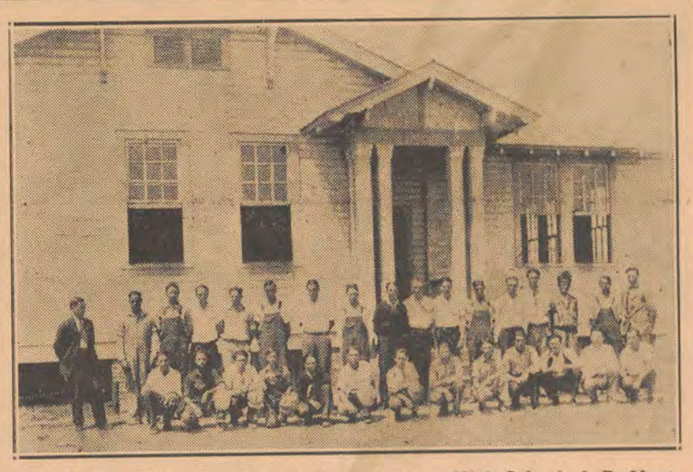
SIDE-DRESSING CORN

Alabama's Neglected Crop



A study of crop statistics for the five-year period (1924-1928) shows that Alabama farmers plant annually approximately three million acres to corn and its equivalent in other grains from which they harvest 14 bushels per acre or a total of forty-four million bushels. This production lacks close to thirty million bushels or 9.5 bushels per acre supplying the farm needs of the State. To buy this corn from outside the state requires an expenditure of $32,835,000 annually. This sum represents $10.43 for each acre planted to this crop. The acreage planted is sufficient to supply the farm's need for grain but due to poor preparation, improper and insufficient cultivaton, low yielding varieties, too little plant food, particularly nitrogen, and general neglect the average farm falls short of actual requirements by about ten bushels per acre.

If these figures seem too high it should be remembered that they represent only farm needs and that the total needs for the state are much higher. To satisfy the state's full requirement the per acre yield must be more than doubled.



It has been proven experimentally demonstrationally and practically that 150 pounds of nitrate of soda, which costs about $3.75, will increase the per acre yield of corn 8 to 12 bushels. Such a practice applied to the total acreage would give approximately 30 million extra bushels, quite sufficient to satisfy the actual farm shortage. By enlarging the acreage to vetch and peas and increasing the amount of nitrate of soda used as a side dressing, per acre yields may be increased enough to meet the State's total requirement.

Adding the extra 8-12 bushels to meet the farm needs at a mixmum cost of $4.00 per acre for nitrate is a much more economical and sane practice than paying a minimum of $10.00 for an equivalent amount of corn from outside the state.

Chilean Nitrate of Soda should be applied to corn as a side dressing 45 days after planting or when plants are knee to thigh high at the rate of 100 to 200 pounds per acre. When corn follows cotton or other liberally fertilized crop it is not necessary to apply phosphate and potash. On land planted continuously to corn both materials may be needed. If used, both should be applied before or at planting time.

COTTON NEEDS SIDE DRESSING

For several years the Alabama Experiment Station has been studying fertilizers for cotton with a view to determining the kind and amount of plant food to feed to this crop. The station has also made a study as to the best time to feed the cotton plant. The rate of absorption of plant food, cost of chopping, amount of grass and weeds, loss by leaching, stands, weevil damage, yield and profit are all influenced by time of application.

All available information to date shows quite clearly that the best ration for cotton is a mixture composed of 200 pounds nitrate of soda, 400 pounds superphosphate and 50 pounds of muriate of potash.

In feeding this mixture to cotton apply all the phosphate and potash and about one-fourth of the nitrate before planting and the remaining nitrate as a side dressing 35-40 days after planting. Since the cotton plant has a very poor root system it is not capable of taking up the readily available nitrate fast enough for best results until the plants are about 35 days old. During this first 35 day period, if all the nitrate is applied at planting time, the loss of nitrate through grass, weeds and leaching may materially effect the yield. Cotton that is foul with grass is harder and more expensive to chop and too, such a condition greatly reduces the stand and thus effects the yield. Low yields mean little or no profit. The above kind and amount of fertilizer applied part under the crop and part as a side dressing insures maximum returns from money spent for fertilizers.

In Chilton County in 1928 statistics show that only 27 per cent of the total fertilizer tonnage used in the county was applied according to the above plan. The remaining 73 per cent was factory mixed goods with an analysis of approximately 10-3-4. The home mixture described above is equivalent in percentage of plant food to 600 pounds of a 10-6-4 formula. This means that the average application of mixed goods was particularly short in nitrogen for cotton. All factory mixed cotton fertilizers carrying less than 6 per cent ammonia should be side dressed with nitrate of soda to make up the shortage. Such a practice will materially increase yields and profits from fertilizers.

WHY ART IN RELATION TO THE HOME IS BENEFICIAL TO STUDY

By IMOGENE GRIFFIN

Most of one's life is spent in the home and it should be beautiful as well as comfortable. Pictures are noticeable in a room, they are also very influential to members of the family. Much care should be given the selection of pictures. Select pictures that denote joy and happiness. Landscapes are the most desirable types of pictures, they can be used anywhere.

The color scheme is very important. Different members of the family have different tastes. Select colors accordingly. At the same time select restful, not glaring colors.

Arrangement of furniture is essential also. In arranging a room think about proportion, balance and convenience.

Oft times the interior of a home is judged by the exterior. Therefore, make it as beautiful as possible. Shrubbery is a great beautifier when planted in the proper places. Plant it around the edge of the porches and walls. Hedges should be planted around the back and side of the house and between the front and back yard.

Everyone wants a flower garden but locate it on the side or back of the house. Sod the yard with winter and summer grass. This will prevent washing.

CLOTHING PROJECT

By MILDRED DURBIN

As a student of Home Economics Class I, I have chosen clothing for my home project.

To give you some idea of my work done toward my home project is as follows:

I have made a plain slip, also a printed cotton dress and a cooking uniform. I am planning to make all my clothing this summer.

MY COTTON PROJECT LAST YEAR

By HOLLIS WRIGHT
(Isabella High School Student)

I carried a project of three acres of cotton last year and used 350 pounds of fertilizer to the acre. I broke my ground and harrowed it, then I laid my rows off three feet apart. I ran the distributor and cultivator and followed it with the planter. I got a good stand of cotton and then harrowed it off, and in about five days it was barred. I chopped it out. It was thinned to about 12 inches apart and from one to two stalks in the hill. Three days after it was chopped, I ran around it with a scooter and 18-inch scrape, then applied 100 pounds of Nitrate of Soda to the acre. I plowed it the second time and hoed it. The next plowing I ran a cultivator through it with a 24-inch scrape and scooter. I ran the middle out and laid it by. About a week later it took the boll rot and about half of it rotted. I didn't get but 1,000 pounds of seed cotton on the three acres.

MY BULL PROJECT

By LUTHER MIMS
(Isabella High School Student)

I am keeping a record of a Jersey bull for my agricultural project.

I bought him November 3, 1927. I paid $22.00 for him when he was about two weeks old. He was born October 20, 1927. He is about a year and six months old now.

I fed him milk and pastured him on a rye pasture until he was about six months old, then I fed him on corn, wheat bran, oats and soy bean hay. I pastured him on a Bermuda grass pasture in the summer, a velvet bean pasture in the fall and a rye pasture in the spring.

I valued him at about $22.00 when I bought him. He weighed about 75 pounds. I have spent about $75.00 for his feed. He will now weigh about 750 pounds, and I value him at about $150.00 at present.

MY PIG PROJECT

By AUBREY WILLIAMS
(Isabella High School Student)

I got my pig with the money I made by picking cotton when I did not have anything to do at home and on Saturday afternoons.

When I got my pig, it was six weeks old. It is six months old now. Its value is about $25.00. It weighs a little over 300 pounds. It has gained nearly 2 pounds per day.

I fed it corn meal, shorts and corn until it was four months old and then I stopped feeding it corn meal.

I am raising it for a meat hog. If it gains and fattens like it has for the last month, I believe it will dress 400 pounds by next fall.

MY PROJECT FOR THIS YEAR

By MARVIN DURBIN
(Isabella High School Student)

My project for this year is a bull calf. I selected this because we milk from five to seven cows the year round, and ship cream and butter. We have some good grade cows, but they cannot be registered. I bought a pure bred calf November 17, 1928, for the purpose of improving the herd. He was dropped September 21, 1928. I paid $25.00 for him when he was two months old. I intend to keep him until his daughters are old enough to breed, and then get another to prevent inbreeding. I am sure he will soon pay for himself by improving the herd.

MY PROJECT FOR 1929

By EULIE HAMRICK, Vocational Student
(Isabella High School)

My project for the year of 1929 is poultry. I have taken my mother's flock in charge, which is just a mixed breed, but I hope to have all pure bred fowls at the close of the year.

The percentage of eggs has gained 10 per cent since the date started, and I hope it will continue to gain.

I am feeding the feed in proportion which is 3 pounds of corn, 1 pounds of oats and the mash is 2 pounds of cornmeal, and one pound of meat. They have a range to run on.

I have only a few fowls now, but still I have more than I did to begin with.

MY GOAT PROJECT

By CATO ROEBUCK
(Isabella High School Student)

On September 7th I bought ten goats for my project in the animal husbandry class at Isabella High School. When I got the animals they were allowed to run out in an open range. They had all they wanted to eat, so I did not feed them anything until after the middle of the winter. Then I started to feeding each of them about a quart of shelled corn daily.

On December 8th two kids were born, and up to this date, the amount has increased to 23, which makes a total of 13 little ones. They are not expensive animals at all and will make a little income as you go along with your farming.

The animals are little trouble to handle, for they know where their place is and go there every night. They have not had any kind of disease since they were purchased.

As the goats get a little larger I intend to sell them for the meat to be barbecued.

THE STORY OF MY FIRST PROJECT

By RALPH MIMS, Vocational Student
(Isabella High School)

The first year that I took agriculture I had to carry a project to get credit for the work I had done. I thought it was great to get to manage my cotton pach myself.

I had a good time with it, for I knew that it was my own cotton, and I could work it myself. It was under the supervision of Mr. Earle Thomas and I followed all of his instructions. I used 650 pounds of fertilizer per acre. I put 400 pounds of acid, 50 pounds of soda and 50 pounds of potash when planting and 150 pounds of Soda after it was chopped. I hoed it three times and plowed it four times. It looked good all the time. I began picking it in August. I made 2,600 pounds of seed cotton and 1,100 pounds of lint cotton. My total income was nearly $200.00; expenses about $40. My profit was about $160.00.

I like to carry any kind of a project, for I know that the supervision that I get is worth lots to me in the learning how to farm, and that is what lots of farmers lack, is knowing how to do it.

AUBURN MAXIMUM PAYS

By ROBERT LEE GRIFFIN
(Isabella High School Student)

Last year on a plot of four and one-half acres I used 300 pounds of acid phosphate, 150 pounds of nitrate of soda and 37 pounds of muriate of potash to the acre. On another plot of three acres I used 400 pounds of acid phosphate, 200 pounds of nitrate of soda and 50 pounds of potash. Both plots were planted and worked alike. The four and one-half acre plot seemed to be the best for a long time, but after it began to fruit heavy it checked on growth. It looked like the fertilizer had given out. The larger plot was poisoned twice for boll weevils. It made about 800 pounds of lint cotton. The three acre plot was planted by the side of the other—the same kind of soil in both. The smaller plot grew and fruited until late. The smaller patch made about as much or more than the larger patch. The smaller patch was not poisoned at all.

THE STORY OF MY PIG

By OLIVER MIZE
(Isabella High School Student)

Our agriculture teacher bought a registered Duroc Jersey brood sow, and she farrowed February 15, 1929. He said he had some pigs to sell. I didn't have the money to pay him then, so he said he would let me have one and I could pay him this summer. I bought a boar and am going to save him for breeding purposes. He will be registered and vaccinated this month. I am going to keep a record of him for my club work and my agriculture project. He weighed about 33 pounds when I got him and he is gaining rapidly. I paid $12.50 for him about two weeks ago and value him now at $20.00.

MY 1928 COTTON PROJECT

By CECIL McKEE
(Isabella High School Student)

I carried a cotton project consisting of three acres this past year. I broke my land with two horses and then harrowed it with a section harrow. I then laid off my rows about three feet wide with a Georgia stock and shovel.

I used the Auburn maximum of fertilizer and home-mixed it. I put out my fertilizer then followed with cultivator and planter. It was about the first of May before I got to plant and it was late about coming up. When it did come up and was large enough to plow, I plowed it with a cultivator and then chopped it out a hoe width apart, leaving from two to three stalks to the hill. I plowed cotton three times before laying it by, and hoed it once.

The boll weevils injured the cotton about 20 per cent, but I made a bale and a half on the three acres as it was. I kept a record under the supervision of Mr. Earle Thomas at Isabella High School, and Mr. C. E. Stapp, County agent. The record showed above all expenses, I made a net profit of $49.58. I have learned that the Auburn method of fertilizing pays.

HISTORY OF MY COTTON PROJECT

By HYMON ATCHISON, Vocational Student
(Isabella High School)

I have been wanting to start a cotton project. I first got my daddy in the notion of letting me have about two acres of land to do as I wanted with it, and so he got it. I cleaned it up and got it in shape for working. I flat broke it three times and covered it in manure and then laid off the rows about three feet apart. I put out 1,000 pounds of acid phosphate. I used Big Boll cotton seed for planting, and I am going to put about 150 pounds of soda to the acre. I am going to keep it worked well, keep the grass out and keep it a going. I am going to try to make two good, heavy bales and do as well as any other boy.

HISTORY OF MY COTTON PROJECT

By DELUS CULP
(Isabella High School Student)

My cotton project consisted of 2 acres. My land was broken with two horses and then harrowed. Then it was laid off with a middle buster in about three-feet rows. The fertilizer was put out and the seed planted. I used the Auburn method of fertilization, but soon after my soda was applied, it was leached by heavy rains so the cotton was held back. I applied a light application later but was too late with it to help much, so my yield was low. The two acres yielded only 1178 pounds of seed cotton. A record was kept under the supervision of the agriculture teacher of Isabella High School. After labor, rent and fertilizer was deducted there was a profit of only $19.25, but would have been much more if the soda had not leached, therefore I think the Auburn plan pays.

NATIVES OF ATOYAC SEE AUTO FOR FIRST TIME

A new kind of machine was seen recently in Atoyac, Mexico. Natives of the Pacific Coast town viewed this modern invention with a great deal of curiosity. It was an automobile.

General Rafael Sanchez, commander of the State of Guerrero, drove a Model A Ford phaeton across country from Acapulco to Atoyac, over land so rough that none had made such a journey before. He sent this wire to R. Z. Martinez, Ford dealer at Iguala:

"For your pleasure please be informed that the Ford car I purchased from you is the first automobile that has ever reached this town, over a difficult country where there are no roads at all and the land is strewn with rocks and soft sand. Motor in perfect condition after terrible test. Small native towns along path regarded first automobile with positive wonder."

Mr. and Mrs. Kin Vinson of Wetumpka spent last Sunday with relatives and friends n Clanton.

Got Up In The Morning Feeling DIZZY

"I BEGAN to suffer with headache and biliousness," says Mr. John C. Malone, of Buena Vista, Ohio. "I had a hurting through the middle part of my body which seemed to come from indigestion. I would get constipated, and then feel all out of sorts. I would get up in the morning feeling dizzy, and everything I ate would disagree with me.

"Someone asked me why I did not try Black-Draught. I found it to be just the medicine I needed. When I feel a spell coming on, I begin by taking a dose of Black-Draught, dry, at night. I continue to take it for several days, and in a short while I am feeling fine. It is all the medicine I need."

"GENTLEMEN OF THE PRESS" AT ALABAMA NEXT WEEK

First Newspaper Story Ever Screened To Be Shown in Birmingham Week of May 13th

There are some people in this world who are constantly in touch with everybody and everything going on and yet few people know them. They are the "Gentlemen of the Press," those somewhat cynical young men and men not so young who gather news and write the headlines. Everybody can learn something of the urge that drives these men and of the work they do and the sort of lives they live in the finest newspaper story ever to reach the screen, "Gentlemen of the Press" which the Alabama Theatre in Birmingham will show week of Monday, May 13.

As a stage show "Gentlemen of the Press" was one of the biggest successes this year. It's drama, it's comedy and it's thrills and an all-dialogue Paramount production it promises to be one of the screen sensations of the season.

Walter Huston, as the greatest young star Broadway has boasted of in a long time, is seen as the newspaper man who tried for 25 years to get away from the game, but he could never stay away. It had cost him happiness and all the softer side of life, but when the roaring presses called and big news was coming hot over the wire he forgot everything in the joy of giving information to the public.

The newspapermen in "Gentlemen of the Press" are New Yorkers but they are typical of news gatherers and handlers wherever you find him. Paramount has given "Gentlemen of the Press" all of the facilities of production of this big organization and the result is a picture that has set the critics talking everywhere about this screen adaptation of Ward Morehouses's story. A great cast supports Walter Huston, including Charles Ruggles, Katherine Frances, Lawrence Leslie and other well known names of the Broadway stage.

With this feature another of the big sound unit shows will be presented by the Alabama. Eddie Cantor is the big star in the Ziegfield Midnight Frolic and it's just the same as though Eddie were on the stage singing his famous songs.

T. C. JONES

On the morning of April 24, 1929, the spirit of Thomas Calvin Jones was quietly called home. No suffering on bed of affliction for him, but a quick and easy release from the earthly temple which is occupied on earth mainly for the preparation for a higher and nobler life in the spirit world. He was laid to rest next day in Liberty Hill cemetery beside his wife who died ten years ago. The funeral was conducted by Rev. Albert Foshee, who gave loving and touching tribute to the life of his friend.

T. C. Jones was born December 25, 1858 and was reared near Coosa River about two miles from "The Island." There in early manhood he married Miss Zenobia Patterson. They later moved to Liberty Hill community. He was a loyal and faithful member and deacon of Liberty Hill Church. A man of dependable character; an esteemed citizen, and zealous for the cause of right was he. He delighted in good literature. The Christian Herald, a Christian magazine of the very highest is loved and read in his home.

He was a loving father and leaves to mourn his going four sons, C. J. of Birmingham, Sam, Lee, and Dolphus of Clanton vicinity; three daughters, Misses Laura, Bodie and Dora; and a number of grandchildren. One daughter, Mrs. Marlow Williams preceded him to the other home by several years. He leaves seven brothers, Steely of Little Rock, Ark.; Jack, William and Charlie, of Clanton vicinity; Natty of Verbena; Warren of Winfield; and J. B. of Globe, Arizona; and one sister, Mrs. J. W. Foshee of South Clanton.

Our hearts are heavy with grief, for we miss him, oh, how we miss him! We can remember his life as a light illuminating the pathway for us all.

May we ever be faithful to the Christ who loves us and draws us toward the heavenly home of glorious life and worship where there will be reunion with those we love.

Death is but the door opened unto a greater, more glorious life than this; only the promotion of the kind, unselfish, Christ-loving spirit to a higher state of life; finally, the introduction of the soul to face-to-face fellowship with its Saviour.—A Niece.

YOUNG MATRON'S S. S. CLASS MEETS

The young matron's Sunday school class of the Baptist Church, will meet with Mrs. Dowling Wednesday afternoon at 3:30, May 15th.

SAMARIA

Miss Zora Guy was a visitor at Sunday school Sunday.

We had a large crowd Sunday and a splendid lesson. The ones who did not have the privilege of studying this great lesson surely missed food upon which we should feed our spiritual body. One great lesson taught in this was that we too often lose our Bibles. Of course there are few homes without Bibles, but the sad point is they are too often neglected. We go to them in hours of grief to find comfort and sure we find it, but why not make it one of our daily habits to read our Bibles.

The Sunday school is giving a little program Sunday in honor of mothers. This is or at least should be a great day for everyone. What would America be today if it wasn't for the consecrated Christian mothers. We invite visitors to be with us Sunday.

The B. Y. P. U. put on a good program Sunday night. We meet every Sunday night at 7:00. Visitors are always welcome.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Z. Mims attended a Sunday school meeting at Stanton Sunday afternoon.

4-H CLUB GARDEN CONTEST

Chicago, Ill., May 8.—The ole swimmin' hole will not lure the Willies and Johnnies of a thousand and more farm communities this spring quite as much as it did of yore.

At least, such is the prediction of the National Committee on Boy's and Girl's Club work here in announcing the nation-wide garden contest among 4-H clubs in all counties of the United States with at least 25 members. The national organization boasts an enrollment of more than 665,000.

And so Willie and Johnnie, if they want to be winning gardeners, will have to buckle down to mighty hard work. Competition, they know, will be keen; everywhere in the country other ambitious contestants will be digging, hoeing, and raking just as eagerly as they. There'll be no slipping off for a secret swim in Farmer Jone's creek as long as a single weed is to be found.

The champion gardener in every eligible American county will be presented with a single wheel hoe of new design by S. L. Allen and Co., Inc., of Philadelphia, whose interest in fostering scientific gardening has made the 4-H contest possible. County champions will then compete for the state prize, valuable seeder and wheel hoe.

The great incentive to forego springtime pleasures for diligent industry, however, will be the final prizes of $300.00 and $200.00 awarded for national and reserve championships respectively, and to be used as scholarships by the winners in institutions of higher learning.

County extension agents, representing the United States Department of agriculture, will supervise the garden contests in their districts and determine champions. Girls as well as boys are eligible to compete, 4-H officials state.

There will be a music recital at the Chilton County High School on May 10, 7:45 p. m. You are cordially invited to attend.

ALABAMA SELECTS 4-H CLUB WINNERS

Auburn, Ala., May 7.—Two boys and two girls will represent Alabama at the national 4-H club camp in Washington, June 19-25. The boys are Lee Terry, of Lawrence County, and Mabry Phillips of Pickens County. The girls are Edna Stacey, Conecuh County, and Mildred Randall, Lee County.

The selections were made upon the basis of personal success in club work plus a contribution to the work itself, which means that these are four outstanding 4-H club members of the state.

Lee Terry began his 4-H club work in 1925 when his county agent and a State club leader went to his school and talked to the boys about 4-H clubs.

Mabry Phillips became a 4-H club member in 1923 and worked under the direction of F. A. Rew, county agent. He joined a pig club and made a success. The next year he was in cotton club work.

Mildred Randall has completed three years in 4-H club work at Smith Station club in Lee County. Her initial project was home improvement. Edna Stacey has completed four years as a member of the Annex club in Conecuh County. She studied foods the first year. Since then she has engaged in other divisions of 4-H club work.

These boys and girls will be accompanied to Washington by State club leaders of Auburn. Perhaps others will go with them. The trip is one of the very best awards available to farm boys and girls of Alabama for doing outstanding club work.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The world consumption of tin during the year 1928 amounted to 152,619 tons as compared with 138,780 tons in the year 1927 and with 133,480 tons in 1926.

POULTRY FACTS

By G. A. Trollope

Poultry profits next fall and winter will be determined largely by the quality of pullets raised this spring and summer to replace older birds.

Growth, vigor, vitality and breed are among the most important factors in profitable pullets. Stunted and unthrifty pullets are unprofitable for egg production. Cull them out.

Green feed for summer can be produced by planting cowpeas and corn in alternate rows or by broadcasting. Two plantings made about one month apart will contribute largely to the health of growing birds.

Plenty of clean water or milk and oyster shell and a continuous supply of mash and grain will keep the young stock growing. Too much emphasis can not be placed upon continuous growth.

Over-crowding, poor ventilation, and lack of sanitation are responsible for poor body development and losses.

Molting hens and those that have stopped laying for other causes should be culled out. Removal of loafers and proper care will keep the flock on a paying basis.

It is not necessary to sell good eggs for less than 25 cents per dozen if as many as 30 dozen can be collected weekly. County farm and home demonstration agents will advise how and when to sell them.

THE PRESIDENTS MESSAGE

With the reading of president Hoover's mesage, Congress is now in position to go ahead with the proposed legislation for which the session was called by the chief executive. The message of Mr. Hoover was a logical document, of the kind that might have been expected from the new president. It deals with the two principle questions now before the people, farm relief and tariff, in a sensible way, pointing out the most feasible remedies for the present agricultural situation and caling attention to the fact that there is no one sovereign remedy for the farmer. If Congress applies itself to the problem in the same mood it may be taken for granted in advance that something constructive will be done in the effort to improve the agricultural situation of the country.

Mr. Hoover has wisely pointed out in his message that agriculture as we know it in America is not one industry but a whole series of industries. For this reason there is no one remedy which will cure all ills to which agriculture generally is subjected. Some branches of agriculture, as is well known, are now in a prosperous condition and will need no aid, other perhaps than some revision of the tariff schedules.

The president, among other things, recommends the creation of a federderal farm board clothed with sufficient authority and resources to assist our farmers to meet those problems, each upon its own merits. In plain language, however, Mr. Hoover stands out against equalization fees, price fixing by the government, and thrusting of the national government into any branch of the farming which can be handled as well or better by private interest. According to the message there should be no fee nor tax imposed on the farmer, and no federal agency engaged in the buying, selling, or fixing the price of agricultural products. All proposals for federal aid, it is inferred ought to start with the marketing agencies which the farmers already own and control.

The president suggests that something, too, should be done about the revision of thetariff. An increase in tariff rates will undoubtedly help certain branches of the agricultural industry which are now suffering from cheap importation of competing products from other countries where wages and the standard of living are much lower than is the case in the United States. Some of our manufacturing industries need a change in schedules too and as a rule to follow in picking the weak spots, the president suggests that congress first ascertain whether there has been an slackening of industry or increase in unemployed in that particular industry.

President Hoover has undoubtedly outlined a program which is possible of accomplishment if both houses of Congress will act on it in a constructive way. In the words of the New York Sun "With this succinct and businesslike program before it, the Seventy-first Congress should be able to get down to business with a minimum of uncertainty as to what kind of cooperation to expect from the White House."

JODIE LANSFORD WINS THE PRIZE ON CURIOUS EGGS

Mr. Jodie Lansford, who lives on his farm south of Clanton, has broken the record for curious eggs. He was showing his friends in Clanton the thing Tuesday. It was a perfectly normal egg in every respect, but for the fact that it was of a deep red color.

Some of the boys accused Jodie of painting the egg; but he had a perfectly good alibi. He said his wife found it in the hen nest and brought it to him, saying that it was just that way when she first found it. Mr. Lansford says there might be some room to doubt his story, but there is no use in the world to try to dispute what his wife says about it.

The Panama Canal

Uncle Sam's Great Engineering Masterpiece

PANAMA RAILROAD

The Panama Railroad extends between Colon and Panama on the eastern side of the Canal, and is 48 miles long. A branch line extends from Colon to France Field (Army Air Station) Coco Solo (Naval Base) and Fort Randolph, a distance of 6 Miles. This line is now used for freight service, without scheduled passenger service. The railroad as built in 1850-55 followed the course of the Chagres from Gatem to Gamboa, and was for the most part on the west side of the route of the Canal. With the building of the Canal it was necesary to re-locate the railroad throughout practically its entire length.

The construction of the original railroad was done by an American company in the years of 1850 to '55 under great difficulties, some 1,100 persons losing their lives. Its completion ante-dated by 14 years the completion of the first trans-continental railroad in the United States. The railroad was an essential factor in the construction of the Canal and is an important adjunct to its operation. It is equipped with 90-lb. rails rockballasted track and automatic signals. It uses modern American rolling stock, including oil-burning locomotives. There are three regular day-time passenger trains each way every week day, leaving Colon at 7 a.m., 12:15 p.m. and 4:30 p.m., and Panama at 7:05 a.m., 12:20 p.m., and 4:35 p.m. On Sundays the noon train in each direction is omitted. As on other railroads, the schedule is subject to change.

The time for crossing the isthmus by train is one hour and 45 minutes. The railroad being nearly 48 miles long, this is considered very good speed and from actual experience I know that these trains do make remarkable time considering the mountainous country over which the trains travel. The passenger cars and baggage cars are built of solid mahogany throughout. The wood is stained outside and inside, paint is not applied on any of the woodwork. Sleeping cars are not a necessity on this railroad. The fare is 5 cents a mile, first class, or 2 1-2 cents a mile, second clas. The one way passage, Colon to Panama or Panama to Colon, is $2.40, first class, and $1.20 cents second class.

Facilities For Shipping

The completed canal has been equipped not only for its own satisfactory operation, but for assistance and supply to the ships traveling that way. It is an outpost of repair and supply in a section of the world otherwise not well equipped for the maintenance of modern vessels.

The canal has coaling plants of 700,000 tons combined capacity which can load up to 1,500 tons an hour, as fast as the ships can receive the coal in their bunkers. The oil tanks, operated by oil campanies as well as by the canal, have storage for approximately 2,443,792 barrels of oil including crude fuel oil, diesel oil, and gasoline. The supply of pure water is practically unlimited. Most of it is drawn from Gatum Lake, filtered and purified and pumped to the towns and cities.

In addition the government operates stores which handle all sorts of foodstuffs and supplies for the ships and their personnel. These supply 35,000 people on the isthmus regularly, and have ample reserve stocks. Cold storage plants and a modern abattoir and packing house are operated. Approximately 8,500 head of cattle, maintained on 40,000 acres of clovered pastures, are consumed annually. Two large ice plants supply the local demand and the ship trade. Thoroughly modern hotels, restaurants, hospitals, and laundries accommodate the traveling public as well as the government employees, including the army and navy forces stationed on the isthmus.

The repair facilities include a dry dock 1,000 feet long by 110 feet in width, with a depth over blocks at normal high tide of 43 feet and a 300 foot dry dock for smaller vessels. The large dry dock is one of the largest in the world, it can receive any ship afloat. Extensive foundries and shops are operated in connection with the dry docks and have performed repair and construction work on a wide scale. Floating cranes, tug boats, and a salvage steamer assist in repair and salvage.

The government has followed a policy of making the canal route attractive as well as feasible and of coupling with it many features of assistance to shipping.

Tolls and Revenues

Tolls are levied on the net storage of ships which is the interior spaces which can be devoted to the carriage of cargo or passengers. The rate for laden ships is 1.20 per net ton, Panama Canal measurement and the rate for ships in ballast, 72 cents per net ton, with the proviso that the amount collectible shall not exceed the equivalent of $1.25 per net ton as determined under the rules of registry in the United States, or be less than 75 cents per net ton on the same basis. Each "Net ton" is 100 cubic feet or 2.83 cubic meters.

Revenues and Expenses

Any project requiring in its discussion the application of a great many large and puzzlling figures usually becomes tiresome past-time the average public, but on the other hand any engineering project must necessarily deal in basic figures, both financially and constructionally, if the real worth of the project is to be clearly and intelligently understood. Therefore in dealing with the revenues and expenses of the Panama Canal, if you will follow me closely I hope to give you a tangible idea of our government's investment in this connection.

The investment in the canal and its adjuncts is partly for national defense and partly commercial. For accounting purposes these items have been separated. The investment charged to national defense at the begining of the fiscal year 1929, (stated in round numbers) was, $113,000,000 and that charged to commercial use $275,000,000. The latter figure may be considered the capital invested in the canal in a commercial sense. The annual interest on this capital at 3 per cent (which is the rate on most of the bonds issued to cover canal construction) would be $8,250,000. At 4 per cent it would be $11,000,000, and at 5 per cent, $13,750,000. The following figures of canal expenses do not include such interst charged but do include a fixed annual charge of $350,000 for amortization of canal fixed property having a life of 100 years and $135,000 covering depreciation at 2 per cent of less than 100 years, which together with interest at 3 per cent per year will provide for amortization of the investment or replacement of all items at the end of 100 years. In addition, the expenses include a further charge of epproximately $750,000 per year for depreciation of canal equipment.

For the first four years of operation the revenues were less than the actual expenses of operation, due largely to slides in Gaillard cut. In the later years revenues have exceeded the cost of operation and maintainance. To June 30, 1928 the operating expenses for the canal proper amounted to approximately $104,000,000, and the revenues to over $196,000,000 of which $193,018,936.71 was for tolls alone. In addition, the operating expenses of certain auxiliary business units amounted to over $159,500,000 more, against business revenues of over $166,000,000. The excess of total earnings over labor expenses at the begining of the fiscal year 1929, stood at $98,915,439.82. But as previously explained, this figure does not include at least $8,250,000 annual interest on the commercial investment, which must be taken into consideration in comparing the canal with a commercial enterprise. For the 14-year period at simple interest this charge would now amount to $115,500,000 and applying the $98,900,000 operating surplus against this charge would still leave a deficit of $16,600,000 and at compound interest the deficit would be considerably more.

The total earnings of the Panama Canal during the fiscal year closed June 30, 1928, were $44,105,292.82, of which tolls amounted to $26,903,513.11. The corresponding expenses of operation and maintenance including depreciation, but exclusive of interest on the commercial capitalization, was $25,143,728.63, leaving net revenues, $18,961,564.29, which is over twice the annual figures and leaves a surplus of approximately $10,700,000 to be applied to wipe out the deficit of previous years.

The greatest amount of tolls earned in any one month was $2,398,459, in December, 1927.

Tolls are not levied on the nature of cargo carried, but on the capacity of the ship. The cost per ton of cargo for sending a ship through the canal varies accordingly, with the nature of the ship and the quality carried, the lowest cost per ton has been 21.76 cents, on a cargo carrier heavily laden with iron ore and from this figure it ranges upward. The average for bulk cargoes is approximately 65 cents per ton of 2,240 pounds.

If the cost of operatng a ship be taken at 20 cents per net ton per day (and this, of course, varies greatly as among ships,) depending on the route over which she is operating, the cost of the tolls on laden ships is equivalent to about 6 days of operation at sea. On such an assumption other considerations being equal if a ship saves over six days in her voyage by using the canal, it is profitable to come that way. Translated into distance, a 10-knot ship traveling 240 nautical miles a day will gain by using the canal if it shortens the distance by 1,440 miles. On the same basis, a ship in ballast can profit by using the canal if it saves 2 and 2-3 days. After all explanations of the canal, it is obvious that its real purpose is the reduction it effects in distances at sea. As for example, the distance of 13,135 nautical miles between New York and San Francisco has been reduced to 5,262 miles by the canal; the saving is 7,873 miles, or three-fifths.

A short history of the Isthmus of Panama will follow as a continuation of this article.

CHILTON COUNTY ABSTRACT CO.
M. D. FOSHEE, Manager

A good business man will not buy a farm or any property without first looking it over to see what it is worth.

However, some will buy or loan money on land without an abstract.

Isn't it equally as foolish to buy a farm without looking it over as to buy it and not know whether the titles are good or not? Without an abstract you do not know where you are getting the land you look at or not.

Before investing in land in any way have an abstract made and be safe.

J. N. DENNIS ONE OF OUTSTANDING CITIZENS

J. N. Dennis is one of the leading farmers of Chilton County. Recently C. E. Stapp, County Agent, wrote the editor of the Alabama Farm Bureau News a letter about Mr. Dennis's farming activities in which he said:

"Mr. Dennis is not only a good farmer, but he is an outstanding man of many particulars in the county. He is generally recognized as a leader. In the organization of the Farm Bureau in the County last January, he was unanimously elected president of the Chilton County Farm Bureau.

"In addition to owning and operating a farm, Mr. Dennis owns and operates one of the best gins in the county. He is farming about 250 acres on which he averages a little better than thre-fourths bale of cotton per acre and twenty-five bushels of corn per acre. He sowed about 100 acres in vetch and Austrian Peas last fall. He has a good home orchard, grows strawberries, is secretary of the Strawberry Growers Association. He has a nice two-acre patch of alfalfa on his farm from which he cut and saved about seven tons of pretty alfalfa hay this time.

"Mr. Dennis is a believer in good livestock and pastures for same. He is putting in a splendid pasture demonstration now. He has recently put a carload of cattle on feed with the expectation of using his feed to the best advantage.

"He is raising a family of fourteen children, two of whom, namely, Miss Bertha Dennis and Turner Dennis, are graduates of Auburn. Miss Bertha Dennis is teaching vocational Home Economics at Mount Hope, Alabama, and Mr. Turner Dennis finished in veterinary surgery, and is with the State Livestock Sanitary Board.

"Mr. Dennis is a great believer in Auburn, and is a close observer and follower of the Experiment Station. He makes one or two trips to Auburn every year and always gets as many of his fellow farmers as he can to go with him and study the experimental work.

"He is always ready and willing to do anything that he can for the betterment of the farming conditions in his county, and in fact anything that means for development and progress has his support."

ICE CREAM SUPPER

There will be an ice cream supper at Zeb Lockhart's Saturday night, May 11th. Everybody is welcome, and everybody come. Right in front of Collins Chapel church.—Zeb Lockhart, Jemison, Ala.

TEN BOYS ARE IN JERSEY CALF CLUB

Chilton County is this year to have a purebred Jersey 4-H calf club. Ten boys of the county are being encouraged to join this club and purchase a purebred Jersey calf. This work is being done by C. E. Stapp, county agent, cooperating with F. W. Burns, livestock specialist of Auburn. The boys who join the club will work under the supervision of these two agents, and will be asked to report from time to time. The boys will be told exactly how to handle the calves in order to make the best cows out of them.

It is hoped by those in chage that this work will aid in getting farmers of the county to produce more dairy products, especially those needed for family consumption. Mr. Burns says that it takes three things to be successful in dairying. These are: 1. Good men; 2. Plenty of home grown feeds, and 3. Good cows. The boys of the Jersey Calf Club must meet these requirements if they are to be successful.

EVERY FARM SHOULD HAVE HENS

Every farmer in Chilton County should seriously consider the carrying of from 110 to 150 good hens, according to C. E. Stapp, county agent. He advocates that better housing, closer attention to culling, feeding and general care of the birds should not be over-looked. He said that the services which the farm bureau has rendered in disposing of surplus birds has been appreciated and has aided in stimulating interest in poultry production.

NIGHT SCHOOL FARMERS STUDY GOOD DAIRYING

Maplesville, Ala., May 8.—"Dairying" was the subject studied by the fourteen farmers of the Isabella community enrolled in the night school conducted by Earl Thomas, vocational teacher. All of these farmers are at present carrying dairy projects under Mr. Thomas's supervision. They will report on their projects in the fall.

In addition to the regular enrollment, an average of five visitors attended the meetings each night. The regular members of the night school made a record of 80 per cent attendance during the school. They were advised to sow Lespedeza, Carpet grass, and Dallas grass on the lowlands for pastures for their dairy cows.

350 BOYS AND GIRLS IN 4-H CLUB WORK

Some 350 farm boys and girls of Chilton County last year were members of the 4-H clubs of the county. County agent Stapp is at present working to get a larger number than that to become members this year. He thinks he will be able to get 500 to become members.

About 325 of the boys and girls carried projects last year. Some 275 of these projects were cotton, 100 corn, 15 poultry, and 25 pigs. This was the first club work ever done in the county. On April 15th a club rally was held at Clanton and about 300 of the boys attended. Another rally has been planned for this year. It will be held ....., and a large number of boys are expected to attend. Last year twenty-five gallons of ice cream were served the boys. They will be entertained this year, however, all plans as to how they will be cared for have not been worked out.

Prizes were offered and given last year. Lloyd Burnett, of Collins Chapel community won a prize of $25, offered to the boy producing the largest yield of corn on one acre of land. He produced 84 1-2 bushels on his acre. Lloyd Cobb of Jemison produced 1526 pounds of seed cotton per acre on two acres and received a prize of $15. Ben Bearden of Stanton produced 1404 pounds of seed cotton per acre and received a prize of $10. These prizes were offered by the First National Bank of Clanton.

Grady Minor of Mt. Pleasant community was awarded a $15 prize for doing the best work in the pig club. Russell Bean of Collins Chapel community was presented a $10 prize for doing so well in the poultry club. These prizes were offered by the Peoples Savings Bank of Clanton.

OUR HOG POPULATION 7,000 ON JANUARY 1, 1929

On January 1 of 1929 there were 7,000 hogs worth $67,000 on farms in Chilton County. C. E. Stapp, county agent, is interested in seeing more and better hogs on farms of the county. To get the work started last year he worked with club boys carrying swine projects. He advised the boys and farmers about the care of the sow and litter, including feeds before and after farrowing. The importance of grazing crops and feeding of balanced rations and mineral mixtures at all times were emphasized.

The Experiment Station at Auburn and other agricultural agencies of the state, have been doing a bit of work on the swine production. A system which is said to be fool proof has been worked out. This system is as follows:

1. Use only purebred boars, Duroc or Poland China.
2. May use boar for light service at 9 months old, but should be older for hard service. One service per sow is enough.
3. Keep boar on small individual pasture and feed ration of corn, shorts and tankage (8-4-1 ration). Do not keep with sows except at breeding time.
4. Use prolific sows that are good milkers and mothers. Long bodied sows are prolific, short, close built sows are not.
5. Do not breed gilts to farrow at earlier age than 12 months.
6. Breed to farrow in December and June.
7. Individual farrowing houses should be clean.
8. Sows should be thoroughly cleansed by washing before going into farrowing pen. This prevents wormy pigs if clean pen is used.
9. Sow should be fed bran mash for two days before farrowing and put gradually on ration of corn, shorts and tankage.
10. Never feed brood sows complete ration of peanuts or velvet beans.
11. Keep pigs away from old hog lots and stagnant pools.
12. Castrate boar pigs at eight weeks old.

SOME STATISTICS ON CHILTON CO. FARMING

Last year farmers of Alabama cultivated 7,462,000 acres of land in field crops valued at $190,886,000, according to the state department of agriculture. Of this acreage farmers of Chilton County cultivated 86,000 acres in crops. These were worth $2,763,000.

In 1928 the live-stock productions of the county was worth $1,283,000. The aggregate farm income was $4,046,000. A little over 31 per cent of this income came from livestock.

One year ago 16,300 people lived on farms in Chilton County. The income per capita was $248.

A glance at the estimated acreage harvested, the production and the value of cooperation in the county during 1928 shows that 33,000 acres were planted to corn. This produced 429,000 bushels, valued at $471,900. One thousand acres planted to hay, which produced 1,000 tons valued at $18,000. Peanuts were planted on 700 acres. They produced 20,000 bushels, which were valued at $19,400. One thousand one hundred acres of sweet potatoes in the county produced 88,000 bushels valued at $49,200. Two hundred acres were planted to sorghum syrup, which produced 16,000 gallons valued at $1,400. Twice as much sugar cane was planted as sorghum. The 400 acres planted to sugar cane produced 32,000 gallons of syrup valued at $30,400. Thirteen hundred acres of oats were planted which produced 22,000 bushels, valued at $16,500. Cowpeas were produced on 900 acres and produced 3,600 bushels, valued at $6,840. Twenty two hundred acres in the county were planted in truck crops. The value of these crops was $363,000. Miscellaneous crops and fruits produced in the county were worth $45,000. These figures readily indicate that farmers in the county produced a number of field crops.

We were about to overlook the fact that about 300 acres were planted to strawberries. Fourteen car loads of berries were shipped from Clanton and 57 car loads from Thorsby.

There are 3,627 pecan trees in the county, 2,768 of these are not of bearing age, while 859 of them are. The northern part of Chilton County has 220 growing days, while the southern part of it has 250 growing days.

Chilton County is by no means the leading livestock county of the state but it does have a number of work stock, cattle, and hogs. Statistics compiled by the state department of agriculture show that on January 1, 1929 that 5,000 head of work stock valued at $463,000 were found in the county. Five thousand milk cows worth $230,000 while 3,000 head of other cattle valued at $55,000 were found in the county. Seven thousand head of hogs worth $67,000 were on farms of the county. The poultry industry should not be overlooked as there were 1,000,000 birds worth $600,000 in the county the first of this year. Chickens sold and consumed amounted to 150,000 birds valued at $90,000. The county produced 845,000 dozens of eggs valued at $253,000.

This in a general way shows the statistical standing of Chilton County in regard to cooperative acreage, production, and income and the number and value of livestock on the farms.

FARM ORCHARDS ARE RECOMMENDED

Agricultural workers of Chilton County are interested in seeing every farmer of their county with good home orchards. The county agent recommends that all farmers in the county have a home orchard consisting of 30 peach trees, 10 apple trees, 4 pear trees, 6 pecan trees, 6 grape vines, and 4 plum trees. Several farmers of the county have good orchards, but the county agent and farm bureau officials will not be satisfied until many others have good orchards, properly sprayed, fertilized and cultivated.

"Bring me the winner!"

THE story is told of a man dining in a restaurant, who was served a lobster with only one claw. Upon complaining he was told by the waiter that this happened occasionally because the live lobsters fought among themselves in the kitchen. "Bring me the winner!" said the diner.

At the General Motors Proving Ground, a fleet of specimen cars, built long in advance of factory production, fight a battle of hills, bumps, and every other sort of torture. These cars are torn down and rebuilt until they are able to beat every test. The tests involve speed, power, endurance, braking, riding comfort, handling ease; fuel, oil, and tire economy; body strength—every phase of car construction and performance.

Only the winner of all these tests is sent back to the factory to be used as a model for the construction of the car you buy. No matter what driving condition you face, your General Motors car is equal to it. You have the winner.

HOUSE PROJECT

By GLYNDER ODEN, Home Economics Dept.

As a student of Home Economics Class 1, I have chosen by own room as a home project.

To give you some idea of my room when it is finished, I am going to tell you what I have done and my plans to complete it.

I have made a simple dressing table and a foot stool to match. I repainted my bedstead with a color that will harmonize with my other furniture.

My next problem will be to make a simple wardrobe and to paint my room floor which I expect to complete very soon. My furniture will be arranged as correctly as possible, as I have learned in my housekeeping work how to do this.

My room contains only the things that belong to me. I feel at ease in my room, for when I am tired and want to get away from the rest of the family and read and study, it is a pleasure.

PLEASANT GROVE

The singing at this place in the old books was a grand success. The spirit of the Lord got into the singing and in the people and everybody enjoyed it. We need more of the old-time singings and more of the old-time religion to get us back to where our forefathers were. We have got too far from the road that leads to heaven. We are after too much of the world and the things of the world. If we ever expect to get to heaven we must lay down these foolish things of the world and serve God, and do the things that He would have us do. So we want to thank the people of Pleasant Grove community for their goodness shown to the convention at that place. We had the best of order except a few loose Ford cars. We had with us Bro. S. C. Hays from Sylacauga. He is the son of J. W. Hays. He preached for us at 11 o'clock and everybody enjoyed the sermon, and then adjourned for dinner. We had a great feast. There was plenty to eat for everybody.

Then the singing class was called to order by the president and we had another feast in songs and music.

The following were leaders Sunday morning: John Askew, M. W. Brown, J. D. Hodgens, J. M. Williams, A. A. Jackson, J. W. Hayes, W. L. Sanders, W. B. Cooper, Mrs. Sarah Bates. Preaching was by Rev. S. C. Hayes.

In the afternoon the music was led by A. A. Jackson, T. J. Baker, M. C. Jackson, W. L. Jackson, G. B. Williams, Clem Billingsley, Mrs. Ruth Henley, Rev. S. C. Hayes.

The next convention will be at Pates Chapel on the first Sunday and Saturday before in September. We hope to meet all of you there without the loss of one. Since we last met we have lost four of our members, Brothers Langston, Lowe, Shirley and Waldrop.

Memorial songs as follows: Bro. Waldrop, 207, sung by J. W. Hayes; Bro. Shirley, by W. L. Sanders; Bro. Langston, by W. B. Cooper; Bro. Lowe by A. A. Jackson; J. L. White by M. C. Jackson, W. L. Jackson, W. L. Sanders and A. A. Jackson. The convention was closed by prayer by Bro. Limbrick.—T. J. Jones, President; W. B. Cooper, Secretary.

UNION GROVE

The United Singing Society will meet with Union Grove next Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The public is invited to attend.—Belle Dorminey, Secretary.

THE "ROAD TO THE CITY"

This is the senior play to be given at the Chilton County High School Friday night week, May the 17th.

You do not want to miss this thrilling story, full of fun; so keep the date in mind and be at the door on time.

Rev. and Mrs. S. J. Ezell left Tuesday afternoon in their car to attend the Southern Baptist Convention at Memphis. They spent Tuesday night in Birmingham with Rev. and Mrs. Toy Williams, who joined them in their trip to Memphis Wednesday. They will return home some time the first part of next week.

COOKE TENT THEATRE IN THORSBY THIS WEEK

Many Clanton people have been to Thorsby this week to witness the performances given by the Cooke players in their big tent theatre. Those who have seen it are universal in the declaration that Cooke's show is better this year than ever before.

The players will be in Thorsby every night this week, and all who wish an excellent entertainment are cordially invited to attend.

BOB HARDY DIED IN B'HAM

Mr. R. A. Hardy died at his home in Birmingham last Sunday. The deceased was well known in this county, having lived here several years ago before going to Birmingham. He married Miss Lula Baker, who is a sister of Mrs. J. J. Mims.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Mims went to Birmingham to attend the funeral Monday.

ALABAMA'S HIGH FERTILIZER RECORD

Alabama has returned more cotton per pound of fertilizer used during the last 5 years than any other state which uses commercial fertilizer. This information was recently released by the U. S. Department of Agriculture through the State Department of Agriculture, Montgomery.

Alabama has exceeded Virginia and Georgia by eight-hundredths of a pound; North Carolina and Florida by thirteen-hundredths of a pound and nine-hundredths of a pound respectively, and South Carolina by two-tenths of a pound.

An average of 249 pounds of fertilizer was used per acre in Alabama and the cotton yield per acre was estimated at 171 pounds. Virginia used 394 pounds with a yield per acre of 237 pounds; North Carolina, 440 pounds and yielded 240 pounds; South Carolina, 332 pounds with an average production of 159 pounds; Georgia, 250 pounds of fertilizer and averaged 150 pounds per acre; Florida 229 pounds with a production of 136 pounds seed cotton per acre.

Several factors have been advanced as to the reason for the higher production per pound of fertilizer in Alabama. Among these factors the most outstanding are:

1. Legislative action.
2. Activities of the Experiment Station.
3. Recommendation of the Extension Service.
4. Cooperative purchasing of separate ingredients through the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation.

"A situation," declared F. W. Gist, state and federal statistician, "exists in Alabama regarding commercial fertilizer which is peculiar to this state. About 5 years ago, the legislature raised the legal plant food content from 14 to 16 points, an increase of 13 per cent. Under the present law, the nitrogen content must be at least 2.5 per cent. This gives Alabama the highest grade of fertilizer used legally in any state.

"More than 5 years ago the Alabama Experiment Station and the extension service began their recommendations of the use of a given formula, which is equivalent to a 10-6-4 mixture. In 1928, 39 per cent of the fertilizer used was distributed as separate ingredients. Of this volume, 9 per cent was phosphorous, 13 per cent nitrogen and 4 per cent potash. The excess of nitrogen being used on other crops than cotton."

O'Neal Comments

"About 15 years ago," says Edward A. O'Neal, president of the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation, "the experiment station of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute at Auburn, began a systematic study of fertilizer for cotton. Year after year, these studies were conducted with a view to determining the best fertilizer for farmers on the different soil types to use for cotton. Gradually, certain facts began to reveal themselves; and they finally crystalized into the "Auburn Method" of fertilizing cotton.

"The experiment station recommended this method to county agents, who in return recommended it to the farmers who began adopting it. The results at the end of the year was more cotton per dollar invested for fertilizer.

"A few years ago the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation entered the fertilizer field to assist members of the organization in purchasing fertilizer ingredients necessary to make the Auburn Mixture at home. This made it possible for farmers to get the right kind of fertilizer at a saving in price."

Lesson for May 12

THE EARLY MINISTRY OF JEREMIAH

GOLDEN TEXT—We must obey God rather than men.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Doing Hard Things for God.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Doing Hard Things for God.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Taking a Stand for God.

I. Jeremiah's Call (1:1-10).

1. It was prenatal (vv. 4, 5).

Before Jeremiah was born, God ordained him a prophet.

2. His diffidence (v. 6).

3. His hesitancy overcome (vv. 7, 8).

God graciously appeared unto him and made clear that he should (1) Go where sent. (2) Speak as commanded. (3) Be unafraid of their faces. The servant of God is called upon to face strong enemies. (4) Be assured of the divine presence.

4. The divine message given (v. 9).

Not merely the thoughts, but the proper words to express the thoughts, were put into the prophet's mouth.

5. Nature of his ministry (v. 10).

It was to be wider than that of prophesying. Six words are given as descriptive thereof. The first four are destructive in their implication—"root out," "pull down," "destroy," and "throw down"; two constructive, "build," and "plant."

II. Jeremiah's Grief (9:1, cf. 6:10).

The unbelief of the people made him feel that his efforts were fruitless. Seeing so clearly the awful doom which awaited his people and nation, and their willful opposition, he wept sorely.

III. Jeremiah's Prophecy in the Temple Court (26:1-24).

1. Jeremiah's solemn warning to Judah (vv. 1-7).

The Lord commanded him to stand in a conspicuous place in the temple and proclaim the judgment which was about to fall upon them because of their sins. The object was to move them to repentance (v. 3). If they would not repent, God would make the temple as Shiloh (v.6). Just as Shiloh was once the dwelling place of the Lord and now fallen into decay and abandoned, so would it be with the temple.

2. Jeremiah on trial (vv. 8-11).

(1) Cause of arrest (v. 8). It was for faithfully speaking all that the Lord had commanded.

(2) The charge (vv. 8, 9). Thou shalt surely die. They charged him with a capital crime. According to this charge his guilt was twofold: a. Pretending to speak for God. b. Speaking against the temple and the city. According to this charge he was guilty of blasphemy and sacrilege. The one who prophesied without God's command was to be punished by death (Deut. 18:20). Blasphemy was also punishable by death. (Lev. 24:16).

(3) The princes sit in judgment (vv. 10, 11). Matters of state were not entirely in the hands of the priests and elders, but were in part controlled by members of the royal family.

3. Jeremiah's defense (vv. 12-15).

Threats of death did not deter him from preaching, but only made him repeat his message with clearness.

(1) Reiterates his divine commission (v. 12). He plainly told them that he was God's messenger and in opposing him they were opposing God.

(2) His exhortation (v. 13). He urged them to amend their ways and obey God and thus turn aside the divine judgment.

(3) He gave himself up (v. 14). He did not resist the powers of government (Rom. 13:1).

(4) Warns of fatal consequences (v. 15). He told them that God had sent him and that if they killed him they would be guilty of defying God.

4. Jeremiah saved (vv. 16-24).

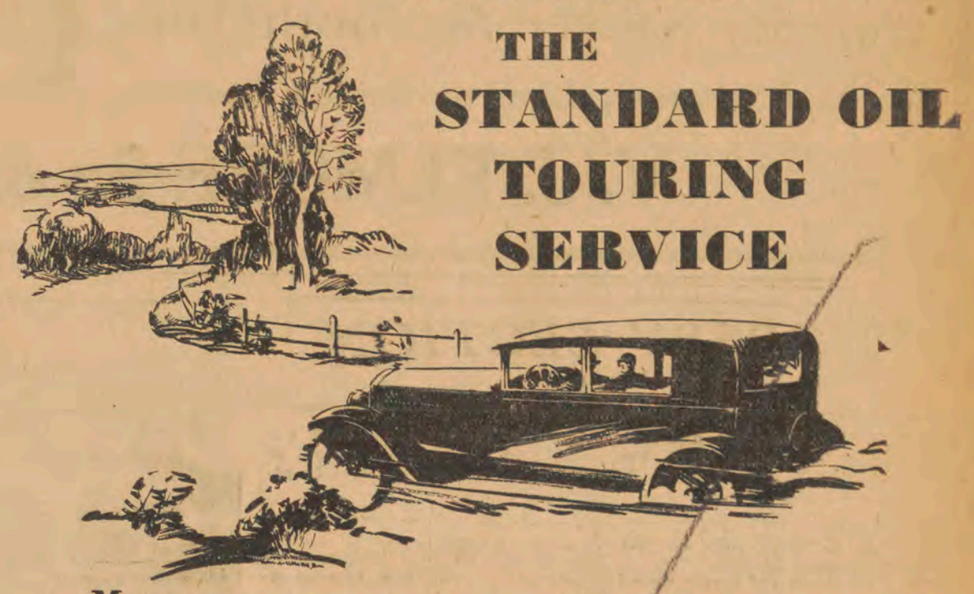
(2) The speech of the elders (vv. 17-23).



The elders pled for Jeremiah and adduced two cases in illustration: a. Micah (vv. 18, 19). Micah had prophesied against Jerusalem, but King Hezekiah instead of putting him to death, repented, and thus turned aside the punishment which was impending.

b. Urijah (vv. 20-23). Urijah prophesied against the city and the land and thus incurred the wrath of Jehoiakim, who even brought him back from Egypt and slew him.

(3.) Rescued by Ahikam (v. 24). Ahikam must have been a man of influence, to be able to interfere.

City State

ing are among the most important factors to be sought in profitable pullets. Stunted, unthrifty and slow-developing pullets are unfit for egg production purposes and represent a loss to the owner. Cull these out of the flock as rapidly as they can be detected.

The summer's supply of green feed and shade may be provided by planting cowpeas and corn in alternate rows or broadcasting. Two plantings made about one month apart will contribute largely to the growth, health and vigor of the growing pullets.

Plenty of clean water or milk, oyster shell and a regular supply of mash and grain will keep the young stock growing. Continuous growth cannot be over-emphasized.

Over-crowding, poor ventilation, and lack of sanitation are responsible for poor body development and losses. Chicks that are taught to roost early are less liable to suffer from crowding and improper ventilation.

A good range supplying green feed and shade is most essential to the proper rearing of pullets. Now clean ground which was not used for chickens during the past year or two will do much toward avoiding trouble from worms, coccidosis and other diseases. Clean and spray houses often.

Continued proper care of the hen flock will supply the funds needed to raise the future layers. The mash feeding must be continued along with sufficient grain to keep the hens in good body weights. The average flock should eat more mash than grain during the summer so that a liberal grain feed late in the afternoon is usually enough. Special care in feeding will do much to postpone the molt until the pullets commence supplying eggs.

Cull any early molting hens as well as those that have stopped laying for other causes. The flock will continue to pay a profit if the idlers are removed and proper care is given the birds that are kept.

May 1st to 7th is set aside as National Egg Week. Every possible effort is being made to encourage the eating of more eggs than usual during the season of plentiful supply.

There is no necessity of selling eggs for less than 25 cents per dozen providing the flock will lay enough to enable selecting a 30-dozen case weekly. County and Home Demonstration Agents are prepared to tell about the plans for placing eggs in cold storage. Request a copy of the booklet explaining the plan.

As soon as the breeding season is over it is a good practice to remove the males. Unless they are of exceptional quality for breeders for next year they should be eaten or sold. Their removal from the flock increases the keeping quality of the infertile eggs laid.

Warm weather encourages the presence of lice and mites. Occasionally inspect the birds and houses. Sodium flouride is the enemy of lice, and used motor oil plus kerosene will whip mites.

In the summer management of the flock it should be remembered that the hotter the weather, the more care the birds will need.

45 RURAL POWER LINES TO GO IN 32 COUNTIES

Termed Largest Single Construction Program in State's History

Birmingham, Ala., May 1.—The largest single authorization for rural line extensions in Alabama, involving forty-five projects of 295 miles in thirty-two counties, was announced today by Thomas W. Martin, president of Alabama Power Company. Fifteen hundred customers not now served from central stations, and a vast majority of whom do not enjoy electric service in any form, will be added to the company's large roster of rural customers. The extensions, when completed, will bring the total number of counties enjoying rural service to fifty-eight and the total mileage of lines to 1,167.

Alabama Power Company, in the past few years, constructed a total of 249 rural lines extending 867 miles, and gave the State first position among all states in this particular activity.

The counties to be affected by the new extensions are Autauga, Blount, Colbert, Cullman, Coosa, Chambers, Clay, Elmore, Escambia, Etowah, Fayette, Houston, Henry, Hale, Jefferson, Lawrence, Lauderdale, Lee, Limestone, Morgan, Montgomery, Marshall, Mobile, Marengo, Russell, Shelby, St. Clair, Tallapoosa, Tuscaloosa, Winston and Wilcox.

Of interest to a large number of farmers in these counties, is the statement that existing cotton gins in eleven localities will be electrified and that in course of time additional gins will be built to use the service.

All the new circuits will be pioneer or feeder lines, carrying power service into a large agricultural section of the State. Although the initial number of customers served will be small, Power Company engineers point out that these extensions will enable the company to reach at least five times as many customers by tap lines to be built in the future into adjacent sections and communities.

Commenting on the Company's rural developments, Mr. Martin said: "The use of household appliances on our rural lines may now be said to be quite general, and the application of electricity to agriculture in Alabama is growing in variety of uses and in number of installations. Our rural power revenue does not quite return to the company the cost of the service. However, we have viewed this work as having both an economic and social aspect, and we are very hopeful that the business of the rural customers will be built up to self-sustaining proportions within a reasonable time."

"I am so happy ..that the last pimple is gone"

Maybe this denial is due to a skin trouble. First impressions cannot be good without a clear skin—first impressions are quickly made and are not soon forgotten. Old friends may excuse pimples and secretly sympathize, but new acquaintances may not be so charitable. Skin blemishes are not inviting. Neither can they be covered up. They embarrass. Hold people back. Steal away joy and happiness.

A lovely—clear skin—is within the reach of all. To those who have lost it, hope is offered. You, too, may have a beautiful skin, rose-petal in texture, pretty as a picture and without a single pimple.

Many thousands have regained their strength and charm by taking S.S.S. It is Nature's own blood tonic for raising the body's power of resistance to disease, improving the appetite, building firm flesh, and clearing the skin.

S.S.S. is made from fresh vegetable drugs and has a successful record of over 100 years back of it.

Take S.S.S. at meal-time. You will be delighted with its blood building and tonic effect.

All Drug Stores sell S.S.S. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

You may be happy, too!

The way to the skin is through the blood. Strong, healthy blood nourishes the body and fights against infection and disease.

The profits to be made from the flock this fall and winter depend largely upon the quality of pullets raised to replace the older birds lost through deaths and culling. In the average farm flock one-third of the old birds is enough to count on keeping over. A poultryman's success may well be measured by the quality of pullets raised.

Mrs. Carrie Martin, grandmother of Mrs. S. C. Wood, left for her home in Bessemer Sunday.

Rev. J. H. Jones and family moved into their new home on Michigan Avenue early this week.

Rev. and Mrs. E. W. W. Butler accepted an invitation to join the party that they might help surprise their daughter and enjoy with her, picnic fashion, the good things that had been provided.

The Parent Teachers Association will take the opportunity in the absence of a Baptist Social this week, to hold their monthly social at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Petersen, on Thursday afternoon of this week. Everybody invited.

Next Sunday morning the regular hour for service at the Congregational church will be devoted to a Mother's Day service. All the mothers of the congregation and of the Sunday School members, and of those who ordinarily or occasionally attend this church are cordially invited, and should there be other mothers in Thorsby and vicinity not included in the above invitation, or in fact all who are disposed to attend will be welcomed.

Miss Betty Lakeman of Lock 12 was a visitor in Thorsby Sunday.

Miss Kate McNeil Dies

The many friends of Miss Kate McNeil were surprised and grieved to learn of the death of this estimable young lady in the South Highlands infirmary in Birmingham at 4 a. m. Monday, May 6th.

She had been ailing for some time with some trouble with her head, but did not appear to be in a critical condition until Sunday when it was decided to get her to a hospital for examination. Train No. 4 was stopped at Jemison Sunday night and friends accompanied her to Birmingham. Arriving at the hospital she was found to be unconscious and did not rally before she died. Miss Kate was born in Jemison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Filmore McNeil, 29 years ago and had lived there all her life. She leaves her mother, one sister, Miss McMae McNeil, and 3 brothers, Oscar, Stanley and Silsby, and a host of friends in Jemison and Thorsby. For the past four years she had been a teacher in the primary department of the public school and had been re-elected to that position for the ensuing school year.

Miss Kate, as all her friends knew her, was a member of Jemison Presbyterian church and a teacher in their Sunday school.

Funeral services were held at the church Tuesday at 3 p. m. conducted by Rev. Dr. Broady, pastor of 6th Presbyterian church of Birmingham. Burial was in Jemison cemetery.

The Stereopticon illustrated lecture by Rev. J. E. Each at Thorsby Congregational church last Sunday night was a most informing scene depicting "The Children of Other Lands," and races as they grow to manhood and womanhood, are exploited by the greed, vices and avarice of wicked white men, and the transforming influences of Christianity and education as introduced into the lives of some of them by Christian missionaries.

Christian Endeavor

"Leadership and Service" was the topic of the Christian Endeavor prayer meeting Sunday night. The officers and chairman of the various committees were the leaders of the meeting. As this was the monthly consecration meeting the roll was called and each member responded with a Bible verse. The Christian Endeavor pledge was read in unison.

Thorsby Institute News

The Seniors of Thirsby Institute were very pleasantly entertained by the Juniors and Mr. Dickson, their class teacher, at a party last Saturday held at the home of Miss Edith Johnson, a member of the Junior class. Miss Mary Ella Gerald, the Senior class teacher, and Mr. Maddox, Registrar, and Miss Jenkins, Principal, were also invited.

The lawn was lighted by electric lights and decorated with garlands of roses. Rose is the Senior flower. Various games were played after which strawberry short cake and ice cream were served. On each napkin was pinned a small pink rose. Pink and white are the class colors.

The Juniors and Mr. Dickson are to be congratulated on the enjoyable time they gave everyone.

Saturday night, May 11, at 7:30 p. m. at the Dining Hall the Music Department of Thorsby Institute will give a music recital. Everyone is cordially invited. No admission is charged.

The auditorium of Thorsby Institute is being finished on the inside and a new velour stage curtain has been ordered. It is expected to use the auditorium for the first time for the Senior Play.

It is expected this coming year to have Mechanical Drawing taught by Miss Klingelhoefer, a teacher at Thorsby Institute. This will probably be given five days a week for a semester and count as half a credit. This teaches one to make printed letters, designs, plans, etc. If there are enough who wish solid geometry she will teach that. This will be a semester subject. These subjects are mentioned as they have not been taught this year.

A class in History of Music will be given this next year. In order to receive credit in music the school requires some class work. The new Music teacher, Miss Thoroman, has had several years teaching experience. She began taking piano lessons as a small child; for several years studied at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, and since leaving there has returned often for further study. The director who has watched her work since she left the Conservatory, says she has proven to be an excellent teacher.

Governor Calls For River Consideration

Conference Will Consider The Coosa-Alabama River Navigation

Montgomery, Ala., May 11— Gov. Graves believes the conference of business leaders he has called for May 31 to discuss development of the Alabama-Coosa waterway, will pave the way for an expansion in commerce and industry unparalleled in the history of the state.

Replies of those industrial and commercial leaders he has invited to attend the conference have been "More than satisfactory," the governor said.

"My purpose in calling this conference was to bring together the heads of the Mississippi Valley Association and the state's business, industrial and commercial leaders for the purpose of formulating legislation to be included in the big bill for waterway improvements and flood control that Congress contemplates for the entire Mississippi Valley," the governor declared.

Of Untold Value

"Development of this magnificent water route which links Rome, Ga., with the city of Mobile would be one of the greatest things ever undertaken for Alabama and would be of untold value to the state's commercial and industrial interest."

With President Hoover, a great engineer himself, known to be favorable to developement of the country's navigable streams, I believe the time is ripe for launching such a program for this state. Maj. L. E. Lyons, United States District engineer at New Orleans, is now making a survey of the Alabama-Coosa water route as part of the inland waterway survey program provided for Alabama by federal appropriation, and will make his report at the conference.

To Make Recommendations

The governor stated that he had given serious study to such a development program and will submit his recommendations for the consideration of those he has invited to participate in the conference. He expressed the belief that the state docks at Mobile would have a great influence in bringing about enactment of such legislation.

Comments attached to acceptances received by the governor attest the cordial welcome his proposal received.

Others who are expected to attend the conference are William R. Dawes, Chicago, president of the Mississippi Valley Association; Lachlan McLeay, of St. Louis, an official of the association; M. M. Emmert, traffic manage of the Coca Cola Company, Atlanta, Ga.; Morgan Richards, manager Selma traffic bureau; Donald Comer, head of the Avondale Cotton Mills, Birmingham; Thad Holt, director of the Alabama Industrial Development Board; Leon Schwarz, city commissioner of Mobile; Adolphe Hohenberg, president of the First National Bank, Wetumpka; Edward A. O'Neal, president Alabama Farm Bureau Federation; L. B. Whitfield, Montgomery, president of the Alabama-Georgia Syrup Company; Harry E. Snow, general manager, Union Brick Yards, Montogmery; John B. Waterman, of Mobile, president, Waterman Steamship Corporation; O. M. Phelps, general manager, and R. D. Hays, industrial manager, Mobile Chamber of Commerce; Gen. William P. Lay, Gadsden, head of the Coosa-Alabama Development Association; Frank P. Glass, publisher Montgomery Advertiser, and John M. Graham, president City Bank, Rome, Georgia.

WIDESPREAD PUBLICITY OBTAINED FORM ARTICLE RUN IN THE UNION - BANNER

Rev. J. W. Jones, pastor of the Baptist Church at Thorsby, is one of the latest converts to the widespread possibilities of publicity that may be obtained in the columns of The Union-Banner.

Some weeks ago you will recall that we carried in the paper a story of the plans of Brother Jones and the people of Thorsby to build a new Baptist Church. Mr. Jones stated Monday that as a result of this article he has received letters from different places in the states of Virginia, North Carolina, Kentucky, Indiana, Georgia, Florida, and Alabama, concerning different phases of the proposed building.

There may be some who think that it does not mean much to put something in the little county papers. But those who have tried it are convinced that news in the local paper not only gets to the home folks of the county, but in many other states as well.

TWO GIVEN 5 YEARS IN POSTAL ROBBERY

Two Youths Plead Guilty; Third To Be Heard June 17

Montgomery, Ala., May 13.—William Ezzell and Homer McMurrian, Jefferson County youths, Monday reversed their pleas of not guilty to the robbery of the Thorsby Postoffice and the attempted robbery of the Verbena Postoffice and were sentenced to five years in the penitentiary and fined $100 each by Federal Judge Henry D. Clayton.

Cecil Smith, indicted with Ezzell and McMurrian, refused to change his plea and his trial was set for June 17.

All three of the youths pleaded not guilty when arraigned Saturday.

Ezzell and McMurrian will begin serving their sentences immediately.

Club Boys Rally Here Friday of This Week

The annual rally of the 4-H Club boys of Chilton County will be held at Clanton Friday under direction of County Agent Stapp. Plans have been arranged for showing the bays another good time.

They will assemble at the courthouse at nine A. M. A program of interesting and valuable talks will be made for the boys. Singing of popular songs will be given a place on the program. Each boy present will be given a 4-H Club cap.

At noon they will be served a free lunch at the County Agent's office, and in the afternoon they will enjoy a free picture show at the Wadesonian Theatre. A number of $5 gold pieces will be awarded to the boys as prizes.

County agent Stapp expresses the hope that every club boy in the county will come. He is putting forth every possible effort to make the day both profitable and pleasant.

SUNDAY SCHOOL AT HIGHLAND

Rev. W. S. Cox has been instrumental in the organization of a Sunday school at Highland Baptist Church west of Clanton. He reports that prospects are bright for a good organization. The attendance shows a growth each Sunday.

Mr. Lee A. Popwell is superintendent. Highland community is a good field for a Sunday School. There are plenty of folks to make it a success and they need the teaching.

We commend brother Cox and the leaders who have joined with him in this effort. Our spirit of missions should be applied to many communities in our own county to bring them to the study and reverence of God

CLANTON KIWANIANS VISIT ENSLEY CLUB

Nine members of Clanton Kiwanis Club went up to Ensley last Thursday night to attend the inter-club banquet and barbecue which was given by the Ensley Club in honor of O. Sam Cummings, International President of Kiwanis. The following members of the local club went to Ensley: C. E. Stapp, J. Mell Martin, Arthur Willis, Percy Pitts, Ernest A. Childs, W. M. Wyatt, H. G. Boyd, Reedie Ttaylor, Ben Goltsman.

It was a most delightful occasion. Representatives of many clubs thruout the state made up the party which totaled about three hundred. The address which was made by Internationl President Cummings was a most convincing affirmation to the question: "Does America Need the Service Club?" His discourse fired his hearers with a greater love for Kiwanis than they have ever known before.

SCHOOL INCIDENTALS MUST BE PAID SAYS COURT VERDICTS

In some recent instances in Chilton County, public school trustees have gone into court with the matter of collecting school incidental fees. The ruling of the justice courts in these matters, after due trial, has been that the school incidental fees were a valid claim against the patrons, and that the patrons mus pay the same or stand judgment for the amounts.

This fact may be of interest to people in different communities where they may be concerned with the payment of incidental fees to their schools.

Five Violators Get Caught Last Sunday

Most Of The Cases Were Fractures of Eighteenth Amendment

Federal, state and county officers were kept pretty busy Sunday running down breakers of the law in one form or another. Of course, as usual most of them were instances of fractures of the eighteenth amendment; however, one was for carrying a concealed pistol.

Federal officer Gillespie and State officer Harvey Foshee went out to the home of W. R. Taylor near Liberty Hill Sunday evening, and upon searching the place of Mr. Taylor, found in his fodder loft five bottles of home brew and a capping machine. Ben Taylor, the son of W. R. Taylor, claimed ownership of the home brew and was placed under arrest. He was brought to Clanton and turned over to the Sheriff, J. D. Collins. He was released upon making bond for $300.

Gillespie, Foshee, Deputy Murrah and Sheriff Collins went up on the Steel Bridge Road Sunday evening, and near the home of Mr. George Plier stopped a Ford car in which were riding Howard Robinson and Harvey Vanderslice. They had a quart of whiskey in a bottle. The two young men were arrested and brought to Clanton and placed in jail. The sheriff took the automobile into his custody. The men were let out Sunday night on bonds of $300 each.

Foshee, George Murrah and Federal officer Gillespie stopped two boys Sunday night on the road near Smith Schoolhouse. One of the boys, Odis Jones of Shelby County, had in his pocket a .25 automatic pistol. Upon being interrogated as to where they were going by the officers the boys stated that they had started over to Union Grove to help out in the prayer meeting. Odis Jones was arrested and brought to jail; bond set at $300.

Deputy Loss Robinson of Jemison brought down Clyde Davis of near Jemison Sunday, having charged him with public drunkenness. Davis was put in jail and later released on bond. Davis is the son-in-law of Deputy Robinson.

POULTRY CAR IN THE COUNTY AGAIN THIS WEEK

Another poultry car is in the county this week. It was at Verbena Wednesday. The car will be at Clanton all day Thursday (today) and will be at Jemison all day Friday.

Poultry growers are urged to take note of this matter and make arrangements to get off their surplus poultry with this car, as this is perhaps the last car that will be thru this section this season.

This is the fifth car that has been brought through this county by the Farm Bureau this season, and so far the people have found this method of marketing poultry to be highly satisfactory.

Jemison School Is First With Radio

Instrument Installed Friday Night With Party By Progressive Farmer

The first one of the state aid radio sets for schools in Alabama was duly installed at the Jemison High School last Friday night with an appropriate party sponsored by the Progressive Farmer.

It was through an offer of the Progressive Farmer that the people of Jemison were able to raise their money necessary to meet the state appropriation to secure the radio.

At the party last Friday night officials of the Progressive Farmer organization were present to see that the program was carried out according to arrangements. Representing the Progressive Farmer there were present Mr. Lassiter, editor, Mr. Duggar, advertising manager, Mr. Hudson, auditor, and Mr. F. W. Tallor, Mr. T. R. Black, and Mr. J. C. Taylor of the circulation department.

The Jemison school has gained statewide comment and recognition for its record in attaining the first one of the radios to be given to a number of schools of the State.

A matter of further interest concerning the Jemison school is the fact that it has been selected as one of ten schools of the State to be equipped and conducted specially as a demonstration unit in the work of vocational home economics. A teacher for this work will be employed for ten months of the year. This will place home economics in the Jemison school on a basis to compare with the emphasis that is given the work of vocational agriculture in the school.

Farm Bureau Drive To Start on Next Monday

The membership drive of the Chilton County Farm Bureau will begin next Monday morning, May 20th. Special workers from the office of the State Farm Bureau will be here to aid in the work of enlisting more of Chilton County farmers in the Bureau. These workers will include Mr. Giles, Mr. Powers, and Mr. Fair.

Next Saturday at two o'clock p. m. the officers and directors of the Chilton County Farm Bureau will meet at the Farm Bureau office in Clanton to make final plans for the membership drive.

The Farm Bureau has proven to be the most sensible and most profitable organization ever attempted among the farmers. Every farmer in Chilton County ought to be a member. They will be given an opportunity to join during next week when the solicitors will call upon them personally at their homes.

ARTHUR WILLIS MAKES LIBERAL OFFER ON TRUCK TIRE

Mr. Arthur Willis, manager of Gulf Refining Company in this city, requests us to say that if the party who took the tire off of one of his trucks last week will return the tire, he will give him back the jack which he left.

We regard this as a most liberal offer on the part of Mr. Willis, and would urge that the fellow who is in position to do so take him up at once before he decides to back out.

THE "ROAD TO THE CITY"

You must not miss seeing Jud Judkins, a young farmer, make love to Toto, or Jet Sanderson, in love with a country physician, but marries Richard James because—well, that's for you to find out. There's an English man in this play too, as well as two villianous characters.

Jim Roberts as Jud, keeps you laughing with his blunders and bashful love-making to Toto, as played by Gladys Williams. The girl who takes the road to the city, Jet, is played by Corrinne Polk, and the young doctor who brings her back is Ernest Meeks. The girl and man from the city is played by Feryl Martin and Hollis Moore.

Remember the date, Friday, May 17th, at the High School auditorium.

S. E. WALDROP

On the night of April 28, Squire E. Waldrop passed away. He lived a long and useful life in the western part of Chilton County.

He professed salvation about 1875 and was baptized by R. M. Honeycutt. He served as County Commissioner for two terms.

He was living with his second wife at the time of his death. His first wife, Mrs. Margaret Nix, preceded him to the grave many years ago.

Mr. Waldrop will be missed. He was a kind neighbor, a sympathetic man, and an honest man.

Thus our friends are going. The burial was at Pleasant Grove, Rev. Dykes conducted the funeral.

We hope for aur old friend's eternal life beyond the present time of stress and trial.

GEORGE POLK COMING HOME THIS WEEK

Mr. George Polk will leave Rochester, Minnesota today (Thursday) for his return home, after having spent several weeks under the care of physicians at the Mayo Hospital. He expects to reach home Saturday.

The many friends of Mr. Polk will be glad to see him back at his post of duty, and hope that he has recovered his former good health.

New Bank To Be Opened At Jemison

Organization Backed By Group Of Business Men of Chilton County

We understand from sources of authority that the State Banking Department of Alabama has given assurance that a charter will be granted for the establishment of a new bank at Jemison, just as soon as all the preliminary details can be worked out and the operations of the banking laws complied with as provided for the establishment of a new bank.

The name of the new bank will be The Peoples Bank of Jemison. The names of the following business men appear on the request for a charter: A. A. Conway, C. G. Glass, L. H. Bean, S. P. Shaw, C. C. Conway, all of Jemison; H. G. Boyd, H. G. Heflin, and N. S. Johnson, all of Clanton. In addition to these it is stated that the list of people who have subscribed for stock in the bank includes more than 90 other farmers and business men of Jemison and Clanton.

The Cashier of the new bank will be Mr. C. R. Foss, of Thorsby, who is well known as a banker in this county.

It is stated that the whole amount of the capital stock has been subscribed already, as well as provision made for a surplus fund of $1,500 to start off the business. The amount of the capital stock is $15,000. Mr. H. G. Boyd, president of Peoples Savings Bank of Clanton has been active in the organization of the new bank. He states that a number of financiers outside of the county expressed a wish to take some of the stock of the Jemison bank, but that they were refused on the ground that the organizers wished it to be a bank owned and controlled altogether by Chilton County people.

The Peoples Bank of Jemison will occupy the brick building on the corner near the railroad depot. Work has already begun on getting the building remodeled and fitted out to accommodate the bank. The plan of arrangement will make it one of the best appointed banking houses in Chilton County. It is planned to have the bank ready to open for business on the first of July.

Judge C. E. Thomas, who has made a wonderfully fine record as State Superintendent of Banks, was in Chilton County this week for the purpose of personally looking into the possibilities of a bank at Jemison. We understand that Mr. Thomas expressed considerable amazement at finding such a fine country around Jemison, and such a splendid array of business operations with which the community can support its new bank.

Everyone familiar with the situation knows that there is around Jemison one of the best and most substantial farming sections of Chilton County. We are told that there is 110 to 150 acres of strawberries in the immediate vicinity of Jemison, and that plans are under way to organize a shipping association there for next year.

The people of Jemison are enthusiastic over the coming of a bank to that vicinity. They have been hoping for a bank for the past ten years. A bank there will serve a growing need among those people, and we predict that it will be a success from the very start.

The new owner announces that for the next few weeks he will put the Will Kemp stock on the market to sell regardless of price, after which he will restock the Will Kemp place with brand new merchandise and continue the business permanently under the name of The O. K. Store. Mr. Tom Kemp will be the owner and Miss Elsie Barrett will manage the business.

Text Books Will Cost Less This Year Than Heretofore

A saving of over $6,000,000 to school patrons in the purchase of textbooks for the first six or elementary grades during the next six years will result from new textbook adoptions recently announced by the State Textbook Purchasing Board, composed of Governor Bibb Graves, Dr. R. E. Tidwell, State Superintendent of Education, and Charles Moffett, Chairman of the State Board of Administration. The new adoptions show that the fight sponsored by Governor Graves for lower cost of school books has at last been won, with a slash of nearly one-half in cost of books to be purchased in the first six grades. Cost of material to be bought by students in the elementary grades under the 1924 adoptions now in force, was $31.89, while under the new adoptions, which take effect September 1, for a six-year period, the cost is $18.39, a saving of $13.50. On the basis of the latest figures on school enrollment available from the State Department of Education, those for 1927-28, the annual saving in school book costs for the elementary grades would total $969,392.81 per annum. While figures for the 1929-30 enrollment are of course not yet available, a normal increase in enrollment is to be anticipated, which will run the saving to over a million dollars a year, or more than $6,000,000 for the six years that the new contracts are to be in force.

It is expected that a further saving to school patrons will be shown when adoptions of high school textbooks are announced.

The following figures show the saving per grade in cost of books to be purchased, the saving per child, enrolledment in each grade as of 1927-28, saving per grade on the basis of those figures, and total amount saved.

First Grade: Present cost, $2.71; new cost, $1.68; saving per child, $1.03.

Second Grade: Present cost, $3.03; new cost, $1.58; saving per child, $1.45.

Third Grade: Present cost, $6.15; new cost, $3.73; saving per child, $2.42.

Fourth Grade: Present cost, $5.78; new cost, $4.10; saving per child, $1.68.

Fifth Grade: Present cost, $6.34; new cost, $4.92; saving per child, $1.42.

Sixth Grade: Present cost, $7.88; new cost, $2.38; saving per child, $5.50.

Enrollment by grades for 1927-28: First grade, 185,458; second grade, 80,033; third grade, 74,764; fourth grade, 68,094; fifth grade, 58,136; sixth grade, 51,717.

These figures show savings by grades as follows: First grade, $191,021.74; second grade, $116,047.85; third grade, $180,928.68; fourth grade, $114,397.92; fifth grade, $82,553.12; sixth grade, $284,443.50.

Total saving for six elementary grades, $969,392.81.

The above figures, both on 1924 and 1929 adoptions, make due allowance for textbooks which are to be carried forward by the student from one year to the next. On the basis of buying all new books, which will not have to be done where old ones are taken care of, the cost under 1924 adoptions would total $40.28, and under 1929 adoptions, $26.89, which shows about the same proportionate saving under the new adoptions. For 1924 adoptions, by grades, on the basis of all new books the figures are: First grade, $2.71; second, $3.03; third, $6.19; fourth, $7.95; fifth, $7.94; sixth, $12.43. Under the 1929 adoptions, the figures will be: First grade, $1.68; second, $1.58; third, $4.15; fourth, $6.23; fifth, $6.48; sixth, $6.75.

POWER FOR ROCKFORD

Alabama Power Company will bring power into Rockford by the first of the coming year according to the report made by their representatives to members of the Town Council at a meeting last Thursday afternoon. These representatives reported that they had been assured of as much load as they hoped to get, but felt sure that the load would increase after they have come in here. One of the things they wish is a cotton gin to run by electricity. This will probably come as the field is ripe for another gin here. It is estimated that at least 1,000 bales of cotton can be ginned here a season with a properly equipped ginnery. The opportunity of doing that much business will be taken advantage of by some one, no doubt.—Rockford Chronicle.

HAVE YOU AN UNMARKED GRAVE?

How unthoughtful is he who permits the remains of a loving Mother, Father, Sister, Brother or a little Child to rest in an unmarked grave with nothing to distinguish that hallowed spot from the commonplace surface of the earth, indifferently trampled by man and beast. Great comfort will be gained by consecrating the spot where sleeps the departed with a beautiful and lasting monument.

JEREMIAH CALLS TO OBEDIENCE

LESSON TEXT—Jeremiah 7:1-26.

GOLDEN TEXT—Hearken unto my voice, and I will be your God, and ye shall be my people.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Obeying God.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Obeying God.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Doing What God Commands.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Obedience Essential in True Religion.

The prophet stood in the gate of the temple in order that the multitudes might hear him. The occasion was the coming together of the people from all over the country to attend some feast.

I. What God Requires (vv. 1-7).

1. Amend your ways (v. 3).

Their general course of living should be reformed, bad deeds giving place to good ones. On the basis of this change, God would permit them to remain in their city and country. Failure to do this would eventuate in their expulsion.

2. The folly of trusting in religious forms (v. 4).

The people regarded the temple as a charm against evil, irrespective of the condition of their hearts. Without a heart experience, the most sacred institutions and ordinances are valueless.

3. Social justice (v. 5).

The proof of their having reformed was the execution of judgment between man and his neighbor. The proof of one's being in touch with God is his fair dealing with his fellowmen.

4. Not to oppress the helpless (v. 6).

The stranger would likely be ignorant of the laws of the land. The widows and orphans could easily be imposed upon. Protection for the weak is a requirement of godliness.

5. Not walk after other gods (v. 6).

Worship of idols and conformity to heathen customs go hand in hand. True morality is determined by the attitude of the individual toward God.

II. Solemn Warnings (vv. 8-15).

1. Teaching of false prophets (vv. 8-11).

These prophets taught the people that attention to ceremony, and observance of religious forms, exempted them from strict attention to morals. Those who heeded the words of the lying prophets were not slow to steal, murder, commit adultery, swear falsely and practice idolatry. They would even come into the Lord's house and claim freedom to practice such abominations. The sacred temple itself, filled with such worshipers would be a den of robbers.

2. Warning of Shiloh (vv. 12-15).

God caused His tabernacle to be set up in Shiloh, but in Eli's time He gave it into the hands of the Philistines because of the idolatry of the people. (Psa. 78:56-60). Even so would He do with the temple, the city and the whole country. This He had already done with Ephraim, the northern kingdom.

II. The Hopeless Condition of the People (vv. 16-20).

Their propensity to do evil was so strong that all efforts at reclamation were futile.

1. Pray not for them (v. 16).

There is such a thing as sinning unto death, in which case prayer is useless (I John 5:16).

2 Entire families devoted their energies to that which provoked God's anger (vv. 17-19).

This was done by young and old—men and women. This they did to provoke God's anger. He assures them the outcome of such conduct would be their utter confusion.

IV. Judgment to Fall (v. 20).

Because the people poured out their offerings to idols, the furious anger and wrath of God would be poured out upon man, beast, tree, and the fruit of the ground. How this has been fulfilled, the history of the Jews makes clear.

V. Obedience Better Than Sacrifice (vv. 21-26).

The prophet appealed to history to show that God requires heart service rather than the observance of religious forms. Blessings came to Israel through obedience, while cursings followed disobedience. On the condition of obedience to His requirements, God promised to own them as His people and to bless them.

Confidence in Prayer

And this is the confidence that we have in Him, that, if we ask anything according to His will, He heareth us; and if we know that He heareth us, whatsoever we ask, we know that we have the petitions that we desired of Him.—I John 5:14, 15.

No Discharge in That War

There is no man that hath power over the spirit to retain the spirit; neither hath he power in the day of death; and there is no discharge in that war; neither shall wickedness deliver those that are given to it.—Ecclesiastes 8:8.

A good business man will not buy a farm or any property without first looking it over to see what it is worth.

However, some will buy or loan money on land without an abstract.

Isn't it equally as foolish to buy a farm without looking it over as to buy it and not know whether the titles are good or not? Without an abstract you do not know where you are getting the land you look at or not.

Before investing in land in any way have an abstract made and be safe.

MRS. MARY SPIVEY

Mrs. Mary Davenport Spivey, 86 years old, died very suddenly at the home of her son on April 24th.

She had spent her life here. She was a good woman. Even though she reached extreme old age, her children will sadly miss her.

Her husband preceded her to the grave more than 30 years ago.

Aunt Mary awaits the resurrection, without which death would end all. But her recovery from the grave is sure, and we hope for her eternal life in the ages to come.

The funeral was preached by Rev. Honeycutt. The body rests in Pleasant Grove cemetery.

"Weeping may endure for a night, but joy cometh in the morning."

"Songs in the night He giveth."

LUBURNE VEAZEY

Luburne, son of Walter and Selma Veazey, after a few days illness passed away April 22. This was a great shock to his parents. Luburne was their chief dependence.

But alas! He is dead, actually dead. Says Holy Writ: "The dead know not anything. We die, we perish. His breath goeth forth. He returneth to his earth. In that very day his thoughts perish."

But hope spans his grave. The Redeemer paid the ransom price for him, and ultimately he will be delivered from the grave. So the resurrection is the logical result of the sacrifice on Calvary.

We sympathize with the bereaved ones.

The young man's body was laid to rest in Pleasant Grove cemetery. Funeral was conducted by Rev. Lawrence.

The Panama Canal

Uncle Sam's Great Engineering Masterpiece

By WALTER L. PETERSON

The history of Christopher Columbus, navigator and discorerer, is well known to practically all of present day civilization. His discoveries and supposed discoveries and history pertaining therto, still linger in our minds, a result of hard study in days gone by. History to many of us, is very interesting, to others, perhaps, it is tiresome reading, but in order to bring to conclusion my discussion of the Panama Canal, I believe something should be said of its history. Necessarily this history dates back to the days of Christopher Columbus, as it was he who discovered the now existing eastern termination of the Panama Canal.

History

Christopher Columbus visited the shores of Panama on his fourth and last voyage in 1502. He was then skirting the coast southward from the Honduras to Venezueala, seeking "the secret of the strait" which should lead on to India. He turned into the beautiful harbor of Porto Bello, which he so named, and investigated the reaches of Linnon Bay, now the Atlantic entrance of the canal. Columbus died in the belief that he had reached Asia, and the hope of the secret strait persisted years after the discovery of the Pacific in 1513 by Vasco Numez de Balboa.

Balboa crossed the Isthmus on a course about 100 miles to the southeast of the line of the Canal, and entered the Pacific in the Gulf of San Miguel, naming it that because he reached it on the day of St. Vichael. Four hundred years later, almost to the day, on September 26, 1913, took place the first test operation of Gatum Locks.

Following the discovery of the Pacific, the search for the strait continued on both sides of the continent, resulting in the discovery of the Strait of Magellan (1520) but nothing closer to north latitudes. Leaders began then to talk of making a strait, and in 1529, four hundred years ago, Alvaro de Saovedra, a companion of Balboa in the discovery of the Pacific and later on of Cortez's most persistent lieutenants, in the search for the strait, prepared the first plans for a canal.

From that time it was an international hope, Spanish, French, British, and American through the centuries made surveys and developed projects. The project made an inescapable appeal to popular as well as commercial and naval imagination.

The first actual work on the canal was begun by the French on January 20, 1882, in excavation of Culebra Cut. This company operated until 1889. A reorganized company resumed operations in October, 1894 and continued work of varying extent until its rights and property were purchased by the United States under the authority of the Act of Congress of June 28, 1902. The American occupation of the Canal zone began on May 4, 1904, and in the eleventh year after that the canal was opened. The first ocean steamer passed through on August 3, 1914, and on August 15, the canal was opened to commerce. The official and formal opening of the canal was proclaimed by the President on July 12, 1920.

Pirates and Political Disturbances

Features in the history of Panama, aside from those mentioned in connection with the canal and the Panama railroad include the founding of the City of Panama (old Panama) in 1519; the assaults on Nombre de Dios and Porto Bello by the British under Sir Francis Drake in 1572; the capture of Porto Bello by buccaneers under Sir Henery Morgan in 1668; and in 1671, the capture of Fort San Lorenzo, at the mouth of the Chagres River by Morgan, who then crossed the Isthmus, going up the Chagres to Las Cruces and overland, and sacked the city of Panama in 1673; the beginning of a Scotch colony on Caledonia Bay in 1698 by William Patterson, the founder of the Bank of England; the achievement of independence from Spain by Panama in the period from 1808 to 1821, under the leadership of Simon Bolivar, the Liberator; subsequent coalition with Columbia; various revolutions under the Colombian regime and the secession of November 3, 1903, by which the independence of Panama was established.

PROGRESS OF THE JEMISON CONSOLIDATED HIGH SCHOOL

In the northern part of Chilton County, in the little town of Jemison, is located a consolidated high school. This school was established seven years ago. Since that time three units have been added to take care of the increased enrollment and broader curricula. The amout of money required for the erection of this building was approximately $32,000.

The equipment used in the different departments of the school is valued at $7,500. Courses in social sciences, in home economics, in science, in music, in physical education, in mathematics, in english and vocational agriculture are taught by fourteen trained teachers, about half of the teachers are college graduates and the others have had normal school training.

It has been said from an economic standpoint investment in a school library is the best investment that can be made with public funds. The quickest and most effective way to promote a love for learning is to develop the reading habit. Love for reading cannot be instilled too early, with this in mind, the Jemison High School has taken advantage of securing two or three state-aid libraries per year for the last five years. In this manner and with the aid of the Parent-Teacher Association, the library has been built to contain 690 volumes, valued at $1400.

The Parent-Teacher Association has been organized for a number of years, since its organization its members have worked so earnestly and so consistently for the betterment of its school that they have attained a county-wide reputation for getting results.

The Parent-Teacheer Association has undertaken some large projects. This includes raising funds to erect the building, epuipping the auditorium with chairs and curtain, the home economics room with machines, shades for the entire building, a suite of furniture for the stage, and the beautification of the school grounds. Much of the progress of the shool has been made possible by this organization.

During the last five years the Jemison High School enrollment has increased 58 per cest. It is now rated the seventeenth school from the top, among the 146 rural high schools of the state, as compared to seventy one of seventy two schools four years ago, the number going to college from this institution during this time has increased 400 per cent.

Departments of vocational agriculture and home economics have been working on joint programs for home improvement. Although increased financial income has been one of the chief objectives of agriculturing and better methods of home making a goal in home economics, the final success has been measured in better home conditions of the pupils who have had such success.

Individual home projects have been receiving increased attention, this year several boys and girls in the vocational classes have soded their lawns, planted shrubbery and installed a lighting system.

An exchange of classes for two weeks by the teachers of agriculture and home economics has been made for the last two years. The boys studying nutrition, table manners, selection and care of clothing. The girls have been given instructions in beautification of home grounds, use of paints and varnishes, repairs about the house, and the care of poultry.

The latest equipment added to the high school is a R. C. A. radio. The installation of the radio will enable the students to learn instructive lectures, to get daily market quotations at the noon hour, and will furnish entertainment for students and the public from time to time. The progressive farmer made it possible for the school to seccure the radio by selling subscribtions to their paper. Jemison High School holds the distinction of being the first school to secure a radio under this plan. In view of this fact, the Progressive Farmer people are giving the school and community an entertainment at the Jemison High School auditorium Friday evening, May, 10th at 8 o'clock, the public is invited.

VOCATIONAL HOME ECONOMICS AT THE JEMISON HIGH SCHOOL

Home Economics has made great progress in Jemison this year. This is the first year to have full-time vocational work. The addition to the building for this work was finished the first of November. This consists of three rooms, clothing, laboratory, foods laboratory and a dining room. Besides the building nearly $150 worth of equipment has been added since January, including a mirror, filing cabinet, bulletin cases, books, waste baskets, chairs and small equipment, also shades given by the Parent-Teacher Association.

The enrollment for the year has been 37: Home Economics I, 19; and Home Economics II, 9; and Health, 9.

Girls Serve Faculty

The Home Economics I class gave a five course luncheon for the faculty. They planned, prepared and served the luncheon. This month completes their course in foods which consists of planning, preparing and serving all kinds of meals, including special diet needs, school lunches and food preservation.

Other than foods they have had clothing and the house. During the study of the House the girls went to different homes and built lattices and set out shrupbery, sodded lawns, and learned how to care for them, also learned how to arrange furniture most effectively.

Home Economics II girls have made over a dress, planned and made two cotton dresses, one street and one afternoon. Their study of fabrics and color and their relation to different types and occasions enabled them to make their selection with good taste. Miss Cline, according to the citizens of Jemison, is unusually gifted with the needle and under her supervision some of the students made their own graduation dresses, an art that is seldom attempted by high school girls.

The Health Class has had a very interesting study of Household Hygeine, school, community and home; personal hygeine, and home care of the sick.

Interest in Home Projects

As a result of class work, Miss Cline says that every student has carried out one or more projects during the year.

The Home Economics I girls have chosen home improvement, interior and exterior, for their projects. All projects will be finished except those that will continue in the summer, but 30 hours or more of work has been put on them.

Home Economics II girls have taken clothing and home improvement for their home work. All projects have been completed, or will be completed before May 21.

The Health Class took personal improvement and have finished most of theri work, others being completed before May 22.

Mothers Pleased With Work

Mrs. R. H. Bean says that Pauline's work this year has been unusually good. She has learned to cook and sew, which is something every girl should know. She is very much pleased with Pauline's project, which is a davenette made from an old bedstead. She says she did not know old things could be so useful. She has also sodded the lawn and planted the shrubbery. In the summer the home is to be remodeled, adding a sleeping porch and new front porch.

Mrs. A. C. Wells says that her daughter's work in Home Economics has been worth a great deal to her this year. For her home project Dody has made a chair from an old coach car seat and refinished some furniture for the living room of which she is proud. This summer the home is to be remodeled adding a new kitchen, breakfast room, enlarging the living room, and putting in water works.

Mrs. Pierce is pleased with Thelma's work. During the year Thelma has planted shrubbery and a flower garden, sodded the lawn and painted her own room. They have painted their home and put in carbide lights this year.

Mrs. J. H. Martin says that her daughter, Violet, has learned many new things this year. For her home work she has made a dressing table from an old washstand that was almost torn up. She has painted a bedstead, table and mirror to match and made a place to keep her own clothes.

CHEVROLET BROKE RECORD IN APRIL BY 10,000 UNITS

Detroit, May 11.—Exceeding by approximately 10,000 units its best previous monthly manufacturing record, the Chevrolet Motor Company in April established a new all-time monthly production record with an output of 157,137 cars and trucks. April was the second consecutive month during which Chevrolet set up a new all-time monthly production mark, March having been high with 147,273 units.

The sensational April achievement brings Chevrolet production in the first four months up to the record with 477,967 for the corresponding total of 511,837 units as compared period of 1928, a gain of more than 33,000 units over the best previous corresponding period in the company's history.

The most significant feature of Chevrolet's manufacturing performance during the first four months is the fact that during that limited period Chevrolet built more six cylinder cars than any other manufacturer has ever built in an entire year.

Co-incident with the announcement of this latest Chevrolet production achievement was the indication that in response to the greatest demand Chevrolet has ever known, May will see another all-time monthly record established. Tentative schedules arranged for the current month call for a May production of 160,000 cars and trucks.

Sixteen giant factories located at strategic points from coast to coast are now working with all the speed consistent with Chevrolet's precision manufacturing methods to accomodate the greatest Spring business in the history of the company.

FORD PLANT IS BUSIEST IT HAS BEEN IN ITS HISTORY

Detroit, Mich., May,13— With production of the Ford Motor Compank in full swing, the big Rouge plant at Dearborn, the largest manufacturing establishment in the world, has become the scene of the greatest activity in its history.

Reports covering a months operations show the receipt of 9,009 carloads of material and the shipment of 8,797 carloads of products from the plant.

Incoming shipments consist largely of coal, iron ore, the latter being unloaded from the lake vessels at the Ford docks on the Rouge River, limestone and sand, with numerous consighments of materials used in smalelr quantities, while the Rouge Plant sends out for sale not only automobiles and outomobile parts, but also coke, cement, scrap and various other by-products saved through manufacturing efficiency.

Within the Rouge factory enclosure are 92 miles of railway, on which an average of 2,000 cars are handled daily, including those used for intra-factory movements. Approximately 350 freight cars carry products from this factory each day. The bulk of these shipments is composed of automobile parts consigned to 32 other assembly plants in the United States and to foreign plants. Model A Ford automobiles assembled at the Rouge plant are delivered to dealers under their own power, as the plant assembles automobiles only for the Detroit area.

For the Rouge and Highland plants combined, 11,234 carloads of material were received in the month and 11,199 carloads of products went out from these factories.

The volume of spring arders and the addition of new body types to the line of Model A Ford cars has caused a general stimulation to production throughout the organization and the output of passenger cars and commercial vehicles is now averaging approximately 8,100 a day. There has been a consistent forward movement in both production and sales ever since the Model A car was developed.

FULTON MOORE

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Moore sympathize with them in the death of their son, Fulton. He made a hard fight for his life for one year and five months at the Baptist Hospital at Selma. He had made friends from all over the State. His beautiful Christian and patient character will ever linger with those who knew him. He died Saturday morning at two o'clock and was brought home Saturday afternoon. Funeral services were held at Pleasant Grove church. Revs. Buford Lawrence, Grady Williams, and Paul Oden officiating. The floral offerings attested to his popularity.

CANE CREEK

Sunday was our regular monthly preaching day and we had a fine time. We had Sunday school at 10 o'clock and preaching at 11 o'clock by Rev. A. E. Trice, and at 12 we had dinner, and if you want to know anything about it ask some one who was there. We had plenty and some to bring back home. In the afternoon we had a program rendered by the Sunday school people in honor of Mother, which was good. All the children were anxious to do something for their mother.

We had two good talks by Revs. Trice and F. A. Ellison that were enjoyed. They gave all the young people a good talk on how to honor and respect our mother, who is the best friend we have in this world.

This is a service we want to have every 2nd Sunday in May, so next year we will have another one if it be the Lord's will. After the program we had singing the rest of the afternoon. It was also good. We had visitors from most everywhere.

Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Williamson and children of Birmingham, Ervin is one of our home folks, whom we all were glad to see come home. Also a Mrs. Cooper from Birmingham. She was a singer and organist. She was more than welcome.

Remember the annual singing here the fourth Sunday in June.

CARD OF THANKS

On April 29 about 2 a. m. the death angel visited the home of Mrs. Emma Waldrop and claimed for its victim Mr. Squire Waldrop, our dear husband and father. Death came as a sudden shock to his many friends and loved ones. He was sick only a short time. All was done for him that loving hands and doctors could do, but God does all things well. He took him home where suffering will be no more. How sad it makes us feel to think we may never see him on this earth any more, but if we live for Jesus we will see him some glad day where sorrow has all passed away.

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Dykes at Pleasant Grove cemetery where he was laid to rest.

His wife and children wish to thank his many friends for their kindness shown them. May God's richest blessings be with you all.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our appreciation to our dear friends for their kindness, also the beautiful floral offerings presented to us in our bereavement over the death of our dear father, J. L. Blow. He is survived by five sons, James Blow of Wetumpka; Lonnie Blow of Birmingham; Monroe and Willie Blow of Talladega; Burnie Blow of Thorsby; two daughters, Mrs. Susie Cost of Calera, and Mrs. Laura Dawson of Calera.

We also thank Dr. Lawrence of Calera for his kind attention to our father.—Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Dawson and Mr. and Mrs. Norman Cost, all of Calera, Ala.

THORSBY SECTION

S. E. NORTON, Manager

With 105 carloads of strawberries shipped from Thorsby within a month and prices having fallen off so much as to afford small profits, carload shipments ceased about the middle of last week. There are still lots of berries and of fine quality, some of which are being picked and carried by trucks to towns within range where supplies have not overstocked the market. Others give people who have no berries opportunity to pick free, what they need for their own use. By next week we hope to be able to give definite information as to total shipments for the season and the approximate value of the Thorsby strawberry crop for this year.

Mr. Andrew Grenn has sold his 21-acre farm a half mile north of Thorsby R. R. Station to people from Birmingham, who intend to make a specialty of strawberries, dewberries and chicken farming. There seems to be two who have an interest in the proposition, Mr. J. W. Randolph, a man past middle life, with a wife and grown daughter, expect to manage the farm, while Dr. G. W. Leslie, a dentist, with a wife and grown daughter (Elizabeth) who graduates from Howard College in June, and baby, Jean, constitute the other family. Dr. Leslie is a son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Randolph. Both men were busy making changes in the office of the Masonic building formerly occupied by Dr. S. C. Wood, to adapt it for use as a suite for a dentist. Dr. Leslie hopes to be ready to open for business May 20th. The coming of this contingent to Thorsby will considerably augment the Baptist church as most if not all of the grown members of these families are of that denomination. We are glad to welcome them all to Thorsby.

Mothers Day services at the Congregational church last Sunday morning was of unusual interest. Rev. Each preached a very appropriate sermon to a well filled house. The choir gave a special number and Misses Mary Ella Gerald and Kathryn Dick a pleasing duet entitled, "My Mother."

On Wednesday night of this week the usual monthly union prayer meeting will be held at the Baptist church.

JUDGE REYNOLDS AND PROHIBITION

All good citizens of Chilton County should feel great pride in the effort which Judge Reynolds is making to create respect for and observance of the prohibition laws in Chilton County. For the past 30 years Judge Reynolds has been one of the foremost advocates of prohibition in Chilton County, and in fact he might well be classed as one of the state's leading proponents of the abolition of the liquor traffic.

Only recently Mr. Reynolds has begun a renewed activity in this respect, which we feel is very timely. He has gone to some places in Chilton County and made some temperance lectures which we believe will produce great good.

Commenting upon his opinions about the dangers of the liquor question, Judge Reynolds said: "I have been before the people of this county for many years in a public way. I have asked the people to do many things for me, and I greatly appreciate the fact that they have responded nobly to my requests. Now, as I am serving my last term in public office in this county, I want to conclude my public service by doing everything in my power for the welfare and improvement of the people who have been so good to me in the past.

"I am honestly convinced that there is nothing that I can do that will be of more value to the people of Chilton County than to try to teach the people something of the evils of whiskey. Of course there is not much teaching to do on this subject. Every sensible man knows of the evils of whiskey; but the great problem is to get them to recognize those evils and leave the stuff alone."

Judge Reynolds has predicated some of his temperance speeches with this most significant statement: "I am not interested so much in helping you people out of your liquor troubles by seeking to get you out of the penitentiary after the law has convicted and sentenced you. I am interested more in what I believe to be the better plan of getting you to see how whiskey will ruin you, and to plead with you to stop folling with it before you get into the penitentiary. I believe the old saying that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure is true when applied to the whiskey business as well as to disease."

There is entirely too much liquor business going on in Chilton County. It has ruined many of our good men. It has brought grief and unnecessary privation and suffering to many of our women and children. Thanks be to God for leaders of men in the high places of our county who will mount the housetops and declare the evils of liquor and beg our men and boys to leave it out of their lives.

We believe that laws alone will not restrain people from the use of whiskey. The operation of a law does not always reform the criminal. It may cause him to pay a penalty for his misdeeds, but it does not put the right kind of penitence in his heart. The place to save the men who is the slave of whiskey is to touch him with reason and friendly restraint before the law gets him.

Senator Jim Reed of Missouri once said: "You prohibitionists have quit making prohibition speeches and are depending on the enforcement of the laws to keep people from using and handling liquor," and he continued his statement by pointing out that such an attitude on the part of prohibitionists accounts for the failure of prohibition. We agree that people need prohibition speeches now as much as they ever needed them. People must be saved from the evils of whiskey.

Merely to deal with the liquor question by inflicting the punishment of laws upon those whose lives have already been wrecked by strong drink is only an empty gesture towards the solution of the mighty moral problem of saving human lives from the greatest evil of modern times.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

The relation of the states to the federal government, and the powers which should be enjoyed by each have always formed one of the nicest questions in American governmental affairs. For a time the question of state rights was uppermost, and divided geographical sections of our country as well as political parties. The civil struggle of the sixties settled for all time the question as to the right of a state to secede from the federal government or to nullify a law of the United States Congress. Since the close of that struggle there have been developments in America which have tended to increase the powers of the federal government. Some of this increase has been natural and inevitable, but some of it is open to serious question.

In a recent address before the Union League Club at Chicago, Governor Christianson, of Minnesota, pointed out in a sane and logical way some of the reasons for the growth of federal power and certain of the dangers which have come along with it. Governor Christianson pointed out that some of the increase in federal power was necessary owing to the great growth of our inter-state trade. No state, the executive adds, is sufficient unto itself. The iron ore of Minnesota goes into the steel mills of Indiana, Ohio and Pennsylvania. The farm crops of the West go into the East ond so on. This has made it necessary that the federal government take some steps to regulate commercial and industrial activities of the nation.

But there is danger that federal regulation may go too far, that we may set up at Washington a government of regulation by autocrats and bureaus that would be harmful to the further progress of our people. This is something which we must avoid, by all means, if we are to remain within the constitutional limits set by the forefathers. Every community would resent the regulation of its business, its educational facilities and its modern improvements, by petty inspectors swarming down upon it from the National Capital.

If anything is certain it is that the American people would not tolerate any such sort of government. Our states are individualities in themselves, and the smaller communities are individuals in a smaller way. Of course the exact balance between national and local government is difficult to find, and for that reason it is a problem which requires the best thought of American statesmanship. It is a changing problem, too. For just as conditions change in our industrial, commercial and political fabric, just so the balance between national and local government is apt to call for revision.

But the real danger of national bureaucracy is not in the annoyance such interference might give the individual. It is far deeper than that. As the people get farther away from their government they are apt to forget how to govern themselves. As the Minnesota executive puts it:

"When a government is removed too far from the people, the people are prone to feel that it is all-powerful. Their imagination plays upon it and invests in it with a potency it does not have. They shoulder upon it all sorts of duties in the belief that it has magical powers of performance. They assume that any evil can be cured by passing a law or issuing a proclamation. A people that puts too much confidence in legislation leans upon a slender and fragile reed. Government can not take the place of the individual; it can not supply the lack of personal responsibility. Vigilance is the price, not only of liberty, but of efficiency. People who put too much trust in government too often relax their own initiative. They 'let George do it,' and George falls down on the job. If you want a thing well done, do it yourself. If you can't do it yourself, hire someone who is close enough to you so you can watch him while he is doing it. The way of progress and security in government, of freedom and democratic accomplishment, lies in a strong local government backed up and operated by alert, vigilant citizens.

This is something we want to avoid in our American government. We have progressed so far because we have taken an interest in our government and have sought and generally elected to high office men who were qualified for the tasks to which they were assigned. Bureaucracy would promote not only inefficiency but national paralysis so far as the electorate is concerned.

The King of Afghan, according to press dispatches, recently got rid of four of his enemies by shooting them out of the mouth of a cannon. This is one way to make them go boom without falling down.

One of the happiest fellows we know is a man who went stone deaf after he had married one of those women who just love to talk.

PROHIBITION KILLINGS

Most of the daily papers of Alabama try to make an awful bugaboo out of cases where law enforcement officers kill or even shoot at people whom they suspect of violating the prohibition law. The first editorial in The Birmingham Post of May 13th reads in part:

"Another person has been killed by an enforcement officer, and the reign of law and order goes merrily on. Last month the victim was a mother in Illinois; last week it was a youth in the nation's capitol; this time it is a college boy in Abingdon, Va.

"This business of prohibition shooting and investigating, and then more shooting and investigating, can not go on forever. When is the killing going to stop?"

Ever since the Birmingham Post was born four or five years ago it has been lamenting over the fact that the government was making such a failure of enforcing the prohibition law. And now since the authorities have set out to enforce that law, The Post is throwing every obstacle possible in the way of the enforcement machinery.

It is very true, it is regrettable for officers to have to shoot men to get them to respect the law. We had much rather hear of arrests being made in an orderly manner. But The Post and other daily papers must remember that bootleggers and old heads in the whiskey game are not jellyfish at all; they are usually hard-boiled to the nth degree. A Winchester rifle is just a toy to them because they sleep with two or three every night and carry as many with them wherever they go in the daylight. These hard fellows won't bluff—it takes real powder and lead to cause them to change their well beaten course of law violation.

Law abiding citizens asked for teeth to be put in the enforcement of the prohibition law, and now they are complaining about them being too sharp.

Why can't our big daily papers show some of the good that is coming from the attempted enforcement of the prohibition law rather than always try to paint the blackest picture possible of an incident when an officer is forced to use his gun in running down those who have lost respect of the law? They use big streamers about an officer shooting a college lad in a far off state, but if they ever relate any of the evils of alcohol or the good that is being accomplished by the prohibition department, it is a little squib about three inches long right at the bottom of the inside page.

How can we ever hope to teach our people to respect the laws of the land by resorting to such tactics? What good does it do a child for a school teacher to chastise it, and then its parents take up for it and criticise the teacher for his action? It means ruination to the child. Well, this is exactly what The Birmingham Post and the other big daily papers are doing in regard to the prohibition law of this country.

We say again that we dislike to hear of people being shot for disrespecting the law, but if nothing else but powder and lead will bring a bootlegger to his right senses, we contend that an officer has a just right to use it, and we think the other good citizens of the country ought to stand squarely behind the officers in their attempt to bring about law observance.

BRO. BRYAN'S BIBLE STORY

(Written for The Union-Banner by REV. J. A. BRYAN, Pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, Birmingham, Alabama)

MOTHER IS GOD'S NOBLEST AND GREATEST GIFT TO THE WORLD

I am thinking of you, dear mother. O, mother, kind and true! I am grateful to God for you; for your love, for your prayers, for your self-sacrifice, for your patience. for your forbearance, for your faithfulness to me. Mother, thou art a mother still, the holiest being on earth.

The idea of motherhood is deeply entrenched in the teachings of God's inspired word, the Bible. Think as we study that the meaning of Eve is "mother." From the days of Eve unto this children have cherished and treasured the name of mother, and millions and millions have loved their mother from infancy to the grave. Phillip Brooks wrote: "The happiest part of my life has been my mother, and with God's help, she will be more to me than ever."

I want you to think of the prayers your mother offers unto God for you. You find her on her knees when you are coming in too late at night. You know that she is praying for you. The phone rings late at night. It is a mother's voice at 1 o'clock. She says to me, "My son has not returned home, join me in a prayer for him." I pray over the phone with her. God answers the prayers of a faithful mother for an ungrateful son.

You may get away from your mother's home, tear loose from her apron strings, but you can not get away from her prayers to God. Augustine left his mother's roof and went to Milan Italy, where he heard a servant quote a verse from the Bible. Then and there his mother's prayers were answered. She had prayed for him for a period of twenty-eight years. I have known of a mother's prayers being answered for her children ten years after her death. Mr. Moody says he knew of a mother whose prayers were answered for her son twenty-three years after her death. Your mother's prayers following you along life's pathway helps you to look with an eye of faith at the cross of Calvary and receive spiritual blessings.

In the Ten Commandments we are told to "honour our fathers and mothers that our days may be long upon the land which the Lord hath given us." Motherhood was honored in the fact that Christ was born of a mother. It was God's plan that it should be thus. In the fulness of time God sent His son born of a woman.

We can learn many lessons by thinking of the great heart of Mary, the mother of Jesus. Think of how she pondered all these things in her heart. Think of her kind, tender, loving, sympathetic relationship to Christ, and of Christ's relationship of loving obedience and watchful care for her. He went to Nazareth, and was obedient to His parents. He went into the synagogue on the Sabbath. He went to the temple in the Holy City once a year subject to His parents.

On the cross Christ proved His allegiance to His mother by giving her into the hands of a trusted follower, His beloved disciple, to take care of and provide for her a home. Nothing in the life foof our Lord could appeal to us more to-day than that event. His first thought on the painful, shameful cross was that for His mother's care and comfort. There is nothing more beautiful or commendable than to see a child that is loyal to its mother in health or sickness, in poverty or wealth.

We know of daughters who have nursed their invalid mothers for years and years, have made their beds and softened their pillows and watched their mother's sufferings by dim lamps, giving them cups of cold water. Oh, mother, mother! forgive us for not doing enough for thee if we have treated thee wrong. Pardon us; give us a mother's forgiving kiss. The greatest test of a lofty and noble character of a young man or a young woman is the fact that they love their mother.

Are we true to our mothers? Are we grateful to them? Are we forgetful of them? Selfishness makes us fail to write to mother. I know I, too, have failed in a thousand ways in a lifetime of 65 years and in a pastorate of nearly forty years. But as long as my mother lived I wrote to her every day. I wrote a note to her even on the Sabbath, which is one thing that I have never done for anyone else. Young man or young woman, you have a mother somewhere. How often do you write to her? Do you send her part of your wages every pay-day? Do you break the Sabbath and thus break her heart? Do you spend your time in amusements? Do you go with a sinful crowd? Are you taking short cuts to get your bread? Do you go to places where you would be ashamed to take your mother? Do you stay away from church? She took you to Sunday School; do you go now? She took you to prayer meeting; do you go now?

If you are not following your mother's teachings you dishonor her; you will bring disgrace upon her name. Many times I am called into homes where mother's hearts are bleeding, almost broken over the sins of wayward sons. There are thousands of boys in this condition because they have disobeyed their mothers. Truthfully the poet wrote: "How sharper than a serpent's tooth is an ungrateful child."

We can but thank our heavenly Father for Christian mothers, and we pray for more Christian mothers. The world needs Christian mothers as much or more than Christian teachers. Christian mothers are needed more than standing armies, eloquent orators, and great preachers. Abraham Lincoln said, "All that I am or hope to be, I owe to my angel mother." A mother's influence lasts after her death. Her life is greater than all the books she could write or the speeches she could make, or the songs she could sing. In the book of James we read: "That every good and every perfect gift cometh down from the Father of Lights, in whom there is neither variableness nor shadow of turning." A good mother is one of God's best gifts, one of God's greatest gifts; and we should be true to her. We should be true to her memory if she is in heaven, true to her life is she is on earth.

In calling a conference to consider the Coosa-Alabama River navigation program on May 31, Governor Graves is taking hold of one of the biggest and most important commercial problems in the future of our state. This action will receive the hearty endorsement and loyal support of all forward-looking citizens. There ought to be river navigation on the Coosa-Alabama River system from Rome, Georgia, to Mobile. Such a system would give an outlet by water to a section of Alabama that is important in both industry and agriculture. Chilton County, with 25 miles of the Coosa River on its eastern border, will be greatly interested in the move to establish navigation on this stream.

A clear skin is irresistible

. . in fact, popularity depends upon it . .

THAT priceless treasure—a clear, flawless, lovely skin—charms, with admiration, the hearts of men.

First impressions cannot be good without a clear skin—first impressions are quickly made and are not soon forgotten. Old friends may excuse pimples and secretly sympathize but new acquaintances may not be so charitable. Skin blemishes are not inviting. Neither can they be covered up. They embarrass. Hold people back. Steal away joy and happiness.

A lovely—clear skin—is within the reach of all. To those who have lost it, hope is offered. You, too, may have a beautiful skin, rose-petal in texture, pretty as a picture and without a single pimple.

S.S.S.

The way to the skin is through the blood. Strong, healthy blood nourishes the body and fights against infection and disease.

Many thousands have regained their strength and charm by taking S.S.S. It is Nature's own blood tonic for raising the body's power of resistance to disease, improving the appetite, building firm flesh, and clearing the skin. S.S.S. promotes constructive metabolism (healthy body building). It increases the number of red-blood-cells.

S.S.S. is made from fresh vegetable drugs and has a successful record of over 100 years back of it.

All good Drug Stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

PAINS In Side and Back

"I HAD BEEN miserable for a long time. My health was poor, and I suffered a lot from weakness. At times, my strength was so little that I could not stand on my feet. I would have to give up and go to bed. My sides and back hurt dreadfully.

"I grew discouraged, for I could do so little. I worried about myself, and almost gave up hope of ever being strong and well. I could scarcely lift a bucket of water. My house work went undone, for I was not strong enough to do it.

"After I had taken Cardui for a little while, I began to feel better. I grew stronger, soon found that I could do my work with less effort, and the pains in my back and sides left me. I think Cardui is a wonderful medicine. My health has been excellent since then."—Mrs. D. L. Beckner, W. Main St., Salem, Va.

County Farm Agent's Notes

ENGINEERING WORK IS IMPORTANT ON FARMS

Auburn, Ala., May 13.—In the field of engineering the Extension Service of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute at Auburn is rendering a conspicuous service to farmers. This is shown in the annual report of J. E. Wilson, extension agricultural engineer, Auburn, in which he summarizes the work as done under the direction of the county agents.

Only the more important achievements are listed by Mr. Wilson. During the year 139,787 acres of land were terraced and each acre terraced was increased in value by $5.00, making a total of $838,735.00. Cultivators bought totaled 1,226 with a labor saving during the year of $128,730.00.

The report shows that 808 acres of land were irrigated, 3,750 acres drained, and 15,913 acres cleared of stumps. In addition to these, new buildings were erected, water systems installed, and other things done. The grand total value of this work is estimated at $1,413,225.00.

Emphasis was placed on improved machinery and more power for farms along with improving the land, erection of new buildings, and improvement of old buildings.

Most of these were done as demonstrations. The indirect value of the mis not known because county agents were unable to report indirect results. However, it is known that as demonstrations they were very effective and that they will continue to be effective for most of them are permanent demonstrations.

The goal of this is better farms and better machinery, buildings, and equipment on farms, Mr. Wilson said.

FARM AND HOME FACTS

A farm should be named and the name should be made to amount to something.

A bad egg in a case or a decayed fruit or vegetable in a crate makes a bad impression for the entire pack.

It is well to remember that spray solutions for fruit trees are poisonous to animals. A little precaution will prevent losses.

EXTENSION WORKERS ACTIVE LAST YEAR

Auburn, Ala., May 13.—During the year 1928 the 62 county demonstration agents of Alabama were very active, as revealed by the annual report submitted to the authorities of the U. S. Department of Agriculture by Prof. L. N. Duncan, director of the Extension Service of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. The same is true of the 41 county home demonstration agents.

For example, the 62 county agents made 44,345 farm visits and held 3,031 meetings which were attended by 123,292 people. In addition they held 11,287 field meetings where demonstrations were in progress. These meetings were attended by 118,047 people.

The 41 home demonstration agents made 12,382 home visits and held 11,352 meetings and demonstrations with an attendance of 257,229. The home demonstration agents did most of their work with clubs of women and girls which they organized.

The statistical part of the report reveals that farmers used the telephone freely in communicating with county agents. The average county agent answered 787 calls as compared to 537 in 1926. Office calls totalled 1,885 in 1928, 1,301 in 1927, and 1,265 in 1926. The average agent spent about three-fourths of his time out in the county, and one-fourth in his office answering telephone calls, advising farmers in person, writing letters, distributing bulletins and doing other things for the advancement of his work.

An interesting part of the report is that extension workers in Alabama cooperate with organizations of farm people. Total membership of organized farmers, home demonstration club workers, and 4-H club boys and girls with whom they work exceeded 40,000.

Prof. Duncan explained that these figures present merely a gist of what the county farm and home demonstration agents did in Alabama during the year.

A FREAK PINE

Montgomery, Ala., May 13.—A tree that is part long-leaf pine and part shortleaf pine has been discovered in Covington County, says the Alabama Commission of Forestry. The tree produces perfect specimens of both foliage and cones of each of the two species.

Horticulturists frequently produce freaks of this character by artificial grafting. It is very unusual, however, to find a forest tree showing such characteristics. In the case of the Covington County specimen it is thought that during some excessively high wind the long-leaf pine tree was split permitting a branch torn from a shortleaf pine to be lodged in the opening. The latter closing tightly about the short-leaf branch probably held it in such a manner that the two healed together in a natural graft.

Florida pecan growers find that crotalaria is a good summer cover crop. In that State it produces from 15,000 to20,000 pounds of green material per acre. It is a legume.

Miss Carrie Foshee of Alabama College Montevallo, was at home the past week end. She had as her guests the following young ladies from the college: Miss Anie Lee Barbour, of Lineville; Miss Edna McEnnis, of Prattville; Miss Sadie Campbell and Miss Ruth Owen, of Fort Payne.

A CORRECTION

In last weke's issue of The Union-Banner in an article on strawberries we stated that Mr. Steve Baker produced 172 A-crates and 2 B-crates of strawberries on one acre this year. Mr. Baker tells us that he actually raised 190 A-crates and 2 B-crates of berries on his acre, and we take this method of correcting the mistake.

In 1928 4-H club boys in Alabama produced products worth $633,624.13, according to T. A. Sims, State Club leader at Auburn.

Forestry demonstrations for the protection and improvement of trees are being conducted by 313 Alabama farmers under the direction of Otto Brown, extension forester, Auburn.

Dr. C. A. Basore, of the chemistry department of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, has succeeded in making briquettes of pine sawdust with a fuel value three-fourths that of bituminous coal. He estimated that these briquettes can be manufactured for $1.64 per ton. Very little machinery is needed and it is feasible for sawmills to manufacture these briquettes.

STATE CAPITOL News

Commercial and industrial leaders of the State have been invited by Governor Bibb Graves to meet with him in conference at the Capitol on May 31, with a view to formulating a plan of action to hasten the development of the Alabama-Coosa Water route from Rome, Ga. to Mobile. In his call for the conference, Governor Graves pointed out that the federal district engineer has made a favorable report on a preliminary survey of the project, and calleu attention to the need for vigorous action to secure definite results. The completion and utilization of this water-way is regarded as of prime importance in the development of the State.

The text of the Governor's letter calling the conference, which was sent out to more than a hundred leaders over the State, is as follows:

"I am calling a conference of the leaders of commerce and industry of the State to meet here with me on Friday, May 31st to discuss the Alabama-Coosa waterway project from Rome, Georgia, to Mobile, Alabama, and write to invite you to participate.

"The early adoption by Congress of a definite project for the speedy improvement and utilization of this 600-mile waterway traversing Alabama from Rome, Georgia to Mobile, Alabama, im of paramount importance, not only to the State of Alabama, but to the commercial and industrial interests of the Southeast.

U. S. District Engineer, Major L. E. Lyon, has made a favorable report on the preliminary survey of this project and this must be followed up actively and vigorously if we wish to secure definite results.

"Alabama has provided, at a cost of $10,000,000.00 docks, warehouses and terminals at Mobile to facilitate and stimulate water borne commerce, and the fullest use of these improvements can best be served by developing and using the river systems leading into the back country.

"The completion by the U. S. Government of the Tombigbee-Warrior project and the resultant volume of commerce on that system (now 1,400,000 tons annually) has demonstrated the value of these inland waterways in moving tonnage at cheaper rates.

"The time is most opportune for definite action on this matter because of the favorable attitude of President Hoover towards improving and utilizing these major water routes for the transportation of raw products at water rates wherever possible.

"The Mississippi Valley Association, which embraces Alabama in its sphere of activity, will give us all the aid and cooperation within its power, just as has been successfully given the Ohio, the Missouri, and the Mississippi rivers, and I have invited the President, Mr. Dawes of Chicago, Illinois, and other executives of that body to be with us. The Mississippi Valley Association is unquestionably the organization, embracing as it does twenty-two states, through which to present our cause to Congress.

"I feel certain that a conference of this sort now will lead to some immediate and definite action in securing the consummation of this important water route at an early date, and I am equally certain that the completion and utilization of this waterway will prove one of the most potent factors in the commercial, agricultural an dindustrial developments of our State."

State child labor inspectors have been instructed to prosecute employers of all boys under 16 found working after 7 P. M. according to announcement from the Child Welfare Department. Officials of the Department called attention of proprietors and operators of barbecue stands, hot dog stands, drug stores and lunch counters doing curb service, to the provision of Alabama's child labor law which prohibits the employment of children under 16 after 7 P. M. Miss Jhadra Norsworth, chief child labor inspector of the State Child Welfare Department, reports that the child labor law is being flagrantly violated by owners and operators of soft drink stands and places doing "curb service" and the child labor inspectors of the Department have been directed to go after the violators of the law.

Recently in Birmingham, Miss Norsworthy stated, one of the teachers referred to the school attendance officer the case of a 12 year old boy who fell asleep in school every day. An investigation revealed that he was being employed until midnight several nights per week at a drug store. Several other cases were investigated—one boy 12 years of age was found working until 11 P. M. every other night, another until midnight three nights in the week. Another boy was found to be failing in school because he worked until a late hour at night in a tea room, had not time left for study and was too exhausted and sleepy to concentrate when in the classroom.

Miss Norsworthy and the Birmingham school attendance officers made inspections of a number of such places located along First Avenue and leading out into the Gadsden highway. In every place inspected except one, boys were found working until 11 and 12 o'clock at night, Miss Norsworthy said. One employer gave as an excuse that the public insisted on curb service, that boys over 16 cost too much, and that no one would tip a large boy; he stated that he paid only 25 cents a night and gave the boy a few sandwiches leaving him to make the rest in tips.

State Auditor S. H. Blan, who is secretary of the National Association of State Auditors, Comptrollers and Treasurers, has recently issued an attractive booklet of 106 pages, a report of the 1928 meeting of the National Association, together with speeches made before that body. This booklet was printed in Montgomery and has been sent to every Governor in the United States, and also to the auditors, comptrollers and treasurers of every State in the Union. Copies have also been sent to fiscal officials of the U. S. Government. The Government Research Bureau has asked for a number of additional copies, one of which will be sent to Santo Domingo for study by officials there, Vice President Dawes and his commission having recently established a new accounting and financial system for Santo Domingo.

Mr. Blan has received many compliments on the handsome booklet, from various sections of the United States.

FIRESTONE Leadership started when it developed and sold the first automobile tires replacing the clincher tires which were held on the rims by wires. They also developed the first practical Non-Skid Tread design. Firestone then replaced the high pressure tire by developing and selling the first Gum-Dipped Balloon, which today holds all world records for speed, safety, mileage and endurance. ¶This Leadership is maintained by the development of the Firestone Supreme Balloon, which is the last word in design, with larger air volume, added number of Gum-Dipped cord plies, thicker tread, greater non-skid protection, without impairing the wonderful riding qualities of the famous Firestone Gum-Dipped Balloon. ¶This new development puts tire construction far ahead of modern driving conditions, embodying powerful, high speed automobiles, equipped with four-wheel brakes, which demand of tires not only greater strength and endurance, but added non-skid features where protection and safety are more important today than ever before. ¶Come in today! We will give you a liberal allowance on your old tires.

SAMARIA

Sunday was such a beautiful day and everybody seemed to celebrate it by all attending the Mother's Day program at our church. There was a fine program rendered in honor of our mothers, who have been so faithful to care for us when we could not care for ourselves. A large crowd of mothers were there who do not attend church regularly and we were sure glad to have them with us, and welcome them back with us any time they can come. A large offering was made for the Baptist Hospital at Selma, amounting to $28.50. There were fifteen who became members of the the Hospital Charity Association.

Mrs. Carl Boockholdt spent Sunday with Misses Nora, Sallie B. and Georgia Wood.

The B. Y. P. U. met Sunday at 7 o'clock and a fine program was rendered by Mrs. Carl Boockholdt's group. Next Sunday night Group I will have charge of the program. The subject: "The Business of Baptist Churches." So come and see the business of a Baptist church. We are always glad to have visitors with us. Remember next Sunday is our regular preaching Sunday, and we want to have a large crowd out at both services Sunday morning and night.

Three sons survive her, they are: Elijah, Walter and Renfroe, all living in Clanton. The living daughters are: Miss Elvira, Mrs. Dock Bone, Mrs. Hattie Nobles, Mrs. Claudie Miner, and Mrs. Flossie Thornton.

The little infant son of Mr. and Mrs. S. L. McNeill was buried at Jemison by Martin Sunday afternoon; funeral by Rev. B. Lawrence. The little child, Silsby Lee, Jr., died at St. Margaret's Hospital in Montgomery.

UNION GROVE NEWS

Health around here is very good, except sore knees from picking berries, but we are very thankful that we had them to pick.

Sunday being our regular preaching day and Mother's Day we had a nice program given by the children of the Sunday school, and, oh, how our hearts would rejoice when they would recite or sing those sweet hymns in honor of our darling mothers. The church was decorated in an emblem of both the dead and the living. The red did look so cheerful, while the white held a very seeret place in our hearts. One thing that was very encouraging to see was that the young men and women were taking interest in the program. We especially want to thank Mrs. Pearl Glass and the superintendent, Mr. P. M. Martin, for their interest in this Christian service to our children.

Bro. Deason preached at eleven o'clock. The singing in the afternoon was fine. You ought to have been there.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Northcutt of Gorgas are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Robinson.

Mr. Elbert Hall dined with the Jones boys Sunday and chicken—oh, boys!

Mr. R. B. Johnson of Jemison was here Sunday making eyes at the little girl dressed in red. And we had a lot of other visitors in our community Sunday. So come again.—A Reader.

Mrs. F. L. Moore, formerly of Clanton, now of Luverne, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. O. C. Thomas, at Clanton. Mrs. Moore moved away from Clanton three years ago.

Locke Candidate For Ala. Governor

Anti-Smith Manager Says He Will Seek Place As State Executive

An exclusive news dispatch in the Mobile Register of last Sunday says that Judge Hugh A. Locke will be a candidate for Governor of Alabama in the forthcoming gubernatorial campaign. Judge Locke was the leader of the anti-Smith forces in Alabama during the last presidential campaign.

It has been expected for some time that the anti-Smith leader would be a candidate for Governor, and his definite announcement has been awaited in political circles. There are many other aspirants who are expected to enter the race, and since Judge Locke has broken the ice, others may be expected to get in all along from now on.

Taking everything into consideration one would seem justified in saying now that the coming race for Governor of Alabama bids fair to be the hottest thing Alabama has witnessed in a long time. It will in all probability be hotter than the last presidential race, and that was a warm affair itself.

W. R. BURKE SENDS COLLECTION OF WINTER CROPS

Mr. W. R. Burke of Route 3 has sent to the Farm Bureau office an unusually interesting collection of growing crops, including winter peas, hairy vetch, wheat and oats. All of these were growing on the same piece of land. We understand that Mr. Burke is making a splendid success at soil building by the proper use of fertilizer and legume - producing crops.

ANNUAL MAY SINGING AT PROVIDENCE CHURCH

WOOLEY SHELBY SHERIFF

Montgomery, Ala., May 18.—Gov. Bibb Graves Saturday announced the appointment of Knox E. Wooley, of Montevallo, as sheriff of Shelby County. Wooley succeeds Curtis J. Falkner, who resigned several weeks ago following his conviction in Federal Court at Birmingham on a charge of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition law.

Wooley's appointment will become effective when he posts surety bond in an amount to be determined by Judge Head.

IMPROVING APPEARANCE OF BUSINESS DISTRICT

The business district of Clanton continues to improve in appearance. During the past few weeks we have observed some new awnings erected in front of business houses which adds a bit more taste to the appearance of things along our business streets.

Among the places which have installed new awnings we notice Alred Drug Company, Calvin Lenoir's, The James Sign Shop, and Capitol Dry Goods Company.

If every business house in Clanton had a canvas awnings in front of it, and all the old patchwork sheds were torn away, our town would look a mighty heap better.

And by the way, if you want to improve your place by erecting an awning, you don't have to order it from Arbuckle and Ward. Just see Frank James at the James Sign Shop and he can fix you up without delay.

WORK IS PROGRESSING ON JEMISON BANK

Mr. H. G. Boyd states this week that the work of preparing the building at Jemison for housing the new Peoples Bank is going forward with haste. The date mentioned for the opening of the bank is July the first, but according to Mr. Boyd it now looks like the building will be ready sooner than that.

Since the announcement of the opening of the bank at Jemison, we are told that business around that little city has taken on a new life. We hear rumors of new stores that may be opened there, and considerable improvements contemplated for some of those already there.

Jemison is one of the best business centers in Chilton County. The establishment of a bank there will add greatly to the desirability and convenience of transacting business.

TWO SHELBYITES MAY END APPEAL

Frank Farrell and Will Dickerson, convicted of conspiracy to violate the prohibition law in connection with the recent Shelby County liquor probe, indicated to Judge W. I. Grubb Monday that they intended to withdraw their appeals now pending before the United States District Court of Appeals at New Orleans.

Each of the men was sentenced to 18 months in the Atlanta Penitentiary.

Ten other men convicted in the case, including Sheriff Curtis J. Falkner, have field appeals in the New Orleans Court. Hearing will be held next Fall, it was said at the Federal Building.

HOOVER TO MEET WITH NEW COMMISSION MAY 28

Members of Group Give Opinions as to Good Commission Can Do in Straightening out Jumble

Washington, May 21.—President Hoover today invited the eleven members of his newly appointed law enforcement commission to meet with him at the White House for luncheon May 28.

This will give ample time for the members from the Pacific coast and the far west to get to Washington.

After the luncheon the commission will hold its organization meeting in the cabinet room in the executive offices close by the president's own private office.

Mr. Hoover will not indicate his own ideas as to the scope of the work of the commission until after he has had a talk with the members at the luncheon.

It had been intended that the commission assemble here late this week for its first gathering but the date was changed until next Tuesday after White House officials had a telephone conference with George W. Wickersham, of New York, the chairman.

Extend Probe

Washington, May 21.—Prohibition Commissioner Doran announced today that the investigation by the prohibition bureau into all products that can be easily converted into intoxicants had been extended to hop flavored malt.

Doran said informal conferences with the producers of hop flavored malt had been under way for three weeks, but he declined to outline the nature of the conferences, declaring no action would be taken that would in any way interefere with hop growers. He said the bureau was merely making a survey of the situation as it applied to hop flavored malt.

The inquiry is the third survey of products that has been made by the bureau. The first to come under scrutiny of the prohibition agents was corn suggar which was followed by a survey of the California juice grape crop to ascertain the ultimate disposition of the crop. The bureau has not announced the result of any of its surveys.

Open Mind

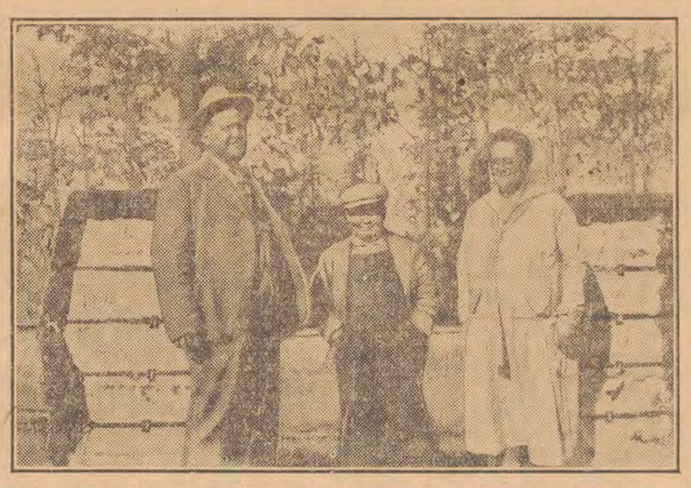
Cleveland, Ohio. May 21.—An open mind will guide Newton D. Baker, secretary of war under President Wilson, in arriving at his conclusions as a member of President Hoover's commission for the study of law enforcement, he said today.

Baker for many years has concerned himself with the study of crime. He was appointed in 1925 to the executive committee of the national crime commission and is president of the Cleveland Association for Criminal Justice.

A happy group of friends enjoyed a most delightful bridge party last Thursday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Armstrong.

Farmers Ought To Join Farm Bureau

The drive is on this week seeking to enlist more Chilton County farmers as members of the Farm Bureau. We believe this question should receive a hearty response that will bring more farmers into this organization as active members.



There is no denying the fact that the Farm Bureau is the best business and co-operative movement ever designed for the farmers. A farmer who will put something into the Farm Bureau will reap a return. This is proven by the returns already coming to those who have put something into it.

The business of farming is no longer a guessing contest. The Agricultural Extension Service, Experiment Stations, State and Federal Departments of Agriculture, and the Farm Bureau, all co-operating in the solution of farm problems, have boiled the farming business down to a basis that is more steady than has ever been known before. The practical facts which have been proven concerning all phases of farm business are now available to any farmer who will take the time to apply them in his daily operations.

The best way we know for a farmer to get in touch with the best that is to be had in the farming business is to line up as a member of the Farm Bureau. It is a big organization that extends from one end of America to the other. It offers advantages which the farmer can obtain nowhere else, and advantages which the farmer must have if he is to make his farming business pay him what he ought to have out of it.

We hope that farmers of Chilton County will respond to the effort that is being made this week and swell the membership of the Chilton County Farm Bureau to twice the number enlisted last year.

4-H Club Members Make Remarkable Yields

4-H Club Member, Thomas Bottoms (centre) of Athens, Ala., with his mother and father. The two bales of cotton weigh 1177 pounds, and were grown on one acre. Cotton was side dressed with 150 pounds nitrate of soda in addition to fertilizer applied at planting. He is proud owner of Radio set offered by Chilean Nitrate of Soda Educational Bureau.

Paul Robinson, 4-H Club member of Midway, Texas, claims to have made 154 bushels of corn on one acre in 1928, while Jesse Johnson of Elizabeth City, N. C., another member of this great organization, claims he grew 150 bushels on an acre. Although widely separated these boys used similar methods in obtaining their remarkable yields. A liberal side-dressing of nitrate of soda was used in each case.

While nitrogen seems to be the most important essential to high acre yields of corn, there are other things to be considered before such yields can be obtained. A good loamy soil, filled with humus and well drained, is an ideal soil for corn. Such a soil will hold moisture longer than a sandy or other soil devoid of organic matter. The corn plant requires large quantities of moisture; therefore, during periods of drought a soil containing large amounts of organic matter will aid in supplying the necessary moisture by having retained it from previous rains.

It is said, also, that nitrate of soda has a tendency to carry the corn plants through these periods of drought, as well as to prevent them from "firing up."

An average yield of 117 bushels was made by the high-scoring Club members in the states of Texas, North Carolina, Mississippi, Georgia, Tennessee, Florida and Louisiana. Their records show that they, too, used the side-dressing method for increasing their yields.

To Bernie Winder of Nacogdoches, Texas, is given the honor of having produced more cotton on one acre of land than any other Club member in the South in 1928. He reports a yield of 1,501 pounds—three bales—of cotton from one acre, or a net profit of $241.52.

The yields of the winners in the states of Texas, Arkansas, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia and Tennessee show that these young farmers produced an average yield of 1,287 pounds of lint cotton per acre. That these yields were profitably produced is evidenced by the fact that they made an average net profit of $207.11 per acre. Such yields were produced, their records indicate, from the use of liberal applications of fertilizer, including side-dressing of nitrate of soda.

Milton Brown of Route 2, Little Rock, the Arkansas Club champion, says: "I used 400 pounds of Chilean Nitrate of Soda as a side-dressing on my acre of cotton. The results were easily seen within four days. It made my cotton turn dark green and it grew so fast that I was afraid it wouldn't fruit, but it did fruit to the tune of three bales per acre. The yield was easily doubled by the application of the nitrate of soda."

Such methods as enabled these Club members to produce these high yields are worthy of consideration, it would seem, by many of our farmers whose present low yields are helping to pull the average yield of cotton throughout the South below 200 pounds of lint cotton per acre.

DON DAVIS VISITS CLANTON

Mr. and Mrs. Don Davis of Birmingham were visitors to Clanton several days the past week. They came here to see Dr. J. S. Davis, father of Mr. Davis, who is in the Central Alabama Hospital recovering from injuries received in an automobile wreck here last week.

Don Davis is circulation manager of the Birmingham News and Age-Herald. His father is reported to be getting along well, and is expected to be out again in a short while. He is 70 years old.

CLUB BOYS MEETING IN CLANTON LAST FRIDAY

The 4-H Club boys of Chilton County held their annual rally in Clanton last Friday, under direction of County Agent, C. E. Stapp. About 250 of the club members were present.

The group assembled at the courthouse at nine o'clock, where they were entertained with a program of speeches and songs until noon. Lunch was served them at the Farm Bureau office, and in the afternoon they were given a free picture show at the Wadesonian.

The County Agent was assisted in entertaining the boys by a number of business men of Clanton, Farm Bureau officials, and members of the Clanton Kiwanis Club.

The Club boys are doing a most inspiring program of work, and the spirit which they manifest on their occasions of getting together points to a future of co-operative usefulness as farmers as they grow into broader usefulness and activity as business men.

Hubert Duke of Mt. Pleasant and Horace Bullard of Verbena each won $5 gold pieces as prizes.

It is announced that the club boys will have their annual camp again this year in the month of August. This is anticipated with great interest among the young farmers.

Speeches were made to the boys last Friday by H. G. Boyd, J. N. Dennis, J. C. Page, Renfroe Mullins, L. C. Warr and B. Lawrence and Mrs. Stapp.

Miss Madge Scarborough led the boys in repeating the club pledge as follows: I pledge my head to clear thinking; my heart to greater loyalty; my hands to larger service; my health to better living; for my club, my community, and my country.

The expenses incurred by the day's entertainment for the boys here last Friday was borne by the Chilton County Farm Bureau, the Chilton County banks, and the Clanton Kiwanis Club.

25 PROHIBITION MEN HEARD BY PROBERS

New Orleans Officers Appear Before Body With Others; Investigation May End Next Friday

Birmingham, May 21.—Speeding up in its work, the United States Grand Jury unexpectedly heard the testimony of all of the witnesses called early Tuesday afternoon and adjourned for the day at 2:45 p. m. The day was spent questioning a larger number of prohibition agents, many of whom took part in the investigations which resulted in the arrest of 37 Shelby County men on charges of conspiracy to violate the prohibition law.

The jury is expected to complete its work and deliver its report by Friday.

The dry agents began filing into the Grand Jury room at 9 a. m. Many were from New Orleans.

The investigation which followed the arrest of Sheriff Curtis J. Falkner and 20 others in the first Shelby County probe, was carried on by men of the local dry forces aided by men from New Orleans.

William Hassinger and W. E. Kennedy, New Orleans prohibition agents and Claude Hebson, of the local force were among the witnesses. Harry Goldberg, secretary of W. J. Foster, deputy prohibition administrator, was also called before the jurors.

Foster and D. C. Trexler, special prohibition inspector, are expected to appear before the inquisitorial body Wednesday.

T. J. Willis, United States deputy marshal at Huntsville, was again present in front of the Grand Jury chambers Tuesday morning.

United States District Attorney C. B. Kennamer returned to Birmingham Tuesday and took over direction of the Grand Jury's work. The two assistant district attorneys, Joe Franklin and C. R. Robinson, have been doing the actual inside work with the jurors.

RED SHERROD WITH SALES FORCE OF POLK BROTHERS

Polk Brothers Motor Company, local Chevrolet dealers, announce that Mr. C. A. (Red) Sherrod is back with them again in the new car sales department.

Mr. Sherrod was here with this popular firm some time last year. During his stay in Clanton he made many friends. And by the way, the art of making friends is as handy to Red as the little trick of selling Chevrolet automobiles. We are glad to see him back in Clanton, and hope that his stay will be permanent.

Red would have stayed when he was here last year, but he didn't have his business arranged just so as to permit it. Now we understand that everything is shaped up all right and that he is going to get busy at sowing this country down with new Chevrolets.

Judge Grubb On Law Commission

Washington, May 20.—George P. Wickersham, attorney general in the Taft administration, has been selected by President Hoover as chairman of the National Law Enforcement Commission and will have associated with him nine other lawyers and one woman representing all of the major geographical divisions of the country.

In announcing the personnel of the commission late Monday, White House officials said Mr. Wickersham would call the group together here later in the week to map out a preliminary program for the work which is expected to last upwards of two years and which is regarded by the chief executive as the most important task confronting his administration.

Baker Heads List

Heading the list of members of the commission is Newton D. Baker, secretary of war in the Wilson administration and chairman of the national crime commission. The other members are: William I. Grubb, federal judge of the Northern District of Alabama; Frank J. Loesch, vice president of the Chicago Crime Commission; Roscoe Pound, dean of the Harvard Law School; Monte M. LeMann, president of the Louisiana Bar Association; William S. Cenyon, of Iowa, United States Circuit judge; Kenneth R. Mackintosh, former chief justice of the Washington State Supreme Court; Paul J. McCormick, federal judge for the Southern district of California; Henry W. Anderson, of Richmond, Va., and Miss Ada L. Comstock, president of Radcliffee College, Cambridge, Mass.

TWO MOTORISTS HURT HERE LAST FRIDAY

Dr. J. S. Davis, age 70, and his son, James W. Davis, age 24, of Punta Gorda, Florida, were brought to Central Alabama Hospital last Friday about noon. They were injured in an automobile wreck just north of Clanton on the Birmingham Highway. The elder man was the more seriously hurt, but his injuries will not prove very serious, it is thought by hospital authorities.

Dr. Davis and his son were on their way to Birmingham to visit another son, Don R. Davis, who is circulation manager of the Birmingham News and Age-Herald. They were traveling in a new Chrysler car, with the young man driving. Due to a rain and wet pavement the driver lost control of his machine which turned over while making about sixty. Both occupants were pinned under the machine until rescued by other passers on the highway.

DEBENTURE

A woman reader of The Alabama Journal who has attempted to follow the ramifications of the legislation proposing farm relief asks for an explanation of the word "debenture" as used in this proposed legislation.

In financial circles a debenture is the name usually applied to a bond issued and sold which has no specified rate of interest, but depends upon the profits or lack of them for its interest return. In the farm relief bill in the United States senate debenture is the term applied to an obligation which it is proposed to have the government issue to bona fide cooperative organizations of actual farmers. Suppose, for example, a cooperative group of wheat farmers pool their crop for sale and find at the end of the season that they have a certain surplus of wheat not absorbed. The government would then issue to this group a debenture of the value of one-half the import tariff on wheat or the amount of wheat embraced in the group's surplus.

This debenture can be used for no other purpose than the payment of customs duties on imports. If the farm group does not wish to import anything and pay duty on it with the debenture it has secured from the government it can sell the debenture to any importer and that importer can use it to pay any tariff duties he may owe. One of the chief objections to the proposal is that importers will be unwilling to pay for these debentures and that a government obligation will therefore have to be hawked about at a discount to the highest bidder.

It is a highly complicated method of giving the farmer some relief when a surplus crop is produced. The Democrats of the senate joined a number of Republicans in approving it. President Hoover has written his objections to it, the chief of which is that it constitutes a direct subsidy from the government to the farmer and that he can not approve such subsidies. Democrats on the other hand contend that the high protective tariff itself is a subsidy to manufacturing interests and that as long as the government is in the subsidy business no one is more deserving of having one than the farmer.

The fate of the debenture proposal is in doubt. There is strong sentiment for it in Western states, so that in favor of the proposal is a strong coalition of Democrats of the South and both Republicans and Democrats of the West and Middle West agrarian states.—Mobile Register.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

FRANK P. LITSCHERT

We are hearing a great deal these days about farm relief and the revision of the tariff and these questions are rightfully occupying a big place in public attention. Let us not lose sight of the fact, however, that one of the greatest of all questions, and one which affects farm relief to a certain extent, is that of tax reform. One of the biggest obstacles which confronts the farmer in his effort to get back on the high road to prosperity is the obstacle of increasing taxes. The problem is purely a local one. Few farmers are affected directly at least by federal taxes. The semi-annual tax bill which confronts them is the one which represents their share in the payment of state and local expenses. If the farmer is to get further relief from his tax burdens therefore the remedy will have to be local.

The question may well be asked: What is causing or has caused the tremendous increase in the property tax which now burdens the real estate owner in the town and in the county? Certainly a great share of it is due to modern improvements. We do not live as we did a generation or so ago. The man in the country has better roads for instance than were enjoyed by the man in the city a dozen or so years ago. The horse as a method of transportation has well nigh vanished, and the high powered automobile has taken its place. The man in the country now travels more swiftly and smoothly in his machine than the city man did in his electric transportation a few years ago. We have improved in other ways. The country schools of today are better than the city schools of a generation ago, and every small community now has its hospital for the taking care of the sick and the injured.

In short, the standard of living has improved in the city and in the country, but there has been more relative improvement in the country than in the city. All of this costs money, and doubtless most of it is worth the cost. But if modern living is worth more than a few years ago, it also costs more. And this cost must be made up in increased taxes. To prevent unnecessary expenditure the public must always be on it guard, for the average citizen must finally pay the cost either in increased taxes or in higher rent and increased cost of living. Reasonable and necessary improvements should of course go forward. But all proposals for new outlays of money should be carefully scanned by the man who is interested because he must pay the bill.

For instance: the writer's attention was called recently to an item in a middle western newspaper which set out that arrangements were being made for the improvement of a certain country school in a typical rural township in that state. A few years ago this school building was pointed out as a model rural school. It contained and still contains modern equipment, laboratories, class rooms, playgrounds and nearly everything that was supposed at that time to make up a modern school house. But now it is proposed by the local officials to spend nearly a hundred thousand dollars to improve the school house still further. The building is still solid and modern, but it is set out in the news dispatch mentioned above that a new gymnasium is needed, the inference being that the school possesses no adequate place for physical training.

Now is happens that physical training in this particular instance means training the basketball team for this school. There are two or three other consolidated schools within a radius of a few miles, including a small city high school, and basketball rivalries are intense. The proposal really therefore is to spend the money of the taxpayers, most of whom are farmers, for training quarters for the school's basketball team, which of course comprises only a handful of the children attending the school.

Basketball is undoubtedly a clean American sport and one which ought to be encouraged, but this instance is cited as an example of an occasion on which at least due consideration ought to be given to the taxpayers before the improvement is made. And there are hundreds of other examples of a similar nature throughout the country. High taxes are not only burdensome to the individual, but they hurt business. No new enterprises will go into a community burdened with high taxes. It behooves us, therefore, to do what we can to see that the tax burden is made as light as is consistent with good government and sane and comfortable living.

PROHIBITION KILLINGS

Two drunks in Chicago last Friday stole an automobile and drove it through a bunch of school children, killing two of them and seriously injuring four more. One incident like that has enough horror and tragedy in it to turn a whole country against whiskey and other stuff that is bootlegged out among our people.

Now, hold this incident up in one hand and in the other hold the killing of a bootlegger by an officer who was trying to do his duty by bringing the lawless one to justice. Which is the worse? Of course, everyone would answer that the former is a thousand times more contrary to the laws of both God and man. However, when an officer kills a bootlegger the anti-enforcement papers over the country bring it out in big headlines and write columns of editorials painting the awfulness of such acts. But little do you see about tragedies like the above.

A great many of the liberals who protest violently every time a bootlegger gets shot in line of duty are not so much worried lest personal liberty be violated as they are lest their supply of hooch may be cut off.

Consistency, thou art a jewel!

A NEW KIND OF COMMENCEMENT SERMON

The Chilton County High School Commencement sermon of last Sunday struck us as a combination of many good things to make for interest to those who heard it; a discourse with characteristics that marked it as somewhat unusual for an occasion of this kind.

We would dare to offer congratulations to Dr. Anderson for the message he brought and for the manner in which he delivered it to us. The speaker is a brilliant man. He is a keen observer. He knows where he is "at."

Folks have long since come to dread commencement sermons, because they are usually formal, stiff, starched, dry, and to be perfectly frank, uninteresting, because pedagogic and not unusual.

Dr. Anderson, very happily, must have observed that folks have become tired of the ordinary, and determined to depart from the old beaten path and give us something fresh and new and sparkling.

It was refreshing indeed. It was inspiring. It got right to the folks and made them feel good. Thanks, doctor.

THE BUSINESS OUTLOOK

The New York World recently took a nation-wide survey of the business and commercial situation of the country and the results as published are decidedly interesting and encouraging especially in view of the recent slump in the stock market and the predictions made in certain quarters, especially in Europe, that Uncle Sam's great era of expansion is coming to a close. The report indicated that American prosperity is now at a high peak, that unemployment is steadily decreasing and business looking up. This taken in connection with our hundred million surplus as a result of income tax collections and the general increase in our foreign trade, indicates that there is nothing in the immediate future to worry about, so for as our general business is concerned, unless a psychological panic is created by the people themselves.

Immediately following the report of the world survey came the summary of investigation made by the United States Employment Service and the National Association of Manufactures. The reports closely follow the check of the world so far as business conditions are concerned and indicate that employment in the United States is now the greatest it has been in two years and is still increasing.

"Employment in industries throughout the country is 8.71 per cent higher today than it was a year ago, and the present complement of workers will be maintained throughuot the summer," according to John E. Edgerton, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, whose spring survey shows industries are opperating "at the very favorable peak of 85.1 per cent of their fullest capacity."

The National Industrial Conference Board, of which Magnus W. Alexander is president, reports, "further evidence of prevailing healthy economic conditions are that wage earnings in the manufacturing industries for the last five years have shown remarkable stability, with a slightly increasing trend, while living cost during the same time showed a slight decline.

"As a result, the average 'real weekly' earnings of workers in industry at the begining of the current year were nearly 6 per cent, and the average 'real hourly' earnings per worker 5 per cent greater than at the begining of 1927. The purchasing power of the industrial wage earner's dollar was higher than the average for any year since 1922."

All of these reports, which are of course non-partisan in their character,show that there is nothing wrong with the commercial and industrial fabric of the United States. Coupled with reports of the increase in our foreign trade they presage good business conditions in the United States for the balance of the year at least. Of course there is still some slack ti be taken up in agriculture and in certain other industries. But it is to be hoped that the present session of congress will be able to help work out some of these problems, so far as legislation can help in a situation of the kind. At any rate there is no cause for alarm. To quote from the World:

"The most significant thing in the symposium, perhaps, was the absence of the word "boom" from the reviews. Only one contributor spoke of the "tint of a boom" but he limited this description to "some extreme cases." For business to have its greatest year on record without a boom will be no slight achievement. For years that has been the goal of the country's business leaders. A boom is not wanted, because it brings inevitable reaction and depression. To attain boomless prosperity will reflect marked progress in the technique of production and distribution, the avoidance of swollen inventories and price inflation, the stability of employment, and wages at a level which insures a high degree of purchasing power."

PAINFUL INDIGESTION

"I SUFFERED a good while before I found something that would help me," writes Mr. E. W. Berry, of Neosho, Mo. "My trouble was indigestion, pains in my chest and a tight, bloated feeling that would make me feel smothered.

"Speaking of this to a friend of mine, he told me that Black-Draught was good for this trouble. I went over bought a package. It certainly did help me, so I continued to use it.

"I am in the transfer business, and sometimes when I would be hungry and ready to eat, I would have a call and would have to eat later. Then I would eat too much or too hurriedly. This would cause indigestion. After I started using Black-Draught, I found it did me a world of good. It is splendid for biliousness and stomach troubles."

"Once I was worried—mealtime was getting on my nerves. I prepared many appetizing dishes, but John simply would not eat—just 'minced' at his food. Perhaps sometimes a little grouchy. I began to fear he was 'slipping.' What was I to do? Love, home, happiness, business success—all depended upon an improvement in his condition. The blood tonic idea suggested itself to me. My Druggist recommended S.S.S. John agreed to try it. Well, in just a few days I could see the difference. His improvement has been so rapid he is going to take several more bottles, and not only that, but he is now telling his friends to take S.S.S."

Loss of appetite only a symptom

It is a known fact that when one's system gets "run-down," they haven't the resistance to ward off diseases. Loss of appetite is only a symptom. General weakness pervades the entire body. There is no desire to work or play.

Without plenty of rich, red blood, there could be no strong, sturdy powerful men, or beautiful, healthy women.

Rich, red blood builds sturdy health

When you get your blood cells back up to normal, that sluggish let-down feeling, loss of appetite, rheumatism, boils, pimples, and skin troubles disappear. You get hungry again, sleep soundly; firm flesh takes the place of that which was once flabby. You feel strong. Your nerves become steady.

S.S.S. is daily helping people regain their strength and charm. Thousands of users have testified to its benefits in unsolicited letters of gratitude. It helps Nature build red-blood-cells. It gives to Nature what it needs in making you feel like yourself again.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Melton were visitors of this community last week end.

Misses Claudie and Onzelle Eiland had as their guest Saturday night and Sunday Miss Gertie Mae Hayes.

Everybody seemed to be just right to enjoy the birthday party given in honor of Mr. Dewey Melton at his home last Saturday night. After the guests arrived several games were played after which fruit and cake were served. The music was rendered by Messrs. Seymore, Morris, Lemmie Melton and Kermit Lowery. Sunday School Lesson

(©, 1929, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for May 26

GOD'S LAW IN THE HEART

LESSON TEXT—Jeremiah 31:1-40; John 1:17.

GOLDEN TEXT—Thy word have I hid in my heart, that I might not sin against thee.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Knowing God.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Knowing God.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How Can We Know God?

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—God's Law in the Heart.

I. Restoration of Israel (vv. 1-14).

1. Time of (vv. 1-5).

This points to the glorious future. Not only the children of Judah, but the other tribes as well, shall be restored to their land. They shall be drawn by Jehovah's everlasting love (v. 3). God gave them the land. The peculiar distinctions of the chosen nation shall again be manifest. The time is coming when not only shall peace spread over that land, but it shall again be tilled, and fruitful.

2. The Lord will conduct them to their own land (vv. 6-9).

(1) The cry of the watchman (v. 6). This will be the signal for return.

(2) Exultant prospect (v. 7). The prospect of deliverance will call forth a song of joy.

(3) Prayer of the Jews (v. 7).

God indites all true prayer, moving the people to pray for that which He is about to do unto them.

(4) The returning remnant (vv. 8, 9). They shall come from all parts of the world whence they have been scattered. When they shall look upon Him whom they pierced, their consciences shall be smitten, causing them to repent of their sins.

3. Appeal to the nations (vv. 10-14).

(1) Sound forth the good news (v. 10). The one who scattered them will now gather them in and shepherd them.

(2) Ransomed by the Lord (v. 11). Their deliverance is preceded by the provision of the ransom.

(3) The exiles shall flock back to their land to enjoy God's goodness in it (v. 12).

(4) Their mourning shall turn to joy (v. 13).

(5) They shall be satisfied with God's goodness (v. 14).

II. The Desolate Condition of Ephraim (vv. 15-20).

1. Rachel weeping for her children (v. 15).

This pictures Rachel, ancestress of certain of the tribes, weeping for her banished children.

2. Ephraim will surely return (vv. 16-19).

The nation is seen showing penitence for sin, requesting divine help in turning back and in confessing sin.

3. Their tender reception (v. 20).

In spite of chastisement, God loves Israel and will with open arms receive her back.

III. Action Urged (vv. 21-26).

Something is required of Israel. Before the prodigal could enjoy the blessings of his father's house, he must return thereto.

1. Israel must return and take possession of the land (v. 21).

2. Israel was to take the initiative (v. 22).

This is expressed by the declaration that the Lord hath created a new thing in the earth, namely, "a woman shall compass a man." It is usual for the man to take the initiative—to make overtures to the woman, but in this case God shall create a new thing. The custom will be reversed. The woman "compassing" the man pictures Isreal with eager affection approaching her divine husband.

3. The land shall be made righteous (v. 23).

The people are responsible for the restoration of prosperity and the righteous rule of the land.

4. A satisfied people (vv. 24-26).

IV. The New Covenant (vv. 29-40).

1. Freedom from the power of heredity (vv. 29, 30).

Those who are joined to Jesus Christ are in possession of a new law of life superior to the law of heredity.

2. The law within (vv. 31-33).

Through regeneration the heart has within it not only the desire but also the power, by the Holy Spirit, to rise above and to be free from carnal impulses.

V. The Source of the New Covenant (John 1:17).

Through the incarnation the Son of God identified Himself with the race by the incorporation of Himself with it. Those in Christ are new creatures.

WHEN NATURE "MOTHERS" THE EGGS

Editor's Note—This is another story in a series of 52 stories on poultry raising written by the well known national poultry authority, Dr. L. D. LeGear, V. S., of St. Louis. The entire series will appear in this paper. Our readers are urged to read them carefully and clip them out for future reference.

The question, which is best, hen or incubator, has been discussed pro and con almost as much as that prime favorite of old time high school debating societies: "Which came first the chicken or the egg?" The real solution of the problem depends largely on circumstances. For a number of reasons, the commercial poultry raiser is forced to use the incubator. For the owner of the average back yard or farm flock, however, it often happens that hens will serve the purpose just as well and for a much smaller outlay. Unlike the commercial breeder, he can usually afford to wait until hens are broody and the problem of securing enough broody hens for his entire hatch is not very often encountered.

As far as results are concerned, one method is as good as the other if proper methods are employed.

First of all, considerable care should be exercised in the selection of hens used for hatching eggs. The following points are very important: The hen should have a well developed broody inclination; should be even tempered, free from nervousness and not too offensive when approached while setting. A yearling or two-year-old is more dependable than a pullet; never use pullets if you can avoid it. Use only hens that are large enough to thoroughly cover the desired number of eggs with a little to spare. Use only healthy, vigorous hens, in good flesh and having bright red eyes and red combs.

Eggs should not be put under any hen until she has shown well developed signs of broodiness. It is a good plan to put several china eggs under her ladyship at first and confine her to the nest for a day or two. If at the end of the second day she still shows unmistakable signs of broodiness, remove the china eggs and give her the eggs to be hatched. Let her feel the eggs under her before releasing her. Then confine her to the nest for a day or two so that there will be no danger of her deserting her trust.

A sitting hen should be given a place to herself where she can not be disturbed by other hens trying to crowd into the nest with them. When it is necessary to set hens indoors, each one should have an individual run fenced off with chicken wire. If that is not practical, hens must be confined to their nests and only released at regular intervals so they can eat and exercise. Unless this plan is followed, you will often find two or more hens crowded onto one nest with eggs growing cold in the other nests.

If sitting coops are placed on high ground with sufficient drainage all around, nest may be placed directly on the ground. Scoop out a depression so that the nest can be properly shaped to keep the eggs from rolling out. If conditions make it necessary to have a floor in the coop, sod or loose dirt can be used to support the outer edges of the nest. Better still, make the nest in a box about 6 inches deep and 15 inches square for ordinary breeds. For Asiatics, nest boxes should be from 18 to 20 inches square. Pack sod or earth in the corners to round them out. Then arrange your nesting material inside the depression so formed. The use of sod or earth is advisable because it helps to conserve the moisture so necessary during incubation.

To my mind, the ideal nesting material is clean fine straw or hay. It is difficult to shape a nest with long coarse straw. Leaves are sometimes used for nests and are quite satisfactory.

Having provided the hen with adequate nesting facilities, the next consideration is to provide proper food and exercise. The hen should be permitted to leave her nest occasionally to eat and exercise, but must not be allowed to stay off the eggs until they get chilled. Feed her equal parts of wheat and corn on the ground or in a pan near the nest, but feed no mash. Provide plenty of pure, fresh water, grit and charcoal. The sitting hen will usually leave her nest once a day for feed and water. If she does not, take her off and close the nest so she can not get back too soon. If she stays away too long, take her gently away from the food and put her back on the nest. If the weather is rather cool, she should not leave the eggs more than 10 or 20 minutes. In mild weather she may stay away somewhat longer.

Visit your hens regularly while they are sitting and watch them closely. If a hen is a good sitter, she will stick right on the job and give you very little trouble, but some hens are restless, mash the eggs by moving about or mash newly hatched chicks. Chicks should be taken from such hens as fast as they are hatched and put in an incubator or under some other hen. Always remove empty shells. Otherwise they may slip over other eggs and smother chicks struggling to get out of their shells. Also whenever an egg is broken during the earlier stages of hatching, remove it. If its contents are smeared over other eggs, wipe them clean with a wet cloth and return them to the nest at once. Use only lukewarm water for this purpose. Make necessary examination of the nests while your hens are eating to avoid disturbing them.

Needless to say, thorough sanitation of nests and coops is necessary. The coop or building in which hatching is done should be thoroughly disinfected at least once a week. The nest should not only be kept clean as suggested above, but the hen should be thoroughly dusted with lice powder before hatching is started and again on the seventeenth day.

LONG-LEAF OVER CENTURY IN WHITE HOUSE

Montgomery, Ala., May 20.—A gavel made of Long-leaf pine that comprised a part of the White House for one hundred twelve years has been received by the Alabama Commission of Forestry. Recent repairs to the White House rendered some of the structural members of the roof superfluous. The National Lumber Manufacturers Association secured some of the timbers thus removed and the gavel was made from this material and presented to the Commission by Dr. Wilson Compton, Manager of the Association.

This use of southern wood approximates in permanence that of steel, concrete and other structural materials that in the popular mind are often assumed to be more durable. In fact, the latest engineering and architectural developments are continuing to give high rank to wood and lumber in building calculations.

A good business man will not buy a farm or any property without first looking it over to see what it is worth.

However, some will buy or loan money on land without an abstract.

Isn't it equally as foolish to buy a farm without looking it over as to buy it and not know whether the titles are good or not? Without an abstract you do not know where you are getting the land you look at or not.

Before investing in land in any way have an abstract made and be safe.

Side-Dressing Cotton Pays, Says Moss

B. L. Moss, of Soso, Mississipi, one of the South's most successful cotton farmers, declared in a recent article in "The Progressive Farmer" that "growing cotton under boll weevil conditions without fertilizer is like fattening hogs without feed—it simply can't be done. Close observation convinces me that there is no more certain way of increasing yields than by the liberal and intelligent use of commercial fertilizers."

For twelve years Mr. Moss has found it profitable to side-dress his cotton with 100 to 200 pounds Chilean nitrate of soda per acre. "The great value of this quickly-available nitrogen," says Mr. Moss "lies in its power to force quick growth and early fruitage. Cotton side-dressed with 200 pounds per acre remains a rich green in color, sets fruit rapidly, and holds a large proportion of what is set. Cotton not so side-dressed, in my experience, tends to turn yellow and sickly in July, and when this happens shedding is sure to be excessive."

Since plants cannot talk the best we can do is to make close observations, as Mr. Moss has done, and do our best to feed the cotton plant so that it can produce large acre yields. It has been found from experience that the period during the first to second cultivation after chopping is a hungry stage in the growth of the cotton plant. A liberal side-dressing of Chilean nitrate then will increase 1929 yields and profits.

COTTON GROWERS ELECTION WILL BE HELD ON JUNE 6

An election of vital importance to every cotton grower of this county and of the State of Alabama will be held on June 6, according to an announcement by W. B. Rainey of Tuscaloosa, Alabama. Mr. Rainey is manager of a committee of three in charge of the district number 5 of the Alabama Farm Bureau Cotton Association the members of which are at present electing their directors for the ensuing year. T. H. Martin of Cord and G. F. Gilmer of Sulligent are serving on the committee with Mr. Rainey.

Glen Foster, Tuscaloosa and W. F. Osburn, Tuscaloosa were nominated as candidates for director of District number 5 in a primary election on May 9. The one receiving the highest vote on June 6, will serve as director during the 1929-30 season.

The Alabama Farm Bureau Cotton Association divides Alabama into 10 districts: Bibb, Chilton, Fayette, Jefferson, Lamar, Pickens, Shelby, Tuscaloosa, Walker Counties constitute district number 5. A director is elected from each district each year.

Attention of members is called to the fact that the Board of directors which is composed of one director from each of the 14 districts is the governing hand of the cotton association. Dr. Bradford Knapp, President of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute appoints two directors to represent the state at large and also to represent the people. This makes 16 on the board of directors of the cotton association.

Instructions as to how to vote for the director will be found in the June 1 issue of the Farm Bureau News. Allen Northington, general manager of the Association, is anxious that all members vote in this final election.

BLACK OBJECTS TO REAPPORTIONMENT BILL

Washington, D. C., May 21.—Severely criticising the Republican legislative leaders who have refused to permit consideration of the Muscle Shoals legislation, Senator Hugo L. Black of Alabama, today continued his attack on the bill introduced in the Senate to provide for reapportionment of the House of Representatives, on the basis of the Census to be taken this year. Senator Black and Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi are leading the fight against the reapportionment bill which would result in many changes in various state delegations, including Alabama, which would lose one representative under the plan.

Senator Black asked his colleagues why the haste in changing the representation in the House of Representatives in any manner until after the Census has been taken. In this connection the Junior Senator from Alabama pointed out that it has been impossible to secure any action on Muscle Shoals for ten years.

"Why all this haste for reapportionment," Senator Black asked. "For ten years the great plant at Muscle Shoals has lain idle, while farmers, their backs bent in toil, have been burdened by the Fertilizer and Power Trust and prevented from obtaining the benefit of cheap fertilizer."

"Has any one said anything about a measure for the development of Muscle Shoals being acted on at this session? This is supposed to be a farm-relief session, and the farmers of the South are crying for cheap fertilizer, which would come if the Congress would do its duty. But what happens? Muscle Shoals is thrust aside and a so-called reapportionment bill is presented to the Senate, which does not reapportion, ..

Senator Black declared that the present reapportionment bill before the Senate is a misnomer, for it does not reapportion. He said he would favor a proper reapportionment bill which would keep the authority in Congress.

"If we pass this measure," the Senator declared "we strip Congress of the power which the fathers of this Government gave it. We tie the hands of succeeding Congresses and surrender the authority specifically vested in Congress by the framers of the Constitution.

"There are two things behind this bill," Senator Black continued, "There is the whittling away of the power of the chosen representatives of the people in the House of Representatives and the Senate. One by one their rights are being taken away; little by little, inch by inch, gradually, as the stones of the earth are worn away by the beating water, the legislative functions have been sacrificed as additional powers have fallen into the basket of the Executive. This bill proposes to give to the President, the power in case of close elections, which would not have been dreamed of by Cataline in the days when he conspired against the home of his birth."

Mississippi Farmer Uses 162 Tons of Chilean Nitrate of Soda on Farm This Year

From 4½ tons Chilean nitrate of soda used on 90 acres of cotton in 1917, I have increased the scope of my farming operations and the use of this great fertilizing material, until this year I am using 162 tons on between 1,100 and 1,200 acres in cotton. Whatever success I may have had as a cotton-grower, I attribute, more than to any other single factor, to Chilean nitrate of soda. For me, it has meant the difference between success and failure; and farmers everywhere in the Cotton Belt, by increasing tens of thousands, are finding it the key to big crops and farm profits.—B. L. Moss, Soso, Miss.

Five Dollars for Each Dollar Spent

Twelve years' experience with Chilean Nitrate of Soda as a cotton fertilizer has led me to the certain conclusion that for each dollar spent for it I get, on an average, an increase in the cotton crop worth at least five dollars. Two hundred pounds of Chilean Nitrate per acre, costing about $5, used as a side-dressing, may be depended upon to give an increase in yield of 100 to 150 pounds of lint per acre, in average seasons. Swapping one dollar for five dollars is a trade I always like to make, and using Chilean Nitrate as a side-dressing for cotton is the surest way I know of for making such a trade.—B. L. Moss, Soso, Miss.

EXCHANGE CLUB MAY BE ORGANIZED IN CLANTON

Information has been given out this week stating that an effort is being made among a number of young business men of Clanton to organize an Exchange Club here. It is said that already ten members have signified their intentions to affiliate, and it is expected that the number will be increased to fifteen by the end of this week.

Mr. Bob White of the National Exchange Club Headquarters has been in Clanton for some days working on the proposition. For Friday night of this week it is planned to have a banquet at the Wilson Hotel, which will be followed by a short business meeting and a dance. It is hoped by those interested that matters will have progresed far enough by Friday night so that a permanent organization of the cluub may be effected, and officers elected.

The Exchange Club is a community service organization with national headquarters at Toledo, Ohio. While smaller in number of members, the organization is classed along with such other service Clubs as Rotary, Lions, and Kiwanis.

Rev. J. Toy Williams came down from Birmingham Wednesday, and went with Dr. Gragg and Sam Ezell on a fishing trip to Lake Mitchell.

BOLL WEEVILS IN STATE REPORTED NUMEROUS

Federal Report Reveals Large Numbers in Southern Section

Montgomery, Ala., May 21.—Boll weevils are reported in heavy numbers in Southern section of Alabama, the monthly crop report of F. W. Gist, state and federal agricultural statistician, revealed.

The report described conditions as of May 1.

"Although boll weevils are reported present in heavy numbers in some sections, propagation has not started due to the absence of squabs," the report stated. "Some farmers are picking live weevils and finding large numbers."

Feed Your Cotton With Chilean Nitrate of Soda

The best of cotton growers are learning to feed their crops, just as the best of livestock men have learned how to scientifically feed their animals. And these cotton farmers are learning that Chilean nitrate of soda, 100 to 200 pounds per acre, applied as a side-dressing by or before the time the first blooms appear, is the finest of all foods for the growing cotton crop. Such a side-application keeps the cotton green and fruiting vigorously, long after cotton not so side-dressed has turned yellow and is throwing off all the little bolls set. "Feed your cotton with Chilean nitrate of soda, and it will fatten your pocket-book," is becoming proverbial with the best farmers in the Cotton Belt.

Bro. Bryan's Weekly Message

(Written for The Union-Banner by REV. J. A. BRYAN, Pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, Birmingham, Alabama)

GIVING CHRIST FIRST PLACE IN OUR LIVES

Recently I have been burdened, I have been overcome almost with the thought and with the fact that many of us do not give Christ the first place in our lives, the first place in our minds, the first place in our hearts, the first place in our work. Christ in the sermon on the Mount delivered on Mount Hatten, called by writers "The Mount of the Beatitudes" teaches the great fundamentals, the great principles of His Kingdom.

Toward the end of the 6th chapter of the Gospel according to Matthew Christ speaks these words: "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and His righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you." These words were to His disciples, His apostles, those whom He prayed with daily, and those who were witnesses of His miracles and witnesses of His matchless life. When He said, "But, seek ye first the kingdom of God" He meant that we must put Christ first, seek Christ with all your heart, exalt Christ in your life. He teaches us to seek first the kingdom of God and His righteousness.

The kingdom of God means Christ's reign in our lives by His blessed and holy principles. His righteousness means His absolute moral perfection, His holiness, justice and faithfulness; and Christians have righteousness of faith, in that faith is counted to them for righteousness as the ground of their justification. In seeking the kingdom of God and His righteousness, the Christian is purified by the Spirit, and prepared unto good works, thus fulfilling righteousness to Christ.

Now, all these things shall be added unto you. In the King James version "All these things will be added unto you." The real meaning is "All these things will be thrown in." That is, if we put Christ first. We must give Him first place in our daily life. His love must overflow in our hearts. What a wonderful promise this is. It comes under the head of the exceeding great and precious promises of Christ. If I give Him first place in my heart He will give me first place in His blessings.

Keep on thinking of what God says about prayer. In His letter to the Thessalonians and also in His letter to Timothy. In 1st Timothy 2:1 we read these words: "I exhort therefore, that first of all, supplications, prayers, intercessions, and giving of thanks, be made for all men." That is, God put prayer first. It must be the first thing in a Christian's life. No one can read the thirteen letters of Paul and see how often he mentioned prayer without knowing that to Him prayer was the first thing in His life; and He wanted other people to put prayer first in their lives.

O, my friends, the prayer room must be the first thing in your life. The closed prayer room must be the first thing. Secret prayer must be the first thing. Private prayer must be the first thing. Christ does not say that human laws must be given for all men. He does not say that amusements must be given to all men. He does not say that we must give health, strength, or clothes, but first of all prayer must be offered, but then God's help must be given to them.

We hear a great deal about evangelism which is right. Thousands of dollars are being spent in building hospitals which is right. We hear of organized efforts to build great colleges and universities which is right. But God made Paul write in the 1st letter to Timothy these words: "I exhort, that, first of all supplications, prayers, intercessions, and giving of thanks be made for all men." We need a revival of prayer life. The prayer meeting should come before any other meeting. It should come before the banquet, before the social gathering, before a political meeting, before an evening rest, before a religious newspaper is read. First of all prayer must be offered.

The inspired letter of Paul to the Corinthian Christians are really paintings or pen pictures of the early Christian church. Really these two letters give us a better idea of the temptations of the Christians in Corinth. They give us a better idea of the doctrines and practices of the early Christian church there. It gives us a better idea of how the people had elapsed from the doctrines and practices of the church. You ought to read these letters. Someone has said that they describe the church of the centuries, these years.

In the chapter on giving unto the Lord, Paul says, "They first gave themselves unto the Lord." After that they gave out of the abundance of their poverty. The emphasis is "These people first gave themselves unto the Lord." The first thing we are to do is to give our hearts and lives unto the Lord. We are to give our all unto Him. The giving of ourselves is worth more than the giving of a dollar, as important as that is, and as necessary as that is. Have you given yourself unto the Lord? This means Have you given your heart, your life and your all to Christ?

Jesus says, "My son, give Me thine heart," meaning that you must give Him your heart. Another verse to which I ask your attention is recorded in the life of Elijah. We read that he went to visit with and pray with the widow of Zarephath. She was out picking up sticks of which she said she expected to make a fire and bake what little wheat she had and burn what little oil she had; and then she and her son would eat and die. Elijah told her to go and make him a cake first, and bring it unto him, and then make for herself and her son.

That was not a request to satisfy selfishness, but it was a request to put Christ and His cause first. It was a test of her consecration. If she was willing to make a cake and give to God, God who makes every cake and gives every cake would give to her and to her son and they would be spared. There Elijah was sustained as God promised, by the poor needy woman. It was all because she put Christ and His cause first in her life. Sometime after this, in her hour of greatest grief over the death of her son, Elijah as the instrument in God's hand brought her son back a living soul. Let us put first things just where they belong. Let us give Christ the first place in our hearts and in our lives. If we will so do, we shall not fail in realizing the highest ideal of work in His kingdom of which we are capable.

Subject: "The Value of Forest Conservation and What Can I As A Schoolboy Do Toward the Preservation of This Great Natural Resource?"

Probably many of us do not know what forests really are. A forest is a growth of trees sufficiently dense to form a fairly unbroken canopy of trees. A forest has a population of plants and animals peculiar to itself, a soil of its own making and a climate different from that of the open country. (The land surface devoid of trees.)

Now that we know what a forest is, let us talk about its material value to mankind. In earlier days of our country's history the material from which homes were built, the substance used in furnishing heat for the homes, to run locomotives and other engines were supplied by the forests.

Coal was discovered about one hundred and fifty years ago. Naturally, you would think that we then would substitute the use of coal more, but this great discovery did not largely affect the use of wood. Coal in reality is just a product formed through the ages by the decaying of wood, leaves and all vegetable matter. Coal could never have been formed had it not been for the earlier growth of trees.

From the forests comes a long list of valuable products, such as lumber, paper, furniture, telegraph poles, railroad ties, turpentine, tar, pitch, resin, and valuable medical herbs.

When the earlier settlers first came to this country, their first work was to clear away the trees in preparation of fields in which to grow food products. They cut away the trees also in getting material to build their homes. They cut many trees only to leave them to decay and waste. This careless and indifferent feeling toward our trees has existed down to the present day. The result is that we are now beginning to realize the necessity of forest products, but yet, our trees are being fast cut away.

Our government says that our present supply of timber will last only forty-one more years, unless we take active measures in some way to save our trees.

Roosevelt said, "Rorestry is the preservation of forest by wise use." Our forests are of great value to us in many ways. Some effects they have upon drainage are: By returning the water in the soil through the agency of the roots; by preventing too rapiu evaporation of moisture from the soil through the help of the foliage; by retarding the melting of heavy snows, thus, preventing freshets, and they help in forming a spongy layer capable of absorbing the heavy rain water, thus, preventing floods.

Climate is largely affected by the forests. The trees act as a windbreak, they give off moisture and oxygen which determines the character of the climate.

Let us now think of some of the ways in which we may help in conserving our trees. First: The most destructive element which attacks trees is fire. It starts usually from some thoughtless act an dsweeps acres of valuable forests to ruin. Let our motto be "Fight Fire."

Second: Insects are very harmful to our trees, eating the leaves and boring into the body of the tree, opening a way for the attacks of numerous tree diseases. Protect the birds and our trees will not suffer from insect attacks.

Careless lumbering methods have brought great losses upon our forests. Trees should be cut close to the ground and the tops should be utilized in one of the many ways in which they can be. The government of our country is trying to save the forests in many ways; some of these ways are: Allow only the cutting of dead and mature trees. Each tree that is cut be replaced with another.

The great open spaces where the timber has all been cut away is being replanted.

As a school boy I can study and learn of the forest conservation; I can help plant trees; I can help protect and bring back the birds by building homes for them, and I can use my influence in guarding against forest fires. The forest is one of our best friends, so may we all join hands in restoring this great natural resource that later generations may not bear the hardship that follows deforestation.

Editor Union-Banner:

Since it has been quite a while that there hasn't been anything in The Banner from this place I am asking space in the dear old Banner to say a few words about our Sunday School, W. M. U., and also the B. Y. P. U.

Our Sunday school is progressing nicely under the able management of our superintendent, Brother W. M. Headley. We have a real good Sunday school, but we would like to see more people attending Sunday School every Sunday morning. As every one knows, when a church has a progressive Sunday school it is something to be proud of, for the Sunday school is one of the greatest organizations of the church in winning souls to Christ.

We were real glad to see so many people out at the B. Y. P. U. last night. Group 1 was on last night. The program was, "The Business of the Baptist Church." Everyone who took part on the program did real well. We would have been glad if every member of Sardis church could have been present and heard the young people discuss the business of the Baptist Church. I am sure you would have gone home rejoicing over the work of the young people. We insist that more of the old people attend the B. Y. P. U. Remember, old people, it is your duty to assist the young people in their work, for you know they are the hope of tomorrow.

Last Saturday afternoon was our time for the W. M. U. meeting. We were delighted to see as many present as were on account of the threatening weather. Our ladies are doing noble work. We are pleased to see the wonderful interest the ladies are taking in the Ladies work of the church. We have 15 members on roll in our W. M. U. We feel that we, the ladies, can do the greatest mission work of the church. You will agree with me that when a church wants a big job done all it has to do is just ask its W. M. U., and the job is pulled over immediately.

If I haven't taken too much space, I will write more next week. Hoping to hear this read in the Banner this week, I am sincerely, your friend without eyesight. — George Anderson, Maplesville, Ala., R. F. D. No. 2.

"Future Farmers" Make Big Profits Using Modern Methods

Future Farmer—John Amos Arant, Pageland, South Carolina. 3746 Pounds Lint Cotton, 7 bales on 3 acres. Winner Regional Vocational Agricultural Student Contest.

The Smith Hughes vocational agricultural students, or, as they are called, "Future Farmers," are making wonderful progress in successfully applying modern methods in their project work. A number of cotton projects from each of the states of South Carolina, Georgia, North Carolina, Arkansas, Tennessee, Mississippi and Alabama show that the highest yield made was 1,248 pounds of lint cotton per acre, and the lowest, 550 pounds, or an average of 891 pounds.

These high yields, the records indicate, are the result of thorough preparation, good seed, frequent cultivation, and a liberal side-dressing of nitrate of soda, in addition to the fertilizers applied at planting time.

Each of the projects consisted of three acres and each boy was required to keep an accurate record of all operations and materials used, time required, and total costs involved. The average of these reports shows that it cost $72.14 per acre to grow cotton according to the methods practiced by these Future Farmers. When the sale proceeds were accounted for, a net profit of $140.99 per acre was made. When we recall that the average yield of cotton in the South is around 150 pounds of lint per acre, such records as these should arouse us to the realization that it is not altogether poor soils, but largely a matter of methods and the supplying of additional plant-food at the proper time to enable the plant to produce heavily.

Side-dressing cotton with quick acting nitrogen like Chilean Nitrate is generally considered the most profitable investment in growing the cotton crop. The constant fear of the ravages by the boll weevil make it all the more necessary to give the cotton plant every advantage to fruit early and rapidly. With good cotton weather and plenty of available plant food, it is astounding to see the growth and squares the plant produces in a few days' time. Nitrate of Soda melts into the soil moisture rapidly, and since the nitrogen is in the form plants like, it immediately goes to work, forcing the plant to grow and develop fruit rapidly.

"In growing cotton," said one of these teachers, "it is important that good seed be planted, that machinery be used wherever it will further reduce the cost of growing the crop, and that the plants be fed liberally with the right kind of fertilizer and at the proper time, if large yields and profits are to be made.

These Future Farmers are being encouraged in their efforts through a series of state and regional prizes, offered them by the Chilean Nitrate of Soda Educational Bureau.

PREACHING AT FRIENDSHIP

There will be preaching at Friendship church next Sunday morning and evening. Rev. A. L. Foshee, the pastor, will preach at 11 o'clock following Sunday school, and at 7:30 in the evening. The public has a cordial invitation to attend.

There will be no singing in the afternoon on account of the annual May singing at Providence. So, everybody meet us at Providence Sunday afternoon and let's have some real good singing.

EAST VIEW SECTION

A. C. NELSON, Manager

Mr. McKay and family have recently moved into our community. Mr. McKay will be engaged in farming. We welcome them into our midst.

Farmers of this section are very busy chopping cotton. On account of so much rain they are much delayed with their farming. Some have just finished planting.

Mother's Day was observed at the Congregational church. The choir rendered special music, led by Prof. Devaughn.

The Christian Endeavor presented a pageant program and the pastor, Rev. A. C. Nelson, preached a sermon appropriate to the occasion after which a flower service was presented. A large congregation was present, being estimated at 300.

The church will hold a special Children's Day service the second Sunday night in June and the Christian Endeavor will present a pageant program.

Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Bowles made a business trip to Clanton Saturday afternoon.

Rev. A. C. Nelson motored to Mt. Springs Saturday to fill his regular appointment Saturday and Sunday. He reports two members added to the church at these services.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Rushing of Verbena Route 1 visited their daughter, Mrs. Sallie Strength, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Smith visited the latter's mother, Mrs. Hutson, Sunday.

Mrs. Lue Nelson of Enterprise community fell down the steps at the Congregational church and broke her ankle. We hope her a speedy recovery.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our friends and relatives for their faithful service and attention and their kind words of sympathy to us during the short illness and death of our darling little boy. Brady was taken ill Monday, May 13, about 12 o'clock, and died Tuesday night. We also thank Dr. N. S. Johnson for his good service. He was 2 years 7 months of age, and was a pleasant child. We pray God's richest blessings may rest upon all of you.—Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Hathcock and Family.

INDIAN GRAVE NEWS

The Indian Grave B. Y. P. U. met Sunday night, May 19. As most of our members left and went to Mt. Pisgah for a Christian Endeavor program, we didn't have a president and Bible leader. We carried out an interesting program. Interesting talks were made on the following parts:

Introduction, Sam Hayes.

"The One Divine Institution," Ethel Traywick.

"A Church Must Maintain Itself," Josephine Spigener.

"A Church Must Grow," Mrs. L. F. Askins.

"A Church Must Serve Its Community," J. B. Deramus.

"Teach and Preach the Gospel," Eula Mae Edwards.

We are planning on taking a program to New Cedron next Sunday night. Every society of the Indian Grave Church is progressing nicely.

Famous Seed Breeder D. R. Coker, Says Side-Dressing Cotton Pays

Where is the cotton grower who is content with low acre yields? Wherever he is, his clear profits per acre at best are small—and in thousands of cases his crop is produced at a loss.

Investigations made by the U. S. Department of Agriculture in growing an acre of cotton show that the following items cost practically the same regardless of the yield: man and mule labor, rent, seed, and implement depreciation. If the yield be 300 or 1,800 pounds seed cotton per acre, these items of cost remain approximately the same. Yields of a bale per acre are not uncommon and usually return a fair profit to the grower. Bale-per-acre yields can be made only through proper fertilization, however.

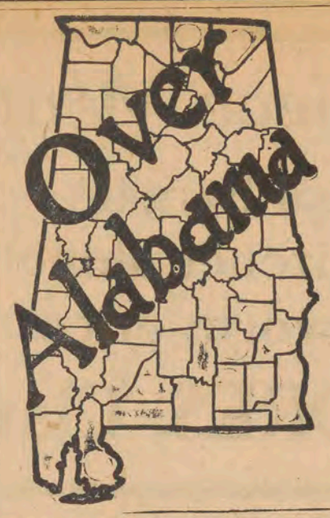
No farmer expects his dairy cow or hen to produce large quantities of milk or eggs, or his hogs to gain in weight, without proper feed. Like these animals, the cotton plant must be fed, too, if big yields are to be made.



D. R. Coker, the famous plant breeder and cotton authority of Hartsville, South Carolina, states: "I side-dress my cotton with 200 or more pounds of nitrate of soda per acre, dividing it into two or more applications. I prefer nitrate of soda," he says, "because of its immediate availability and alkaline reaction."

Circular No. 36 of the South Carolina Experiment Station states that from five tests made in 1928 an average increase of 340 pounds of seed cotton per acre was made from the side-dressing of 200 pounds Chilean nitrate applied just after chopping. Valuing seed cotton at 7 cents per pound and "soda" at $2.50 per hundred pounds, a profit of $18.80 per acre was made.

"Kill It Some More"

A young lady from the city, visiting in the country, encountered a harmless but threatening black snake. After her escort had killed the snake, she was still unsatisfied, and kept urging him to "kill it some more, kill it some more!" We are reminded of this by the experience of H. F. Bailey, Somerville, Ala., who was told that Chilean nitrate of soda would kill his land. He took a chance on this, and as a result got only 37 bales on 34 acres in 1928, bad as the season was. Mr. Bailey says he expects to "kill his land some more" in 1929, and that a lot of his neighbors are going to do likewise.

"Soda" Doubles Corn Yield

On the average upland soils of the Cotton Belt, there is no better guaranty of a good crop than an application of 100 to 200 pounds per acre of Chilean nitrate of soda when the corn is about knee-high. Such side-applications generally double and frequently treble or even quadruple the yield of corn. This is so, because quickly available nitrogen is the great need of corn on nearly all Southern soils, and this need is best supplied by Chilean nitrate of soda, the great natural nitrogen-carrier. Its effect in keeping corn a dark, bluish green through periods of hot, dry weather is remarkable, and, once used, no corn grower is ever again satisfied without it.

Do not forget that extra helping of Chilean Nitrate you promised your corn. When it is knee to waist high, apply one hundred to two hundred pounds per acre. This method will aid you in filling the corn crib at harvest time.

MACEDONIA

Hello folks! How is everybody? As for this country, it is not much, for it rains all the time and farmers can't work. Guess we all can fish as everybody is catching lots these days.

Miss Glennie Mahan of Montgomery, Ala., is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Matt Mahan, a few days.

Miss Maude Mahan is visiting her sister, Mrs. John R. Jones, formerly Rosa Lee Mahan, in Montgomery.

Say, folks, the second Sunday in June is our regular preaching day. We want you all to be sure and come and bring your friends and we will show you all a good time.

SAMARIA

We are always glad of having the opportunity of reading your good old paper, more than that, we are glad to have the opportunity of writing some to your paper.

Sunday was regular preaching day. Owing to the weather our crowd was rather small at both services. Bro. Nichols delivered two mighty fine sermons.

The B. Y. P. U. met at its regular hour Sunday night. A fine program was discussed by Group I. Several of our members were absent. We hope to have them back with us next Sunday. We have often times heard this saying, "You will never miss a person until they are gone." That is also true in our B. Y. P. U. We sure do miss our members when they are absent. Our B. Y. P. U. sure is doing some fine work. We are very fortunate to have such a fine president. He is ever at the post of duty. The most of the responsibility is placed in the hands of the president. And if you don't have one who is willing to put forth a little effort it will soon go dead. We are again inviting visitors to come and worship with us in Sunday school and B. Y. P. U.—A Reader.

Billie Retherford celebrated his tenth birthday last Friday by inviting forty of his little friends to come to see him at the home of Mrs. W. M. Wyatt.

In order that we might attend singings at other places we have decided to call off the regular singing at this place Sunday afternoon.—A. H. and E. L. Glasscock.

QUADRUPLE COUNTY PICNIC

On Thursday afternoon, May 15, 1929, State Normal school, Jacksonville, Alabama students from Coosa, Chilton, Shelby and Talladega Counties went on a picnic. They assembled under the large oak tree in front of the Girls Dormitory at 4:30 o'clock and hiked to Lover's Leap. Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Manier were chaperones.

They found it a difficult task to climb the mountain. On reaching the top they observed the sun as it solemnly withdrew from the western horizon. The gold and crimson seemed to reflect until the sky was one mass of heaving and roseate gold. They felt amply repaid for their struggle by the beautiful scenery and gorgeous sunset.

Twilight luncheon was served on a moss covered table beside a rippling brook. Just as old mother moon began to shed her beams on this great universe the picnickers started on their homeward journey.

The students from Chilton County who enjoyed the outing were Harlem Daniel, J. C. White and Buster Roebuck.

Here's where a car leads a tough life

NO General Motors car is turned out of the factory until a fleet of exact duplicates of that model has been found good by the engineers at General Motors' Proving Ground.

Such an advance model must prove itself from stem to stern. The tests involve speed, power, endurance, braking, riding comfort, handling ease; fuel, oil, and tire economy; body strength—every phase of car construction and performance. It's a tough life.

Such testing would be beyond the means or resources of an individual. 1268 acres of land at Milford, Michigan, are devoted to this outdoor laboratory where hills are steep and roads are vicious. Men who are among the world's best automotive engineers conduct the tests.

This tested performance is as much a part of a General Motors car as the chassis. You can't see it. You don't pay extra for it. But you know it as you give the car long use on the road.

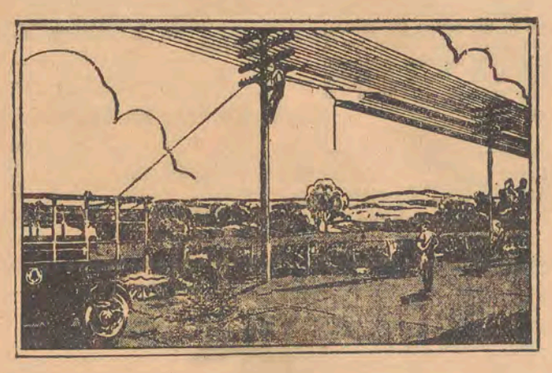
MODEL T FORD

THE Ford Motor Company is making a new car, but it is still proud of the Model T. It wants every owner of one of these cars to run it as long as possible at a minimum of trouble and expense.

Because of this policy and because of the investment that millions of motorists have in Model T cars, the Ford Motor Company will continue to supply parts as long as they are needed by Ford owners.

So that you may get the greatest use from your Model T, we suggest that you take it to the nearest Ford dealer and have him estimate on the cost of any replacement parts that may be necessary.



You will find this the economical thing to do because a small expenditure now will help to prevent costlier repairs later on, increase the value of the car, and give you thousands of miles of additional service.

For a labor charge of only $2.60 you can have your generator put in first-class condition. A new universal joint will be installed for a labor cost of $3. Overhauling the carburetor costs $1.50; steering gear, $3.50; radiator, $7.50. A complete overhauling of the rear axle assembly runs between $5.75 and $7 for labor. An average price of $22.50 covers the overhauling of the motor and transmission.

These prices are for labor only because the need and number of new parts depend on the condition of each car. The cost of these parts is low, however, because of the Ford policy of manufacturing and selling at a small margin of profit.

The U. S. A. is only a few minutes wide

THE Bell System is ever busy reducing the width of America and the distance between cities. For example, in the last five years 350 major improvements, as well as thousands of others whose aggregate importance mounts high, have been made in telephone central office equipment.

Improved operating practices have eliminated the necessity of your "hanging up" and being called back in 95 per cent of out-of-town calls, adding new speed and ease to your long distance service. You hold the wire and the operator does the rest.

Since New Year's Day, 1927, the average time for completing all out-of-town calls has been cut 35 per cent and at the same time the per cent of error has been further materially reduced.

There is no standing still in the Bell System. Better and better telephone service at the lowest cost is the goal. Present improvements constantly going into effect are but the foundation for the future's greater service.

CHEVROLET DELIVERED TO BUYER PART BY PART

It became necessary a few weeks ago, for the first time in the history of Chevrolet Motor Company, to dismantle a car after sale in order to deliver it to its purchaser. This interesting incident occurred in Acheen in northern Sumatra, an outpost typical of numerous forsaken corners which Chevrolet has been pioneering for years.

One of the last provinces of the Dutch East Indies to submit to Dutch rule, Acheen has never been totally free from recurring outbursts of trouble. As a result, progress has lagged. Because it is rich in oil and endowed with fertile soil, steps have been taken by the government to penetrate it with roads.

Not long ago, the Chevrolet dealer at Langsa received an order from the Department of Public Works for a Chevrolet truck to be delivered to a point where the authorities were busy with a road which is to run from Sigli on the north coast of Sumatra to Meulaboh on the west coast, a distance of about 220 miles. From Meulaboh a road already existed up to a point about 50 miles inland. It was from here that the road was to be cut through the jungle to link up with a similarly short road running inland from Sigli.

Ships do not call at Meulaboh so that it was impossible to transport the Chevrolet truck by this means. There was only one solution—the truck had to be dismantled and carried overland by coolies to the scene of operation. The work of dismantling was carried out by the dealer and the weary task of transporting the parts was started.

Without doubt it was the strangest caravan ever to move across this section of jungle land. A coolie, lugging a wheel, marched a little in advance. The cylinder block was in the custody of a particularly husky pair. And so on. The heavier parts were carried in shifts to divide the work equally.

The route led through almost impenetrable jungle, along narrow mountain paths and over ravines and rivers. On one occasion in the trek, a stream, spanned only by a cable line, blocked the route. Nothing daunted, the expedition chiefs dispatched the coolies with the parts for which they were responsible across the stream "on the wire."

Nearly a month was required to complete the jaunt. The day the last of the parts arrived the truck was assembled by the dealer's mechanic. The next day it was doing Trojan duty as Chevrolet trucks have done many times before in pioneering enterprises.

CORINTH SINGING

Despite the bad weather we had a good day. The house was called to order at 10:30, electing A. M. Jones chairman, Archie Jones, secretary.

A. M. Jones sang three songs and Archie Jones sang three songs. Then the services were turned over to Rev. E. A. Norris. He preached a wonderful sermon. Subject: "The wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is Eternal life." We adjourned one hour for noon and everybody enjoyed the refreshments.

The afternoon directors were Jasper Robinson, John William Cagle, Archie Jones, N. J. Jones, T. L. Robinson, Lee Robinson.

A solo was rendered by Jasper Robinson that was enjoyed by the class. The chairman sang the closing song and T. L. Robinson dismissed with prayer.

STATE CAPITOL News

Saving of approximately $1,100,000 in the next six years on the cost to patrons of required textbooks in the high schools of the State will result from new adoptions recently made by the State Textbook purchasing board. The figures show the cost of textbooks required of all students in the six high school grades to be $30.17 under the new adoptions, which take effect September 1, as compared with the present cost of $40.20, showing a saving of $10.03. Taking figures on high school enrollment for 1927-27, the latest available, and the cut in high school book costs amounts to $182,582.37 per annum. The new contracts will be in effect six years, and the saving in that time will total $1,095,494.22 on the basis of 1927-28 enrollment figures; as a matter of fact, the actual saving may be expected to be greater as high school enrollment increases. Figures recently published on reduction in cost of textbooks in the elementary grades as result of new adoptions showed a saving of over $6,000,000 in the next six years, and the figures for the high school brings the total saving to patrons in both elementary and high school textbook costs to well over $7,000,000 for the next six years.

The figures given here on cost of high school textbooks do not represent the total cost of all books to be purchased, as there are certain high school studies where the pupil is allowed to exercise an option in selecting the study, and prices will vary according to the study selected. The cost of these additional textbooks, for studies which are required but where the student has an option in selection makes total cost of books to be bought in the high school grades from 25 to 50 per cent more than the figures given above, the increase being greatest in the senior high grades, where the prescribed course of study is smaller. The optional feature involved many variations in prices, so that in making comparison between the new adoptions and present costs, in both cases figures are taken only for the specific textbooks which all students must have.

These figures show a saving in cost of textbooks in every high school grade but one, the junior 3, where there is a slight increase; however, the net saving per annum for the high school grades as a whole comes to $182,582.37. The following figures show saving per student, saving per grade on basis of 1927-28 enrollment and total saving, on the new high school textbook adoptions as compared with present prices:

Senior 1: Saving per child, $.14; enrollment 1927-28, 14,753; saving per grade, $2,065.42.

Senior 2: Saving per child, $2.34; enrollment 1927-28, 10,878; saving per grade, $25,454.52.

Just a Matter of $26,500,000

THE L. & N., in 1928, received only 80 cents and 5 mills for hauling the same quantity of freight that it received $1.00 for in 1921. This represents a reduction in the average rate per ton mile from 1.057c in 1921 to .851c in 1928, or about one-fifth of a cent. The reduction sounds insignificant in itself, but, applied to the 12,920,000,000 ton miles transported in 1928, it means that the L. & N's shipping patrons in 1928 saved over $26,500,000 as compared with what they would have paid at the 1921 rate per ton mile.

This vast saving, coupled with the greatly improved service, faster schedules, and prompter delivery of freight, is typical of the railroad service throughout the U. S. These items represent some of the benefits the shipping public is now enjoying at the hands of these railroads as a result of the tremendous investment of over $700,000,000 annually in the past nine years for property improvements, notwithstanding the fact that the railroads have never earned the fair return on their property which is allowed by law.

Don't forget that the railroads of this country furnish better and cheaper transportation service than those of any country in the world.

THORSBY SECTION

S. E. NORTON, Manager

A Successful Enterprise

Thorsby Fruit and Truck Growers Association is one of the oldest co-operative agricultural organizations with an unbroken record of stability and progress of any similar organization within the State of Alabama. The writer was among its original members and is still; though not engaged in either fruit or truck growing, very much interested in all that pertains to its prosperity. As year by year for a quarter of a century it has learned its lessons through adversity and success it stands today as a "Going Concern" that is attracting the attention of co-operative minded farmers as well as large buyers of food products scattered over a wide area.

The Strawberry season of shipping has just closed. Within less than thirty days 226 strawberry growers scattered over an area of 70 square miles have shipped under auspices of the Association some 33,836 crates of 24 quarts each, making 105 carloads and about 1,000 crates shipped by express. Total sales aggregate $100,875.28.

Among the largest growers S. P. Collins, 260 crates; J. D. Sutley, 312; J. H. Hamilton, 273; grown on one acre, Mrs. W. G. J. Dorminey, 240; grown on one acre, David Childress, 213; J. E. Dorminey, 210; Andrew Grenn, 150; Chas. A. Peterson, 141; C. R. Foss, 87, grown on half an acre. There were many others who did well, but we were not furnished their names and acreage not given with names published was not stated in our information.

The average selling price was around $3.00 per crate. One important feature of strawberry growing is the fact that it comes early in the season when the farmer is apt to be "Spring Poor" as we used to say about our live stock, and obviates having "all his eggs in one basket," so if some crops fail, he is not down and out for a whole year.

These farmers have learned to grow the stuff and leave the selling of it to the officers of the Association, who with the manager, Mr. J. Monroe Smith, they elect year after year. Carl C. Petersen is President, and M. J. Soberg, Vice President.

Some people do mighty foolish things which amount to a grim sort of humor, if it were not for the injustice they perhaps unthinkingly do to others. A man would hardly go to the expense of making a perfectly good drainage ditch and then use it for a dump for all the old can and trash he could collect about his place. Yet there are a good many people in Thorsby who are responsible for just that kind of foolishness.

The taxpayers of Chilton County and the municipalities in its borders have to pay for the upkeep of our roads. Every once in a while our roads are gone over at considerable expense and rounded up from edge to center, leaving good drainage ditches at the edges.

It is no uncommon sight almost anywhere in or about Thorsby to see that these ditches have been used as a dumping ground for accumulated refuse. If left clear they would serve their purpose for a long time. Clogged up they turn the water onto the roadway and it is soon destroyed and the work must be done over again to give our citizens the benefit of good roads. There are places even alongside our roadways, which judiciously used would admirably serve as a place to dump refuse, but they are not just where the ditches should be unobstructed.

Miss Ida Brueckner, a sister of Mrs. Fred Howard and Miss Margarett Vietman, both of Milwaukee, Wis., came to Thorsby Tuesday p. m. to make an extended visit to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Howard and family.

Last Sunday she and her daughter, Lena, Mrs. Howard Higgins, were dinner guest of Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Franklin. Mrs. Higgins has been with her mother for some time and has proved to be an efficient nurse. She with her husband, Rev. Howard Higgins, were teachers at the head of a Junior high school at Laurel Hill, Fla., where Mr. Higgins remained until the close of the term and arrived in Thorsby on Monday.

Mr. Tom Lessley left Monday for his work in Ohio, where he has been employed for the past year. Mr. John Lessley and Martin Nelson accompanied him and expect to take up work with or near him.

Different contests took place, one of the most interesting being the drawing of one another's picture. A picnic supper was served after which the Seniors adjourned to Helen Jenkins Hall for a rehearsal of their play.

DIES FROM EATING ASPIRIN

Brady Hathcock, the 3 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Mose Hathcock of Bethsalem community, died at the family home Tuesday night of last week. It was buried Wednesday at Bethsalem.

Dr. N. S. Johnson, who attended the child, reports that it took about 50 grains or 10 tablets of aspirin about 11 o'clock Monday morning. The child ate a hearty dinner, but before long began to get sluggish. The doctor was called Monday night. The child did not die until Tuesday night about 9 o'clock.

It is said that Brady and another little boy about his same age got a box of aspirin and played "doctor." The other boy took two tablets, but he did not like them, so he let Brady have all the rest of them. The boy that took only two was not hurt.

DR. EDGAR OUT OF OFFICE

Hope Is A Charming "Mimi"

Hope Hampton, who had won a high place in the film world before she ventured into the realm of music, surprised her public when she made her bow in grand opera with the Philadelphia Grand Opera Company in the lead role of "Manon." Nobody had ever thought of Hope as a singer, and some were skeptical when first announcements of her intentions were made public. Some of the critics took their seats at her premier, prepared to spend an unpleasant afternoon, but Hope fooled them and made them her friends, and glorifiers to a man, and woman. Subsequent to her Manon appearance she undertook the difficult "Mimi" role in La Boheme, and in this part she won the plaudits of the critics, and the rare honor of comparison with Geraldine Farrar in that role. Hope has a rich lyric soprano voice, real beauty, and she has been well trained in the art of the drama, and the combination makes of her a rare artist on the operatic platform. The photo shows Hope Hampton costumed for the role of "Mimi" in La Boheme.

Next Saturday Is Goodyear Day

Dealers Pledge To Sell 5,000 Tires To Show Loyalty To Company

The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., of Alabama, located at Gadsden, according to company officials, will be the finest equipped and most modern tire plant in the world. This plant will start off with a production of 5,000 tires per day.

Dealers in Goodyear Tires in this section of the country have pledged themselves to show the Goodyear officials that they can sell the output in one day. By doing this, it is pointed out that Goodyear will be encouraged to double the size of their southern plant.

To this end, Saturday, June 1st, has been set aside as Southern Goodyear Demonstration Sales Day. Every Goodyear dealer has accepted his share of the total of 5,000 tires to be sold on next Saturday. Goodyear tires are sold in Clanton by Dief's Service Station, which is pledged to sell 30 tires on next Saturday.

Mr. L. E. Diefenderfer is highly elated over the fact that Goodyear is soon to begin to build tires right here in Alabama. He says "The best way for us to show our appreciation for such a Southern plant turning out Southern-made tires, is to buy them. We have agreed to sell 30 tires as our part on next Saturday, and we mean to sell that many and more."

In this connection Mr. Diefenderfer is making a most unusual special offer for Goodyear Day. He will give away absolutely free a tube to fit every tire he sells.

Goodyear will have an investment of approximately $16,000,000 in Alabama and Georgia by June the first. The people of the South can force them to increase this investment by buying their products, said Mr. Diefenderfer. Continuing he says:

"Saturday is Southern Goodyear Day, and we will help make it a red letter day for Southern motorists. Five thousand tires will be the daily output of the great new Goodyear plant at Gadsden. Saturday in one great day sale we and other Goodyear dealers in this vicinity hope to sell more than that number. We want to show that even this big plant will have to be expanded to take care of the South's needs. We want to mark the opening of this plant with an appreciation sale.

"We offer you the popularly acclaimed 'world's greatest tires' at remarkably low prices, and for Saturday we will give you a tube free with every tire we sell. We will be up early and here late to serve you. We will show you why more people ride on Goodyear tires than any other kind, why Goodyears are superior in every way, and why the South has gone Goodyear."

HON. SAM. DUNWOODY DIED SUDDENLY SUNDAY

Hon. Sam Dunwody, Commissioner of Agriculture and Industries of Alabama, died suddenly at his home in Montgomery last Sunday afternoon. Mr. Dunwoody was a prominent farmer of Henry County. He was a member of the Legislature of 1923. He was elected commissioner of agriculture in 1926.

Mr. Dunwoody was a real dirt farmer and he practiced in the conduct of his office that same industry and close attention to business that has always characterized him as a farmer.

Elbert Kanter Visits Clanton

Many of his old friends who knew him several years ago when he lived in Clanton, were delighted to see Mr. Elbert Kanter back here for a brief visit Tuesday. When he got here he said he had only a few minutes to stay, but when he began to see his old friends and talk over olden times, we believe Elbert almost made up his mind to stay here. It seemed to us as he left we could see a wistfuless in his eyes that said he wished he were back in Clanton for good.

Mr. Kanter was a merchant here some eighteen or twenty years ago. He is now in the mercantile business at Boothton.

"I pass through Clanton quite often," said Elbert, "but mostly at night. Every time I come through here and see the bright street lights and nice show windows, I am reminded of the time when I was here twenty years ago when the only lights you could see at night was lightning bugs. If I had known then what a fine town Clanton was going to be I would not have left here. But it isn't too late to come back, yet is it?"

BRADFORD KNAPP IS INAUGURATED

Auburn, Ala., May 27.—Dr. Bradford Knapp was formally inaugurated president of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, on May 20 in connection with the annual commencement exercises. The inauguration came at the end of his first year at Auburn. Governor Bibb Graves presided at the inauguration and administered the oath of office.

In his inaugural address Dr. Knapp declared for a "greater Auburn thru consecrated service to the people of Alabama." He insisted that Auburn is "the cornerstone of education, agriculture, and industry in Alabama."

Addresses were delivered by Erskine Ramsay, capitalist and philanthropist, Birmingham, on the subject "Auburn and Industry," and Col. Clarence Ousley on the subject "Auburn and Agriculture." Other prominent educators from other institutions in Alabama and from institutions outside of the State were present to extend greetings to Dr. Knapp and best wishes to the institution over which he presides.

The occasion brought together leaders of education, industry, and agriculture in Alabama. College presidents, industrial leaders, and farm leaders got together at the inaugural banquet. Dr. George H. Denny, president of the University, strongly endorsed close coordination of educational forces, declaring that "the forces which bind the educational institutions of Alabama are infinitely greater than the forces which keep them apart." Dr. O. C. Carmichael, president of the Alabama College, Montevallo, spoke along the same line.

The occasion bespeaks a "greater Auburn" and through Auburn a "greater Alabama."

TO SURVIVING MEMBERS OF CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

"A number of those who were members of the Constitutional Convention of 1901 have written me that they think we should call and have a reunion of the survivors of that Convention. I am writing to ask what you think of the suggestion.

"If a majority of the survivors of this convention vote in favor of such a meeting, I shall cheerfully issue the call for the meeting.

"Kindly address your reply to Mr. G. H. Malone, Dothan, Ala., who is one of the honored members of the Convention, who thinks we should hold a reunion."—John B. Knox, Anniston, Ala.

Reynolds Looms For Job Choice

Nomination of Clanton Man For U. S. District Attorney

Washington, May 27.—Grady Reynolds, United States attorney for the middle district of Alabama, will be nominated by President Hoover for another term, it was reported on high authority today.

The department of justice, it became known, has made an investigation of Reynolds's office and given him a clean bill of health. The favorable report of the department is now before the president, and he is expected to send Reynolds's name to the senate for confirmation before adjournment of the extra session.

President Coolidge renominated Reynolds during the last days of the seventieth congress. But confirmation was held up due to the investigation of charges against Reynolds. Now that agents of the justice department have investigated and recommended Reynolds for reappointment, it is indicated that there will be no opposition to his confirmation from Senators Black and Heflin.

MRS. SALLIE TAYLOR TAKEN SUDDENLY ILL

Mrs. Sallie Taylor, aged wife of T. G. Taylor of Clanton, was taken suddenly ill Tuesday about 10 o'clock. In about an hour's time she was unconscious, and physicians say that she is not expected to live. It is said that she is suffering from a stroke of paralysis.

Mrs. Taylor, with a group of her close relatives, was on her way to the river to go fishing when she was stricken. She was rushed back home and a physician called. At the time we go to press Wednesday at noon, reports say that she is still alive but seems to be getting gradually weaker.

FILTER PLANT EXPECTED SOON

Mayor Eric Hart informs us this week that he is expecting the machinery and equipment for the waterworks filtering plant to arrive in the next week.

Upon arrival it will be promptly installed as the preliminary work of preparing buildings and foundations has been attended to already.

The filter plant will be installed in the brick building on the city property, which was originally constructed to house the steam pumping plant. Since the steam apparatus was replaced by electric equipment this building has been used only as a storage place.

Mr. J. Mell Martin, undertaker here, is in Birmingham part of this week attending the Funeral Directors meeting. He will return Wednesday night or Thursday.

Mrs. Duke Buried At Chestnut Creek

Mrs. Senie Duke, age 76, wife of Bill Duke of Clanton Route 2, died at the family home on the old Joe Foshee place Friday, May 24th, about noon. The remains were buried Saturday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at Chestnut Creek cemetery, Coopers. The funeral was conducted by Rev. Kelley; Martin in charge.

Mrs. Duke is survived by her husband, two sons and two daughters. They are: Will Duke of Sylacauga, and Bee Duke of Clanton Route 2; Mrs. John Parker of Clanton and Mrs. Bud Miller of Coosa County. There are only two surviving sisters: Mrs. Tom Jones of Wetumpka and Mrs. L. Smith of Sylacauga.

Mrs. Duke, who before her marriage was Miss Senie Teel, was born in Tallapoosa County. While she was yet young her parents moved to Coosa County where she later was married to Bill Duke. About 30 years ago they moved to Chilton County and have lived here ever since that time.

WILL BEAN'S STRAWBERRY CROP

Prof. W. T. Bean was in Clanton last Saturday for the first time in several weeks, having just recovered from a seige of typhoid fever. While here he called at the strawberry office and received his checks for this year's shipments of strawberries all in one lump, and a pretty good lump it was. The total amount was over $1,400. His largest check for a single day's shipments was $222.37. Mr. Bean has a patch of 3 1-2 acres in strawberries.

Thirtieth Year Singing Sunday

Firestone Will Broadcast Races

We have just been advised by Mr. Mack Wyatt of Clanton Service Station, local Frestone Tire dealers, that the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co., of Akron, Ohio, has completed a nation-wide 47-station radio hook-up to broadcast the Indianapolis automobile races today (Thursday). This is the largest radio recognition ever given to the famous Indianapolis races.

Graham McNamee, celebrated radio announcer, will give a minute by minute graphic account of the happenings during the last hour. Harvey S. Firestone and Capt. E. V. Rickenbacker, famous American race driver, will speak. The three winning drivers and famous sports writers will also address the radio audience.

The broadcast will be made from two to three o'clock to-day direct from the speedway at Indianapolis. Station WAPI of Birmingham is included in the hook-up. The local Firestone dealers invite their friends to tune in on this big party which is sponsored by Firestone.

A NEW-COMER AT STANTON

Mr. C. E. Cagle has recently moved his family from Sylvania in DeKalb County to Stanton. He was a visitor to Clanton Tuesday and expressed himself as greatly pleased with his new location.

Mr. Cagle is a cripple man who received permanent injuries while with the A. E. F. in France. He selected Stanton as a place to live because he finds there a good school in which to educate his children.

The editor of The Union-Banner became acquainted with Mr. Cagle some years ago in DeKalb County. We are glad to welcome him and his family as a resident of Chilton County.

MR. TEEL AND MISS KRIEDER MARRIED

A wedding of much interest to many friends occurred in Clanton last Thursday morning when Mr. Vernie L. Teel and Miss Hazel Krieder were joined in the bonds of matrimony.

The ceremony was performed at the Methodist church by Rev. Ernest A. Childs. While the principals in the wedding had taken very much pains to keep the culmination of their romance a sort of secret, they were themselves somewhat surprised to find a number of their friends on hand at the wedding hour with a full supply of rice and old shoes with which to give them an appropriate send-off.

The bride is a very popular young lady, having been in Clanton for quite a while as stenographer in the law offices of Mr. Lawrence F. Gerald. She came here from Montgomery. Mr. Teel is a most estimable young man who came here from Rockford two years ago and is employed by The Union-Banner.

Soon after their wedding the happy couple left by auto for a trip to Rome, Georgia. They returned to Clanton Sunday night. They will have apartments in the home of Mrs. M. B. Arant.

CULTIVATOR DEMONSTRATIONS THIS WEEK

County Agent Stapp is engaged this week in cultivator demonstrations at different points in the county. He reports a fine meeting for this purpose at the farm of Lake Thompson near Oak Grove Tuesday afternoon.

International Harvester and B. F. Avery cultivators are being used in the demonstrations. These are in charge of Mr. Lee of the International and Mr. Meigs from Avery's.

Navigation Meeting At Capital Friday

Conference To Consider Opening of Coosa-Alabama River For Boats

Governor Graves's conference in Montgomery Friday of this week to consider plans for development of the Coosa-Alabama river navigation system, will be attended by approximately 100 business and industrial leaders, including Gen. William L. Sibert, chairman of the Alabama State Docks Commission, of Mobile, and Capt. W. P. Lay, of Gadsden.

The conference is to be opened at the Jefferson Davis Hotel at ten o'clock, with Governor Graves presiding. Besides the leaders who are coming as representatives of private and civic interests, it is expected that cities bordering on or near the river routes will be represented by large numbers of delegates.

Clanton is close enough to the Coosa River to be very much interested in this proposal to establish navigation. By virtue of the power plants built in this vicinity by the Alabama Power Company, the whole of Chilton County's thirty-odd miles of the Coosa River is already navigable, with the exception of locks or passageways at the power dams.

We do not know that anybody from Chilton County has received an invitation to this conference, but regardless of that, we are much interested in the proposal and if definite plans are put to work, we believe the program will receive an enthusiastic reception here.

The Union-Banner is particularly glad to note the name of Capt. Lay among those who will attend the conference. Capt. Lay is the original Coosa River booster. He is the daddy of the Alabama Power Company. It was his dreams that built the big power plants in Chilton and other counties of this state. He also had navigation dreams at the same time, and we hope he may live to see boats plying the Coosa River from Rome, Georgia, to the Gulf of Mexico.

LONNIE JONES DIED TUESDAY NIGHT, 28TH

Mr. Lonnie Jones, age 26, son of Jack Jones of Lomax, died at the hospital in Clanton Tuesday night after an illness of several weeks. The body was buried at Lomax by Martin at three o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Hattie Jones, and two small children.

Mr. Jones enlisted in the United States Army at the age of 14 years. He was sent to France with the first contingent of the Rainbow Division. Just before being sent to the front for battle action it was found out that he was only 15 years of age, and he was promptly sent back home and discharged. Prior to his recent illness Mr. Jones was fireman at the cotton mill in Clanton.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan W. Parrish and son, David Lee, of Jordan Dam, Wetumpka, were in Clanton a little while Wednesday.

PROTRACTED MEETING, CALERA

166 New Members In Farm Bureau

The Farm Bureau office reports that a total of 166 new members have been added to the county organization as a result of the membership campaign that has been put on during the past two weeks. This brings the total Farm Bureau membership in the county to about 400.

The membership campaign has been conducted by T. J. Giles and Mr. J. F. Powers of the Alabama Farm Bureau, and Mr. O. C. Paulk, field agent of the county farm bureau. Mr. Paulk will continue the work the balance of this week.

Mr. Paulk reports that he finds the interest among the farmers of the county to be very encouraging for the Farm Bureau, and he believes the growth of the membership will be steady in the future. According to Mr. Paulk, those who have already enlisted in the organization are greatly pleased with the benefits derived therefrom.

Badly Run-Down

"Six years ago, I was very much run-down," says Mrs. Olympia Kight, of Lovett, Ga. "I did not sleep well, and was weak and restless. I dragged around the house with not enough strength to do my daily tasks. I worried a lot, and this disturbed state of mind reacted on my health.

"I had often read of Cardui, so I thought I would try it. I soon began to improve after I had taken Cardui for a while.

"It was astonishing how much I picked up. I slept better; my appetite improved, and that awful dragging-down feeling left me.

"I was so much better that I continued taking Cardui until I felt perfectly well."

Cardui has been used by women for over 50 years.

WHO PAYS THE TAXES?

"In the last analysis," says a western editor on the subject of tax reform,—"in the last analysis, the public pays all the taxes. Political evasion can not becloud this fact.

The first statement is undoubtedly true. As to whether or not political evasion can becloud the fact is open to question. Anyhow it tries hard enough. The public does pay the taxes. This is something that should be understood by every American whether he be a property owner or not. For if one possesses no tangible property on which taxes can be levied, he must eat, wear clothing, pay rent, electric bills and so on, and higher taxes are always reflected in the cost of living. The manufacturer, the business man and the public utility owner pass the taxes on to the consumer, but the consumer must pay them because there is nobody else to whom he can pass them and he must eat, clothe himself and have shelter if he is to live.

Politicians who practice demagoguery often sing a siren song about reducing the poor man's taxes and shifting the burden on to the other fellow. But trying to do it is another story. The way to lower taxes is to provide more economy in government and more efficiency in government. Attempts to hang the burden on to somebody else always result in boomerangs.

The federal government has realized this in its program of tax reduction and has coupled sane reduction with economy in operation. And at the same time surpluses have been applied to reducing the great debt which came upon us as a result of the World War. Reducing this debt has in turn reduced interest and carrying charges with a resultant benefit to the whole people. As the Boston Transcript recently put it:

"It is a thing unexampled in the history of nations that the United States should have been able, in a period of less than ten years, to reduce its war debt from $25,4778,592,-113 in August, 1919, to $16,808,-711,272 on March 31, 1929. The reduction of more than eight and a half billion dollars has already enormously reduced the amount of money that has to be raised for interest by taxation. Another ten years of this policy will leave the people with less burden of debt, relatively to the resources of the country, than they had even when the debt of the nation was around $2,000,000,000."

Here is the real proof of financial efficiency and orderliness in the economic phases of our government. Along with debt reduction has gone sane tax reduction all down the line. There has been no cheap attempt to fool the voters by trying to saddle the tax burden on to any particular class of citizens. Economy and efficiency in government are the things which count. And these qualities should be carried into our local units of government as well.

We are not usually given to making predictions, but we are willing to bet that a fair percentage of the errors made in the forthcoming radio spelling bee will be blamed on static. —New Orleans Times-Picayune.

TAKING PICTURE OF EVERY DRUNK HE SAW

Somebody writing in the editorial columns of The Opp Weekly News, of which J. L. Kimbro is editor, says:

"Editor Kimbro carried a kodak with him and intended taking a picture of every drunk he saw. We may have moving pictures by the editor next week. The films may be faulty and not register; they may be distorted because the editors fails to hold the kodak on the level. We offer no criticism for the distortion—the best of preachers often make mistakes when taking pictures. The eitor went to Canada, you know."

We would not be surprised at a little distortion on the part of a Primitive Baptist preacher who supported Al Smith for president. And of course the best of preachers often make mistakes when taking pictures (in Canada) and when fooling with wet politics (in Alabama).

NO MONOPLY ON LEARNING

There are some Americans, knowing very little about America, who think that most of the learning and scholarship of the world are confined to Europe and the British Isles.

They would be astonished to discover there are 150,000 American volumes in the British Library of Political and Economic Science in London. And these books are being added to at the rate of 6,000 a year. In the great Bodleian library in Oxford, one of the most remarkable collections of books and manuscripts in the world, there are so many American books that storage space is a difficult problem.

In the old days books were chained to the library shelves. As far as thousands are concerned, they might as well be now. Let's be glad books are no longer chained up. Be glad you can read "The Magic Island," by Seabrook. Be glad you can read, if you didn't do so several years ago, "The Mind in the Making," by Robinson.—Harrisburg Telegraph.

GAME AND FISHERIES

An opinion has recently been rendered by the Attorney General which has been carried by the press in some parts of the state under the caption, "Law against seining does not apply to running streams."

As a matter of fact the opinion was rendered in reference only to seining without minnows without permission, and has nothing whatsoever to do with seining for other fish. It is strictly a voilation of the law to seign for any fish or fishes (except minnows to be used for bait) in any stream or public body of water in the state.

It is also a violation of the law to sein for minnows in a body of water entirely on the land of another without permission, but this does ot apply to running streams, and therefore seining for minnows in a running stream is not in itself a violation of the law, but seining for minnows in a pond wholly on another's land without owner's permission would be a violation of the law. This provision was made solely for the protection of the land owner on whose land the body of water lies.

It is positively a violation of the law to seign for any fish except minnows for bait, in any running stream of the state, and in seining for minnows, the only seine which may be used is a regulation minnow seine which is not over 12 feet long and 5 feet wide.

MOTOR VEHICLE TAXES

The Alabama Taxpayer, a publication "devoted to the interests of Alabama taxpayers," says the following is "the motor vehicle contribution in 1928" to the tax funds of the State of Alabama:

Registration or license tax $3,616,-666; gasoline excise tax (4c per gallon) $6,341,303; lubricating oil tax (2c per gallon) $132,190; general property tax (state and county) $609,565; total $10,789,7274.

It is explained that the gasoline excise tax does not include gasoline taxes levied by counties, cities and towns; that the lubricating oil tax is 60 per cent of the total tax paid; and that the general property tax is paid by the idividual owner when tag is applied for, and does not include taxes levied by cities and towns. In conclusion the statement is made that for the year 1928 the motor vehicle paid directly and indirectly to the state, counties, cities and towns taxes in excess of $12,-000,000.

MARINE CORPS ACTIVITIES

Through the courtesy of the U. S. Marine Corps Recruiting Station, at 1927 1-2 Second Avenue, Birmigham, Ala., a part of the Marine Corps activities are furnished: They were first organized in Philadelphia in 1775, the Corps has continued to serve with honor as an integral part of the Navy during times of peace and war. Today its personnel numbers 1,200 officers and about 18,000 men.

May parents are now seriously considering the future of sons who have just completed school. These mothers and fathers of the new generation are, very naturally, anxious to see their boys take an honorable position amongst their fellows and become economic assets to the community.

Perhaps college is out of the question because of financial conditions. Nor can the boy enjoy the advantages of a course in the higher military school, where habits of obedience, cleanliness and mental and physical co-ordination are acquired. It is indeed a serious problem, and I offer a solution that has many times proved successful. If your son be 18 years of age or older, why not allow him to enlist in the United States Marine Corps? Why not ecourage him to do so for his own good? And as he comes home on his first furlough, stalwart and tanned, you will see no longer the boy, but the MAN that you wished him to be.

His associates will be clean-cut, self-respective men, and with these agreeable companions he will travel throughout the world, acquiring manly virtues that will reflect credit upon himself and his parents. If he wishes to broaden his knowledge still further, the Marine Corps Institute —closely allied with the International Correspondence Schools—will provide free courses in many subjects of great variety which he may study in his spare time. Seven thousand marines are now taking advantage of this extraordinary opportunity, and many thousands have already completed their studies and are using the knowledge to better themselves in civil life.

When he leaves the service after four years, he will know what he wants, and how to stick to it until he gets what he wants. He will have the priceless asset—good health—greater in value than material wealth. He will, indeed, be an economic asset to his community—to ANY community.

There will be a working at the Primitive Baptist church at New Harmony in the cemetery Friday, May 31st. We ask everybody who has some dear one buried here to help do the work. NEW FORD FINANCE COMPANY MAKES IT EASIER TO BUY FORD

Universal Credit Company Developing Great National Organization To Handle Model A Payments

One of the developments of the past year which created national interest in both automotive and financial circles was the organization of Universal Credit Company for the purpose of financing exclusively the time sales of Ford products thruout the country. Ultimately service of a similar nature will be provided in all countries where Ford products are sold.

Universal Credit Company is a specialized financial institution created to provide uniform and authorized time payment plans at low cost for the purchase of Ford products on an instalment basis. The Company in the first year of business just closed has made sound and gratifying progress. The reception accorded the authorized Ford Finance Plans by the public and Ford dealers in the 21 large cities where branch offices have been established is indeed impressive.

Today UCC has purchased instalment contracts in excess of $75,000,000 which establishes a new record in installment financing for an institution which has only been in operation for one year. It is anticipated that the volume of business handled will exceed $25,000,000 monthly from now on. In the short space of a year, the UCC organization has grown from an organization of ten people to one employing almost a thousand.

Already there has come a realization that the Universal Credit Company was created primarily for the sound financing of the Ford dealer and the purchaser, and not with the primary object of profit. Its establishment is thus squarely in conformity with the reiterated Ford policy of creating and developing every possible economy from mine to consumer, for the benefit of the public.

The purpose is to reduce the cost of credit, to the individual who buys on time, commensurate with sound business policies. This reduction in the cost of credit is made possible by the many economies that arise from the operation of an authorized plan, on the basis of nation-wide volume, and dealing exclusively with the Ford dealer organization. Simplicity of forms, special bookeeping and statistical machinery and general uniformity of procedure all under centralized control and management, are constantly contributing to cut these costs.

This cost of credit is just as vital as the cost of any of the material that goes into the building of the automobile. It is in every sense a commodity which becomes a part of the completed article before it is ultimately sold to the public.

Thus the Universal Credit Company's low finance charges are equivalent to a price reduction on the Model A car and other Ford products.

Then there is that important matter of good will. A buyer delights in dealing with an organization that gives him prompt, courteous service, that deals fairly with him, that maintains scrupulously the standard of its product and that is constantly instilling in that buyer a sense of reliability and confidence and appreciation of the seller and his product.

UCC is serving a still greater purpose in the economic and social phases of our national life. In addition to adding to the advancement of organized industry, UCC is at the same time contributing substantially to the happiness and contentment of society. By extending credit to every deserving person in the nation at the lowest possible cost, UCC is helping to bring greater health and happiness to a large group of American people, heads of families as well as their children. In the process of transition from the crowded city to the healthy country districts, UCC is aiding the American family to establish itself with economic advantage in more desirable locations and is thus helping to raise the standard of American living conditions.

How to Raise Poultry

By Dr. L. D. LeGear, V. S., St. Louis, Mo.

Dr. LeGear is a graduate of the Ontario Veterinary College, 1892. Thirty-six years of veterinary practice on diseases of live stock and poultry. Eminent authority on poultry and stock raising. Nationally known poultry breeder. Noted author and lecturer.

HOW ABOUT "MACHINE" HATCHING OF CHICKS

Editor's Note—This is another story in a series of 52 stories on poultry raising written by the well known national poultry authority, Dr. L. D. LeGear, V. S., of St. Louis. The entire series will appear in this paper. Our readers are urged to read them carefully and clip them out for future reference.

I once overheard a rather animated discussion of the relative merits of natural and artificial means of hatching eggs. Each side of the question had its ardent champions, each of which was absolutely sure that his view was the only one possible for any person of good judgment. In the course of the debate, one young fellow remarked that you couldn't depend on hens because they were too darned tempermental. "W-a-a-l" drawled one rather ancient defender of nature's methods, "if you kin find anything more tempermental than one of them there innykebaters, I'd like to see it!"

That reply indicates a point of view that was once quite a bit more general than it is now. There was unquestionably a time, not so long ago at that, when the incubator was not the reliable machine it is today. Nowadays, a good up-to-date incubator that is run according to instructions is equally as dependable in its own way as the family clock. It is hardly an exaggeration to say that a good modern incubator practically runs itself. If there are any temperamental interferences with the progress of artificial hatching, it is more usually shown in the operator than in the machine.

I realize that the question as to which is better, the hen or the incubator, is still a debatable one to many people. I can best answer that question by saying that when the use of hens is possible, just as good results are possible as can be obtained with the best of incubators and vice versa. There is really no difference in results when proper methods are employed in the use of both. There are, however, a number of limitations to the use of hens which under certain circumstances make the use of incubators absolutely necessary.

A hen can not go broody at will and there is no known way to make her do so to suit the convenience of her owner.

This business of broodiness must also be considered where very large numbers of eggs must be hatched all at one time or where the incubating of large hatches must necessarily be a more or less continuous process over an extended period of time. In such cases, it would be a serious problem if not an impossible one, to find enough broody hens to carry on the work successfully. In short, to the man who makes the raising of chickens his whole business or even one of his major activities, there is no question what to use. He must use incubators.

There is also considerable justification for the remark made by the incubator advocate mentioned at the beginning of this article. Hens are very temperamental creatures at times. You never know when one of them is going to get tired of her job and leave you flat with a batch of partly hatched eggs spoiled by her neglect. The man who depends on his chickens for all or any material part of his income cannot afford to take such chances.

It is also true that chicks hatched by hens are more likely to be infested with lice and other vermin than those hatched in incubators.

Now let us take a look at the other side of the question. When is the use of hens more desirable?

Generally speaking, however, I should say that any one who goes in for chicken raising on any considerable scale will find the incubator more nearly a necessity than a mere convenience. It gives absolute control of the hatch, reduces labor, insures chicks at any season and provides large flocks of practically the same age. The machine is always ready for use at any season and no waiting for it to go broody. The cost of operation is very small; there is little mess connected with the operation, and with relatively little care it can be kept free from vermin and disease germs.

In conclusion let me add just a word of caution. If circumstances justify the purchase of an incubator and you decide to get one, don't make the mistake of buying one too cheap. At best you will save only a few dollars and losses due to inferior construction may soon eat up the saving many times over. Whether you buy a hot-air type or hot-water type is not important. I have had equally good results from both. It also makes little difference what make you buy altho I counsel buying some well known make that you can count on as being all it is represented.

When you have made your purchase, set it up carefully and run it strictly according to the manufacturer's directions. If you do that, you will find your incubator both a time saver and a money saver—a welcome and even necessary adjunct to the raising end of your flock.

THEME BY HILDA HART

The following theme was written by Hilda Hart, 12 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Hart of Clanton, Alabama:

SUBJECT:

"The Value of Forest Conservation and What Can I as a Schoolgirl Do Toward the Preservation of Tihs Great National Resource."

"What would we do without forests?" Everyone should ask himself this vital question. It is a horrible thing to think of, yet, the way we are carelessly cutting our trees it appears to us that the people of the United States are going to pay the same penalty which China is now paying.

Every town should own a forest. It would greatly decrease the present high cost of lumber products. It would also help in supplying the town with lumber which would otherwise have to be imported from another place, thus, avoiding high freight rates.

Forest Conservation means "protecting and saving our trees." It means to keep away from the forests the things that are destructive and harmful to the trees.

In our present methods of lumbering we use about thirty-three and one-half per cent of the tree, leaving the other sixty-six and one-half per cent to decay and go to waste.

This waste can not last much longer, because our forests are fast diminishing. We are cutting our trees four times faster than they grow.

Our forests are one of the most valuable resources we people in America have, yet it is the one that is most sadly neglected and widely abused. The trees are a great factor to our everyday lives. In olden times the people depended entirely upon the forests for their homes, and for fuel to burn. Many homes today are built from forest material.

Every boy and girl of school age should know something of our forests, so that they may fully understand the distress that comes to those who have not trees.

The older generation of today has not yet realized what the younger generation will suffer without the beautiful forests.

We have only a few acres now covered in virgin timber in our state of Alabama, but we are awakening to the facts of saving these trees and restoring to the many idle acres of land a new growth of trees.

Life, as one great writer has said "Is a bundle of habits." And one of the best habits we can form is to study the real value of trees and do the things we can to keep them with us always. Forests are useful in many ways, some of these ways are:

First: They re-build worn out soil, by adding plant food.

Second: They furnish man with lumber and other building material.

Third: They beautify the land, attracting many tourists and campers.

Fourth: They furnish a home for many kinds of beautiful birds.

Fifth: They influence climate.

Sixth: They prevent floods.

Seventh: They are the homes of numerous wild animals.

Eighth: They create a more healthful atmosphere.

Ninth: They prevent soil erosion.

Tenth: They add wealth to any community.

Since we know of our forests, and why we should protect them, here are some of the ways I can help in safe-guarding the trees:

By not throwing any burning substance on dry leaves and grass.

By not injuring or abusing the small trees.

By not cutting the trees when unnecessary.

By being a friend and protector to the birds.

By studying their chief value, and by using my influence for their protection.

FARM AND HOME FACTS

Remove fruit stains while they are fresh or they may not come out at all. Boiling water poured over the fresh stain makes it disappear.

Storing eggs in the spring for use in the fall is feasible on farms or in city homes. If you do not know how ask your demonstration agent to tell you; or write to the Poultry Department, Auburn, Ala.

Those farmers in Alabama who did not home-mix their fertilizer for cotton should consider top dressing it with nitrate of soda because most ready-mixed fertilizers do not contain enough nitrogen.

Corn yields are boosted by applying nitrate of soda for a top dressing about 45 days after corn is planted. The experiment station at Auburn recommends 100 to 200 pounds per acre.

Reports from farmers show that boll weevils are appearing in large numbers. W. A. Ruffin, extension entomologist at Auburn, says that poisoning boll weevils is profitable business if it is done properly at the right time. Consult your county agent.

"I find that progressive and successful farmers are farmers who are reading. They take their local papers, a daily paper, one or more farm papers, and a general magazine, in addition to special magazines for women and children."—P. O. Davis. Auburn, Ala.

One of the most effective and economical poisons for the well-known potato bug is calcium arsenate, with which most farmers are familiar because it is a boll weevil poison. For potato bugs it may be used as either a spray or dust.

SEARCH FOR THE BEST MUSICAL VOICES IN COUNTRY

The search for the best musical voices in the United States will be extended into Chilton County. Announcement is made by P. O. Davis, of Auburn, who is manager of the Alabama Atwater Kent Audition for 1929, that G. W. Moore, Clanton, has been selected by the State committee to serve as county chairman to select the two best voices between the ages of 18 and 25—one a young man and the other a young lady.

The winners in this county will be started toward one of the national prizes. From the county contest they will enter a district contest with other county winners in this section. This district contest will take place early next fall.

The district winners will compete in a State audition from Station WAPI in October. The Alabama winers will the ncompete with the state winners of tne other states in the Southeast. The two winners in this audition will enter the final audition which will be the national audition to be broadcast from New York in December.

Cash prizes totaling $25,000 will be awarded the national winners. Winners of first place (one boy and one girl) will be awarded $5,000 each and two years' tuition in an American conservatory. Each of the four next will get one year's tuition and cash prizes ranging from $3,000 down to $1,000.

Mr. Moore is very anxious to find the two best voices in Chilton County. A local contest will be necessary to discover them. It will not be a popular contest but a contest to discover outstanding talent capable of the greatest development.

Several others will serve with Mr. Moore on this committee. Regardless of the locality in which the best voice is located the committee is determined to find it. A contest will be arranged at a suitable date in order that all who are interested may compete. Competent judges will decide the two winners. Mr. Moore is very anxious to talk with those who are interested.

Mrs. O. C. Carmichael, wife of the president of Alabama College, Montevallo, is chairman of the State committee and Mrs. Wade Carlisle, Roanoke, president of the Alabama Federation of Music Clubs, is vice-chairman. Other members of the committee are Mrs. W. S. Wilson, Dothan; Mrs. B. L. Noojin, Gadsden; Prof. William Naylor, Judson College, Marion; Mrs. Mary Drake Askew, Auburn; Mrs. Sara Hunt Vann, Station WAPI, Birmingham; Miss Lily Byron Gill, Womans College, Montgomery; Mrs. J. H. McCoy, Athens College for Women, Athens; Mrs. Harry N. Eddins, 1810, 6th Street, Tuscaloosa; Mrs. John L. Moulton, 1755 Dauphin Way, Mobile; and Mr. Alonza Meek, Selma.

LOCAL MARINE RETURNS FROM CENTRAL AMERICA

After some interesting experiences in Nicaragua, Austin E. Mims, of Clanton, Ala., arrived at New York City recently on the transport St. Mihiel, which brought back a number of Marines who had completed periods of duty abroad. Following his arrival at the Brooklyn Barracks he was transferred to duty at the naval prison, Portsmouth, N. H.

Austin went to Nicaragua with one of the many detachments of Marines which have been assigned to duty there within the last two years. With peaceful conditions prevailing in nearly all parts of Nicaragua, large numbers of Marines have been withdrawn from that country, several hundred having returned to the United States within the last few weeks.

It is not likely that Austin will be transferred from his present station as he will complete his enlistment within a few months. He is 22 years old, was born in Clanton, and made his home with his father, Mr. Harve L. Mims, on rural route No. 8, prior to joining the Marine Corps at Birmingham in October, 1925.

Myrtle: "Who is that woman you were complimenting on her three perfectly beautiful children?"

Vivienne: "Oh, that's the mother of those three awful kids who get on my nerves so."

MRS. JOE FOSHEE ILL

We learn that Mrs. Joe Foshee, widow of the late Joe Foshee, of Clanton, is seriously ill at the home of Mr. Dan McKinnon on Lock 12 road about two miles from town. Mrs. Foshee has been very feeble for several years. She is about 80 years old.

MONROE WYATT IMPROVING

Mr. Monroe Wyatt, proprietor of Clanton Service Station, is reported to be gaining ground now in his long and hard fight against a serious illness with pneumonia. He was brought back home last week from a Birmingham hospital where he underwent an operation. His many friends are glad that he is getting better, and hope to see him out in a few more days.

STAPP WILL GO TO KIWANIS CONVENTION

Mr. Cohen E. Stapp, president of Kiwanis Club of Clanton, will go to Milwaukee, Wisconsin to attend the Kiwanis International Convention on June 23-27. He will make the trip with the Alabama delegation which goes as a party under direction of the Elliott Tours of Talladega. There will be about 100 Alabama Kiwanians in the party.

Mr. William Ewart Corley, who is in the printing business at Demopolis, spent Saturday and Sunday with parents here. Ewart says he is making out well at Demopolis, and also adds in parenthesis that he has gotten to be "some printer" since he left Clanton.

He was a big oleo and storage henfruit man and she was a slip of a girl whose eyes were filled with guileless innocence. But, as he paid the staggering check in the supper club, he began to wonder if maybe . .

"Say!" he ejaculated sternly. I've just given you a string of pearls and now you want an imported car. Did you ever hear of the goose that laid the golden eggs?"

"Ooo oo, no!" she cooed eagerly. "Who is he?"

An ambitious young man and one who had already amassed a million were talking things over.

"This correspondence school advertisement says that a man's financial success depends upon what he does with his evenings," the first said.

"That's absolutely correct," stated the other with authority. "I would not be wealthy today if I hadn't spent every night courting an heiress."

The suave sheik, having attempted all the tested methods of getting a reply out of the girl sitting beside him on the park bench, tried another line.

"Why, surely you remember me!" he exclaimed. "We played together as children."

"Maybe so," the young woman answered, concealing a yawn. "But I don't feel like playing now."

The din from the adjoining apartment had been terrific, and at last the householder hurled his paper to the floor in a rage.

"That boy has been playing his infernal saxaphone for hours now!" he yelled. "If he doesn't quit, I'll go crazy!"

"You are crazy," his wife returned calmly. "He quit twenty minutes ago."

EDUCATIONAL PREPARATION A GROWING REQUIREMENT FOR SUCCESS IN MODERN BUSINESS

Death-Knell Sounded for Guesswork and Slipshod Methods by Advancing Technical Proficiency in Finance, Trade and Industry—How Banks Are Developing a Professionally Qualified Generation of Younger Bankers.

By HAROLD STONIER
American Bankers Association

THE great school of Experience is still holding classes in America, but the scientific spirit of the age has so generally invaded the workshops of industry and trade that they have largely become technical research and training laboratories in themselves and are no longer run on the old-fashioned cut-and-try methods of former generations when Experience was considered the only teacher. It would be hard to find a working force in any pre-eminently successful business or industrial organization in the United States today but what the dominating leadership is schooled in the scientific principles of its specific field, whether manufacturing, merchandising or finance. The rapidly advancing standards of business in this country, with their relentless demands for efficiency as the only hope for survival in the competitive struggle for economic existence, has sounded the death-knell for guesswork and slipshod methods.

HAROLD STONIER.

As a result, educational preparation in the techniques of commerce, industry and finance are virtually essential to outstanding success in these fields, as it is already an absolute prerequisite in the various recognized professions. This is not to depreciate the value of native ability and experience in business, but education after all is merely a means for helping the individual to apply the net good of the accumulated experience of many to his own day's work—a means for helping special native ability to come into its own more rapidly and surely and for enabling all classes of ability to gain the maximum of success to which they are entitled.

These facts are plainly recognized by practical, work-a-day business in every line. Every progressive business organization in America is emphasizing the importance of education as never before. Education has come to be looked upon as the answer to many of the problems within the organization as well as to problems affecting industry as a whole.

Business Organizing Institutes

Institutes for developing specifically qualified workers are being operated or organized in many fields of commercial and industrial activity. These institutes are trying various types of educational work with a distinct trend toward more and more emphasis upon education for the rank and file of business employees of all grades.

We have been having business failures in this country at the rate of about 2,000 a month. This score speaks for itself. It is glaring evidence of incompetence on the part of thousands of business men in handling the problems inherent in their fields of endeavor. The detailed records show that practically 75% of business failure in this country is due to lack of training and competence on the part of those who failed. This is conclusive evidence that no one can afford to undertake executive business responsibilities without adequate education and training. It is for that reason that every enlightened business organization is today insisting as never before that its employees take advantage of some type of technical training.

American banking is fortunate and has just cause for pride in that it has a record of twenty-eight years of definitely organized educational activity among its workers to its credit for developing trained bankers. People in banks in large numbers are taking advantage of the educational opportunity given by the great non-commercial college of the banking business, the American Institute of Banking. They is the educational section of the American Bankers Association. It was formed twenty-eight years ago by bank employees and officers and has been carried on ever since as a voluntary organization. Many students who have graduated continue their membership in order to give active support to some type of educational work other than the actual class program.

The greater part of the educational work is carried on in 200 cities and towns in the United States. Here the local chapter of the American Institute of Banking has its regularly organized courses of study under supervision of the national body with local instructors and directors to fulfil the standard requirements regarding text material, classwork and examinations.

Instructors are recruited from the staffs of leading universities, from members of the legal profession and from among accountants and bank men who have made a record in some field of activity in banking that marks them as experts. All instructors must be approved by the national organization. They are compensated by the local units. The students pay tuition, in which they are frequently aided by their employing banks, and this, together with contributions made by the banks for general classroom overhead, finances the educational program.

Education a Pathway to Advancement

Leading banks in various parts of the country are insisting that their employees take work in the Institute. This is frequently a part of their contract of employment at the time they enter the bank. It is also now quite generally understood in the field of American banking that study in the American Institute of Banking is considered one of the basic factors in the promotion of the individual to a place of importance in a bank.

The Standard Certificate of the American Institute of Banking is annually gaining a greater and wider recognition among practical bankers throughout the United States. These certificates are coming to have the same importance in the banking world that certificates of education have in the field of the general professions. This is a practical example and one thoroughly well demonstrated by seasoned experience of the new spirit of American business.

"What?" ejaculated the pedestrian. "A dollar for a cup of coffee?"

STATE

CAPITOL News

There has been a marked increase in school enrollment and attendance in Alabama during the last few years, especially since the new methods of distributing school funds provided for education by the 1927 legislature went into effect, according to information given out by the state department of education through Superintendent Tidwell.

Pronounced as these increases have been, however, there has been an even more striking increase in the total number of days attended, or the total aggregate attendance as it is called, due to the fact that additional funds provided by the1927 Legislature have enabled many counties to materially lengthen their school terms. These factors have affected the funds available for each teacher unit in the State Minimum later in this article.

As evidence bearing out the above statement the State Depart- of Education shows that in 1925-26, 590,405 children were enrolled in the public elementary and high schools of the State, while in 1927-28 this figure had increased to 635,290, representing an increase of 44,885 pupils. In addition to this increased enrollment those enrolled have attended better during the past year than they did in 1925-26, for there were 48,-834 more children attending every day in 1827-28 than in 1926-27. The increase in the total days attended is even greater than the figures shown above, for in 1927-28 the aggregate attendance was 68,828,558 while in 1925-26 it was only 57,254,174 or over eleven and a half million days less. The increased schooling thus received by the children of the state is equivalent to a full 140 days term for 82,674 children or a full six year schooling for nearly 14,000 chidren. This additional schooling has been welcomed by countless boys and girls in many sections of the state.

When asked to account for these pronounced increases in school attendance Superintendent Tidwell named the revised methods of distributing educational funds provided by the 1927 Legislature as one of the chief factors that have brought about this desirable situation. Before 1927, state school funds were distributed to counties largely on the basis of the number of children enumberated in the school census, regardless of whether or not these children were attending school. Since 1927, however, the aggregate and average daily attendance of the children in a county have been used as the basis for the apportionment of the new funds provided by that legislature. Obviously the greater the attendance in a county the larger the apportionment will be to that county. Such a basis of distribution is regarded as both sound and practical.

Reference has been made above to the fact that icreased attendance in the state affects the funds available for each teachcer unit in the State Minimum Equalization Program. This fact has been demonstrated during the past two years and a repetition thereof is contemplated for the coming years.

The 1927 Legislature provided a fund of $900,000 anually to be known as the equalization fund. This fund together with all other school funds was to guarantee a seven months school term to every child living within a district which had levied the three mill district tax. The need for a larger fund was shown at that time but was not accepted by the Legislature. The basis of the distribution of this fund is the teacher unit, one such teacher unit being allowed for each 30 pupils in average daily attendance.

When the number of teachers units was found for the state for 1927-28 it was discovered that this Equalization Fund would be sufficient to allow approximately $770 for each white elementary teacher unit and approximately $1440 for each white high school teacher unit, when this same fund was distributed for 1928-29, on the same basis as for the preceding year, it was found that it would not be possible to hold to these values of the teacher units. This was due to two causes. The first, namely, the great increase in attendance which increased the number of teacher units in a county as well as the state, has been pointed out. The second cause was the admirable way in which counties and districts qualified for participation in this fund, the second year it was in existence, by levying the local taxes set up as prerequisites for such participation. For the present year, therefore, it was found necessary to reduce the value of these units to $708 and $1323 respectively. Since the equlization fund remained the same and the number of teacher units and qualifying districts increased, with other available funds practically constant, it is obvious that the value of each teacher unit had to be decreased. In the past the equilization fund apportionment has been made late in the fiscal year and the resulting reduction in the apportionment to many counties of the state at such a late date has been a source of inconvenience to those county boards of education.

A circular was sent out recently by the State Department of Education setting forth the method of discovering the monetary value of the State Minimum Equalization Program for a given county for 1929-30. Because of the great increase in attendance during the past two years and anticipating a continued increase it was deemed advisable to further reduce the value of each teacher unit for 1929-30. The values submitted in this method may be lower than those which will actually be used when the apportionment is made. A conservative value was used so that a county could determine in advance the minimum amount of money which will be available from all sources with which to finance its program for 1929-30. Even though a program for a county is reduced by this method it offers a sounder basis upon which to plan a program than has been provided in the past.

It should be clearly uderstood, points out Superintendent Tidwell, that as long as there is only approximately $900,000 available each year for purposes of equalization, any great icrease in the number of teachers needed in equalization counties will mean that a smaller amount per teacher unit will be available from the equalization fund. If attendance continues to increase more rapidly than assessed valuations either a corresponding increasing fund must be made available for press has interpreted the projected plan as tantamount to the reduction of teachers salaries throughout the state. It is hoped that this will not be necessary, but in order to conform to the state program county superintendents and boards of education must plan their programs wisely and so far as possible in harmony with the program which the state is able to guaratee with the present available funds.

Reference has been made in the press to the additional appropriations made to education by the 1927 Legislature with the inference that it ought not be necessary to reduce salaries with all these new moneys available. In all fairness less than one million was set aside particulary for the counties of the state having such low assessed valuations than the maximum tax levy is not sufficient to provide a seven months term. Of course, some of the other million and a half goes to these counties, but larger portions thereof go to counties and cities which already receive large amounts from local taxation. If the portion of these funds going to one of the counties in the state could have been added to the Equalization Fund for 1928-29 there would have been no reduction in the values of the teacher units for that year. While it was laudable for the 1927 Legislature to place a premium on attendance in school by making a special annual appropriation of $850, 000 to be apportioned among the counties on the basis of aggregate attendance. The fact remains that such a provision tends to destroy the advantage of an equalization fund distributed solely on the basis of "need" as determined by the application of definite measures and adherence to fixed standards. Thus it is evident, that although there may appear to be sufficient funds within a state to make the reduction of salaries unnecessary, counties with large increases in attendance but dependent upon funds from the Equalization Fund to carry out a program, may be forced to retrench due to the static nature of these funds, when the need for more funds is ever increasing.

MARS HILL NEWS

The Mars Hill singing of today will be announced by Mrs. T. P. Scott, secretary.

Prof. C. W. Scott, president, led the opening song. Then prayer was offered.

The following were leaders: Prof. C. W. Scott, Mr. Russell L. Scott, and Mr. Charlie Langston. The leaders sang as many songs as they preferred.

Several visitors were present. We are always glad to welcome everybody to our church.

I'm glad to say our Sunday school is progressing nicely. The people seem to be awakening. We have good attendance, at both Sunday school and preaching.

I also want to announce that there will be an all-day singing at Mars Hill the fourth Sunday in June. Everybody is especially invited to come and bring a basket filled full. Bring your friends.

SARDIS

As you were so kind to publish my article of last week I am asking for space again in the dear old Banner this week to give a few more facts about the work we are trying to do toward the upbuilding of God's Kingdom in this community. As I told you in last week's issue of The Banner, our Sunday School is progressing nicely under the able management of our superintendent, Brother W. M. Headley. He has succeeded in getting the Sardis Sunday School to organize a teachers training class. Brother J. E. Dennis, the president of the Mulberry district convention was to be with us Sunday afternoon to help organize the teachers training class, but for some reason unknown to us, Brother Dennis was kept away. We also expected Rev. Grady Williams to come and give us a lecture on "The Necessity of Trained Sunday School Teachers," but for some unknown hindrance Brother Williams was not present, so Brother J. D. Deason gave us a short address on the subject, "The Need of Trained Sunday School Teachers."

Group 2 of the B. Y. P. U. was on last night. The subject was "Jesus and His Enemies." Everyone who took part on the program did real well. We were real glad to see as many present as were present. We invite you back again and bring some one with you.

We organized a singing society at this place Sunday afternoon. The following officers were elected for the singing society: Brother R. W. Kendrick of Pilgrims Rest was elected president, and George Anderson was elected secretary. Our singing society meets the first Sunday afternoon of each month. The public has a cordial invitation to come and help us out in our singing society. So, please come one and all, and bring someone with you.

Thanking you in advance for this space if it misses the scrap box, I am sincerely yours for a better county paper.—George Anderson.

CREAM SUPPER

On next Saturday night, June 1, there will be a cream supper at the Shoults Schoolhouse. Also will have fresh fish and other sandwiches. Everybody come. Proceeds to go for organ for Pleasant Grove church.

Saturday is Southern Goodyear Day

A Red Letter Day in Southern Tire History

The South has gone Goodyear—and we're organizing a little celebration of our own to mark the early opening of Goodyear's great new tire plant at Gadsden, Alabama.

This plant will be the most modern tire factory in the world, the last word in equipment and facilities. Its capacity is 5,000 tires per day—Southern made for the Southern trade.

And we're going to offer special values in Goodyears Saturday in a great one day sale. Together with other Goodyear dealers in this vicinity, we hope to sell Saturday more than a day's output to show our appreciation of the opening of this plant and to show that it is none too large.

Goodyear tires—Pathfinder, All-Weather or Double Eagle—are definitely superior in tread and carcass as we can show you.

Help us to celebrate and help yourself to wonderful tire values by coming in to see us Saturday.

FREE Tube with Every Tire Saturday

On next Saturday, June 1 (Southern Goodyear Day) we will give FREE a Tube with every tire we sell—and there will be NO ADVANCE IN PRICES of the tires. You will get a tire and tube for the regular price of the tire alone.

Bro. Bryan's Weekly Message

(Written for The Union-Banner by REV. J. A. BRYAN, Pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, Birmingham, Alabama)

THY KINGDOM COME, THY WILL BE DONE.

Let us study this morning just a corner of missions. Missionary activity is not confined to just one part of the world. It is not confined to this church on avenue G and 22nd street. The Gospel of Jesus Christ, the good news of Jesus Christ is for the whole world.

My text is " Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done." Christ said, "Thy Kingdom come, thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven." He was talking to his heavenly Father, and he meant by that that he wanted his fathers's will done on earth as it is in heaven. Truly he wants his will done on earth. In 1st Timothy 2:8 we read these words; "It is the will of God that all men be saved, and come unto the knowledge of the truth." It is God's will that every man, woman, and child be saved. It is God's will that we should try to help save them and bring them into the knowledge of his truth.

Jesus said on Mount Tabor, "Go ye therefore and teach all nations, teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you, and lo I am with you always even unto the end of the ages." That is what Jesus himself tried to do. This morning I want to study with you about our neighbor. Jesus Christ taught us that the man, woman or child who needs our help is our neighbor. Men write so much about our neighbor in Latin America.

Now Latin America is our neighbor, and we confess that we have done very little to help our neighbor. We have gotten a great deal of money, gold, silver and labor. In comparison with our bountiful blessings we could have done a great deal more to help our neighbors. Pardon me, please when I tell you that I have no ax to grind by saying that the missionaries are the power behind the throne. Republicanism in Latin America is due to the untiring efforts of the missionaries. Through their efforts a great educational system providing opportunities to take the place of iguorance. Dr. Lane for forty years a missionary and the president of the Theological Seminary of South America says that those people are looking to us in friendliness. This is a great encouragement to us and our missionaries who are trying to establish God's Kingdom there as elsewhere.

Missionaries have built wouderful churches in Changhai China, and in Mexico. Not only is interest manifested in the uplifting of humanity to a life of service in Jesus Christ in China, Mexico, Latin America, but also Africa and the British Isles, Japan. They are bringing before these people a new mind of peace and good will and a world-service of duty and helpfullness. Christian homes with the family altar has been established. Hospitals have been established, and treatments given daily to many who otherwise would not have had the medical aid. Especially is this true in Africa where medical aid is taking the place of superstitions and charms.

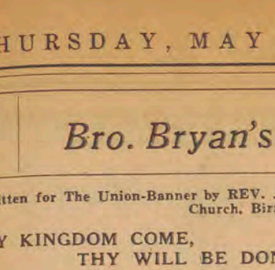
Remember Jesus Christ said, "Go ye therefore into all the world." Paul said, "I am debtor both to the Greek and the Jew." That is the attitude the church must have toward the world. I owe the best I have, the best I posess to every man, woman and child on the face of the earth. We owe them the best we possess. The best we possess is Jesus Christ, the son of God. We owe them the gospel of Jesus Christ. Our first debt is to give them the help of Jesus Christ. We must not go to sleep on the job. Pray for me that I may pay this debt. Great missionaries are calling to me and to you saying, "Pray for me that I may be true to Jesus Christ." The cry comes to us from Mexico, Austria, British Isles saying, "Pray for us that we may find this Jesus Christ precious to our souls." When the Spanish adventurer Cortez went to Mexico he was searching for silver and gold. But our missionaries are going there seeking to do the master's will.

In 1851 there was no republic in Mexico and the people were steeped in idolatry with no educational advantages. The missionaries introduced them to a higher life, a pure home life. They brought about the mission schools. At first everything went well, but after a while the Mexicans said, "We do not want christian teachers. We do not want to patronize you people." So saying they sent the teachers away. But within two years time they called them saying, "We want you to come back and unlock the doors to our children, you are the teacher we need. We cannot get competent men and women teachers. we need you to-day as never before."

The Mexicans are looking to us for Jesus Christ because they are not familiar with Christ. They are looking to us for an education because they so sorely stand in need of it. They are looking to us to send missionaries to them. We are striving to educate teachers in God's ordained way to go as missionaries to them. We can educate boys and girls but they must go, they can go only in God's oradained way, they have only this one Gospel, the Gospel of Jesus Christ, to carry to the perishing millions.

In know of one girl, in fact I met her personly while visiting in the Holy Land, whose father and mother died and left her with some little brothers and sisters to care for, the missionaries put their arms around this family, this girl went to school, defraying her expenses by washing dishes, washing clothes for rich girls. When she had finished at the mission school she went to college where she finished with an A. B. degree at Beirut, Syria. She then educated her brothers and sisters, and then went back to the Holy Land to help educate that they might help in carrying forth God's Kingdom to the uttermost parts of the earth. Many, or practically all of these christian leaders who have been led by missionary leaders are anxious and eager to shoulder the responsibility of the work as fast as the mission deems wise to place it upon them.

One great thing which is done in the American College at Beirut, Syria is the fact that the boys and girls are being taught self-control, total abstinence from strong drink, the lust of the flesh and the lust of the eye. Truly this is a great factor in any educational system. The Y. M. C. A. with their paraphanalia are doing a great work in foreign lands. If any one were to ask me what the light of Jerusalem was, I would answer them that it is the Y. M. C. A. These men are devoted and consetrated members of the church and they do not ask for money, but they are just seeking souls. boys and girls whose lives have been changed, and who have been given places of amusements, and a place of queitude in which to study at night are happy and appreciative. Dr. Greer describes them as the flowers of the East, the West, the North and the South. Millions of them want to come to America. We certainly need to pray over this situation.



Recently I visited Princeton Theological Seminary, at Princeton, New Jersey to be present at the fortieth year reunion of a class of sixty-four of which I graduated. A young man who is now attending the university met me and carried me about the different new buildings as well as some of the old ones. I was escorted up to room number forty-four where I once slept, prayed and studied. I then came down stairs and went to the old room where I prayed all night before I came to Birmingham.

Every teacher who taught me there is sleeping out there in a nearby graveyard. As we came back to the building from the graveyard, that boy handed me a book to read by Robert E. Spear. There is a quotation in that book which impressed me very much, it is this: "The biggest investment the church can make in carrying God's Kingdom in the homeland and the foreign lands is to pray it through." This statement by Robt. E. Spear was used by Robt. Moffitt, David Livingston, and no doubt others.

Friends, it was an American Ambassador to China whose influence put an end to opium traffic in China, prohibiting the planting and groth of the poppy plant in China. He was born in Columbia, S. C. and I have heard him preach. This was a great work in the betterment of the Chinese nation. But, what the Chinese cannot understand is why one of our missionaries should prohibit the culture of the poppy plant there, and the manufacture and sale of opium there, while America slips opium and liquor through the ports into their country. O my dear friends what an obstacle to missionary activity. We must be true, we must be faithful and loyal to the cause for which we represent for Jesus Christ. What an awful sin it is to betray Christ's innocent blood which was spilled on Calvary's Hill for our redemption, the redemption of the whole world.

The theological Seminary of Mexico is teaching to-day just what the Columbia Seminary teaches and that is the awfulness of sin, and that men are forgiven faith in the blood of Jesus Christ, being justified by faith in God. They are also teaching that the bible does not merely contain the word of God but that the bible is the word of God. I was praying one night and I saw in my dream, or in that prayer, I was asleep I reckon; children reaching out pale hands from the east, from Latin America, Mexico and Africa, begging for this blessed, loving Jesus Christ.

I went to Howard College the other morning. A young lady said to me, "I am going to China as I have volunteered to do. I feel that I must go to help those people become acquainted with Jesus Christ. They need help." A young man at Princeton told me that he was going to Kongo in Africa, these young people ask me to pray for them that they might render true and whole-souled service to the master. they are asking for your prayers also. Let us work and pray as we have never done before.

LATER EXPERIENCES OF JEREMIAH

GOLDEN TEXT—Blessed are ye when men shall reproach you, and persecute you, and say all manner of evil against you falsely, for my sake.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Being True in a Hard Test.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Being True in a Hard Test.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Standing True in Hard Places.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Forms of Modern Persecution.

I. Jeremiah in Stocks (20:1-6).

He had predicted the downfall of Jerusalem because of the disobedience of the people (19:4-14, 15).

Pashur, an officer of the temple, heard him. Pashur gave Jeremiah a cruel beating and placed him in stocks. "Stocks" was an instrument of torture, confining the legs in a cramped position. On being released the next day, Jeremiah predicted the terror which was to be Pashur's portion. His words were literally fulfilled (vv. 4-6).

II. Jeremiah in Prison in Jonathan's House (37:11-21).

He was arrested by Irijah as he was about to leave Jerusalem on an errand. He was charged with deserting to the Chaldeans. While here in prison, King Zedekiah secretly consulted with him and ordered lenient treatment.

III. Jeremiah in the Dungeon (38:1-13).

1. He predicts the capture of Jerusalem (vv. 1-3).

(1) To whom (v. 1)?

Jeremiah had been taken out of the prison by the king (37:17) and ordered to the court of the prison (37:21). Here the people seem to have had free access to him (32:12). From this place of limited confinement Jeremiah announced to the people their approaching captivity.

2. Counsel given (vv. 2, 3).

a. All that remain in the city shall die by the sword, famine and pestilence.

b He that goeth forth to the Chaldeans shall live. "He shall have his life for a prey," doubtless means that he shall escape with his life, though losing all else.

2. Jeremiah accused by the princes (vv. 4, 5).

(1) He weakened the hands of the men and all the people (v. 4). From a human standpoint what they said was true, but since Jeremiah was but the interpreter of God to the nation, they ought to have heeded his advice to surrender.

(2) This man seeketh not the welfare of this people, but the hurt (v. 4). This charge was utterly false. Jeremiah was the best friend of the people, for he faithfully proclaimed to them God's judgment and advised them how to make the best of their unfortunate situation.

3. The king's cowardly act (v. 5).

The very one whom Jeremiah was trying to help, deserted him. The king was afraid of the Chaldeans, the princes, Jeremiah, and God.

4. Jeremiah cast into the dungeon (v. 6).

This seems to have been a cistern which had been emptied of its water during the siege, leaving only mire. Into this mire he sank, possibly up to his neck. The purpose was to let Jeremiah die there. In this situation he is a type of Christ (Psa. 69). No one ever suffered more unjustly, save Jesus Christ.

5. Jeremiah rescued from the dungeon (vv. 7-13).

(1) By Ebed-Melech, an African servant (vv. 7-9).

The Jewish prophet, whom his own countrymen tried to destroy, is saved by a Gentile. Though Ebed-Melech had a colored skin, he was the whitest man in Jerusalem. He went to the king and boldly declared that the princes had done evil in imprisoning Jeremiah.

(2) The method (vv. 10-13).

The king yielded to his request and furnished a guard to prevent interference with the work of rescue. He let down soft rags and wornout garments by ropes and instructed Jeremiah to put them under his armholes and under the ropes to prevent injury to him as he was being lifted up. He was lifted out of the dungeon and given the freedom of the prison court.

IV. Jeremiah in Egypt (vv. 43:1-7).

His closing years were spent in Egypt. He was taken there by Johanan, where he continued his ministry. He seems to have been unpopular there. Tradition has it that he was stoned to death by the Jews in Egypt.

CHEVROLET EXECUTIVES RECEIVE PROMOTION

Executive promotions recently announced by W. S. Knudsen, President and General manager of the Chevrolet Motor Company, bring into front line positions in the Chevrolet organization an able group of officials who have played prominent parts in the successful direction of Chevrolet affairs for several years.

The appointments come about as a result of the recent election of R. H. Grant and O. E. Hunt to Vice Presidencies of General Motors and at the same time are in recognition of proved ability, Mr. Knudsen explained. Mr. Grant was formerly Vice President in Charge of Sales and Mr. Hunt was Chief Engineer.

Succeeding Mr. Grant is H. J. Klingler, who becomes Vice President and General Sales Manager. This promotion places at the helm of the Chevrolet selling organization of more than 35,000 people a merchandising leader of demonstrated ability. In addition to his long association with Mr. Grant in the sale of more than a million automobiles annually, Mr. Klingler has had the advantage of broad experience in selling and advertising.

Charles F. Barth, for many years Vice President in charge of Manufacturing becomes Vice President and General Manufacturing Manager. Mr. Barth is one of the outstanding veterans of the automobile business and is regarded as an expert particularly on production methods and factory management.

M. E. Coyle, for years closely associatted with Mr. Knudsen in the direction of the company's financial affairs, has been elected Vice President and General Auditor. He is also a veteran in the automobile business and has been identified with General Motors for more than seventeen years.

J. M. Crawford, formerly assistant chief engineer, becomes chief engineer and brings to his new post thirteen years experience in the automobile business, the last three of which were with Chevrolet. While associated with Mr. Hunt, much of the experimental and development work on the new Chevrolet six, was done under his direction.

Working with Mr. Crawford and assisting him in the direction of the extensive engineering department which Chevrolet maintains will be Leroy Cram, formerly engineer at the Chevrolet factory in Flint and now assistant chief engineer with headquarters in Detroit.

Anyhow since his vote on the debenture plan puts him outside the organization breastworks, Senator Borah probably feels more comfortable than he has for several months.

CHILTON COUNTY ABSTRACT CO.

M. D. FOSHEE, Manager

A good business man will not buy a farm or any property without first looking it over to see what it is worth.

However, some will buy or loan money on land without an abstract.

Isn't it equally as foolish to buy a farm without looking it over as to buy it and not know whether the titles are good or not? Without an abstract you do not know where you are getting the land you look at or not.

Before investing in land in any way have an abstract made and be safe.

THORSBY SECTION

S. E. NORTON, Manager

This is Thorsby Institute Commencement Week. Last Friday night the Senior class presented a play entitled, "Patty Makes Things Hum." The several parts were well taken. The play was in the nature of a comedy and created considerable amusement. The admissions amounted to upwards of $34, which will be used by the class as they shall decide. Ths was the first opportunity the community has had to see the auditorium in a finished state. It is now a delightful assembly room which seats 300 and has considerable room for extra chairs if needed. The new Velour curtain is a beauty. The texture is like heavy velvet. The color is a pleasing Taupe, harmonizing with the woodwork of the hall. A wide Valance above the curtain has the letters T. I. in a small panel in the center. It also has a wide fringe at the bottom. Both the letters and fringe are gold. The cost of the curtain was upwards of $200, about half of it donated by the Ladies Guild of Thorsby. The balance by friends of the school elsewhere. One feature of the curtain is the mechanism for opening and closing it which works both sides at once smooth and quick.

Saturday night the Alumni Senior Banquet was held at the Dining Hall of the dormitory, several of the former graduates coming from a distance to attend it.

Sunday morning at 11 o'clock all churches in Thorsby were closed and the community gathered at Helen Jenkins Hall for the Baccalaureate services. Rev. J. W. Jones, pastor of Thorsby Baptist church, delivered the address. His subject was "Jesus About Doing Good." In addressing a class of young people about to graduate from High School, he took the opportunity to set before them the worthy choice, when trying to decide the question "What Shall I Do with My Life?" His address was a strong plea to follow the example of Jesus and not live only for self.

Two anthems were given by the choir, "Holy Art Thou," by Handel, and "Unfold Ye Portals," by Gounod, were beautifully rendered both as to vocal work and piano accompaniment. There was an air of spirituality about the whole service that will make it one to be long remembered.

Thursday night will be class night, well worthy of attendance by all who love fun. No admission will be charged.

Friday, after the exercises of Commencement, there will be the usual Community Dinner. A basket picnc on the grounds of Thorsby Institute, to which the entire community is invited to come witn well filled baskets of provisions. The dinner will be in charge of the Ladies Guild of Thorsby, and there will be ice cream for sale on the grounds.

Mrs. Each, Mrs. Harper, Mrs. Bakke and daughters, who have been spending several days in West Florida, are expected to return to Thorsby on Thursday of this week.

The Baptist Y. W. A. met Tuesday afternoo with Miss Ruth Martin.

U. L. Hayes, son of Bill Hayes, was bitten on the ankle by a rattlesnake Monday morning. Dr. Wood was called at once and reported after another visit to the boy Tuesday morning that the patient seemed to be doing very well.

Misses Jennye and Mary Sue Robinson are visitors in Cullman, Ala.

Mrs. A. T. Villadsen is visiting her mother, Mrs. T. W. Robinson, for a week. Miss Cora Whitely of Birmingham is a guest of Mrs. Robinson. Henry Robinson spent last week at the home of his parents in Thorsby.

Mr. George Schreiber of Pittsburg, Pa., a brother-in-law of Mr. W. H. Townsend, who has been visiting here several days left for home Tuesday Morning.

Mrs. A. K. Horn of Montgomery is a visitor in Thorsby. She reports that Mr. Horn is doing fine and enjoying his visit with his daughter, Jessie, at Dallas, Texas.

On Tuesday morning the writer visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Townsed and was delighted to be shown the results of their efforts at Real gardening. They have rape to feed Mrs. Townsend's 200 young chickens, corn in silk, butter beans, snap beans, summer squash, carrots, lettuce, beets, turnips, onions, cabbage, okra, and tomatoes. They also have some fine gladiolas in bloom. Many of their vegetables are now ready for use.

On Monday morning Miss Dorothy Butler motored to Montevallo taking with her Mrs. Gerald and Miss Agnes Gerald, Mrs. Villadsen and Mrs. Norton for Commencement exercises at Womans College where Miss Iola Gerald was graduating.

Mr. and Mrs. Yancey M. Kelley and little daughter, Audrey, are expected as guests of Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Norton during commencement days at Thorsby Institute where one graduated and the other was a teacher in days gone by.

Misses Frances and Gladys Murphy of Birmingham, Theresa Gibbons of Deatsville were dinner guests of Miss Mattie Scott Sunday. Messrs. Newman and Cox of Birmingham were also visitors in the afternoon.

Next Thursday night at 7:30 p. m. in the auditorium of Thorsby Institute an Egyptian Operetta will be given by the Senior Class, and the Class History, Will and Prophecy will be read. Everyone is invited.

Friday morning at 10:30 a. m. the graduating exercises will be held. Rev. J. S. Eddins, Pastor of the Methodist-Protestant Church, Birmingham, will deliver the address.

After the exercises there will be a chance to see the science exhibits in the science room, adn typewritig, bookkeeping, and Bible work in room 1.

On Tuesday morning the Seniors had charge of chapel. They imitated the faculty. It was quite interstng.

Friday morning at chapel Lota Mae Hayes was awarded a silver medal by the Underwood Typewriting Company of New York for having written a net rate of 55 words a minute according to the rules of their May Standard Test. Also Aubrey Taylor, a student in first-year typewriting, was awarded a certificate of proficiency by the same company for having written a net rate of 34 words a minute according to the rules of May Standard Test.

The Thorsby Institute Library will be open during the summer vacation Friday afternoons from three to six. During the month of June and perhaps longer it will also be open on Tuesday mornings from eight to ten. All books and periodicals may be kept two weeks and books may be renewed for another two weeks, either in person or by mail.

The Christian Endeavor meeting Sunday night, May 26, was a leaderless meetig. The topic was "Why Is Jesus the Greatest Leader?" At the close of the meeting there was a candle lighting serivce. The first candle was lit by Lois Hughes and represented World Service. She was followed by Beatrice Kirkland, Addie Primm and Hazel Maddox, who also lit candles representing the home, the church and the nation.

Each member present was given a lighted candle and then the group marched out led by the four girls, singing "Where He Leads Me I Will Follow." It was a very beautiful and impressive service.

Mr. Frank Collins visited his sister in Autauga County last week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Eiland and Mrs. Eiland's mother, Mrs. Thompson, came to church here Sunday morning.

Remember, and don't forget the singing at Liberty Hill the second Sunday afternoon in June at two o'clock.—Secretary.

IN LOVING MEMORY

Of Martin McHenry McKee who departed this life Tuesday, May 21, 1929. He had been in ill health for several years, but was taken seriously ill on Wednesday before death occurred the following Tuesday. The doctor pronounced Bright's disease together with high blood pressure, as the direct cause of his death.

He battled bravely against death, but all in vain. God's will must be done. He leaves his aged wife, three sons, six daughters and a host of friends and relatives to mourn his death. We should all willingly submit to the will of the Almighty, and one great consolation we have is that just a few days before he was stricken, he made the glorious remark that he had already made peace with his maker and did not fear death. The angel of death on the morning of May 21, 1929, crept quietly into the home, hovered over the frail delicate body and claimed it as its victim.

His body was laid to rest the following Wednesday at Providence. Rev. J. D. Hughes conducted the funeral services.

We wish to thank our many friends for their many deeds of kindness and floral offerings during his sickness and death. May God's richest blessings be bestowed upon each and every one of you. We also wish to thank Drs. Johnson and Strock for their untiring efforts in giving medical aid.

A place is left vacant in our home that never can be filled, but we are all looking forward to that great day when we will all be happily reunited. In the midst of life we are in death. Signed.—Mrs. M. M. McKee and Children.

CAN'T TALK TO WIFE, TOO CROSS AND NERVOUS

"Even my husband couldn't talk to me, I was so cross and nervous. Vinol has made me a different and happy woman."—Mrs. N. McCall.

Vinol is a compound of iron, phosphates, cod liver peptone, etc. The very FIRST bottle makes you sleep better and have a BIG appetite. Nervous, easily tired people are surprised how QUICK the iron, phosphates, etc., give new life and pep. Vinol tastes delicious. — Upchurch Drug Company.

Women In Protest Against Reynolds

Senators Get Messages Opposing Reappointment of District Attorney

Washington, May 30.—A protest by the Woman's Christian Temperance union of Montgomery against the reapportionment of Grady Reynolds as United States attorney of the middle Alabama distict was receiving the personal attention of Attorney General Mitchell today.

The temperance organization, thru Mrs. J. W. Reinhardt, its president, telegaphed both Alabama senators as follows: "The W. C. T. U. of Montgomery earnestly requests your assistance in securing the nomination of a more efficient district attorney for the middle district of Alabama."

Senators Black and Heflin transmitted the potest to the attorney general, who said the nomination of Mr. Reynolds would be held up pending inquiry. Agents of the department of justice had previously investigated Reynold's office and recommended him for another term. A number of telegrams opposing his renomination have been received by the two senators in the past 24 hours. In reply to these messages, the senators are pointing out that they are not consulted about appointments by the republican administration, but that all Alabama appointments are made on the recommendation of O. D. Street, state patronage referee.

There is reason to believe that Reynolds would have been nominated for another term today if the W. C. T. U. protest had not been filed. Attorney General Mitchell would not comment on the protest except to say he would give it his personal attention.

If Mr. Reynolds is renominated, several Montgomery temperance leaders have indicated to Black and Heflin they would like to come to Washington to appear before the judiciary committee of the senate in opposition to his confirmation.—Montgomery Journal.

Visitors At Polk's

A party of visitors headed by Mr. Halcombe, State distributor for Studebaker automobiles, were in Clanton last Friday. While here they made a visit of inspection at the plant of Polk Brothers, local Chevrolet dealers. The visitors were very greatly impressed with the arrangement of things at Polk Brothers. Mr. Holcombe stated that he contemplates the use of the plans of the Polk Brothers place in laying out a couple of new Studebaker service plants in Alabama.

We consider this a well-deserved compliment to the efficiency, convenience and service which is the corner stone of the Polk Brothers business here.

Harris To Conduct Adult Schools Again

Eight or Ten Opportunity Schools Will Begin Some Time in July

Prof. H. A. Harris, of Stanton, stated while in Clanton Tuesday that he is now making preparations for the conduct of opportunity schools in Chilton County again this summer along the same plans as were followed last summer. The success of the schools among the adults last summer was splendid, and the educational authorities are thereby encouraged to pursue the work again this year.

Mr. Harris requests us to make the following statement for him in regard to the work:

"In view of the splendid success of the opportunity schools last year, the County Board of Education has decided to offer the same advantages to the people of the county again. I want to say that I appreciate the cooperation that was given me and those who were associated with me in this movement last year. It was this fine spirit of the people that made it possible for us to accomplish so much good work.

"We expect to have eight or ten schools again this summer. The first communities that ask for the schools and make up the required number of students will get them. The work will start on the 8th or 15th of July, and all who are interested in the matter are urged to communicate with me at Stanton at once."

There is no need of so much explanation of the opportunity schools at this time. Our county observed generally the work of the schools last year, and the benefits derived therefrom are obvious. We expect the quota of schools to be taken up by the communities at once. We would remind those interested that it is an opportunity that is absolutely free to all adults who have not passed the fourth grade in the common schools of the county. The subjects are reading, writing, spelling, arithmetic, and common business practice will be taught.

Those who are interested are requested to communicate with Prof. H. A. Harris, at Stanton, Ala., at once. Remember the first communities to ask for the schools will get them.

New Machine Shop

The new building of the Robinson Machine Shop was begun this week, and will be completed in about a month. It will be located on the lot adjoining Clanton Motors facing Third Avenue. The owners of the building and business are Doctor Robinson and his son, Alonza Robinson. The new building will be size 40 x 70 feet and will be the most nearly fireproof structure in Clanton. It will be made of brick, hollow tile, steel and concrete.

Just as soon as the new building is finished the plant and machinery of the Robinson Machine Shop will be moved to the new location.

Trustees Are Responsible for Schools

Explanation of Law Is Made by County Superintendent, Buford Lawrence

There seems to be a prevalent idea among the people of the county that state-owned school buildings are controlled by the state or County Board and that the trustees have no authority in such instances. I am calling attention to Article 8, Section 184 of the School Code of 1927, which reads as follows: "The Board of School Trustees shall have care of the building and grounds, the school apparatus and other school property and shall keep the County Board of Education advised about matters affecting the educational interests of said school. It shall attend to all incidental repairs and pay for same out of the incidental funds collected in accordance with this Article, provided that when repairs are to be paid for out of other than incidental funds, the amount to be expended shall be approved by the County Superintendent and authorized by the County Board of Education before the repairs are made."

Section 186 of the same article reads as follows: "The Board of School Trustees shall see that the water closets or out houses connected with the school are kept clean, comfortable and in a sanitary and hygienic condition.

If all of Article 8 is read and studied you will find much authority given the school board of trustees of the local schools in the administration of the school system. It is impracticable to supply every patron of the county with a School Code, but every Board of School Trustees is supposed to have one to be used among themselves and if there is a Board of Trustees without a Code and they will notify me I will try to secure a copy of the Code for them.

Trusting that the above statement will be of value to the trustees of the county and assuring them of my willingness to cooperate with them at any time in the administration of the schools to the end that we may have a better educational system, I am, Yours very truly.—B. Lawrence.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank each and every one who contributed to our losses by fire May 28th. May God's richest blessings rest upon each and every one.—Mr. and Mrs. Renzie Blalock.

Does It Pay To Advertise?

Ask Hill

Mr. J. W. McEathern, manager of Hill Grocery Company in Clanton, makes the following statement about advertising in the newspapers of Clanton:

"The tremendous success of our 25-cent Sale of the past week has again proven to us that advertising in the local newspapers of Clanton has a powerful pulling power for getting business. Our sales during this event were most satisfactory indeed. In fact we did more business than we expected.

"We found that our customers came here in response to the advertising which we carried in the Clanton newspapers last week, because that is the only county-wide advertising we used in telling about this sale."

The Union-Banner is grateful to Mr. McEathern for this splendid approval which he accords to the local newspapers. This is just another instance that proves our contention that the people of Chilton County read the Clanton newspapers. Every business man who has something attractive to the local trade will find that he can get the best response from the local trade by advertising his business in the newspapers.

Summer School Begins Monday

Chilton County High Summer School will open at the High School building on the morning of June 10, at eight o'clock. Mr. W. E. G. Sutton, principal of Verbena High School during the past session and for the next session will be director and have control of the administration of the school.

In letters sent out to those who may be interested, it is explained that students may make a full unit of credit in review subjects, or two one-half units of new subjects, during the six weeks term of the school. For instance, a pupil may get a half unit's credit in intermediate algebra and a half unit's credit in solid geometry, or a full unit credit for review in Senior III English taken before. In the event there are sufficient pupils to justify a full new unit's work in one new subject, it would be necessary to attend a full nine weeks, and provision would be made for those pupils.

Only fully qualified high school teachers will be used, and parents are assured that pupils will be required to do their work as in regular term school.

For the six weeks course, the fee will be $10.00 for each unit of work or fraction. If a nine weeks' class is organized for a unit of new work, the fee will be $15.00.

Mr. Sutton will meet pupils interested at the Chilton County High School building Friday morning from eight o'clock till twelve to register pupils and to give any aditional information desired.

Man Killed Near Here In Accident

When the Chevrolet Landau in which he, his wife and two daughters were riding turned three or four somersaults Albert F. Calder was thrown 20 feet from the car and fell on the cement highway Saturday morning about 7:30 o'clock. His body was lifeless when picked up by passers by. Martin brought the body here and prepared it for burial. The funeral was preached by Rev. S. J. Ezell at the undertaker's parlor Sunday morning at 10:30 and interment was made in the Clanton cemetery.

Mrs. Calder and two daughters, ages 18 and 8, were carried to the Central Alabama Hospital where it is said that their injuries were only slight.

Reynolds Asks For Proof Of Charges

District Attorney Challenges Opponents to Show Reasons for Objections to Him

Grady Reynolds, United States district attorney, has challenged his opponents to show that he has been derelict in enforcement of the prohibition laws since he became district attorney. He has urged Attorney General Mitchell to make a thorough investigation of his record.

Several protests against the reappointment of Reynolds have been sent to Washington and have been referred to the attorney general. Members of the Montgomery Women's Christian Temperance union have protested the reappointment and Mrs. Mary T. Jeffries, head of the organization in Alabama, has appealed for the appointment of some other person.

George H. Thigpen, state commissioner of insurance and former superintendent of the Masonic Home, has requested the appointment of some person who will be more active in the enforcement of the prohibition laws.

Reynolds was given an appointment for another term by President Coolidge shortly before his term expired, but the appointment was not confirmed by the senate. After Hoover became president the protests were filed and the attorney general's department began an investigation.

Friends of Reynolds intend to make a hard fight for confirmation, contending that he has done his duty since he became district attorney, and that he prosecuted all prohibition cases brought to his attention by federal investigators and sought indictments in all cases filed with him. They also contend that in every instance where a prohibition agent has recommended a prison term for a violator of the prohibition laws he has asked the court to impose it.

One report among Reynolds friends is that if Reynolds is not reappointed the office will go to some democrat who could not support Al Smith in the general election last year. No democrat has been mentioned in connection with the position.

The office of district attorney covers central and southeast Alabama. Reynolds must prosecute cases in Montgomery, Dothan and Opelika. He passed through Montgomery Monday en route to Dothan to represent the government in the trial of several cases.—Montgomery Journal.

BOLL WEEVILS APLENTY

On Monday morning, June 3, while it was too wet to hoe, Harve Mims of Clanton, Route 1, picked over one acre of his cotton looking for boll weevils, and found plenty of them. The number found on one acre was one hundred and sixty-two. A fine sample was sent to the Banner office. —H. L. Mims, Route 1, Clanton, Ala.

Mr. Claudie Pipes, son of Mr. Henry T. Pipes, of Clanton, will graduate in law at the University of Virginia June 11th. Before locating for practice of his profession Mr. Pipes will come to Clanton to spend a few weeks at home.

Alred Will Have New Equipment

According to plans recently adopted, the store of Alred Drug Company in Clanton is to undergo a renewing process that will make it one of the beauty spots of this section of Alabama. The truth of the business is that this popular firm will have a new store when they get their new arrangements completed and it will be as pretty as drug stores can be made.

The present building is being enlraged by an addition on the back, which will give more depth for the front, where a new type of show cases will be installed. The front will be entirely remodeled.

It is not definitely stated when the new arrangement will be completed, but the work will be pushed to completion without delay. Mr. Hance Alred, one of the owners of the business states that definite announcement of the opening of the new place will be made later, and it is the plan of the maagement to have an opening day when their friends will be invited to come and take part in the celebration.

The building will be reduced in width by about ten feet, which we understand will make place for the offices of Dr. N. S. Johnson to be installed on the ground floor next to the Drug Store.

STATE

CAPITOL News

Gasoline tax collections for the month of April broke all provious records, indicating icreased consumption of gasoline and also effective enforcement of the gas tax laws. Although more gasoline is aturally used during the summer months than at other season, the upward trend is clearly shown by the fact that collections for April exceeded the figure for August of last year, up to this time the banner month, by approximately $2,000. Comparing April of this year with the same month in 1928, a great increase is shown, receipts for April, 1929, totalling $609,113.70, as compared with $463,429.60 for April, 1928, a gain of $145,648.10.

The steady increase in returns from the gasoline tax is regarded as evidence not only of an increase in gasoline consumption but of an improvement in enforcement of the laws levying the tax. The gasoline tax division of the State Tax Commission is today exercising more thorough and detailed supervision of the collection of the tax than ever before, and is showing results in the increased revenue obtained. In addition to the increase for current months, the tax department has uncovered and secured payment on escaped gasoline taxes running back in some cases as for as 1923. So far this year approximately $60,000 has been collected in escaped gas taxes The close check on gasoline shipmets into the state and other law enforcement activities of the department has practically eliminated the "Gasoline bootleger" and is an important factor in growth of revenue from this source.

Of the gasoline tax of four cents per gallon, two cents was levied by the legislature of 1923 and goes to the counties for road work, being divided equally among the 67 counties of the state, the other two cents was levied by the legislature of 1927 and goes to the state for road purposes.

Further evidence of the esteem in which Alabama securties are held in the financial world was given at the sale on May 29 of $5,000,000 of State Highway Bonds, bearing interest and at four and three quarter percent, the bonds bringing a premium of $62,525. Sale was made after spirit bidding in which a number of prominent finacial institutions participated, the successful bidders being a combination composed of Ward Sterne and Company of Birmingham, Marx and Company of Birmingham, and Caldwell and Company of Nashville. With the sale of these bonds there remains unsold $2,500,000 of the road bond issue of $25,000,000 voted by the people in the spring of 1927.

Dr. Douglas L. Cannon, State Health Officer, has been officially informed, in a letter from Dr. L. L. Lumsden, Senior Surgeon, United States Public Health Service, that Alabama is well in the lead of all the states in rural public health work. Dr. Lumsden congratulated Dr. Cannon upon his selection as State Health Officer to succeed the late Dr. S. W. Welch, and added: "My report on extent of rural health service as of January 1, 1929, will appear in an early issue of Public Health Reports. The good old state of Alabama now tops the list by a considerable margin. The progress made in the developement of whole-time county health service in Alabama in the last decade is a great accomplishment of Dr. Welch and his boys, in which all of us interested in the big business have due cause for pride."

Dr. Lumsden's tribute to Alabama's health work is based on the fact that today 50 of the 67 counties of the state have county health units with full-time health officers. This percentage is well ahead of any other state and it is hoped that the remaining 17 counties will fall in line and give their people the protection afforded by county health service at an early date.

The most powerful gathering of business, commercial and industrial leaders ever assembled in one gathering in the State of Alabama met at the Jefferson Davis Hotel at Montgomery, May 31 and pledged themselves to work to secure the opening of the Coosa-Alabama River project to navigation with a 9-foot channel from Rome, Georgia to Mobile. The conference was held at the call of Governor Graves, and was attended by some 150 leaders representing all of the state's varied interests, all united and working harmoniously to secure the desired result.

William R. Dawes of Chicago, president of the influential Mississippi Valley Association, which is devoted to the developement of water transportation, addressed the meeting and pledged support of his association in the work. Governor Graves presided at the sessions, and stressed the vast importance of the opening of this water route and the need for concerted action on the part of business interests to get results. The meeting was marked by an enthusiastic and determined spirit on the part of those attending, and was hailed as a great step forward toward the developement of the water route from Rome to the gulf.

S. P. Storrs of Elmore County was appointed State Commissioner of Agriculture and Industries by Gov. Bibb Graves, Saturday, to fill the Vacancy created by the death of Commissioner S. M. Dunwoody.

Like his predecessor in the office, Mr. Storrs is a practical farmer, and operates a model farm near Wetumpka in Elmore County. He was a member of the State Board of Agriculture at the time of his appointment and was endorsed for commissioner by agricultural interests from all over the state.

Mr. Dunwoody's death was due to a sudden heart attack following a break-down brought on by excessive strain and exertion in directing the campaign to protect Alabama farmers from an invasion of the Mediterranean fly. He was one of the most popular state officials and his death was widely deplored. Mr. Dunwoody was elected Commissioner of Agriculture in 1926 without opposition, and had previously represented Henry County in the legislature.

Governor Graves also appointed W. S. Garner of Ozark, cashier of the Ozark City Bank, as probate judge of Dale County to fill the vacancy created by the death of judge L. F. Sessions; and Alex Howard, prominent Mobile attorney, to fill the vacancy in the Mobile Circuit judgeship caused by the death of Judge Safford Berney.

WEST CHILTON AND ASHBY SINGING

Everything very quiet.

Everybody extremely busy.

Elzie Brazwell's little girl has an attack of pneumonia.

Crops in West Chilton are looking well.

Had a nice rain Sunday night.

Mrs. Susan Smitherman and several others of Sardis came up Sunday afternoon to visit Mr. Brazwell's sick child.

Golden Gothard was missing last week, but it developed later that he had gone off and got married to Miss Selma Melton of Thorsby.

The other Sunday Joe Atchison launched his boat on the sea of matrimoney, and was married to Miss Puckett.

Mrs. Bessie Martin Bates of Sylacauga was visiting relatives here last week and also holding preaching services from house to house.

Mr. John F. Armstrong is reported feeble at this writing.

Last Sunday was a great day at Ashby on the Southern rail road. The old time singers were there for an all day service. By nine o'clock they were gathering from different localities. The singing was soon in evidence. A goodly number came from Eolin. Those from Chilton were John W. Hayes, Rev. J. N. Scott, J. H. Martin, J. D. Hodgens and wife, and several others. Briggs Hodgens seemed to be quite successful on that occasion. The singing was fine. The dinner was also fine. There was a happy welcome to all. The display of flowers on the pulpit attested the welcome by the Ashby people.

Mr. J. W. Hayes seemed at his best and enjoying the service and looking up old friends, Ashby being his childhood home.

But there was a tinge of sadness in the fact that Sunday was the anniversary of the death of Prof. Thompson, the beloved singer of Bibb. Also another good singer, Mr. Herron, lost his life last week in a Birmingham mine explosion. They are missed.

Uncle John Hayes said he lived in the town "next to Stumps Hilles."

The directors ranged in age from 12 to near 70 years. It was a happy blending of youth and age. We wish for Ashby many more such happy occasions.

"My! you look lovely to-night"

SHE knew the compliment to be true—for the last pimple had vanished.

If you are one of the embarrassed—and men are not exceptions—with skin blemishes that linger, and sometimes leave scars, you must realize that the logical cause may come from the blood.

A clear, smooth, velvety skin bespeaks loveliness. Men admire it. Women praise and secretly envy. Hope, joy, happiness, and even love, may depend on the possession of a clear, unblemished skin.

On the other hand—skin eruptions are outward evidences of the condition within. Authorities state it is an indication that the body's power of resistance to disease and infection is low. Meaning, that there is a deficiency of red-blood-cells.

Without plenty of rich, red blood, there could be no strong, sturdy, powerful men, or beautiful, healthy women.

When you get your red-blood-cells back to normal, that sluggish let-down feeling, loss of appetite, boils, pimples, and skin troubles disappear. You get hungry again and you sleep soundly; firm flesh takes the place of that which was once flabby. You feel strong. Your nerves become steady. You are resistant to diseases.

S.S.S. is Nature's own tonic for improving the appetite, building strength, and clearing the body of so-called skin troubles, by increasing the red-cells of the blood.

S.S.S. is made from fresh vegetable drugs and has stood the test of over 100 years.

All Drug Stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

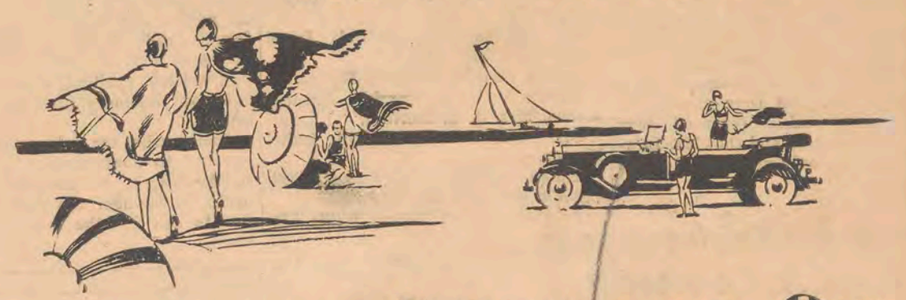
Years of service in MODEL T FORDS

THE Model T was so strongly and sturdily built that it is still rendering reliable, economical service to motorists in every section of the country. Millions of these cars can be put in shape for two, three and five more years of use at very small cost.

So that you may have this work done economically and satisfactorily, the Ford Motor Company is still devoting a considerable section of its plants to the manufacture of Model T parts. It will continue to do so as long as they are needed by Model T owners. The following list gives the approximate labor charges for reconditioning the Model T Ford:—



Engine
Tune motor (including replacement of commutator case, brush and vibrator points if necessary)	$1.00
Grind valves and clean carbon	$3.75 to 4.00
Overhaul carburetor	1.50
Reline detachable car transmission bands	1.50
Install new pistons or connecting rods	6.00
Tighten all main bearings	6.00
Overhaul motor and transmission	$20.00 to 25.00
Rear System
Replace rear axle assembly	2.50
Install universal joint	3.00
Reline brake shoes	1.50
Replace rear axle shaft, drive shaft pinion, or drive gear	5.00
Overhaul complete rear axle assembly	$5.75 to 7.00
Rebush spring and perches	1.75
Oil and graphite springs	3.00
Front System
Overhaul front axle	$4.00 to 5.00
Rebush spindle bodies and arms (both sides)	2.50
Replace or straighten spindle connecting rod	.75
Tighten radius rod or steering ball cap	.60
Tighten all sockets and joints of front end	1.50
Replace front spring tie bolt or new leaf	2.50
Straighten front axle	3.00
Chassis
Replace rear fender	1.75
Overhaul steering gear	3.50
Repair muffler	1.00
Overhaul radiator	7.50
Repaint Coupe	25.00
Repaint Sedan	25.00
Repaint Touring Car	20.00
Reupholster Runabout	8.00
Reupholster Touring Car	15.00
Replace top deck (Coupe or Sedan)	4.00
Overhaul starting motor	3.00
Overhaul generator	2.60

These prices are approximate and are for labor only, because the need and number of new parts depend on the condition of each car. The charge for these parts is low, however, because of the established Ford policy of manufacturing and selling at a small margin of profit.

County Farm Agent's Notes

COUNTY AGENT STAPP CONDUCTS CORN FERTILIZER DEMONSTRATION

A study of crop statistics for the five-year period (1924-1928) shows that Alabama farmers plant annually approximately three million acres to corn and its equivalent in other grains from which they harvest 14 bushels per acre or a total of forty-four million bushels. This production lacks close to thirty million bushels or 9.5 bushels per acre supplying the farm needs of the state. To buy corn from outside the state requires an expenditure of $32,835,000.00, annually. This sum represets $10.43 for each acre planted to this crop. The acreage planted is sufficient to supply the farm's need for grain but due to poor preparation, improper and insufficient cultivation, low yielding varieties, too little plant food, particularly nitrogen, and general neglect the average farm falls short of actual requirements by about ten bushels per acre.

If these figures seem too high it should be remembered that they represent only farm needs and that the total needs for the state are much higher. To satisfy the state's full requirement the per acre yield must be more than doubled.

It has been proven experimentally, demonstrationally, and practically that 150 pounds of nitrate of soda, which cost about $3.75, will increase the per acre yield of corn 8 to 12 bushels. Such practice applied to the total acreage would give approximately 30 million extra bushels, quite sufficient to satisfy the actual farm shortage. By enlarging the acreage to vetch and peas and increasing the amount of nitrate of soda used as a sidedressing, per acre yields may be increased enough to meet the state's total requirement.

Adding the extra 8 to 10 bushels to meet farm needs at a maximum cost of $4.00 per acre for nitrate is a much more economical and sane practice than paying a minimum of $10 for an equivalent amount of corn outside the state.

Nitrate of soda should be applied to corn as a sidedressing five to six weeks after planting, or when plants are knee to thigh high at the rate of 100 to 200 pounds per acre.

Through the cooperation of L. B. Popwell of Clanton route 4, near Thorsby, we will conduct a five-acre demonstration this year. Careful records will be kept by Mr. Popwell of the yield and the cost.

Five acres of this corn will be sidedressed with 200 pounds of nitrate of soda 45 days after planting. one quarter of an acre will be ferailized with 200 pounds superphosphate and 25 pounds muriate of potash per acrc. An additional quarter of a acre will have no fertilizer.

Farmers who are interested in increasing their yield of corn should visit Mr. Popwell's farm and see this demonstration.

Mr. Popwell's farm is on the old Clanton-Thorsby highway and about one mile out of Thorsby.

MR. J. B. PARRISH RUNS COTTON FERTILIZER DEMONSTRATION

For several years the Alabama Experiment Station has been studying fertilizers for cotton with a view to determining kind and amount of plant food to feed the cotton plant. The station has also made a study as to the best time to feed the cotton plant. The rate of absorption of plant food, cost of chopping, amount of grass and weeds, loss of leaching, stands, weevil damage, yield and profit are all influenced by time of application.

In feeding cotton the Experiment Station has foud it best to apply all the phosphate and potash and about one-fourth of the nitrate before planting and the remaining nitrate as a sidedressing 35 to 40 days after planting, and by all means before squares start to forming. Since the cotton plant has a very poor root system it is not capable of taking up the readily available nitrate fast enough for best results until the plants are about 35 days old. During this first 35 day period, if all the nitrate is applied at planting time, loss of nitrate through grass, weeds, and leaching may materially effect the yield. Cotton that is foul with grass is harder and more expensive to chop and too, such a condition greatly reduces the stand and thus affects the yield. Low yields mean little or no profit. The above kind of fertilizer applied part under the crop and part as a sidedressing insures maximum returns from money spent for fertilizers.

However, it should be remembered that in 1928 only 27 per cent of the total fertilizer tonnage used in Chilton County was applied according to the above plan. The remaining 73 per cent was factory-mixed goods with an average analysis of approximately 10-3-4. The home-mixture described above is equivalent in percentage of plant food to a 10-6-4 formula. This means that the average application of mixed goods was particularly short in nitrogen for cotton. All factory-mixed cotton fertilizers carrying less than 6 per cent ammonia should be sidedressed with nitrate of soda to make up the shortage. Such a practice will materially increase yields and profits from fertilizer.

County Agent Stapp states that Mr. Parrish, 1 1-4 miles out of Thorsby on the old road leading from Thorsby to Clanton is conducting a fortilizer demonstration with cotton. Mr. Parrish used 600 pounds of super-phosphate, 300 pounds of nitrate of soda and 75 pounds of muriate of potash per acre on five acres of cotton. All of the phosphate, potash and one-fourth of the nitrate of soda was applied at planting and the remaining 225 pounds of soda will be used as a sidedressing 35 to 40 days after planting.

Mr. Parrish has six rows at one side of this demonstration that had superphosphate and potash just as the rest of the demonstration but these rows will not get any nitrate of soda.

Mr. Stapp states that all farmers interested in producing better cotton at lower cost per pound should visit Mr. Parrish's farm.

WHEN TO APPLY NITRATE OF SODA TO COTTON

Experimental work by the Alabama Experiment Station shows that the geatest return from nitrate of soda comes by applying one-fourth of the soda at planting time and three-fourths as a side dressing at first cultivation after chopping. At this time the cotton grower is chiefly concerned about the side dressing. Applying the side dressing early; that is, before squares have started forming, is emphasized by the fact that the experiment station got 660 pounds of seed cotton less per ton of soda by waiting until squares started forming; 1080 pounds less seed cotton per ton of soda by waiting until first blooms; and 1220 pounds less seed cotton per ton of soda by waiting until three weeks after first blooms, as compared with applying one-fourth of the soda at planting and three-fourths at first working after chopping or before any squares start forming. Apply the side dressing early.

Furthermore, it is abvisable to apply the soda in one application rather than in several applications as is sometimes done.

If you are making 15 bushels of corn per acre the average Alabama farmer is doing this—you are not making money on corn because your yields are too low.

Stockings short in the feet cause almost as much trouble as that caused by short shoes. Get stockings half an inch longer than the feet, to be sure of enough room for the toes.

A GOOD STAND OF COTTON IS NECESSARY

Regardless of fertilizers used or the cultivation the greatest return from cotton can not be expected unless there is a good stand. An average of one missing hill of cotton every ten feet can easily cause a loss of 250 to 300 pounds of seed cotton per acre. Many farmers will find that their cotton will average more than one missing hill each ten feet.

Experiments have shown that for the best returns that is is important to average approximately two stalks every eighteen inches in three and one-half foot rows.

Frequently good stands are ruined by thinning too much at chopping. Leave plenty of stalks on the ground. Remember that "skips" never make cotton.

The farmer who expects to make money on a farm by making a high yield per acre on a few acres is headed for disappointment. The successful combination is high yield per acre plus a large number of acres per man.

The farmer who keeps in mind the fact that the main object of cultivation is to kill weeds can determine the kind of machinery to use and how to cultivate. Deep cultivation is bad.

Eggs that are stored in water glass need not be put down all at one time. They may be added as convenient.

In two years women of Clay County made and sold pine needle baskets for $25,000, according to Mrs. J. E. S . Rudd, home demonstration agent at Ashland. The baskets were sold in several big cities as well as small cities and towns.

Last year 8,112 women and 10,215 girls were enrolled in 4-H clubs by the county and home demonstration agents of Alabama.

In 1928 the 62 county demonstration agents of Alabama held 11,287 field meetings which were attended by 118,047 people.

MAKING TURKEYS PAY

Editor's Note—This is another story in a series of 52 stories on poultry raising written by the well known national poultry authority, Dr. L. D. LeGear, V. S., of St. Louis. The entire series will appear in this paper. Our readers are urged to read them carefully and clip them out for future reference.

"Cans't thee provide naught but this eternal turkey for our board, Goodman?" qouth dame Prudence Pennyfeather in a bit of a pet. "Methinks this gloomy forest is full big enough to have in it all birds and beasts created since the Deluge!"

Goodman Pennyfeather snatched up his blunderbuss and retorted a bit acidly, "Beasts and birds there are aplenty in yon forest and hostile Indians, too—while turkeys in plenty are at our very door. Nae-theless, I shall try again to appease thy impatience."

That might have happened in Pilgrim days. Even right after the Civil War wild turkeys were so numerous in some parts of the country as to constitute an actual pest. They raided grain fields with such devastating effect that it was a problem to cope with them. Now quite the reverse is true.

Of course no one is surprised to learn that the wild turkey is practically extinct. One would think, however, that the periodical demand created by our great national feast days would cause poultry raisers everywhere to devote a considerable part of their time to turkey raising. I believe the reason that such is not the case is to be found in the oft repeated story that turkeys can only be raised successfully on great ranches and that, at best, they are so delicate and temperamental as to make them very hard to handle.

For those who have hesitated to take up turkey raising, or who have tried and failed, I want to make a number of recommendations. I shall give a short digest of these recommendations and will be glad to answer further questions from any one writing me in care of this paper.

For breeding purposes use only thoroughbreds. Select the strongest and healthiest birds. Do not mate more than 10 or 15 hens with one male. Use incubators for best results. You never have to wait for an incubator to get broody and it will give most uniform results if properly regulated. Use no eggs over ten days old. Practically all the big commercial turkey raisers use artificial brooders. The most up-to-date ones can be closely regulated so that, barring accidents, results are fairly certain. It is always a gamble, however, to brood young poults with such temperamental creatures as turkey hens.

A brooder house on skids is ideal as it can be moved about to fresh ground from time to time. Stake off four temporary runs, one on each side of the house, and rotate the poults from one run to the other. Leave them about a week in each run. Between 200 and 300 poults can be accomodated in a 12x14 brooder house. For heat, use a hard coal stove or any other heating arrangement that will maintain an even temperature of about 80 degress.

When poults are about 8 weeks old they may be transferred to rearing grounds, about an acre being set aside for each 150 to 200 poults. These grounds should be where chickens have not been allowed to run and should be fenced so chickens cannot get in with the poults.

Feed nothing the first 24 to 36 hours; 36 to 48 hours, short grass on the sod, tender greens and buttermilk or sour skim-milk; 48 to 60 hours, feed eggs boiled for 30 minutes mixed with equal quantity of dry, stale (never mouldy) bread crumbs. Feed this every two hours, removing it in 20 minutes. On the third day feed as on the second and continue the same diet on the day following with addition of mash composed of finely ground cornmeal, wheat bran, wheat middlings and beef scraps in equal parts by weight, or a baby chick starter commercial mash may be fed instead. Feed the mash in hoppers with plenty of green stuff always available. Continue this mash feed with plenty of greens at all times. From day to day feed a little scratch grains, gradually increasing the quantity. Scratch grains should be given sparingly, however, as young turkeys do not require a great deal of such food. See that a good supply of fresh clean water is always near by. Never allow poults to drink from stagnant pools.

When poults are about 8 weks old, shift to rearing grounds if weather permits, and put on following ration: Equal parts of corn meal, ground oats, wheat middlings, wheat bran and beef scraps fed in hoppers. Give birds plenty of skim-milk to drink. Keep shell and grit before them at all times and never stint on fresh green stuff of suitable kinds. My experiments prove that baby turkeys can be successfully raised on feeds that are successfully fed to baby chicks. If your present method of raising your baby chicks is successful use the same method with your baby turkeys which should prove successful also.

Finally, enlarge your runs from time to time and keep moving flock if possible to provide fresh feeding grounds.

THORSBY SECTION

S. E. NORTON, Manager

Thorsby Institute Commencement donigs held the center of the stage in Thorsby during the past week, attracting attention of our home folks and a goodly number of visitors interested in the school.

Thursday night the Senior Class presented to a full house the customary Class History, Class Prophecy, and Class Will in a manner that brought many rounds of applause. Then followed "An Egyptian Operetta" American style. The costumes were quaint, the acting good and the singing excellent. We heard many expressions of keen pleasure concerning the quality of representation of the characters and the performance as a whole.

The Commencement exercises on Friday morning were marked by several interesting incidents. The dignified bearing of the members of the class, and the symmetry of their movements made an impressive scene.

The singing under direction of Miss Dick was of a high order. "From Age to Age," adapted to the music of Handel's Largo, was inspiring. A chorus by a bevy of girls showed careful training. Miss Agnes Gerald gave a solo in a pleasing manner and a Sonata from Beethoven played as a Piano number by Miss Dick was a work of art.

The Commencement address by Rev. J. S. Eddins, pastor of the Methodist Protestant Church, Birmingham, on "Four Fundamentals," was well adapted for a High School graduating class.

Fourteen graduates received diplomas. They were as follows: Clinton Arthur, Addie Laura Brown, Ruth Anne Champion, Lota Mae Hayes, Lloyd Sweenie Howard, Lucile Evelyn Howard, Lois Hughes, Beatrice B. Kirkland, Hazel Maddox, Konrad Wesley Mims, Myrtle Adide Primm, Margaret Eleanor Rowell, Adelade Surls, John M. VanDerveer, Jr. Each had prepared an Essay, but for want of time only two were read at Commencement. The others had been read from time to time before the school.

One feature of Commencement at Thorsby Institute is always interesting to an increasing number year by year, namely: The awarding of prizes:

The following prizes were awarded at the Commencement Exercises last Friday. Given by Mr. R. W. Taylor, Clanton for perfect record in attendance and punctuality for past year 14 prizes of $1.00 each to: John Adams, Addie Brown, Christina Bosworth, Lota Mae Hayes, Ruth Champion, Edna Childress, Helen Diefenderfer, Lucile Howard, Lois Hughes, Edith Johnson, Hazel Maddox, Willis Peterson, Daisy Rowe, Eunice Williamson.

By Mr. R. W. Echols of Tuscaloosa two prizes of $5.00 each for excellence on Mathematics: Geometry, Sallye Thompson; Algebra, Aubrey Taylor.

By Mrs. C. L. Perry of Boston two prizes of $5.00 each: History, Eunice Williamson; English, Byron Bean.

By Miss Klingelhoefer for best Bible Note Book, Copy of American Revised Bible to L. C. Sims.

Dormitory prize by Miss Leech, two pictures to Addie Brown and Beatrice Kirkland.

By Senior Class to undergraduate with best scholarship record for past year: $14.00 for a Semester's tuition next year, Eunice Williamson.

To Senior with best scholarship record, two annual scholarships in Piedmont College: Lois Hughes and Ruth Champion. Same in Illinois College, Hazel Maddox and John VanDerveer.

The Annual Community Dinner, on the grounds of Thorsby Institute at Commencement time is always a pleasing affair under auspices of the Ladies Guild of Thorsby. There is always plenty of excellent food and the social feature of the occasion is enjoyed as an opportunity for parents of the students, the alumni, teachers and friends of the school to assemble and get acquainted with one another, examine the work done by the students and enjoy a festival of good things together.

The Y. W. A. had a business meeting Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. S. C. Wood.

There will be a special Children's Day Service at the Baptist church at 11 A. M. Sunday, June 9th, to which you are cordially invited.

Mrs. R. R. Franklin and Mrs. Spurgeon Calloway spent the week end in Greenville.

Mrs. Fred Howard and sister, Miss Ida Breuckner, with Mabel and Lucille, also Mrs. Harry Olsen, former Ena Grenn, of Thorsby, motored to Tuscaloosa and spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Phelan.

Mr. and Mrs. Each and their four girls motored to Montgomery Friday afternoon to take William Each back to his school, and enjoy a visit to a Talking Picture Show.

Mr. Jim Pate made a trip to Wetumpka to see his two boys, Lester and Hollis, who are employed there.

The many friends of Prof. Bean, principal of Thorsby public school, will be interested to know that he is slowly recovering from an attack of Typhoid Fever.

Mr. and Mrs. Yancey M. Kelley of Birmingham who were guests of Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Norton during commencement, returned home Monday morning accompanied by Mrs. Norton who spent the day in Birmingham.

There will be services in Scandanavian language at Thorsby Lutheran church Sunday, June 9th, at 10:45 A. M.

Mrs. H. W. Peterson and children of Birmingham are spending several days visiting with relatives in Thorsby.

Miss Betty Lakeman and J. F. Green of Lock 12 were visitors in Thorsby Sunday.

Mr. H. R. Rasco, Misses Mary Ella Gerald and Meryl Freeman left early Saturday morning to attend the commencement exercises at Piedmont College, Demorest, Georgia.

Mrs. C. C. Petersen left Monday morning for Cullman, Ala., where she was present at the graduation of Rachael Petersen. She returned on Wednesday night.

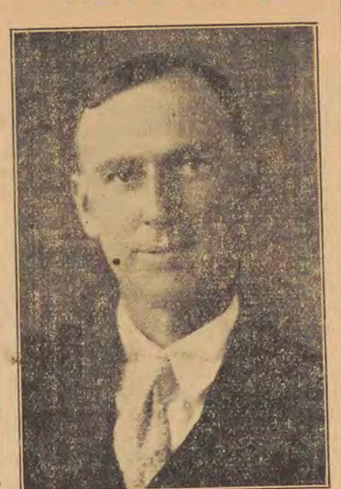
The Congregational Ladies Aid will meet this week Thursday, June 6th, with Miss Marion Fairbank at the Boys Dormitory.

Messrs. Olin and Hudson Williams former students at Thorsby Institute, attended the operetta last Thursday night.

Mrs. Lillie Funderburg of Birmingham, Ala., was the guest of Mrs. Anna Villadsen for the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Villadsen motored to Aldrich Sunday and spent the day with Reno Villadsen's family.

During the summer the office of Thorsby Institute will be open in the morning from 8 to 12. Miss Margaret Butler will be in charge of the office. She will be glad to answer any question relative to the school.



Mr. H. R. Maddox, registrar, will be in the office the latter part of this week, then will return September first to register any students who have not registered before then.

Those who are not taking regular work at the Institute, but who wish to take music should let the office know as soon as convenient whether they wish to take next year. Some have already done so, but there will be a place for others. Miss Thoroman, the music teacher for the coming year, has studied music since she was a child, and when she was old enough continued her musical education at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music. She has taught for ten years and has proven to be an excellent piano teacher.

Miss Baur, President of the Conservatory, has followed Miss Thoroman's work since she left the Conservatory and recommends her highly. She expects to study again this summer at the Conservatory.

All of the Institute teachers have left for their vacation except Miss Jenkins, Miss Fairbank and Miss Leech. Miss Jenkins and Miss Leech plan to leave Saturday, Miss Jenkins going East via Cincinnati, Cleveland, Syracuse, points at which she expects to stop a short time on the way. Miss Leech expects to go to Minneapolis, Minnesota for the summer.

Lawrence Jr., young son of attorney Lawrence F. Gerald was accidentally shot Tuesday afternoon, when a bullet from a 22 rifle ripped a hole through his leg. The injury was not serious.

The Boosters

During an extremely cold spell in the Puget Sound country, something gummed the works of a thermometer hung outside the Chamber of Commerce building and the worst it could do was seventy-two above.

Along came a man, bundled up to his ears, but still shivering. For a moment he gazed at the thermometer then turned away in disgust, saying: "Ain't that just like the Chamber of Commerce, anyway?"

MRS. JOE FOSHEE DEAD

APPLICATION OF NITRATE OF SODA

Farmers are urged by County Agent Stapp that they be not misled by results of last year's applications of nitrate of soda. Further explaining this warning, Mr. Stapp continues:

The experiment station has found that, over a period of about fourteen years, the best time to make the side application of nitrate of soda to cotton is just before the cotton begins to form squares. Later applications have not given nearly so good results.

Soil Improvement Facts

DR. H. W. BARRE, director of the South Carolina experiment station at Clemson, declares that the average yields of crops in the South are not more than one-third to one-half of what they should be. He points out that it is imperative that the fertility of the soil be increased by the use of commercial plant food, by soil improving crops, and by barnyard manure, to where profitable yields can be obtained.

In co-operation with the County Agricultural Agent of this county, we are presenting herewith information based on experimental data developed by the United States Department of Agriculture and the various agricultural experiment stations of the South. We believe that the farmers of this county can profit by studying this information, by consulting with the County Agent, and by working toward improving the soils of their farms to a point where crops can be grown at a profit where they are now grown at a loss and where present small profits can be increased to large profits. There's Music in the Air

This quartette of structural workers has reached the 44th or top story of "The New Yorker" located almost directly opposite the Pennsylvania R. R. Station. It is Gotham's latest and greatest hotel. It takes a long time during the luncheon period for these top story workers to come down to earth and then back again to the clouds. Rather than make the long trip, they bring their own lunch and as they have a portable Brunswick on the job they naturally have music with their lunch.

Received a Pink Invitation

By JANE OSBORN

(Copyright.)

A PINK slip fluttered from the envelope that Maisy Fern had opened—an abrupt announcement from the local bank that she had overdrawn her account to the extent of six dollars and three cents. Maisy sighed. In a way she had been prepared for it. Pansy, her old colored cook-housekeeper, had brought it into her little studio after the postman had come yesterday afternoon. She was too absorbed in her painting at the time to bother about it then. So she went on patiently putting in the finishing touches on the lovely rose garden that was later to serve as the cover for a nurseryman's catalogue.

After breakfast the next morning she opened this envelope from the bank. It was at least a comfort to know that the overdraught was no larger. She found ten dollars in her purse—ten dollars and a few silver pieces. Well, she could buy enough food for the day with the change and the ten dollars would cover the amount due. It would be embarrassing to go down to the bank with just ten dollars, and there was no way of getting any more until she had been to the city. Maisy sat and considered ways and means. She hated to face the receiving teller—and it would probably be her luck to find the sour-faced Mr. Granger at the window, but it would be worse facing Mr. Berton, the very nice-looking young cashier, whose genial smile Maisy felt sure would have brought him fame and fortune in the "movies." Of course he doubtless knew of her mistake. They had probably discussed her at the bank—said things about her. They didn't know that Maisy clung strictly to her self-imposed rule of saving three-quarters of all the money she earned. That amount she deposited with a trust company in the city, where the money was invested in the safest sort of security. Maisy was a curious medley of improvidence and caution. From her mother she inherited this fixed intention of providing lavishly for the rainy day and from her father a reckless thriftlessness that made it apparently impossible for her to live comfortably within her self-determined allowance—and even more impossible to keep any sort of accounts. She didn't even try to keep any sort of accurate record of her bank account.

Maisy arrived on the stroke of nine and bravely made out her little deposit slip and approached the window of the receiving teller with fast-beating heart. It beat a little faster when she saw that Mr. Berton was on duty.

"I hardly had courage to come down this morning," she said a little shyly, handing in her small deposit with her book. "But I just haven't been able to keep track of my account—I know it is stupid."

Mr. Berton looked up with an amused smile. "Oh, so you got a pink invitation, too," he said. "I didn't even know it."

"No harm done, anyway," said Mr. Berton, mechanically recording her deposit in her book. "Perhaps I'd better have your account balanced for you."

"Thank you so much," said Maisy. "I'll try hard to keep it straight after this. I'm so stupid—"

"On the contrary," said Berton, "from all I hear you are quite the opposite." Then he looked about to see that no one was within hearing. "But if you have any difficulty in keeping your accounts, perhaps I could show you. It is very simple. Perhaps I could call some time and show you—and help you balance up from time to time. Plenty of clever people have the same trouble."

"How very good of you," sighed Maisy. "I am going to the city for the afternoon but I'll be home tonight."

So Mr. Berton called and gave Maisy a beginner's lesson in account keeping—he stayed to look at her drawings, and after that stayed a little later because Maisy said she was lonely and wanted some one to talk to. After that he called twice a week and Maisy sat beside him as he attended to her accounts and told him that as long as he was willing to do it for her she wouldn't try to learn. Then one day Berton made a suggestion—not without a little embarrassment. He told Maisy that he wondered why she didn't try to save a little. There were lots of ways that she could economize and—if she had set her heart on remaining unmarried all her life—she ought to think about saving for a rainy day.

Maisy told him she hadn't set her heart on remaining unmarried all her life—then she looked up at him timidly—and Berton looked back at her—laughed a little and then took her into his arms and said, "Just a little," when Maisy asked him if he loved her. Afterward when Berton was about to leave Maisy said that as long as she didn't intend to remain single all her life she supposed it wouldn't be necessary to start saving.

CULTIVATOR DEMONSTRATIONS

County Agent Stapp reports splendid results from the eight cultivator demonstrations held in the county last week. He states that more than 175 farmers attended the eight demonstrations.

The objects of these demonstrations was to bring the different makes of cultivators to the attention of our farmers, and to help them get familiar with the different attachments.

It has been proven, said Mr. Stapp, that practically every farmer has a need for a two-horse cultivator. Statistics are given to show that more than five mules per man are being used on the farms in some of the Western agricultural states; while in Alabama less than one mule per man is being used on our farms.

Rev. Marion W. Mims, principal of the Baptist Institute at Eldridge, Ala., was in Clanton a while last Friday.

Rev. A. D. Huett of East Lake was here the first of this week taking the farm census of the vicinity around Clanton. He returned to his home Thursday.

FORD OUTSTANDING IN DIFFICULT CONTEST

Under conditions more difficult than those which confronted Joffre's immortal "taxicab army" in its frantic dash to the Marne in 1914, Model A Fords swept to victory in a specially arranged contest based on war emergencies staged by the military first aid section of the General Finnish Automobile Association.

Competing against fourteen different makes of automobiles manufactured in the United States and one Italian-made car, the sturdy Fords captured 18 out of 29 prizes. Ten of the fourteen "honor prizes" went to the Ford. Every Ford which entered the contest finished the 400 kilometer route. One was driven by a woman.

The purpose of the Finnish Automobile Association is to promote all-around driving training of its members in order that they may be able to take an active part in war maneuvers in a sudden emergency. Drivers received instructions regarding the route, parking places, and average speed required two minutes before the start of the race. No restrictions were placed on the size of the car or cylinder volume, which brought the Fords into competition with the more expensive and larger cars.

The race started from Helsingfors, and the cars were started at intervals of a few minutes in different directions. "Control Stations" were located at various points along the course to check the speed and other requirements. Reports of the outcome of the competition have just been received in this country.

W. C. DAVIS FOR GOVERNOR

The candidacy of Lieut. Governer W. C. Davis for governor—formal announcement of which will be made in ample time for the forthcoming campaign—doubtless will be received with favor by an overwhelming majority of the voters of Walker and adjoining counties.

Walker County and this immediate section of Alabama have never produced a governor; in fact, this part of the state has been slow to make a bid for that distinguished honor. But with a candidate who possesses so many sterling qualities as Hon. W. C. Davis, a candidate who is so familiar with matters of importance in the state and whose sound judgment has been displayed in scores of measures which he has championed in this state, the time is ripe for Walker to furnish a governor of Alabama.

Lieut. Governor Davis' honesty, dignity and aloofness from petty politics, factional quarrels and cheap demagogy have gained for him the genuine respect of all Alabamians who want our commonwealth to command the esteem and respect of all mankind.

The Eagle nominates Hon. W. C. Davis for Governor of Alabama.—Jasper Mountain Eagle.

DEATH OF WOMAN PROVES FALSEHOOD JUSTIFIABLE

An entire community in New Jersey, which has been aiding and abetting deception and falsehood for 11 years, voted itself entirely justified recently, following the death of a woman whose name is withheld because of her prominence.

Eleven years ago, according to the Woman's Home Companion, the woman, then advanced in age, had a son, Robert, in the American Expeditionary Forces in France. She had been dangerously ill on the day the news came that Robert had been killed in action. When the doctors said she could not survive the shock, the members of the family did not tell her. Instead they began to weave an elaborate fabric of deciet.

During the mother's convalescence letter came from France and she accepted them as being from her son. Finally one letter said that he was staying in France to work in the devasted fields after the Armistice had been signed.

Once started, the deception was so successful that it could not be stopped. For eleven years the relatives of the mother continued writing letters signed "Robert" filled with information gathered from those who had returned. They were sent to France to be remailed to the mother who waited at home. She lived in happy ignorance for eleven years and died happily.

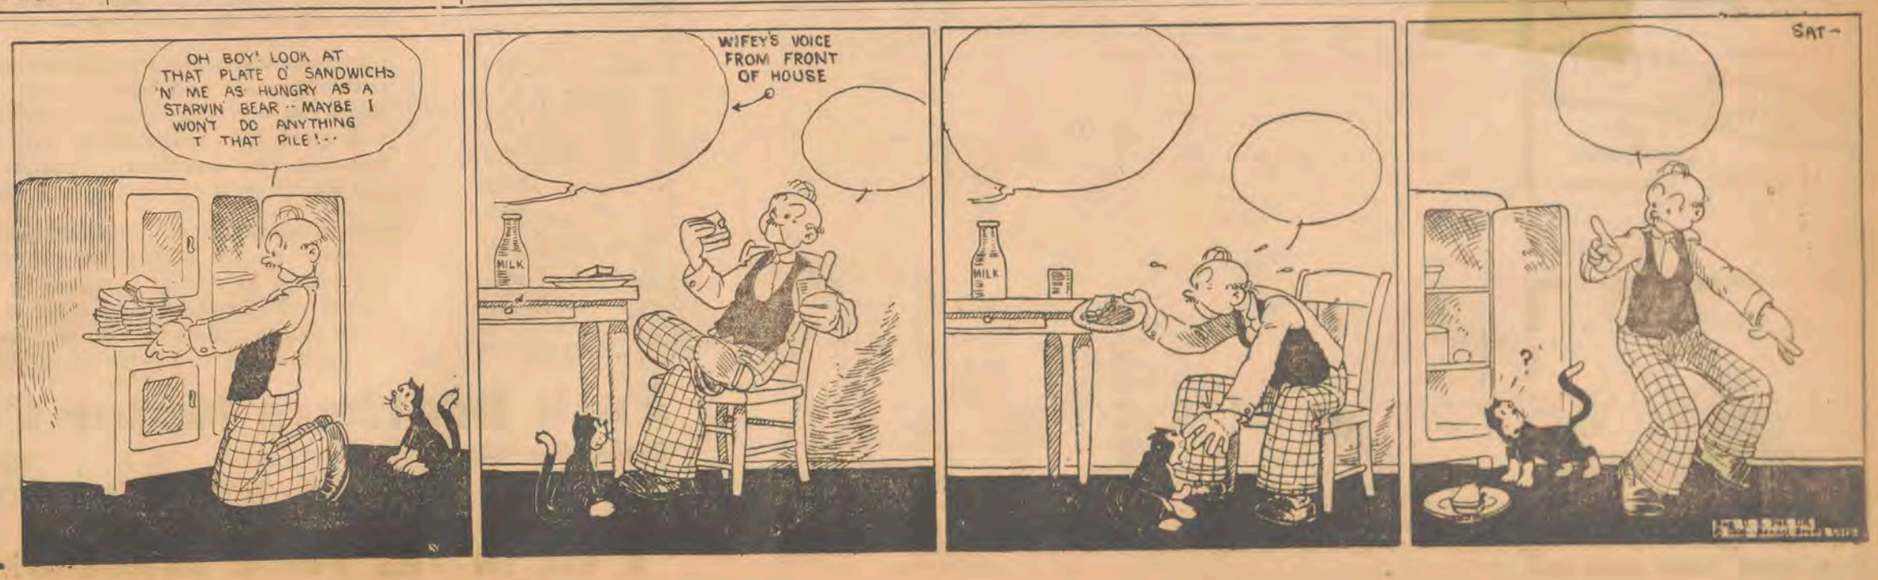
The News Editor turned to the Telephone

When floods isolated southern Alabama, and press time approached with little definite news of the disaster or the extent of the damage, the news editors of the Birmingham, Alabama, Age-Herald naturally turned to the long distance operators.

They knew from experience that the telephone service would not fail if loyalty, courage and human ingenuity could maintain it. The story of what happened is told in this letter from Harry C. Frye, assistant managing editor of the paper:



"May I express the appreciation of the Birmingham Age-Herald for the one hundred per cent cooperation and effectiveness of the long distance service during the southern Alabama flood disaster. . . . In twenty-five years' experience in the newspaper business I have found that I can meet and overcome most any difficulty in gathering news beyond the local borders simply by turning the responsibility over to the telephone operators. They have never failed me, and in the flood crisis your operators performed not only true to form, but met and overcame new problems with an ingenuity that is beyond all understanding of a humble newspaper man."

The telephone organization appreciates this tribute which encourages them in their determination that service shall not fail.

TRAINING CAMPS MAKE FOR MANHOOD NOT MILITARISM

Applications for admittance to the Citizen's Military Trainng Camps are 50 per cent ahead of last year—and that is good.

The occasional criticism of the training camps does not deserve attention on intrinsic merit, but has to be met because there are always some who will not give such criticism its true value.

What are these training camps?

Hotbeds of militarism, say the pacifists.

And that is about as true a description as to say sunshine, pure water and outdoor air are bad for the health.

It is a sickly perversion of the truth. It is the child of fear. It is a complete misrepresentation of the facts.

These training camps and militarism simply haven't a thing to do with each other.

In the camps young men are trained to take care of themselves if ever they have to be called to the colors. Instead of being plumped into service untrained, raw, they would be ready and fit at need, without unnecessary sacrifice of lives. It means better health among our soldiers should they ever be called into the field in their country's defense.

Aside from the technical training which is the primary purpose of the camps, they render service in giving men physical training. They give the young fellows a break from the dreary routine of work. They offer a splendid outdoor vacation. And they are one force directly counteracting among the young the wild and lawless living which comes from lack of an outlet for youthful energy.

On every count that means anything to a healthy, vigorous, manly men, the camps are praiseworthy in the extreme.

To every mother who wants her son to be a strong, upstanding man, able to take care of himself, fit to shoulder his share of the responsibilities of citizenship, they are a godsend, offering wholesome recreation and strngthening the boy's morale.

That the camps are appealing strongly to the young men of this nation must be cause for a deep sense of satisfaction among those who face life fair and square, and realize the merits of rugged citizenship.

Thank God that America is rich in youth, in young men fearless and strong and intelligent, able to take training for defensive service without the slightest danger of turning into roaring, sulphu-breathing militarists. —Philadelphia Record.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

It is only now that we are coming to realize the importance of the engineer and the chemist in our modern civilization. This has well been called the age of engineering and chemistry. The discoveries and inventions of the past few years have added greatly to the sum total of human comfort and human progress. This age more than all others is the age of the common man. In a recent address touching on the subject Dr. George Otis Smith, Director of the Geologic Survey at Washington said:

"It is a commonplace of the changing standards of living that the wage earner of our day can command luxuries which were beyond the reach of kings a generation or two ago. Adding power to the human arm and making it more productive is what characterizes modern industry; the carrying of heavier loads at higher speeds; making the ton mile faster and cheaper; measuring the success of transportation as we know it; and the conquest of distance, making the whole world one neighborhood, is the outstandig triumph of modern communication.

"The world we live in is the product of engineering. The worker of today with the many rapidly revolving wheels at his command does more work in a short day than scores, if not hundreds, of his ancestors could do working from dawn till dark; the president of a modern industrial corporation—or even of an engineering society—may travel more miles in a month than his grandfather did in a lifetime; and the aviation engineer who is now exploring the Antarctic regions, although 10,000 miles from his home land, is in daily communication with it—in closer touch indeed than his fellow Virginian, George Washington was with Mount Vernon when he was laying out the city of Washington only sixteen miles away. All this marvelous progress in industry, transportation and communication is simply an exhibit of what engineering has wrought in adding cubits to the stature of man."

All of which we of course realize and marvel at when we stop to think about it at all, but these wonders of the modern age have become so common-place that we seldom stop to consider them. We know of course that the railroad, the telegraph and the telephone made it possible to bind this great country into one nation, and we know further that the automobile, with the traveling and migrating it has induced, is wiping out the last vestige of sectionalism in America. We know also that in the field of chemistry, great secrets are being wrested from nature by the earnest men in the great scientific laboratories of the world.

All of this, of course, redounds to the benefit of the common man, because each discovery lessens the cost of production, just as the developing of our engineering lessens the cost of transportation and communication. It is well to note also that in no other country in the world is the man of ordinary means, the worker as well able to take personal advantage of these innovations as in America. It is in this country of ours that the automobile, the radio, electrical equipment, including the telephone, and modern plumbing are to be found in the home of the wage worker and the salaried man. Over in Europe these advantages are for the most part confined to the wealthier classes. The workers live pretty much as they did in the old days, although there has been some improvement perhaps, in the more progressive countries of the Old World.

It is the American theory that high wages should go along with mass production because high wages increase the buying power and so they increase production further. In Europe the old idea prevails that production cost must be cheapened by paying the worker a bare living instead of lowering costs by mass production. That the American idea is the better is evidenced by the facts, and that is why efforts to lower the costs in America by increasing European competition in our own big home market, meet with such stern resistance from the producer.

There is one thing that we insist on and that is a prohibitive tariff on green beans with strings attached.

The tariff on pineapples is to be increased and the free traders will doubtless consider this rough work.

405,127 Ford Cars and Trucks Comprise Domestic Total—Balance Foreign

World production of Ford cars and trucks during the first three months of the year 1929 aggregated 500,781. Of that figure, 405,127 were domestic and the remainder were export or produced by Ford of Canada.

The biggest month of the three was March, of course, during which 181,894 cars and trucks were made.

Sales during the same period—as indicated by registrations in the different states and the District of Columbia—gave Ford a decided advantage. Ford products outsold all other makes in every state in the Union during January and February. Reports for March from all parts of the country have not yet been received, but out of 47 states thus far listed, Ford registrations were highest in all but two.

IN MEMORY OF MY LOVING HUSBAND, LUTHER MARTIN

On the morning of May 30, the death angel bore away the spirit of Luther Martin to his heavenly home. He had been in ill health for about four months. It looked like me and the children could never bear to see him go, but dear ones God just needed him more than we did so He called him to be one of his shining angels, where he had a brighter crown to fill in heaven. He had laid down the cross and took the crown. We know he will be ready to meet us as we pass into eternity. He leaves two children, Carl and Robert Earl; six sisters and one brother. He was laid away to rest at Collins Chapel Friday, with Rev. Ezell conducting the funeral. May God's richest blessings rest upon each and everyone of you who helped me through my need and my trouble.

We miss him, Oh, we miss him,
But we are praying to meet him
In a better land some day.
Where there'll be no more good-bye.

CREST VIEW POULTRY FARM

By S. E. NORTON, Thorsby, Ala.

The writer recently visited and inspected "Crest View Poultry Farm," about three miles south of Thorsby, which is the Post office and banking town of the proprietor, Mr. Frank Mastin, who by the way grew up in Thorsby and married Miss Lily Smith, a Thorsby girl. His father Dr. O. C. Mastin, started the business in Thorsby with very little capital many years ago, and with a younger son, Walter, now has a flourishing poultry farm near that of his son, Frank.

Crest View Poultry Farm as it is today represents an investment of several thousand dollars and a lot of patient toil. There is an independent electric plant which affords an abundance of light and power for pumping water from a deep well which is piped to all the colony houses and supplies the drinking fountains with absolutely pure and fresh water for the fowls. These Founts are scrubbed frequently and never permitted to become foul.

The business as at present conducted is devoted exclusively to the production of High Grade White Leghorn poultry and together with their products and supplies for poultry growers.

We were especially interested in the methods employed to insure the highest grade of laying hens and breeders. There are now in stock upwards of 2,000 pedigreed fowls. One cock was sold for $100 and was bought in by Mr. Mastin at a bargain for breeding purposes in raising the quality of the stock.

The colony houses are scattered over several acres of area and give access to plowed fields and green pastures. To determine the laying quality of the hens a metal band bearing a number is attached to the leg. Nests are so arranged that a hen, when ready to lay an egg seeks seclusion. A board walk is arranged in front of a row of Trap Nests; the hen can enter any nest that seems to suit her, but once in, a door is closed leaving only an opening for ventilation. She can not get out, and no other hen can get in until the door is opened. The keeper walks along, thrusts a hand into the opening and finding an egg, takes the hen gently out of the nest, examines the number on her leg band, lets the hen loose and immediately marks on a tablet bearing 100 numbers, credit for an egg, so a record is kept daily of all eggs laid in the Trap nests, which soon determines which hens are the best layers, and from the best only, eggs are kept to hatch pedigreed stock. By continuing such a course for several years a very high grade of stock can be assured.

Out of the 2,000 fowls possibly 25 per cent will be found worthy to be classed as good breeding stock. These are sequestered, mated with pedigreed roosters and the eggs hatched in incubators which permits exclusion of any inferior stock and grown to keep or sell as breeders.

We heard Mr. Mastin say he would not sell for breeders any fowl that he would not want himself for that purpose. A very important branch of the business is selling young chicks from this pedigreed stock, of which 10,000 have been sold during the season just closed. The lower grades of stock are sold for fryers or grown fowls for eating.

After a well earned two weeks vacation spent in visiting relatives and friends in Clanton, in Chilton County and in Birmingham, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Mullins returned to Tuscaloosa on Sunday afternoon.

Lesson for June 9

THE STORY OF THE RECHABITES

(Temperance Lesson.)

LESSON TEXT—Jeremiah 35:1-19.

GOLDEN TEXT—We will drink no wine

PRIMARY TOPIC—Strong to Do the Right

JUNIOR TOPIC—Loyal to Do the Right.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Accepting a High Moral Standard.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Forms of Modern Persecution.

I. Who Were the Rechabites? (I Chron. 2:55).

They were Kenites of Hemath of the family of Jethro, Moses' father-in-law (Num. 10:29-32, cf. Judges 1:16). They entered Canaan with the Israelites. It seems that in order to preserve their identity they chose a nomadic life. Saul was considerate of them (I Sam. 15:6). They were characterized by:

1. Abstinence from strong drink (35:8). 2. Voluntary poverty (35:9). 3. A nomadic life (35:10).

II. The Rechabites Tested (vv. 1-5).

In the days of Jehoiachim the Lord charged Jeremiah to bring the Rechabites into the house of the Lord and test them regarding the drinking of wine. This he did in a place where the people might behold them, the aim being to teach Judah by example. The father of the Rechabites had given the command that they should not drink wine. Their filial obedience put to shame the children of Judah for their lack of obedience to their Heavenly Father. Jonadab, the father of the Rechabites, was only a man, but the commands which Judah disregarded were from the Almighty God, their Creator and Savior. They stood the test. They were loyal to the traditions of their fathers, even turning away from the luxury and degeneracy of Judah and maintaining their simple life. It is God's plan that every man be tested. Being a free agent, he can have character only through testing. It was for this reason that God placed Adam and Eve in Eden and permitted the devil to test them. While we should be concerned about the removal of temptation from men, we should be more concerned with showing them how to overcome it.

III. The Filial Loyalty of the Rechabites (vv. 6-11).

Though they were out of their own country and among a foreign people, they refused to drink wine, declaring that they had been true to the instructions of Jonadab all their lives. Obedience to his instruction had been practiced by the men, women and children. It is a fine thing when children keep in mind their fathers and render obedience to their commands.

IV. The Loyalty of the Rechabites Contrasted with the Disloyalty of Judah (vv. 12-16).

1. The appeal (vv. 13, 14). This appeal was made on the basis of the filial loyalty of the Rechabites. He reminded them that though their father had been dead a long time, the Rechabites remained loyal to his command. The prophet appealed to them not only on the ground of this example, but on the ground of God's earnest entreaty through the prophets.

2. The ministry of the prophets (vv. 15, 16). When the people failed to render obedience to God, He sent them prophets who pleaded with them to amend their ways by turning away from idols. Matthew Henry indicates the points of contrast as follows:

(1) The Rechabites were obedient to one who was but a man. The Jews disobeyed the infinite and eternal God. (2) Jonadab was dead long since and could not know of their disloyalty or correct them concerning it. God is all-wise, lives forever and will punish the disobedient. (3) The Rechabites were never put in mind of their obligations, but God sent His prophets who rose up early to remind Judah. (4) Jonadab left the charge, with no one to bear the expense of the charge, but God gave Judah a goodly land and blessed them in it. (5) God never tied up His people to any hard task as did Jonadab, but God's people disobeyed Him, while the Rechabites obeyed their father.

V. Judgment Upon the Jews for Disobedience (v. 17).

God declared that He would bring judgment as pronounced against them.

VI. The Rechabites Rewarded for Their Loyalty (vv. 18, 19).

Because they had been true to the commands of Jonadab, they should have continued representation before God.

Walk While Ye Have Light

The people answered Him, We have heard out of the law that Christ abideth for ever; and how sayest thou, the Son of Man must be lifted up? Who is this Son of Man? Then Jesus said unto them, Yet a little while is the light with you. Walk while ye have the light, lest darkness come upon you; for he that walketh in darkness knoweth not whither he goeth. While ye have light, believe in the light, that ye may be children of light.—John 12, 34 to 36.

JAP'S IGNORANCE DRAPS

Jemison, Ala., June 3, 1929.

Editor Union-Banner:

I was in your town last Friday, and a few of us common people went before the School board, but from the way we were treated, we felt like we were out of place. In fact we could hardly get in the office of the Superintendent of Education for the desks and office chairs. I asked who all these desks were for. I was told that one was for Miss Scarborough, one for Mrs. Stapp, one for Prof. Lawrence and one for Miss Jewell Martin. My, I said, what a lot of officers to look after our schools. I asked where Miss Scarborough came from, and who paid her, and what her duties were, and was told that she came from out of this county, was paid out of the School funds and went around to show the teachers how to teach school. Oh, I said, I thought that the teachers were trained before they started teaching, but my informer said that we were living in a progressive age and that every one that wanted a job had to have one. Then I asked who Mrs. Stapp was and where she came from and what her duties were, and was informed that she also came from out of our county and that her duties were to see that all the children went to school, and look after the children of the County. Well, I said that I thought all children had parents to look after them. I told them that I thought Prof. Lawrence was paid a large salary to ride around over the county and survey the schools and see that everything was going all right, but my informer said we are still progressive and he is too big a man for this, his duties are just to ride around, smoke fine cigars, and see that Mrs. Stapp and Miss Scarborough do their duties. Well, I said that we are progressive. Money is no object, all we have to do is to hollow education and mention the poor chlidren, and we taxpayers run over each other, throwing up our hats, and hollowing Hurrah for the boys and girls. And continue to vote more taxes, to hire more people from outside our county to come in here and dictate to us what to do, and still the more tax we vote on ourselves the less the children get out of the School money. It is taken up on high salaries before it ever reaches the children in the rural section of this county.

As stated above a few of us common people went before the School board, and when the meeting was opened Mr. C. C. Conway, chairman of the board stated that he had been informed that some people wanted to come before the board and be heard, and he said that the board had decieded to let each one have only five minutes, so we went at it. Mr. M. D. Foshee, urged the board not to take hasty action in electing a superintendent, but to advertise it and give the people of the county a chance to be heard, W. A. Reynolds, L. H. Bean, A. P. Vinson, Prof. M. W. Mims, and myself and others begged the board to give the people a chance to be heard on the election of a superintendent, and then Judge Reynolds got up and said that he could not make a speech on so important a question as the election of a County Superintendent in five minutes, but that he hoped there would come a time when the people could be heard, and more than five minutes at a time. The Judge urged the board to put the matter of election of a supreintendent off and give the people a chance to be heard, that there was no reason in being in such a hurry. He said that the people did not know when this election was to be, he said even the school board did not know themselves for at a former meeting Mr. Webb and Mr. Yates tried to elect Mr. Lawrence, and he said Mr. C. C. Conway, the chairman, had told him on last Thursday that Friday was the last day they could elect a county Superintendent. And Mr. Conway spoke up and said that was his understanding. Then Judge Reynolds produced a letter from Prof. Tidwell, State Superintendent, showing that the board could elect a Superintendent any time to July 30, 1929, and he said if the Board did not know when the election was coming off how did they expect the people to know. I sat by in amazement, and watched the expression of the board, and I believe that if every voter in the County had asked them not to elect Lawrence that they would have elected him just the same. It seemed that it made Mr. Conway, Yates and Webb mad to mention the matter, they looked like they thought no one had a right to question their actions.

Judge Reynolds made the statement that not a single man had been in his office and said he was for Lawrence. He said that he had not heard of but three men for him, and that was three members of the School board until Mr. Webb told him that Mr. W. G. Culp, John C. Page and one or two others in Clanton had requested him to vote for Lawrence.

Well, yes, we are progressing, we are going by leaps and bounds, while our children are lagging behind in education. They are not learning as much now as when they had less than half the money for school purposes that they have now. And who is to blame for this? Isn't it time for us to stop, Look and Listen? The farmer will have his say you know before there is another school tax or any other kind of tax voted in this County. The people will want to know a few things. They would like to know now how much school money has been spent by the board the last year. If they have to have so many women to run the school business why not give the job to some of our own county girls, whose father is helping to pay the tax, to run the schools of this county. Are the members of the board and superintendent not under any obligations to the people of this county, but owe all their allegiance to people of some other county. I hope that some one will answer the above question as the tax payers have a right to know where their money goes.

I could write all day on this subject, but if the people will just go into the County Superintendent's office and look around, if you can get in there, you will see for yourself why the school business in this county is busted.

In conclusion I would like to say that I believe in good schools, good churches, etc., but I am thoroughly convinced that we will never have good schools in this county until the Board of Education takes the people of the county into their confidence, and run the schools for the interest of the children of the county and not just for a few people to draw a fat salary.

Yours for the schools of the county.—J. N. Scott, The Ignorance Drop Doctor.

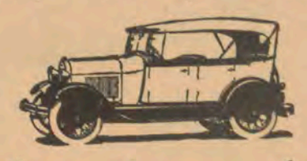
Misses Addie Sue Sharp of Mitchell Dam and Miss Lakeman of Haleyville were visitors at The Banner office Tuesday. Miss Lakeman is the daughter of Editor E. P. Lakeman of The Advertiser-Journal of Haleyville. She is spending her vacation with relatives at Lock 12 and Mitchell Dam.

"Sorry," said the greeting cards manufacturer to his clerk. "Got to let you out. Sentiment has no place in business, you know."

J. A. Nivens was a visitor to Birmingham last Saturday.

"And what did the lawyer tell you, dearie?" inquired Bessie.

"Oh," replied Tessie in the tone of one for whom everything is already settled. "He told me to wear this same costume in court."



"I have some bad news for you," said the young wife tremulously.

"N-no," she replied thoughtfully. "I had considered that, but I decided not to. I'm just going to divorce you."

WINGED ANTS DESTROY BUILDINGS

Montgomery, Ala., June 3,—Structural timbers are often destroyed or damaged by the so-called "Winged ants," according to reports received by the State Commission of Forestry from various parts of the state. These white insects are no respecters of wealth, but bore into and destroy joists, floors, rugs and even books in the millionaire's manson as well as the timbers of the humblest cottage.

The termites tunnel through wood and destroy its structure with the exception of the outer shell. The owner, therefore, usually has no intimation that his building is being damaged until a post or joist collapses or a floor board gives away.

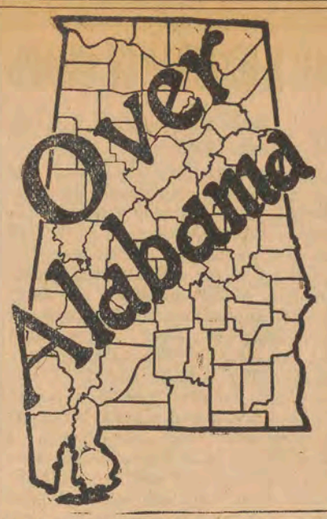
The insects cannot live in a building unless they have a dark moist passage way from the structure to the ground. This is found in most cases through untreated wood in contact with the earth or resting on moist concrete or brick foudations, or even along a damp water or drain pipe. Sometimes they build covered passageways of wood pulp or earth over impenetrable barriers, but these can usually be easly located and destroyed.

Precautions in construction of the buildings will render them almost termite proof. Structures should be designed with sufficient cross ventilation beneath the first floor. Joist, sills and other timbers in subflooring and in moist locations should be impregnated with coal tar creosote or other preservatives. If this is not done caps of metal or concrete should be placed on all foundation parts.

LAMB AND WOOL

Montgomery, Ala., June 3.—Lamb and wool producers of the Black belt of Alabama have within the last two weeks sold $24,396.88 worth of lambs and wool cooperatively, according to J. D. Moore ad J. B. Slyvest, marketing specialists of the Extension Service, Auburn. During the two weeks the sheepmen sold 2,524 lambs and 32,894 pounds of wool.

The cooperative lamb sale as well as the cooperative wool sales were conducted by Alabama Farm Bureau Federation, the Alabama Extension Service, the Montgomery Stock Yards and sheep growers of Dallas, Wilcox, Lowndes, Perry, Autauga, Morengo, Hale, Montgomery, Tuscaloosa, Bullock, and Elmore counties. The lamb sale was held in Montgomery, while the wool sales were held at Uniontown, Selma, and Montgomery.



Top lambs brought the growers 15 1-2 cents per pound, light tops 14 cents, seconds 10 cents and number three's 7 cents. Clear wool brought 36 cents, light burry 31 cents, medium burry 26 cents, and hard burry 21 cents.

Approimately 50 per cent of the lambs were tops, lots of the wool also graded clear.

The lambs as well as the wool came from the black-belt, which is located in southwest Alabama, over which district R. G. Arnold is district agent. Mr. Arnold has aided in working out plans for improving the production and marketing of lambs and wool produced in this section. F. W. Burns and R. S. Sugg, livestock specialist, have also spent a great deal of time and effort trying to improve the ndustry. Their solu[illegible] work is bringing results as indicated tem[illegible]y better grades of lambs and wool Sep[illegible]at the recent sales.

BETTER COTTON IS BEING DEMANDED

Auburn, Ala., June 3.—If American cotton farmers are to maintain their dominant position in world production of cotton they must produce cotton of better staple, declare experts of the college of agriculture at Auburn. Unless they improve their staple they will come in direct competition with the inferior cotton of India and allow that nation to be a bigger factor in determining world prices.

The tendency toward shorter staples and inferior quality has been very noticeable in this country for many years. One reason is that the staple of some of the best yielding varieties is too short. It is easier to make big yields per acre when short staples are produced. Longer staple usually means smaller production. The boll weevil has caused deterioration of American cotton.

There is another good reason for improving the quality. The use of cotton in industry is increasing; and most of these new industrial demands are for good cotton. For example, the automobile tire business is now taking six per cent of the American cotton crop, and this industry does not call for inferior grades. Again cotton is re-establishing itself as a style fabric; and this calls for more good cotton.

Production of too much low grade cotton is also a burden to the market. If a surplus of it should accumulate its sale would become more difficult. The best way to avoid this is to produce better cotton for which the demand is increasing steadily and surely.

THORSBY—THE TOWN

By S. E. NORTON

"Once Upon A Time" the writer met up with a man in Thorsby who carried a pencil, a pad of paper and a worried expression. His first speech was, "What's Your business?" Nearly every man I meet in Thorsby seems to be in some Business! I've been sent here by ..... naming a Birmingham Paper, with instructions to write up Thorsby in a 1,000-word article. I've got more than that now and don't seem to be half done!"

Thorsby is not large by the census reports, but for its population and its trading community, it would be hard to find a town in the South with greater shipping, Post office and banking business.

Within the past 60 days a strawberry crop has been harvested and shipped which sold for upwards of $100,000, in which nearly everybody in the community had more or less pecuniary interest; but there other industries in and about the little town that are of considerable impartance.

1268 acres
would make a big farm

AT Milford, Michigan, 1268 acres have been made—not into a farm—but into a Proving Ground for automobiles.

Long before your General Motors car is built, specimen models are sent to the Proving Ground. This fleet is tested in actual use. It has to meet every bad driving condition, from heart-breaking hills to slam-bang bumps.

But that isn't all. Other cars of American and European manufacture are bought and put through the same tests, so that General Motors always knows how its products compare with others.

The tests involve speed, power, endurance, braking, riding comfort, handling ease; fuel, oil and tire economy; body strength—every phase of car construction and performance.

When the specimen cars are finally able to meet every test, they are sent back to the factory. The car you buy is made exactly like them.

The next time you examine a General Motors car in your dealer's showroom, think of those 1268 acres. They would make a big farm. But they make a better promise of proved car value.

Bro. Bryan's Weekly Message

(Written for The Union-Banner by REV. J. A. BRYAN, Pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, Birmingham, Alabama)

SUBJECT: THE FUNDAMENTALS OF THE CHRISTIAN'S FAITH

The Bible, God's Word, contains many facts which are the corner stones of the Christian's faith. The Bible not only speaks of corner stones, but it also speaks of foundations. In the inspired letter of Peter the author writes these words: "Behold in Zion a chief corner stone, elect and precious." Now that refers only to Christ. "Other foundation can no man lay than that which is laid which is Christ." Then Jesus Christ is the corner stone and foundation of the Christian's faith, the same yesterday, today and forever.

He was before the world, and by Him all things consist. All things were made by Him and without Him was not anything made that was made. I wish to study with you this morning the fundamentals of the Christian's faith. One great fundamental is that the outstanding facts of Christianity are prophesied. This could not be said of Mohammedanism, Nestorism, Judaism, Mazdaism, Confucianism, Buddhism, Taoism, Brahamaism, Shintooism, Zoaraster, ancestor worship, or any other religion except, as I have already said, Christianity.

Think of how clearly we can see the prophecies of the Old Testament fulfilled. For example, "The seed of the woman shall bruise the serpent's head." Certainly that is a prophecy concerning Christ. It could mean no other. You will find it in Gen. 3:15. Again in numbers 24:17 we read of Christ, a star out of Jacob. Then we read that in Abraham's seed all familiesilies of the earth were blessed. In Isaiah the people asked for a sign and the prophet told them that this would be a sign, behold a virgin shall conceive and bear a son, and shall call His name Immanuel.

In Micah 5:2 the very geographical location of Christ's birth is foretold. The prophecy begins the sentence by naming the birthplace: "Thou, Bethlehem Ephratah, though thou be little among the thousands of Judah, yet out of thee shall come forth unto me that is to be ruler in Israel; whose goings forth have been from of old, from everlasting." Think of another prophecy in the 13th chapter of Zechariah in these words: "In that day there shall be a fountain opened to the house of David and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem for sin and uncleanness." This prophecy was literally fulfilled when the great loving heart of Christ was pierced by a Gentile spear outside the northern gate of Jerusalem.

Now the Jews did not live alone in Jerusalem. There were other nationalities. Certainly there were other inhabitants who were Gentiles. The great loving heart of Jesus our Saviour was broken for the sins of the world, the sins of the whole world and not for any one nationality. He, the Sun of Righteousness, (Mal. 4:2) died of a broken heart, the hero of the rugged cross of Calvary for the selvation of every man, woman, and child on the face of the earth.

Now the persons who predicted these events looked down through the centuries and saw just what I have been speaking to you about. Another great fundamental of the Christian's faith was the birth of Christ. It was announced by an angel in the hill country of Galilee. I saw the hill where this announcement was made while I was in the Holy Land. It is about one half or perhaps one fourth mile from Mary's Fountain on the old road which passed through and does pass through Bethlehem. There the angel Gabriel announced to the Virgin Mary that she would be the mother of the long-looked-for Messiah.

The Annuciation was made in words like these: "The Holy Ghost shall come up on thee, and the power of the Highest shall overshadow thee: therefore also that holy thing which shall be born of thee shall be called the Son of God." Christ was born of this Mary in whose veins both Jew and Gentile blood flowed because she was a descendant of Ruth. This birth took place in Bethlehem of Judah in a manger. To be truthful and loyal to these fundamentals we admit that this birth was a prophesied birth. It was a birth in God's plan for the salvation of man.

This birth was announced by an angel in the hill country of Galilee. It was a supernatural birth. It was a miraculous birth. It was a virgin birth. It was an humble birth. He had to be born in a low state that He might lift you and me up. That was the cause of His humility. Another great fundamental in the Bible of the Christian's faith are the miracles. I will give you another person's definition of a mircale: "A miracle is an event in the external world due to the immediate efficiency of God."

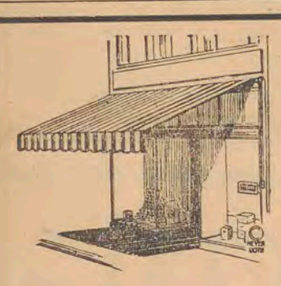
God's power is the only source by which a miracle could be worked. The great fundamental fact that Jesus was Christ who worked miracles no one can deny. Notice the spheres in which He worked. In nature He changed water into wine in Cana of Galilee. Secondly, He calmed the storm on the Sea of Galilee. I took a boat ride on that sea one moonlight night while I was visiting in the Holy Land. To me it is the most beautiful sheet of water on the face of the earth. Certainly it has many sacred associations with the early ministry of Jesus. I also visited the plains of Gennesaret on which Jesus taught and also multiplied five small loaves of bread and two small fish to feed may be thirteen thousand people.

In nature He caused a great school of fish to get near the boat so that the disciples could make a great haul. It was to that natural moaning, groaning crying in the East like an earthquake in the thunder and lightning that miracles were worked by Christ and by His disciples in that age. No doubt this proves the Deity of Christ. Another great fundamental of the Christian's faith is the teachings of Jesus Christ.

All of the teachings of Christ can be summed up in one sentence which is this: "He spake as never man spake before." He spake as one having authority. His teachings were different. His teachings were uplifting. His teachings were comforting. Whoever said, "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest," but Christ. No one ever could give a weary soul rest but Christ. No one but Christ ever said, "As ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them."

Christ taught the realities of life in a statement like this: "Is not the life more than meat and the body more than raiment?" No one else had ever taught that life was real, life was earnest, life was more than anything outward. No one else taught that the life we must lead should be a very serious life. Christ certainly has given us His word, the Bible which contains and teaches the most beautiful and marvelous philosophy of life. Certainly we can turn to His teachings to meet the needs of human life.

Christ taught by symbols His atoning death when He took the cup and gave thanks and gave to them, saying, "Drink ye of it; for this is my blood of the new testament, which is shed for many for the remission of sins." Of the blessed and broken bread by Him, He said, "Take eat; this is my body." He commanded all to partake of this in these words: "This do in remembrance of me." No one but Jesus ever said, "Let not your heart be troubled, ye believe in God, believe also in me. In my Father's house are many mansions, and I go to prepare a place for you."



Christ stood there under the shadow of the cross in the upper room in Jerusalem that memorable Thursday night before His crucifixion on Calvary's Hill the next day, and uttered these sayings and many more. No one but Christ ever taught that we should be submissive. Christ taught by His humble life, by His example when He prayed, "Nevertheless, not my will, but Thine, O Father, be done."

The death of Christ was another great fundamental of the Christian faith. His death was the only death ever prophesied. He was the only person that ever knew how, where and when He would die. He was the only person who ever died that lived before the foundation of the world. It was a prophesied death in the prophets by Christ Himself. His death showed the awfulness of sin. It portrayed the hideous crime which sin leads to. It showed a violent, painful, shameful, vicarious, voluntary, accursed death, fulfilling the prophecy that accursed is everyone that hangeth on a tree." His bruised hands and feet fulfilled prophecy in that He was wounded for our transgressions, He was bruised for our iniquities.

His death was a reconciling death. God made peace, reconciling us to God through the blood of the cross from the broken and wounded heart of His only begotten Son. This was to reconcile all things unto Himself. Of course it was a peace-giving death. Over and over we read that in Him we have redemption through the blood of His Son. Redemption is salvation and salvation brings peace to our hearts and lives. His death was a soul-cleansing death. "Now, ye are cleansed through the blood of the cross, for the blood of Christ cleanses us from all sin."

The resurrection of Christ is another fundamental of the Christian's faith. I just pause and speak these sentences: The resurrection of Christ shows or proves His divinity. When He arose He triumphed over death and the grave. His resurrection also proves His Sonship of the Father. It is also a proof of our resurrrection, because He arose, we shall arise. These wonderful fundamentals are from the Bible, the great fundamental Word of the ages, the foundation of character.

This is my fortieth anniversary sermon. Forty years ago I preached at this very hour to this very church. There is only one charter member living and worshiping at this fortieth Anniversary sermon that heard me preach forty years ago in the 11 o'clock service. O my friends, if I fail to preach these great fundamentals of the Christian's faith, I have failed. What I have done, I have done. What I have written I have written. I ask that if you have not already accepted Christ to accept Him to-day as your Lord and King, the great head of the church, the only Mediator between you and God, the great Comforter and the great Friend of humanity.

Huge Pan-Am Airplane Makes its Headquarters in the South

The "Pan-Am" is equally at home on land, water or in flight. When it lands on water the wheels are raised by hydraulic pressure to a position parallel with the lower wings

THE "Pan-Am," a twin-motored Sikorsky Amphibion airplane was recently brought south by the Pan American Petroleum Corporation. It flew from New York to New Orleans and is headquartered there to be used by company officials on trips throughout the southern states.

The Sikorsky is a plane of the most advanced design and construction and is a type which can land with equal facility on land or water. It is in reality a flying yacht and is equipped with every device for safety and comfort in flying. The cabin has a seating capacity for eight passengers, two pilots and a mechanic. The wing spread is 71 feet. The two 410 horsepower Pratt & Whitney Wasp motors carry it through the air at a top speed of 130 miles an hour and a cruising speed of 115 miles an hour. With the fuel tank filled to its capacity of 340 gallons of gasoline the Sikorsky has a flying radius of eight hours.

C. D. Kirkeby, the pilot, has had fourteen years in aviation, ten having been spent in the United States Navy as instructor, test pilot and special aircraft operator. For some time he was stationed aboard the aircraft carrier Langley. His experience includes approximately 3,000 hours in the air, four years overseas during the World War, and activity in launching catapult shots from airplanes, both by air and by powder. He has flown in many foreign countries and practically all over the United States.

The second pilot is W. B. Murphy, former navy pilot and instructor in commercial aviation, who also has had many hundreds of hours of flying in foreign countries. J. J. Maloney, for nine years in the navy with experimental squadrons and aircraft scouting fleets, is mechanic.

The Sikorsky is the type of plane used by Colonel Lindbergh on his recent flight to the Panama Canal Zone opening up the air mail line.

The Pan American Petroleum Corporation brought this Sikorsky south in the interest of aviation and to promote the development of proper landing fields. During the past year they have been making a survey of the entire south to determine the conditions of various fields in view of purchasing this plane. They expect to visit every section of the south where there are fields suitable for the plane to land.

H. J. KLINGLER CHEVROLET'S NEW VICE PRESIDENT

Detroit, June 3.—A new figure rose to prominence on the automobile horizon a few weeks ago with the appointment of H. J. Klingler as Vice President and General Sales Manager of the Chevrolet Motor Company. Mr. Klingler takes charge of a selling force of more than 35,000 people and becomes the leader of an organization geared up to sell more than one million automobiles annually.

In his new position, Mr. Klingler, at 40, takes over the work formerly directed by R. H. Grant, now a Vice President of General Motors.

Mr. Klingler was born July 5, 1889, at St. Clair, Mich., where he lived until finishing at the St. Clair high school in 1908. That fall he entered the University of Michigan becoming a member of the Lit-Law class of 1912.

He left the University before taking his degree to become associated with the Chalmers Motor Company, where he remained for a short time. His first introduction to sales work was in the summer of 1912 when he went with the Murphy Chair Company in Detroit. During his five years with this organization, the new Chevrolet sales chief had a hand in the company's advertising work, served as traffic manager and, later as sales manager.

At the outbreak of the war he volunteered and was sent to the officers' training camp at Fort Sheridan, Ill., where he was commissioned a First Lieutenant of Infantry. He was transferred later to the Fourth Anti-Aircraft Machine Gun Battalion with which he saw a year's service overseas.

After he was mustered out of service early in 1919, opportunity beckoned in Dayton and he went to the Ohio city and joined the sales organization of the Delco-Light Company. In his five years with this company he gained a broad knowledge of sales and advertising in varied capacities and in many sections of the country. This was his first contact with R. H. Grant with whom he was later to become closely associated.

Mr. Grant came to Chevrolet early in 1924 and recognizing Mr. Klingler's success in Delco-Light urged him to join Chevrolet. The new Chevrolet sales chief then resigned his post as branch manager for Delco-Light at Sioux Falls, S. D., and went to St. Louis, Mo., as zone sales manager for Chevrolet.

A year later he was called to the central office of the company in Detroit and in 1926 was made an assistant general sales manager.

Public acceptance of the Chevrolet car had been increasing by leaps and bounds and it became necessary for Mr. Grant as director of the far-flung selling organization to extend and expand his selling force to cope with the grownig demand for the product. In the working out of his plan of perfecting the organization that was soon to sell more than one million cars annually, Mr. Grant found it advisable to share more of the responsibility with Mr. Klingler. As a result in May 1927, Mr. Grant became Vice President in charge of sales and Mr. Klingler became general sales manager.

For the last two years, Mr. Klingler has been closely associated with Mr. Grant in the designing and carrying out of plans that brought to Chevrolet such a spectular measure of success. He has sen Chevrolet sales double in volume since he joined the organization and has seen the personnel of the organization double in size.

Mr. Klingler, an outstanding successful man, has no patent formulas for success and knows no short cuts to independence. He dispatches the question with the admonition that work—and plenty of it, is the best guaranty.

CHILTON COUNTY ABSTRACT CO.

M. D. FOSHEE, Manager

A good business man will not buy a farm or any property without first looking it over to see what it is worth.

However, some will buy or loan money on land without an abstract.

Isn't it equally as foolish to buy a farm without looking it over as to buy it and not know whether the titles are good or not? Without an abstract you do not know where you are getting the land you look at or not.

Before investing in land in any way have an abstract made and be safe.

Opportunity School Is Good Thing

Prof. Harris has given The Union-Banner a couple of letters that were written by students of the opportunity schools last year. These letters are very impressive when you think of the fact that they were written by people, who, prior to their attendance at the opportunity schools, could not even write their names or spell a single word.

One fo the letters is from Mr. Jeff Baker. Mr. Harris says he had a hard time getting Mr. Baker interested in the school last year, but finally persuaded him to come. Here is the way Mr. Baker expresses himself about the matter now, in his own writing:

"Dear Mr. Harris: I will write you just a few lines to let you know how much I appreciate our opportunity schools. I think it is fine. I went to one of the schools about two weeks. When I started I couldn't write my name, but when I quit I could read and write too pretty well. I hope we have another school this summer. I will go as regular as possible, for I know it will be a benefit to me.—Yours truly, T. J. Baker."

Another letter was written by Mr. E. D. Hayes, who expresses himself as follows:

"Dear Sir: I am asking the editor for a small space in The Banner to tell the people how I appreciate what the State and the County have done for me. I didn't know anything much, but I have been going to this school and I have got to where I can write a little and read a little. I would be glad that everybody who needs to would go to these schools for it is the best thing I ever heard of. There are so many who need to take advantage of this, their only opportunity to get an education. I am going to do all I can to attend one of these schools again.—Yours truly, E. D. Hayes.

Master Farmers Side-Dress Cotton and Corn

Many farmers throughout the South who have never side-dressed their cotton and corn will do so for the first time this season, it is indicated. Farmers who have made a practice of side-dressing in the past say that this method of fertilizing cotton insures earlier maturity, increases yields, and lowers the cost of producing the crop.

No farmer can afford to continue the fertilizer practice used before the appearance of the boll weevil, or persist in using cottonseed meal or use slow-acting forms of nitrogen if best results are expected. Cotton requires a quick-acting, readily soluble nitrogen, one the plant can eat or absorb quickly and convert into weed and fruit growth rapidly.

Experiments conducted by the Alabama and other Experiment Stations of the South show that best yields are secured when, in addition to the fertilizer applied at planting time, 100 to 200 pounds of Chilean nitrate of soda are applied at the first cultivation after chopping. Some farmers use two applications, making the second at the appearance of the first squares.

Side-dressing cotton and corn with Chilean nitrate of soda is practiced, it is said, by most all Master Farmers of the South. In reply to the question, "Do you find it pays to side dress?" Master Farmer B. N. Sykes of Harrellsville, North Carolina, says: "I side-dress 40 acres of corn each year with 100 to 150 pounds of Chilean nitrate of soda, from which I get an average increase of 5 to 8 bushels for each 100 pounds of soda used. I also use 100 to 150 pounds per acre on my cotton at the first cultivation after chopping, from which I get an increased yield of 25 per cent, and sometimes more."

Professor R. W. Hamilton of the South Carolina Extension Service says the average yield of all South Carolina farmers is 167 pounds lint per acre, while the average yield of our sixteen Master Farmers is 444 pounds lint per acre. The success these farmers have attained speaks highly of the methods they use.

Request Fair Trial Of Law Enforcement

Prominent National Figures Ask For Support of Hoover Plans

OTHERS JOIN IN THIS APPEAL

New York, June 3.—A "Message to the American people," urging that "prohibition should be given an honest trial" and bearing the signatures of Henry Ford, Thomas A. Edison, Captain Robert Dollar, J. C. Penney and 20 other men prominent in business and industry, was published today.

The message quoted the plea for law observance in President Hoover's inaugural address and invited Americans, "whatever their previous opinions and social practices, and particularly those in business and professional life, to join with us in following the president. Let us unite to give the eighteenth amendment an honest chance for complete enforcement."

The signers are: Ralph H. Burnside, lumber, Portland, Ore.; Colonel Patrick Henry Callahan, varnish, Louisville, Ky.; Frederick S. Chase, metals, Waterbury, Conn.; Charles B. Cook, typewriters, Hartford, Conn.; Wm. Y. Crosby, metals, Buffalo, N. Y.; R. Fulton Cutting, financier, New York; Captain Robert Dollar, steamships, San Francisco; Thomas A. Edison, inventor, West Orange, N. J.; Henry Ford, automobile, Detroit; Alfred C. Fuller, brushes, Hartford, Conn.; A. A. Hyde, drugs, Wichita, Kansas; James N. Jarvie, sugar, New York; Clarence H. Kelsey, banker, New York; R. A. Long, lumber, Kansas City; George F. Milton, publisher, Chattanooga, Tenn.; J. C. Penney, merchant, New York; George A. Plimpton, publisher, New York; James H. Post, sugar, New York; Fred W. Ramsey, metals, Cleveland; Winslow Russell, insurance, Hartford, Conn.; Dr. William Jay Schieffelin, drugs, New York; Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., automobiles, New York; Ambrose Swasey, machine tools, Cleveland; A. A. Welch, insurance, Hartford, Conn.

A letter, expressing disapproval of the recently organized voluntary committee of lawyers opposed to the eighteenth amendment, and an answer to it by Joseph H. Choate, Jr., member of the board of managers of the committee, were also published.

Marshall Stimson, Los Angeles attorney, asked that the committee refrain from using the word "lawyers" to avoid "bringing the legal profession further into disrespect." He asked whether any members of the committee retained by interests seeking appeal of the amendment.

Mr. Choate replied that honest belief is the sole mainspring of the movement, adding: "We believe that prohibition is the most serious remediable evil from which the country now suffers."

The messages to the American people and the lawyers' letters were published a day after the announcement that Justice Franklin C. Hoyt, of the New York Children's court had been awarded the prize of $25,000 offered by William R. Hearst for a substitute plan for prohibition.

Justice Hoyt's plan called for repeal of the Volstead act and enactment of a new law defining "intoxicating liquors" as "all alcoholic products of distillation," thereby excluding wines and beer. Traffic in wine and beer would be under state regulation under his plan.

Misses Esther and Maxine Farley are at home spending some time with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Farley. For the past several months they have been in Orlando, Fla.

Gladys: "Have you a good command of English?"

Myrtle: "Yes, but I can handle Americans better."

ALL DAY SINGING AT MESSER CHAPEL SUNDAY

There will be an all day singing at Messer's Chapel next Sunday, June 9th. This church is one and one-half miles northwest of Verbena. The Clanton Quartet will be there. Dinner on the ground for everybody. The public and all singers are cordially invited.

Information About Boll Weevil

Reports and observations of the entomologist show that boll weevils are present in large numbers in most of the cotton fields of the state.

This letter is not sent out to alarm anyone. It is our desire, however, to help you know the conditions and post you an the latest recommendations of the Alabama Agricultural Experiment Station on boll weevil control.

Do Not Get Excited over the presence of weevils in the cotton fields now. There is time enough to get dust machines and calcium arsenate before the cotton has squares large enough to be punctured. However, there should be no delay in getting this equipment on hand.

Equipment Needed, Prices, Where To Get It. Machines Recommended

The Root Hand Duster (will dust 3-5 acres) State Farm Bureau, $15.

The Martin one mule duster (will dust 25-35 acres) Martin Mfg. Co., Fitzgerald, Ga., $42.50.

The Niagara Three-row duster (will dust 50-100 acres) Niagara Sprayer Co., Middleport, N. Y., $250.

The Messinger three-row duster (will dust 50-100 acres) Wertz & Hermlen, Augusta, Ga., $250.

When and How to Apply Poison

Take the infestation every week from the time the first squares are formed. In taking the infestation, examine 100 squares in several different places in each field. All the squares on the stalks must be opened and examined closely for weevil punctures. As soon as a 10 per cent infestation is located, the first application of poison should be applied. Four to five days later the second application is put on and four to five days after the second application, the third. If within ten days to two weeks the infestation runs up to around 20 per cent, three more applications should be made in the same way as the first series. Usually two applications are needed to kill the migrating weevils and protect the top crop of cotton.

Results to be Expected

From 10,000 acres of cotton poisoned last year as demonstrations, it was found that an average of four applications of poison were needed. It cost $1.00 per acre for each application. There was an average increase in yield on the poisoned fields of 269 pounds of seed cotton per acre.—L. N. Duncan, Director; C. E. Stapp, County Agent.

The Summer School Is Approved

Clanton and surrounding community are fortunate in securing the services of W. E. G. Sutton to conduct a summer school here beginning next Monday.

Their work may be scheduled without conflicts, which makes it satisfactory throughout the year.

Mr. Sutton is a well trained educator. He not only holds an A. B. Degree from the University of Alabama, but is in addition an M. A. from Vaderbilt. He has several years been principal of the high school at Verbena.

Banks Here Showing New Paper Money

Smaller Bills Will Begin Circulation About July The Tenth, 1929

Those who have visited the banks of Clanton since last Saturday have had the privilege of seeing samples of the new money which Uncle Sam is going to put into circulation beginning about the tenth of July. After taking a look at the new bills we feel impressed to say that it looks good, which is nothing more than we could say about any of our Uncle Samuel's currency, whether new or old.

The main difference between the new and old currency is that the new bills are about one-third smaller than the old bills. This will result in a considerable saving to the United States Treasury in the cost of buying paper and printing money.

Our bankers here say that they will begin to issue the new size bills about the tenth of July. After that date if somebody tries to give you a greenback that looks like it is not full grown, don't refuse it. It will not be long till all the bills we see will be of the smaller variety.

Below we publish a statement from Hon. Andrew Mellon, Secretary of the United States Treasury, relative to the new currency:

Secretary Mellon today announced that July 10, 1929, has been set for beginning the issue of the new small-size currency. The issue will be made thru the Federal reserve banks and branches.

For the initial issue, Federal reserve banks have been authorized to make available, to the commercial banking insitution of their respective districts, limited amounts of new small-size currency, on an equitable basis established by them. Federal reserve banks will communicate with all banks and trust companies in their respective districts giving full instructions for participation in the initial distribution of the new currency. After the initial issue of new small-size currency, the procedure now in effect for supplying the paper currency requirements of the country will, in general, be followed, and in making payments of currency, the Treasurer of the United States and the Federal reserve banks and branches will pay out old-size currency fit for further circulation concurrently with the new small-size currency. Replacement of the outstanding old-size currency with the small-size currency accordingly will be a gradual process and, except for the initial issue, will largely be governed by the redemption of old-size currency unfit for further circulation.

The first issues of the new small-size currency will include all kinds except national bank notes, and all denominations from $1 to $20.

Small-size national bank notes will be printed and issued in order of charter numbers beginning about July 15, 1929.

For the reduced size currency wholly new designs on a denominational basis have been adopted. The revision of designs will eliminate existing confusion, and will furnish a new and more effective protection to the currency issues of the United States against counterfeiting and fraudulent alterations. Generally speaking, the designs have been simplified, and, as just indicated, there is a characteristic design for each denomination. No issues of the new currency will be made to the public before July 10, 1929.

Specimens of the new currency in unseperated sheets will not be available. Any outstanding old-size paper currency heretofore or hereafter issued, will not be recalled; it will be retired gradually in regular course of business, and in the meantime its validity will not be affected by the issue of the new small-size currency.

The Treasury appreciates that during the period when the two sizes of currency are in circulation this will be a matter of some inconvenience to the general public. However, it is believed that the department may confidently ask for their indulgence and cooperation in view of the ultimate advantages to be gained.

W. C. ROBINSON AT HALEYVILLE

Mr. W. C. Robinson is spending most of his time in Haleyville, Winston County, where he has recently acquired extensive interests in the lumber business. He reports that business is good with him and that conditions generally are very promising.

Two Schools Are Already Located

Prof. H. A. Harris of Stanton was in Clanton Tuesday. He stated that interest in opportunity schools for this summer is good. Two schools have already been located.

One at County Line Schoolhouse in the northwestern part of the county, has been signed up with 17 pupils making application. Miss Leila Belle Smith, who taught the public school at County Line the past session, will also teach the opportunity school.

Mars Hill will have another opportunity school this summer, taught by Mrs. J. S. McNeill. The school at Mars Hill last summer was considered the best in the county. It closed out the session with about 60 students taking the work.

Mr. Harris states again that the number of schools this year will be limited to about ten. Any community that wishes one of the schools is urged to make application for one. The schools will be placed in the order of their application.

New Laundry To Begin Operations

Mr. Felix Rhodes announces that he will begin operations at the Clanton Service Laundry in the near future. The business will be located in the old Littlejohn Building next to the Wadesonian Theatre. Mr. Rhodes will be the proprietor and manager.

At present Mr. Rhodes is taking care of his laundry customers by having his work done in Montgomery. He has already bought machinery with which to equip his own plant. Just as soon as it gets here and can be installed, the business will be done in Clanton.

Mr. Rhodes has been in Clanton for some time, having been on the road with the Clanton Laundry & Cleaning Company. He is an experienced laundry man. Before coming to Clanton he was connected with a laundry in Montgomery.

In addition to the laundry business, Mr. Rhodes states that he will do dry cleaning and pressing. For this part of the business he has alreday installed one of the latest and most up-to-date steam pressing machines.

Need 25 Million For Coosa Work

Five Years Time Required For The Coosa-Alabama River Project

Montgomery, June 7.—It will take five years time and $25,000,000 to convert the Coosa-Alabama waterway into a navigable channel suitable for shipping.

This is the estimate of Col. John E. Fox, field representative of the Mississippi Valley association, after an inspection of the project at the request of a conference of southern business men here last wek.

The expert foresees wide possibilities for Alabama trade and industry if the project is carried out.

It was unanimously endorsed by the Automotive Trades association of Montgomery at a meeting attended by Colonel Fox Wednesday night.

Kiwanis Invites School Graduates

The Kiwanis Club of Clanton will entertain the members of this year's graduating class of the Chilton County High School at luncheon at the Methodist Church to-day (Thursday) at 12:15. A special program has been arranged bearing particular interest to the graduates on the subject of vocational guidance and placement. Addresses on this subject will be made by Judge Sam Hobbs and Mr. Lewis, of Selma. Mr. Lewis is chairman of the Alabama Kiwanis District Committee on Vocational Guidance and Placement, and also president of Selma Kiwanis Club.

Mr. V. J. Elmore is chairman of the local Kiwanis Committee on Vocational Guidance and Placement, and the program for Thursday has been prepared under his direction.

Letters of invitation have been sent to all the members of the graduating class of this year.

Vocational guidance and placement for high school graduates is one of the objectives of Kiwanis. It is the purpose of the local club on this occasion to emphasize this objective by having the graduates of our High School meet with the club and offer to them whatever helpful consideration may be possible.

Republicans Would Open Arms To Democrats Who Bolted Al

Judge Reynolds Issues Letter Suggesting That State Republican Leaders Invite Anti-Smith Democrats of Alabama To Come Into Councils of the Republican Party

Former Democrats who left the party of their fathers last year will not have to wander helplessly about waiting to be adopted into the folds of some party, if a suggestion made by Judge L. H. Reynolds of Chilton County is heeded. The possibility of finding the doors of the Democratic party barred against re-entering to participate in the party councils need no longer hold terrors for those who wish to participate in the selection of nominees.

Judge Reynolds, who has been holding the office of probate judge in Chilton County for many years despite opposition within his own party and from the Democratic party, has written a letter to J. C. Swann, Mobile, chairman of the Republican State Executive Committee, urging him to call a meeting of the committee at some early date and invite those former Democrats who assisted in electing Herbert Hoover president last year to come into the Republican party councils and "be one of us."

It is pointed out in the letter that the Republicans were very liberal with their allies in the last election, as they were permitted to name the electors for Mr. Hoover," on the Alabama ticket in the last campaign. He also reminds the party chairman that there was a "great vote" polled for the Hoover electors.

It is suggested by the Chilton County judge that all of those who joined the Republicans in the campaign last year be invited to meet in the party councils and especially does he propose that the leaders who waged the fight be given a place in the meeting. He points out that "we have no active politics now and, it seems to me that this will be the opportune time to lay the foundation to build up our party."

While not mentioning any names, friends of the judge understand that among those whom he expects to receive an invitation from the party chairman to remain with the Republicans are Judge Hugh Locke and Horace Wilkerson, of Birmingham; George H. Malone, Oscar Thompkins and W. L. Lee of Dothan; Arthur Chilton, George Thigpen and Hamp Draper of Montgomery. In addition to these it is believed that the Republican chairman will be urged to also invite L. H. Lee, attorney to Gov. Graves; G. L. Comer, of Eufaula, who attended the Democratic convention as a delegate from Alabama on a promise to support the nominee and later repudiated that pledge to aid in the fight against the ticket in Alabama; Dempsey Powell of Greenville, who also attended the Houston convention and fought against the election of the man who received the nomination in that convention.

Judge Reynolds recites that he has always urged two strong political parties in Alabama and see in the present situation an opportunity to build up the Republican party by persuading those who fought with them last year to stay.

Text of Letter

"I write to urge you to call the state Republican Executive Committee together at some early date to fill vacancies on the committee, and to advise some way to build up the Republican party in Alabama. As you know we had many new voters to participate with the Republican party last Fall, and I believe many of them will remain with us if we show them that they are welcome, and that they will be advised with regarding the workings of the party, and that they can come into the councils of our party and be one of us.

"The leading newspapers of Alabama have for the last seven or eight months continually referred to many prominent citizens that wanted to sit in the councils of the Republican party and work with the party in the future.

"As you know I have for many years longed and wished to see two strong parties in Alabama, and to me it seems like I can see the goal, and now if the Republcian party will open its doors and extend a glad hand to all that will come in and abide with us and be one of us, we will have two parties in this state.

"I hope you will call the committee, and invite all who will to meet with us in our party council and give this meeting the advantage of their ideas and help us solve this great problem. I especially urge that all who took a leading part in the last campaign for the election of President Hoover to be invited to meet with us. The Republican party was very liberal with their allies in the last election, as they were permitted to name the electors for Mr. Hoover in the last campaign, and we had a great vote. Now let's open our doors to all who will work and vote with us in the future; let's have a big meeting with the committee and lay the foundation for a great party in Alabama. We have no active politics now, and it seems to me this will be the opportune time to lay the foundation to build up our party. I hope to see this mass meeting called by you soon if you agree with me, and I hope you will not only make a general call, but that you will invite everyone who desires to come."

Members Get Letter

A copy of this letter was mailed to each member of the state committee with the request that he join the judge in urging the chairman to call the meeting.

Already two names have been prominently mentioned in connection with the gubernatorial campaign for next year. Both of these men fought the Democratic national ticket and the announcement by their friends for the governorship has raised the question as to what party they will appeal for nomination. Judge Hugh Locke's friends are inflating a boom for him while word comes from the Wiregrass section that Will Lee is the man to succeed Gov. Graves. Announcement of these two "Hoovercrats" has, according to information obtainable at the capitol, brought about a sharp division in the ranks of those who last year denominated themselves "Anti-Smith Democrats."

While this bit of maneuvering goes on in the ranks of those who fought against the Democratic national ticket last year, the "regulars" are maintaining a "watchfully waiting" attitude. Many who have always stood by the Democratic party refuse to commit themselves for or against any candidate for office until the party committee gets together and fixes the rules.

The only announcement as a candidate for a Democratic nomination comes from John H. Bankhead, of Walker County, who wants to succeed Senator J. Thomas Heflin. In his announcement he avoids stating that he is runnig against Heflin. He simply states that at the proper time he will make an official declaration.

While these maneuvers for place are going on, the rank and file within the Democratic party will sit tight and saw wood.—A. B. Tucker in The Montgomery Advertiser.

THE SELMA HIGHWAY

The new state highway from Clanton to Selma is now open for traffic all the way. The distance from here to the Central City, about 40 miles, may be navigated in something around an hour's time—depending somewhat on the car you drive.

The road will be kept in good shape. Mr. Harry Roper's crew started in Monday morning to give it a new scraping.

FIG FROM COLLINS CHAPEL MEASURES 8 1-2 INCHES

Mr. Miles Benson of Collins Chapel community brought into The Banner office last Monday morning a fig which weighed one-fourth pound and measured eight and one-half inches around. Mr. Sam Collins was with Mr. Benson and said that the tree from which the fig was gathered was given his mother by a fruit tree agent several years ago. The variety of the fruit is not known, but the tree always bears extra large figs, Mr. Collins says.

PICTORIAL REVIEW PATTERNS

The ladies will be interested in the announcement of the Capitol Dry Goods Company of Clanton, stating that they have added the complete line of Pictorial Review Patterns and will carry these in stock in the future.

Heretofore this popular line of patterns have not been available in Clanton. Illustrations of popular styles are also on hand for those who may be interested in looking at the offerings of the Pictorial Review artists and designers.

First Cotton Bloom Sent Here Monday

The first cotton bloom of this season was sent to The Union-Banner office Monday morning by Mr. Joe Bowles, whose farm is located in the Bethsalem community in the southern part of Chilton County.

Judging from the complaints of backwardness in the crops this spring we were not expecting a cotton bloom so early. Perhaps this indicates that the cotton situation is not as bad as we had thought.

In passing around over the county during the past week we had already concluded that the improvement noticeable in cotton would practically overcome the lateness and bring us out to the end of the season with no recollection of the blue days of spring.

If the farmers of Chilton County will take the proper precautions against the boll weevils, we believe they will make a good crop of cotton this year.

Whippet Six Has New Motor Truck

Foshee-Calloway Motor Co., local Whippet dealers now have on display in their show rooms the new one and one-half ton Whippet six Truck.

Mr. Foshee in commenting on this new truck said, "We are proud to be able to offer to our patrons this new truck which brings into the field of commercial transportation all the speed, economy and stamina of the famous Whippet six motor. We invite our friends to inspect this truck and take note of the ample power that will take care of the roughest, hardest hauling job that anyone may have. The fast, powerful engine with its seven-bearing crankshaft, full force-feed lubrication, and sturdy chassis construction insure long life even under the heaviest loads. Four speeds forward transmission give the desired speed under any conditions. If you are in the market for a truck place your order with us now for immediate delivery."

Gerald Hubbard Running Store

Will Continue Business At Former Location of R. M. Hubbard at Jemison

The store business of the late R. M. Hubbard at Jemison is now being conducted by Mr. Gerald Hubbard. The affairs of R. M. Hubbard's estate are being settled by Mr. H. G. Boyd as administrator through the Probate Court.

Gerald Hubbard will continue the store business at the same place in future. Concerning a rumor that the store will be closed up when the stock is sold, he says: "I want my friends and the friends and customers of my father to know that this store will continue at the same place. We will not quit business. We are just getting ready to really do business."

Miss Lurline Harper is at home from Birmingham where she has been teaching in the city schools for the past session.

Doctors Invite Cripple Clinic

Mrs. C. E. Stapp, County Child Welfare Superintendent, went before the County Medical Society at the meeting Friday and told of the plans for a cripple clinic to be held in Clanton on Friday, June 28th. The doctors heartily endorsed the clinic and asked that she notify the State officials of their endorsement.

A bone specialist will give the day to examining the criples and will make recommendations as to what can or what can not be done. This will make it possible for the people of the County to come to Clanton instead of going to Montgomery, Selma, Birmingham or some other city of even greater distance. This clinic will be for examination only and not for treatment.

PROF. ELLIS VISITOR HERE

Prof. Elsworth Ellis, formerly principal of the Chilton County High School, was a visitor to Clanton Monday. He is spending the summer at his home at Marbury.

For the past session Mr. Ellis has been principal of the Geneva County High School at Hartford. He will return there for next year.

J. Raskob Will Not Give Up His Job

Statement Says He Will Continue As National Chairman of Democrats

Washington, June 10.—John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, told the party leaders gathered here tonight at a banquet honoring Jouett Shouse, the new chairman of the executive committee, that he had no intention of resigning.

"I hope my remarks tonight will set at rest all doubt about my continuing," he said, diverging from his prepared address, as the men and women attending the dinner arose applauding and cheering.

He added that when he took the chairmanship he did so because he believed in the principles of the Democratic party.

The chairman announced that Mrs. Nellis Taloe Ross, of Wyoming, would be a member of the executive committee with Mr. Shouse and in charge of woman's activities. He also stated that Charles Greethouse, of Indiana, would continue as secretary of the committee, and James W. Gerard as treasurer.

An indirect reference to former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, of New York, party standard bearer in the last presidential campaign, brought many of the Democratic men and women to their feet with cheers and vigorous hand-clapping.

The reference was made by Representative Byrns, chairman of the Democratic congressional campaign committee, who assailed the Republican party for what he characterized as its lack of dealing with many problems confronting the counthy.

After Representative Garner, of Texas, Democratic leader in the House, had spoken, Senator Overman, of North Carolina, was escorted to the speaker's table by Lewis Nixon of New York; Senator Walsh of Montana, and Breckenridge Long, of Missouri.

"I am a Democrat and an unterrified one," the North Carolinian declared. "No cold chills run down my spine at the mention of the Democratic party in the last campaign. The Democratic party was not born to die, but will live as long as men love justice."

"Defeat does not discourage me," he continued. "I am for harmony. I am for unity, but unity with courage."

The dinner in honor of Mr. Shouse aroused unusual interest because of the attitude of some Southern leaders in refraining from participation. However, most Democrats in the Senate and House attended, the list including Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the minority floor leader of the Senate, and Representative Garner of Texas, the minority floor leader of the House.

Senator Overman was attending his first night function in some years. His colleague, Senator Simmons, who opposed the election of Alfred E. Smith, Democratic presidential candidate, announced some time ago that he would not attend.

Other senators from the South who were present included Fletcher, of Florida; Sheppard and Connally, of Texas; Broussard and Ransdell, of Louisiana; McKellar and Tyson of Tennessee; Harrison, of Mississippi, and Caraway, of Arkansas. Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, widow of the wartime president, occupied a seat at the speaker's table, being accompanied to the Mayflower Hotel for the dinner by Senator Robinson.

MR. SORRELL'S BIRTHDAY

Mr. J. Wilson Sorrell of Jemison celebrated his 76th birthday last Sunday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. C. C. Conway.

All of the children of Mr. Sorrell were present as follows: Mrs. Charley Robinson and Mrs. C. C. Conway of Jemison, Dr. Lewis Sorrell of Birmingham and Joshua Sorrell of Jemison. These with the members of their families made a rather large and altogether jolly party all of whom contributed to the making of a most enjoyable day for Mr. Sorrell. There were three great grandchildren in the gathering.

MR. AND MRS. BRACKEN VISITORS TO CLANTON

Mr. Louis Bracken of Montgomery, editor of The Farm Bureau News, was a visitor to Clanton last Saturday. He was accompanied by Mrs. Bracken.

Mr. Bracken is planning to write a story about farm development in Chilton County for The Progressive Farmer, which he hopes to have ready in the next few months.

Bro. Bryan's Weekly Message

(Written for The Union-Banner by REV. J. A. BRYAN, Pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, Birmingham, Alabama)

FOR THE SON OF MAN IS COME TO SEEK AND TO SAVE THAT WHICH WAS LOST

The text is found in the 19th chapter of the Gospel according to Luke and the tenth verse: "For the son of man is come to seek and to save that which is lost." When men go to certain cities or country districts one man goes for one purpose and another man goes for another. Some men come to Birmingham to build houses. Other men come here to dig coal. Still others come to work at furnaces. Some come to lay brick, some come to paint, some come here to practice surgery, some come here to teach, some come here to sell real estate, and some of us have to come here to preach the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

When Christ came from the bosom of his father, from the heights and glories of heaven to this earth his mission was "To seek and to save that which was lost." Christ spoke this verse as he entered and was passing through Jericho. I think on my recent visit to the Holy Land I road along that road as that is the only road that has ever been there. The people heard he was coming and they were excited and rushed forward to see him. One man named Zaccheus went forward and climbed up a tree to see Jesus. But Jesus was seeking to see Zaccheus to save him from sin.

No man is saved unless he is anxious to be saved. Zaccheus was anxious to be saved. He climbed up a tree to see Jesus as he passed that way. When you think of these ten verses in this chapter thought after thought comes to your mind. The first thought is of the characters of the people that Jesus seeks to save. The accusation brought against Jesus Christ by his enemies describes the characters. They got mad and said, "This man looketh out sinners and eateth with them," meaning the characters that Christ seeks, searches for are sinners. Just think of your own life. Did he not seek to save you when you were a sinner?

When I was on the cold dark mountain side of sin, wandering away from God and my mother's and father's prayers, a prodigal alone and away from God, Jesus Christ sought to save me. Just like the shepherd seeks his lost sheep, he took me by the hands and put me on his shoulders and carried me into his fold. You may have wandered away from everything that is good, pure and holy, but you are the very person that Jesus is seeking to save. "Lost one, 'tis Jesus seeking to save."

The next question that arises is, "How does Christ do this seeking?" He walked about the hills of Palestine with an aching heart and stone-bruised feet, seeking those who were lost to save them. Now he seeks us first by the word of God applied to our hearts by the Holy Spirit. The Holy Spirit is his representative on earth. See if this is not your experience when you were a little child, a little boy or a little girl. You wondered why your mother was so careful to read the Bible to you. My mother used to read to me while I sat on a bench by her side. As she read to me about the life of our Lord, and of how they crucified Jesus my little heart seemed broken with grief.

I did not understand the experience then, but I understand it now. Jesus was seeking me to save my soul by the Word of God. Then my mother would take me by the hand, may be your mother did too, and lead me to the old country church. There we had Sunday School and would sing such good old hymns as "O Happy Day." The Bible was read to us and then we were taught to memorize the catechisms. Christ was seeking us there by His Word being applied to our hearts by the Holy Spirit. The good old preacher came, read, prayed and preached. Christ was seeking us then by the "preached Word."

He also seeks us by His providences, that is, the way He deals with us. He seeks us many times by prosperity. The goodness of God should lead us to repentance. The fact that His goodness and mercy has followed us all the days of our lives is an evidence that Christ is seeking us by showering blessings upon us. He seeks us in times of adversity. Let me tell you how He sought to save me. I loved my father as good as any boy ever loved his father. My father plowed over the hills of South Carolina after the Civil War to educate me. I was a student at the University of South Carolina, and was a believer and a member of the church, but I was not saved. I was at that time studying law. While there a telegram came to me from home stating my father's death. When the message was opened and the contents read even the heavens looked like brass to me. I went home where for months as I labored on the farm I thought my heart would break because of the burden of grief which my father's death had brought into my poor life. Yet in this Christ was seeking to save my soul from sin and hell, and He did save my soul.

He seeks to save us by the pure, clean, and holy lives of our loved ones. He seeks us by the dauntless lives of our mothers and fathers, and our friends. How particular we ought then to be as Christians because people take knowledge of us that we have been with Jesus. That is a fact. Our lives are mighty factors through which His Spirit works to save other souls. They don't read the Bible but they read you. The Spirit of God generally works by the Word of God, by the providences of God through the life of a Christian. The Spirit of God is all-powerful, a personality, love and yet more than love. It was illustrated before the foundation of the world, before the flood. It has worked in all ages with the Bible. God destroyed the unrighteous people by means of a great flood because His Spirit would not always strive with their wickedness.

This leads us to see that we had better be very careful how we grieve the Holy Spirit. The Spirit of God will not always strive with us. So many men, women, boys and girls are indifferent to the Word of God. They do not even seem to care to hear the Gospel of Christ. What is the matter? They have been indifferent to God's Spirit. They have crushed the Spirit, refusing to accept Christ and become a Christian. This is illustrated in the life of Aaron Burr. When he left his home to go to old Princeton College he promised his mother he would profess Christ and attend the regular weekly prayer meetings along with other boys who went and that he would affiliate himself with the church. The evening he reached Princeton the prayer meeting was hed. He went that night and felt that he must accept Christ as his Saviour. But he crushed the Spirit as it was striving with him and did not accept Christ. He did not go another night to prayer meeting while there, nor did he join the church and attend the services. At the end of his career there he stated in his own experience that he had never since that first night at prayer meeting had a desire to become a Christian.

He had grieved the Holy Spirit. Remember God said, "My Spirit will not always strive with man." We had better be very careful about our attitude toward the Holy Spirit in our lives. Christ may be seeking us now. You may be driving Him from your heart, and He may not seek you always. We do not seek Christ as much as He seeks us. You had better heed His call before He closes in on you. Heed his invitation to-day. Accept His pardon and mercy before it is too late. If He is knocking at the door of your heart open it to Him and thereby receive love, joy and peace into your life.

NEW SAWMILL BOOK BY FORESTRY COMMISSION

Montgomery, Ala., June 10.—A booklet which may be used as a guide in determining in advance the probability of profit or loss in logging and milling pine timber in Alabama has been issued by the State Commission of Forestry. The author of the publication is Mr. W. W. Ashe, a forester of wide experience in the investigation of lumbering costs. Mr. Ashe was assisted in obtaining the data by Forest inspectors Charles H. Schaeffer and J. M. Stauffer.

In sawing trees into lumber there is a diameter limit below which it does not pay the operator to cut. A sawmill man who cuts trees smaller than this limit loses money on them. However, on the entire job he may still make a profit, since the large trees pay for the losses entailed in cutting the smaller ones, but nevertheless he would make more money if he did not cut the small trees at all. Furthermore, if the small trees are permitted to remain, a second crop of profitable trees will be ready for cutting in a comparatively short time.

The investigations upon which the publication is based were conducted in Alabama sawmills, and time and cost studies were made of various size trees in the different stages of conversion from the standing timber to the finished product. In the band sawmill operations studied, it was found that the maximum profits were secured by not cutting trees smaller than sixteen and one-half inches in diameter, outside bark, twelve inches above the ground. In the circular sawmill operations the maximum profits were obtained by not cutting anything smaller than fourteen inches in diameter, outside the bark, twelve inches above the ground.

The publication also contains miscellaneous information concerning the volume and form of trees, grades of lumber cut from them and other related information of interest to the sawmiller and the forest land owner. The title of the booklet is "Profit and Loss in Cutting Shortleaf and Loblolly Pines in Alabama." It is listed as Bulletin No. 2 of the State Commission of Forestry. Copies may be obtained without charge from the State Forester at Montgomery.

PLEASANT VALLEY

Here we come to let the people know that we are still alive, as some must doubtless think we have ceased to exist around Pleasant Valley.

Our Sunday School last Sunday was fine. We had real good attendance. Bro. Hughes gave us a splendid sermon at eleven o'clock, which he always does, for he seems to never fail to bring a good message to his church each time.

Miss Lucile Lett of Eclectic is visiting relatives of Pleasant Valley community this week.

The little son of Mr. and Mrs. John Yeargan is slowly improving from his recent illness.

Quite a crowd of young people from this community attended the singing at Bethsalem Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Huett, Mrs. Jean Wyatt, Mrs. J. W. Cagle and Mrs. R. C. Hann spent Thursday of last week with Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Huett.

Now, listen, Everybody! There will be an all-day singing at Pleasant Valley the fifth Sunday in June. The Christian Harmony and Sacred Harp books will be used. Come on, all of you "old time" singers, and lovers of music. You are cordially invited and earnestly requested to be there. We expect to have some real good singing, so please remember the date, June 30th.

PLEASANT HILL

There will be an all-day singing at this place the fourth Sunday in this month, June. Everybody invited to come and bring a well filled basket.

The cemetery at this place will be cleaned off the third Saturday in this month. So all who are interested come and help. Don't forget the singing the fourth Sunday.—Vergie Cost.

THE WHY OF THE POWER IN THE CHEVROLET NEW SIX

In response to an unexpected number of inquiries for an explanation of the unusual power found in the new Chevrolet six, James M. Crawford, recently appointed chief engineer of Chevrolet Motor Company, discussed the subject with technical editors last week.

"The abundance of power found in the new Chevrolet six is made possible by its short stroke engine design, which embodies an advanced method of cooling," he said. "This construction brings water around both inlet and exhause valve seats. It differs radically from the Siamese system of valve ports, and makes for greater durability of the valve train.

"In starting off any new engine design, one of the early considerations is how long shall the motor be in order to lay out the chassis into which it must fit. On account of the importance of wheel base, it is desirable to keep the motor length down to a minimum. This is one of the conditions which has brought the small bore, long stroke, high speed engine into the picture.

"Durability being one of our first requirements, we did not feel that we should shorten the engine to meet a certain wheel base. We chose, rather, to design a motor of the short stroke and medium bore type. In order to insure round cylinders, we decided to circulate water completely around all the bores. Therefore, after the bore was determined the cylinder length was automatically governed by the bore size, and the bore size was determined after taking the stand that a short stroke, low speed engine was the only way we could insure durability.

"This is quite the contrary to the way most engines are laid down, where cost is an important consideration. Generally, the designer shortens the motor by increasing the stroke and reducing the bore. In this case the length of the cylinder block is then determined by the valve area rather than the piston head area. On account of this limitation, in taking advantage of the small bore and keeping the cylinder block as short as possible, the water is invariably taken from between the valve ports, at least between the inlet and exhaust valves. Racing experience and dynamometer test work, where high engine output is maintained continuously have definitely proved that a compromise in this direction is responsible for a falling off in horse power on account of valve warpage caused by uneven temperature at the valve seats.

"In the Chevrolet six design there has been plenty of room allowed for water completely around all the valves, both on account of the piston diameter and the fact that the valves are comparatively small. A large diameter is not necessary on account of the comparatively low maximum speed of the engine.

"In addition to the value of well cooled valve seats, it is important that the proper valve clearance be maintained at all times. In this respect the overhead design is at a considerable advantage compared to the L-Head construction in that the adjustment for the valve clearance is much more accessible. In the ordinary side valve design, it is necessary to remove several plates to get at the valve adjustment. Invariably the valves are located in an inaccessible place and special wrenches, together with a great deal of care, are necessary when making adjustments. In the overhead design, it is only necessary to remove a single cover and the valve adjustment is in plain sight. The proper clearance can be obtained quickly by means of an ordinary screw driver and a standard end wrench."

"I am so happy ..that the last pimple is gone"

EVERY evening thousands enjoy themselves at dinner-parties, dances, theatres, games, clubs. Many thousands more are denied the joy of such merriment and happiness.

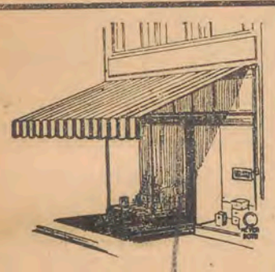
Maybe this denial is due to a skin trouble. First impressions cannot be good without a clear skin—first impressions are quickly made and are not soon forgotten. Old friends may excuse pimples and secretly sympathize, but new acquaintances may not be so charitable. Skin blemishes are not inviting. Neither can they be covered up. They embarrass. Hold people back. Steal away joy and happiness.

A lovely—clear skin—is within the reach of all. To those who have lost it, hope is offered. You, too, may have a beautiful skin, rose-petal in texture, pretty as a picture and without a single pimple.

Many thousands have regained their strength and charm by taking S.S.S. It is Nature's own blood tonic for raising the body's power of resistance to disease, improving the appetite, building firm flesh, and clearing the skin.

You may be happy, too!

The way to the skin is through the blood. Strong, healthy blood nourishes the body and fights against infection and disease.



S.S.S.

S.S.S. is made from fresh vegetable drugs and has a successful record of over 100 years back of it.

Take S.S.S. at meal-time. You will be delighted with its blood building and tonic effect.

All Drug Stores sell S.S.S. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by C. E. Stapp, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County.

FARM PEOPLE TO MEET AT AUBURN

Auburn, Ala., June 10.—August 5-10 is the date for the annual farmer's week at the College of Agriculture of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn. This date was announced by President Knapp who has appointed a committee on programs and arrangements consisting of Prof. L. N. Duncan, director of the Extension Service, Dean M. J. Funchess of the College of Agriculture and director of the Experiment Station, Dr. C. A. Cary, veterinarian, Miss Louise Glanton, head of the home economics department, S. W. Garrett, purchasing agent, and P. O. Davis.

In making the announcement Dr. Knapp made a public invitation to all who are interested to attend. He insisted that farmers make it a vacation outing and bring their wives with them for a pleasant stay in Auburn, in addition to the information they will gain while here.

It will be the one big opportunity of the year for farm people to profit most by a visit to Auburn. They will be given an opportunity to study experiments and other work in progress; and members of the staff—research, teaching, and extension—will be on hand to give instruction. Emphasis will be placed upon information of a practical value to farmers.

The program for the week is being arranged by the committee in charge. Many of the farm and home demonstration agents will be in Auburn at that time.

Another feature of the week will be the annual meeting of the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation, August 5 and 6. This will be in addition to the regular program for farmers' week. The Alabama Council of Home Demonstration Club Women will meet in Auburn at the same time.

AUBURN RADIO PROGRAM

Following is the week's schedule of radio programs from the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, 12:00 to 12:30, noon, daily by remote control from Auburn, Ala.:

The Dominion of Canada is planning to invite the League of Nations Council to meet in Ottawa. Can't see the point to this. There is just as much to drink in Geneva as there is in Canada.

FARM AND HOME FACTS

Vegetables canned this summer are insurance against next winter's ills.

Those who expect to have exhibits for the community, county, and state fairs next fall should be selecting them during the summer.

One of the best ways to start the late tomato crop is from plantings from the early crop. These cuttings should be made in July.

The best time to apply nitrate of soda as a top dressing to corn is about 45 days after planting, or when the corn is about knee high. This is an excellent way to increase the yield per acre.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The recent election in England resulted in restoring the Labor party to power for the second time. Ramsay MacDonald, leader of the Labor party, is the new premier. Mr. MacDonald has risen from abject poverty to one of the highest governmental positions in the world.

The ten-year-old reparations question caused by the World War has been settled. American financiers were leading factors in it. The settlement relieves Germany of a large portion of that debt imposed upon this nation by the peace settlement, and by the reparations agreement some years ago.

Measured in terms of both volume and profits business in this country is making an outstanding record, according to the National City Bank of New York. It is one that is all the more impressive because of the unfavorable money conditions with which business is contending.

Bean beetles are active in most of north Alabama. They may be controlled by dusting with a mixture of one pound of calcium arsenate with 9 pounds of hydrated lime. Apply to the under side of leaves.

"Warm weather encourages the presence of poultry lice and mites. Occasionally inspect the birds and houses. Sodium floride is the enemy of lice, and used motor oil plus kerosene will whip mites."—G. A. Trollope, Auburn, Ala.

"Nail rust, a disease which causes black spots on the leaves of tomatoes, is worrying gardners and tomato growers in Alabama. It may be controlled by spraying at least once each week with Bordeaux mixture, or dusting with mono-hydrated copper sulphate." — Julian Brown, Auburn.

HOME IMPROVEMENT IS FEATURED IN MONROE CO.

Monroeville, Ala., June 10.—Home improvement is being featured in Monroe County by the county farm bureau and the extension service, according to J. F. Busey, county farm bureau president. During the month of May the county farm bureau purchased for its members eight wind mill water systems.

"This is only a fair example of what a real live field man can do toward making a county organization serve its members," A. N. Culpepper, county agent, said, "M. S. Pearson, fieldman, said that he can picture no greater service for home improvement than that convenience like the wind mill water system offers. He has placed in Monroe County 15 wind mills since June, 1928, and he states that when a man gets the water system properly installed the user will at once be convinced that there is no better way or more economical way to supply water in the home.

Farmers are also preparing to fight boll weevils as they are plentiful. They have already purchased 12 two row dusters and 5,000 lbs. of calcium arsenate. County agent Culpepper says that proper poisoning will control the boll weevil to such an extent that a prifitable crop can be grown.

A recent issue of Wallace's Farmer, Des Moines, Iowa, was printed on so-called cornstalk paper, which is a mixture of cornstalk pulp and wood pulp.

From radio Station WAPI in Birmingham, Ala., a farmer may get market reports daily at the noon hour—12 to 1. The noon-hour program begins with 30 minutes of educational broadcasting from Auburn, and from 12:30 to one the late market reports are broadcast direct from a studio in the Department of Agriculture and Industries in Montgomery.

The seventeenth annual summer session at Auburn is in progress with a large student body and a large faculty of well-trained men and women, according to Dean Zebulon Judd, director. The first term will continue through July 13 and the second trem will open on July 15.

How to Raise Poultry

By Dr. L. D. LeGear, V.S., St. Louis, Mo.

Dr. LeGear is a graduate of the Ontario Veterinary College, 1892. Thirty-six years of veterinary practice on diseases of live stock and poultry. Eminent authority on poultry and stock raising. Nationally known poultry breeder. Noted author and lecturer.

THE IMPORTANT HALF OF YOUR FLOCK

Editor's Note—This is another story in a series of 52 stories on poultry raising written by the well known national poultry authority, Dr. L. D. LeGear, V. S., of St. Louis. The entire series will appear in this paper. Our readers are urged to read them carefully and clip them out for future reference.

"A good cock bird is half the flock," says an atrocious bit of doggerel in an achaic work on poultry raising that came to my attention recently. Poor verse, certainly, but good logic, notwithstanding! It is undoubtedly true in my opinion that a good male is at least half the flock—probably much more than half. His characteristics are transmitted to so many chicks and are so distinctly stamped upon them that too great care can not possibly be exercised in his selection.

It seems to be a well established fact that the egg laying ability of a hen is often inherited from the father. That alone should establish the necessity for extreme care in the selection of male birds for breeding. Generallly speaking, egg capacity is the most important consideration of all since eggs provide the quickest means of securing profits from the poultry flock.

Be sure, therefore, of the ancestry of any male bird used for breeding. Know that he comes from a strain bred for egg production, vigor and the standard requirements of his variety. While a poor male will not harm good females, he will transmit his poor traits to the offspring to an even greater degree than the hens will convey their good qualities. Thus, his poor blood will counteract the good blood of the hens, resulting in lower vitality and reduced laying capacity for the following generation of chicks.

Having established the importance of having only the best males for breeding the question naturally arises as to how the right kind shall be chosen. The first consideration is ancestry. A rooster that comes from a long line of known productivity and adheres to standard qualities will be more likely to be able to transmit such qualities to succeeding generations. In ay flock when proper culling or weeding out of unfit members is consistently practiced and where fairly accurate records are kept on egg poduction, it should be fairly easy to judge the ancestry of any particular male.

Good health is, of course, essential. No matter how fine a pedigree any bird may have, if he is not up to par or better in this respect, better not use him. His lowered vitality will almost surely result in insufficient fertilization of eggs from hens with which he is mated. That means a lower percentage of hatchibility and, in all liklihood, lower vitality for the resulting chicks than if they had been sired by a more vigorous specimen of chickenhood.

The ideal rooster for mating is really more than just healthy. He should be overflowing with vitality. He should have an erect bearing, a cocky, self-assured way of swaggering about as if he owned the place. He should have bright, alert eyes, good plumage, good standard head, should have a good appetite, good flesh, and should be quite free from defects or deformities.

He should crow with a loud, clear, ringing note, the kind that sounds like a challenge to anything and everything that may question his right as ruler of the flock. He should be aggressive in his guardianship of hens entrusted to his care, but need not necessarily be a pugnacious or vicious fighter. Insistance on such qualities may, at first, seem somewhat far-fetched. Nevertheless, they are important indications of relative fitness for the important task entrusted to the male and should be taken into account.

The ideal rooster should be a late molter, as a rule. Early molting shows that his mother or the strain from which he came are early molters. That would indicate generally that the females of the line are poor layers. Since, as has already been pointed out, the laying quality is transmitted through the male even more than through the female, this is a very important point to consider. Naturally, the male does not moult because he has stopped laying, so his molting habits are undoubtedly inherited from mother, grandmother or earlier female ancestors. They are, therefore, extremely important indications of the tendencies he is most likely to pass on to his descendants.

While ancestry is important, as stated above, the fitness of a rooster for use as a breeder should not be judged solely by the record of his mother or other female ancestors. It is also advisable to consider the records and characteristics of his sisters and half sisters. It stands to reason that if they have not sufficiently inherited the desirable qualities of their immediate ancestors, he will also be lacking in much the same extent as they are. This is not an infallible rule, but generally, the male from a good line that readily transmits its good qualities to succeeding generations, will himself be a good producer.

The question of body tests to ascertain good breeding males is more or less in dispute. I know definitely that body tests can establish the laying qualities of a hen, but it has not yet been fully established whether or not similar tests can be safely relied upon to indicate a rooster's ability to pass on to his progeny a certain degree of laying power. Until that question is definitely settled most poultry raisers will prefer to put their main reliance in such indications of fitness as are explained above. Careful selection along the lines suggested is bound to be amply rewarded, particularly for those who have hitherto felt that a rooster is just a rooster and that any old rooster will do. That such is not the case, any successful poultry raiser will be glad to testify. Too much care cannot be used in choosing the fathers of your chicks-to-be.

Reports Show School Progress

Chilton Schools Included In Figures From State Department of Education

The closing of schools throughout Alabama during the past few weeks focuses the attention of the public upon school progress. The fact that the reports for the 1928-1929 school year will not be ready for publication for October 1, makes it necessary for those interested in school improvement at the present time to use the records for the year 1927-28 in determining the advancement that has ben made.

Reports compiled at the office of the Alabama Education Association, Montgomery, last winter suggest certain measures of school progress for the year 1927-1928 as compared with the year 1926-1927. These reports for the five counties, Autauga, Chilton, Elmore, Lowndes, and Montgomery, indicate the purposes for which much of the money appropriated by the 1927 legislature has been spent.

Autauga County

In Autauga County the school term was increased 39 days in 48 schools. For the first time the county employed an attendance officer and the average daily attendance increased 59 per cent.

At a cost of $3,546.67, five additional buses, which increased the number of children transported by 2,641, were operated.

By using the state library fund three schools had libraries for the first time, and twenty schools greatly extended their library service. Seven hundred new books were purchased.

Through the use of the state high-school fund four additional high-school teachers were employed, and because of the increased fund made available by the illiteracy fund, ten opportunity schools were maintained during the summer of 1928.

New school lands, valued at $600 was bounght; $1,500 was spent in repairing old buildings.

Chilton County

An attendance officer was employed in Chilton county for the first time, and a gain in average daily attendance of 20 per cent was recorded. Twelve teachers were added to the faculty list.

The transportation system was increased by six buses, and 282 additional children were transported, at an added cost of only $300.

Nine one-teacher schools were abolished, and two consolidated schools were established, giving a total number of 56 schools for white children and 19 for negro children.

Library facilities were provided for five additional schools and one high school was added to the list of accredited high schools.

Three new buildings at a total cost of $40,000 were erected, $500 was spent on repairs, and $200 was used in providing better playground facilities. Nine opportunity schools were maintained.

Elmore County

During 1927-1928 the rural school term of Elmore County was extended ten days, and the average daily attendance increased 9 per cent. Nineteen teachers were added to the teaching staff and more than $13,000 was spent to inchease teacher's salaries.

Through an expenditure of $15,300 twelve additional buses were operated and 894 more children were transported than the year before.

For the first time a county school nurse was employed. At a cost of $1,119.39 one thousand new books were added to the county library, and for the first time all of the white schools of the county were provided with library service.

Two new buildings, costing $65,000, and a teacherage costing $2,500 were erected; $500 was spent for repairs, $150 was spent for playgrounds and $250 was spent for teaching materials.

Lowndes County

The school term of Lowndes County was extended ten days, seven additional teachers were employed, and three buses added to the transportation system. In two schools the library facilities were improved and two schools were consolidated.

Montgomery County

The average daily attendance in Montgomery County improved 8 per cent, and the salaries of elementary and high school teachers were increased by $5.00 per month. Two new buildings at a cost of $62,000 were erected; $54,150 was spent upon repairs; $1,460 for teaching materials, and $150 on playgrounds.

Through the use of the state's illiteracy fund seventeen opportunity schools were maintained. With the money received from the state's vocational educating fund vocational work was provided at Lowndes, Pike Road, and Ramer. Without the attendance and high school funds, provided in 1927, the prevailing standards could not have been maintained, not to mention the improvements named above.

We have the promise of some good singers. We are expecting singers from all parts of the county to be here. So, let us come in the spirit to sing God's praises. So, bring your 1929 song books and a heavy basket.—O. R. Robinson, Chairman; M. Lockhart, Secretary.

Appeal For Aid By Thorsby P.T.A

Dear Patrons and Friends of Thorsby Public School:

To come to the point at once, which do you value more, a hen or the welfare of your child? I hear you say, "What a foolish question!" But would you give a hen or the value of one for the safe-guarding of your own or your neighbor's child?

If your boy or girl was down with, say, typhoid fever would you not even mortgage your home, if need be, to save him? Wouldn't you as a neighbor sit up night after night and burn up several dollar's worth of gasoline in your car or do anything else you possibly could to hasten the recovery of the child? Of course you would.

You know the saying, "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." Well, the above would be the pound of cure. But isn't an ounce of prevention cheaper as well as ever so much better and safer? In the matter, I am placing before you let us be fore-thoughted and use the ounce of prevention.

There is no need of telling you for your child has surely told you many times of the very poor water system at the Thorsby Public School. How some pupils starve themselves for water (and thereby likely ruin their health for years to come) rather than drink after seeing how others have handled the dipper and water buckets. And think of the danger of the spread of contagious diseases amongst 250 or 300 children by the use of the common dipper.

The Parent-Teachers Association has undertaken to put in an electric pump with sanitary drinking fountains before the next school opens, but we can't do it without your help. After discussing the matter month after month we decided that it would not be such a hardship for each family to give a hen, or a couple of fryers or if they have no chickens the value in money. Of course we will not limit anyone to one hen or dollar if you can give more. In order to save you as much inconvenience as possible we will send out cars to gather them up on June 21st and 22nd. If you could have them shut up it would save time of those collecting them and we should appreciate it. They will be sold at the meeting of the P.-T. A. at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Each Saturday afternoon, June 22nd. Meeting begins about 2:30. You are cordially invited to be at this meeting. We serve refreshments and charge a dime which amount will also go towards the new water system. Should the chicken collectors miss your place please bring yours with you to the meeting and remember if you have no chickens to spare money will do, eggs, too, will bring money.

Now that I have talked this over with you (in writing) I realize that first question was indeed very foolish, for of course our children and their welfare come before everything else, let alone a hen or two.

Thanking you for taking the trouble of reading this rather lengthy letter and trusting you will show it to your friends and hoping we will "Go over the top" in this drive I am. —Yours very truly, Mrs. C. S. Howard, President P.-T. A.

THANKS FOR YOUR PATIENCE

Young Mens Class Elects Officers

Last Sunday at the regular Sunday school hour the young men's class of the Clanton Baptist Church held a business meeting and elected the following officers: Mr. A. R. Meeks, teacher; Wallace Cox, President; Houston Nivens, 1st vice president; Julius Burnett, 2nd vice president; Barney Burnett, 3rd vice president; Luther Culpepper, Secretary; Reedie Taylor, Treasurer; Dovard Clackler, Reporter.

During the business session the entire class showed renewed interest and expressed themselves as willing to help the officers and teacher make the class a larger and stronger class.

After the election of officers baseball was taken up. It seems that during the last few weeks baseball interest has been lacking, but our officers are going to get back of our team and if everyone will show as much interest as the boys did Sunday Clanton will be winning games in a few weeks.

We were especially glad to see the new faces in our class last Sunday, and we invite you to come again. All members of the class try to come to Sunday School every Sunday and bring someone with you.

Y. P. U. was extremely large. We had about 45, counting all visitors. A fine program was rendered by Group II. Next Sunday night Group I will put on the program. The subject of the lesson is, "Lottie Moon, Missionary to North China." It is a very interesting lesson. Several members of school will leave Sunday morning for Mentone to attend the convention next week.

REV. BESSENETTE PREACHED AT TEMPLE CHURCH LAST WEEK

Rev. Harold Bessenette, of Macon, Georgia, sent out under the ordination of Angelus Temple, Los Angeles, Calif., and a graduate of the Bible school conducted by that institution, preached at Temple Church last Wednesday and Thursday nights. Rev. Bessenette is a young minister, and his coming here was in the nature of a "try-out," as this church is now without a pastor, and Rev. Bessenette will very probably be the regular pastor after July 25. Church officials and members were well pleased with the young man's talks, and the minister and his family like Clanton and Clanton people. As to whether he will be the regular pastor or not will be decided at a meeting of the Church Board of Trustees to be held during the summer revival, which will begin July 25. Rev. Bessenette's sermon on "Time" on Wednesday night was cause for much favorable comment as to his ability.

When the regular summer revival begins on July 25, Mrs. Essie Binkley Locy is expected to be present to conduct the services, to be assisted by Rev. Bessenette and others. Sister Locy, it will be remembered, is the evangelist who held a revival at the courthouse recently, and many people have made inquiry as to whether she will return in the summer. When the revival is regularly announced, more definite information will be available and will be given in the announcement and advertising material which will be distributed. Mrs. Locy is now holding a revival in Chicago, and will most likely come here again before returning to her own church at San Fernandino, Calif.—Paul C. Mims.

Former Chilton Man At Jasper

Prof. J. Alex Moore, Reared in Chilton and taught at Collins Chapel For Several Years

In its issue of June 5th the Jasper Mountain Eagle carried a nice write up of the educational progress of Walker County, and in the middle of the story the photograph of Prof. J. Alex Moore was reproduced. Under the picture the Mountain Eagle said: "Dr. J. Alex Moore has rendered invaluable service to Walker County as superintendent of education. Walker's educational system is measured by his ideals and principles."

The board of education of Walker County has recently abolished the incidental fee from the schools of the county. The former Chilton County man figured prominently in this most progressive step which his adopted county has taken toward education.

Citizens of our county who remember back two decades ago will recall Prof. Moore's activities here. He was born and reared in the Dry Valley community in the northwestern part of Chilton County, and taught school at Collins Chapel several years and at other paces in the county. Although yet young in his chosen profession while he was here Prof. Moore showed signs of becoming prominent in the business of education. This he has done, and Walker County is indeed fortunate in being the people to reap the benefits from the efforts and ability of this excellent and talented educator.

Yes, Christmas comes in June this year—for Dad. His own private Christmas and the heartiest surprise he'll get in the whole year!

Those gifts he always gets in December. . . well, he may suspect that they're habits. He knows, in advance, that he'll receive his usual quota of mottoed shaving mugs and embroidered tie racks. But this day—June 16—is different! He'll understand that the gifts, which he receives next Sunday, are sent not by custom—but by sentiment. And for all Dad's dignity, it covers some sentiment (just watch him beam at the family's tissue-papered tributes next Sunday!)

Maybe you'll give him something he notoriously needs. . . a shirt or two because you've noticed him tugging at a frayed cuff. Perhaps you'll give him something he'd never buy for himself. . . a cap for his fishing trips, shirt, hose, suspenders, pajamas, tie or belt.

No matter what it is, it will make Dad feel important all day. And it will give him an inward glow long afterward. He'll know he's appreciated. He'll gladly guess the gratitude which you may never have expressed to him. Surprising—what even a small gift can convey, when it becomes a symbol—as it does on Fathers' Day!

Worried
Night after Night
as health declined

"I SUFFERED frequently from nervous headaches, and I could not sleep well," says Mrs. Cora Dover, R. F. D. 2, Hickory Grove, S. C. "I was thin and pale. I was so weak I could scarcely walk. I tried several remedies which were suggested, but nothing seemed to help me. Night after night I worried because I could see I was going down-hill. I had my children to look after, and I was afraid of what would become of them if anything happened to me.

"I began to take Cardui on the recommendation of a friend. It wasn't long until I was beginning to pick up. My strength gradually began to return. I rested better at night and was less nervous. I took several bottles of Cardui, and when I had finished taking it I was in fine health."

OUR ARMIES ARE BUSY IN DAYS OF PEACE

Comparatively few of our people realize the immense amount of constructive work which is performed by the United States army in time of peace. The army is not only a fighting machine in time of national peril but an organization which wins honors and respect for itself in time of peace. Some of the duties of the army in peace times were set out in interesting fashion in the current issue of the National Republic in an excellent article by James W. Good, Secretary of War, in President Hoover's Cabinet, under the title, "Our Army in Peace Times." In recounting the armies civic duties Mr. Good said:

"The military establishment still continues to be a very important and valuable governmental agency for the administration of civil projects. In our early history as a nation, the engineering profession was limited almost in its entirety to graduates of the United States Military Academy. Therein lay one o fthe primary reasons for delegating to the army the construction of our means of communication, ranging from the highway and canal to the railroad and telegraph systems.

"For many years other agencies, civil and governmental, have been equipped to undertake the prosecution of many of these works. But the improvement of rivers and harbors and the control of floods remain a function of the War Department exercised through the corps of engineers. On this development, the federal government, during the past century, has expended approximately one and one-quarter billions of dollars, including both first cost and maintenance. Nearly $500,000,000 have been expended on the improvement of salt water ports and harbors, over $150,000,000 on the Great Lakes, and close to $700,000,000 on other inland streams. The current work of the corps of engineers includes the creation and maintenance of channels in some 125 salt water ports on our Atlantic, Gulf and Pacific coasts, and in seventy ports on the Great Lakes, and over 300 projects for the development of rivers and other inland waterways which have a total length of approximately 30,000 miles.

"A civil activity of the War Department which holds great promise for the revival of water-borne transportation on our rivers is the Inland Waterways Corporation. Exclusive of good will, the net worth of this corporation is now over $17,000,000 as contrasted with $10,300,000 in 1924. There has been a progressive increase in the use of the facilities of this agency. The corporation has not only afforded important savings to the public in transportation charges, but has become largely self-sustaining. This competitive business enterprise is supervised by officers of the permanent military establishment.

"The completion of the Panama Canal and the eradication of those dread tropical diseases which had proved insurmountable obstacles to former efforts to construct that waterway, were effected by Generals Goethals and Gorgas and their energetic military subordinates.

"The construction of trails, roads and bridges in Alaska and the maintenance of the telegraph, cable and radio systems of that territory likewise are responsibilities of the army. At the same time by its experimentation for the control and eradication of disease, by the development of aviation, and by similar activities in a hundred fields, the military establishment continues to pay intangible but important dividends on the investment of our citizens in their national defense force."

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

Written for The Union-Banner by FRANK P. LITSCHERT

In a newspaper interview issued recently in New York Dr. Ernesto Argueta, the new minister to the United States from the Central American republic of Honduras issued a cordial and general invitation to American capital and skilled American labor to go to Honduras. Dr. Argueta predicted that with a coalition liberal-conservative government in Honduras the days of revolution were over and he declared that his nation is now in for an era of profitable development. Highways are being built to connect the larger cities of the little requblic and educational facilities are being greatly increased. Barracks and armories are being converted into school houses. The most significant statement made by Dr. Argueta, from the American standpoint, in discussing the influx of capital and labor to his country was the following:

"And we prefer American rather than other foreign capital and workers, because we are all members of the American continental family and because we, in Honduras, are in favor of the true Pan-Americanism."

Here is something for our internationalists and self-styled liberals to think about. For several years now, in fact ever since Europe lost the edge on the Pan-American market because of the World War, we have been regaled by stories of Uncle Sam's imperialism and dollar diplomacy in Latin-America. We have been told how the United States was entering these countries to the south as the flaming and greedy exponent of imperialism, displacing the good European nations whose commercial interests were there of course not for profit by from "humanitarian" motives. We have ben told that the Latin-Americans resent our political and economic penetration of their countries, and resent our efforts to protect lives and property and promote peace and prosperity there. We have been informed, in stories inspired by European interests, how unpopular we now are in Latin-America and have been threatened with a condition in which we would not have a friend left in the world unless we surrendered to European political and economic dictation.

The first blow to the internationalists came when the trouble in Nicaragua was satisfactorily settled. And we suspect that friendly statements like the one credited above to the minister from Honduras will not be hailed with general satisfaction by the European worshippers in the United States who are not friends of Latin-America but interested principally in their own interests abroad.

The fact is that when our neighbors to the south understand our motives and purposes, and we understand theirs, little difficulty will be experienced in promoting more friendly relations. We ought by all means to be friendly neighbors in fact as well as in location. And we will be if the international propagandists are not permitted to spoil things by poisoning the well of Pan-American concord. Let us by all means cultivate more friendly relations with Latin-America. The Western Hemisphere on both sides of the Equator has a real future, and for social as well as commercial reasons we ought to know more about our neighbors to the south of us.

TRAINING CAMPS POPULAR

Student soldiering continues to be highly popular with the young men of New England. There have been approximately 4,500 applications for admittance this summer to the four Citizens Military Training Camps in this neighborhood, and the quota is only 3,200. The Fort Adams quota of 900 men is already complete, as is that of the Fort Ethan Allen camp at Burlington, Vt., although a few vacancies still exist at Fort McKinley, Portland, and at Camp Devens.

New England is thus leading the country with respect to the number of applicants, and it is also gratifying to learn that a lower percentage of applicants has been rejected here for physical ailments than anywhere else.

Life is to be more luxurious for those who attend the Fort Adams camp this summer, for the federal government has erected there a fine new mess hall that will seat a thousand men at one time, has provided other buildings housing modern washrooms and shower baths, and has laid out eight company streets along which pyramidal tents, each with a wooden floor, will be pitched. Thus the physical comfort of student soldiers will be assured. — Providence Journal.

ONE FROM T. R.

I pity no man because he has to work. If he is worth his salt, he will work. I envy the man who has a work worth doing and does it well. MR. E. L. JONES IS VISITOR

The Union-Banner was pleased last Saturday to have Mr. E. L. Jones of Corinth call upon us. Mr. Jones scarcely knows how to come to Clanton without calling on The Banner, as he has been doing for the past fifteen years.

Mr. Jones talked very encouragingly of crop conditions in his section of the county and said: "If weather conditions hold out favorable we are going to make a reasonable crop of cotton, and we have planted for plenty of corn, peas, beans, and even watermelons. We long ago since learned better than to depend altogether on cotton, but first raise plenty to eat and then we take a chance on making a few bales of cotton to make enough money to buy the things we cannot raise. Of course you know since the advent of the boll weevil cotton is mighty risky."

Mr. Jones also committed himself on the Hoover prohibition movement. He says that there is no half-way ground on the whiskey business, but that the only way to play safe with whiskey is to let it totally alone, and the only way for the government to play safe with it is to prohibit it entirely.

STATE

CAPITOL News

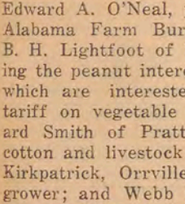
As part of the educational program which he is carrying on, Commissioner, I. T. Quinn, of the State Department of Game and Fisheries, is arranging to have five reels of motion pictures taken of wild life scenes and of conservation activities in the State of Alabama. The reels will be completed during the Fall and will be shown before schools, civic clubs and other interested organizations.

A number of other States already have such pictures and it has long been the desire of Commissioner Quinn to secure some for Alabama. Lack of finances, however, has prevented the undertaking and it is possible at this time only through economies in other phases of the work. Many states purchase copies of stock motion picture films which have been made in other states, and show them as native scenes. Commissioner Quinn, however, is not following this practice, but is insisting that all films be taken in Alabama, and that they show actual scenes and conditions in this State.

Education is recognized as possibly the greatest force today in the conservation field. As the public becomes better informed in reference to wild life and its protection, cooperation becomes more complete, and the work more effective. Moving pictures constitute but one additional phase of the program of education at present being carried on by Commissioner Quinn.

The pictures will include hunting and fishing scenes, views in connection with the work of the State fish hatchery, the State game farms, the harvesting of oysters and shrimp, the operation of factories for packing seafoods, the State refuges and sanctuaries, and ohter wild life scenes. As far as possible they will be taken in different sections of the State and will be carefully worked out in order to give accurate and complete information in regard to the wild life of our State and the efforts that are being made to conserve this valuable resource. It is hoped that they will serve to impress on our citizens the fact that our State is one of the really outstanding fish and game areas of the entire world, and that no Alabamian need seek pleasures afield outside of the borders of his native State.

S. P. Storrs, State Commissioner of Agriculture, has named a commission of five men, leaders in agriculture in this State, to represent Alabama's interest in the fight for protective tariff on southern agricultural products. Commissioner Storrs has called the commission to meet with him on June 12 to formulate plans for presenting to the Senate Committee.



The Commission is composed of Edward A. O'Neal, president of the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation; B. H. Lightfoot of Troy, representing the peanut interests of the State which are interested in protective tariff on vegetable oils; Will Howard Smith of Prattville, prominent cotton and livestock farmer; Clifton Kirkpatrick, Orrville, leading pecan grower; and Webb Hurst, Shorters, who is widely known for his success in diversified farming.
